Rebellious Bretons Plague De Gaulle

NATO Blitz Defence Obsolete

MUNICH (AP) — Defence Minister Denis Healey of Britain said today an attempt by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to defend itself by convention means against a sudden Soviet military blitz in Western Europe "would fall apart within a few days."

"The advantage the other side has over us is the number of its tanks and the element of surprise," Healey told an international defence conference here.

He said there is no reason to try to pump up Western conventional forces to match the Soviets' widely-acknowledged superiority in the field. But Healey warned NATO must have sufficient conventional forces ready on instant call to protect West European borders without having to resort to atomic warfare.

Healey commented on the lightning sped and efficiency of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last August. He said Western Europe can only ensure adequate protection from similar attacks by showing a determined military unity.

"It is not enough," said Healey, "to merely agree on which steps should be taken in the event of a crisis."

"It is far more essential, even in times of peace, to meet concrete measures to assure our security in the event of increased tension or war."

Pointing to a potential drift of the world into two super-power spheres controlled by the United States and the Soviet Union, Healey warned: "If Europe is not prepared to maintain a common and unified position on the problems now being debated by America and Russia, then it can hardly expect to have the slightest influence on any such dialogues."

Groundhog Sure to Show

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Sunday is Groundhog Day and you can be sure that Punxsutawney Phil will see his shadow.

That's supposed to mean six more weeks of winter. But it really means that once again the members of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club have pulled your leg in a gentle and light-hearted way.

Each year thousands of television stations report Phil's judgment on the weather. The time he spots his shadow is delivered on the floor of the United States House of Representatives and dutifully noted in the Congressional Record.

Phil—and his predecessors who've been in the business for 86 years—have always seen their shadows.

"It is a curious fact that come rain, fog, snow, sleet or ceiling zero, a brilliant shaft of sunlight inevitably and often invisibly illuminates the burrow just long enough for the seer to glimpse his shadow," says Elaine Light, the club's historian.

Police Charge Crowd

RENNES, France (Reuters) — Stones and tear gas shells flew through the streets of this turbulent Breton capital early today only a half-mile from where President de Galle slept in a government building.

The 78-year-old French leader's arrival here Friday at the start of a three-day tour of nationalistic Brittany set off a wave of skirmishes between police and students chanting "Free Brittany."

Worse violence is feared in the naval port of Brest which the president is scheduled to visit today and in the farm centre of Quimper, where he is scheduled to make a speech Sunday.

Only two injuries were reported in the clashes, one student and a press photographer who was clubbed. Ten demonstrators were detained for questioning.

Informed sources said the 3,000 police looking after the president's security here are under orders to treat the students with care.

Demonstrations began one-half hour after de Galle arrived in Rennes. Five hundred students with red, black and white Breton flags marched on the state radio station chanting "Free Brittany" and "The struggle goes on."

Singing the Communist Internationale they smashed four plate glass windows at the entrance of the radio station before dispersing when police arrived.

The students said the radio station was broadcasting biased accounts of their protest.

Later, riot police with nightsticks charged a crowd of about 200 students staging a sitdown outside the law courts.

Late at night students burned rubbish and ripped up cobblestones to form a barricade before being chased through the streets by helmeted police armed with rifles.

De Galle is touring Brittany—known as "France's Quebec"—to demonstrate concern for the plight of this northwest province after centuries of neg-

News Briefs

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican today urged "vast" experiments to make the training of future priests, nuns and lay-brothers for religious societies better suited to "the mentality of younger generations and modern living conditions." It proposes the use — revolutionary for the Roman Catholic Church — of psychology to determine whether a young man or woman is capable of living a life of poverty, chastity and obedience. The Vatican also recommended that novitiates spend more time in the world away from their seminary or convent before taking permanent vows.

BELFAST (AP) — Police moved reinforcements into Northern Ireland's crisis-torn capital today for a major demonstration called by Rev. Ian Paisley, militant Protestant leader. Police put heavy guards on public buildings and newspaper offices. Paisley's supporters say that newspapers are biased against them in their feud with Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority.

PET Gets Nixon Priority

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Washington Star says President Nixon is "sidestepping persistent efforts by British Prime Minister Wilson to make an early visit to Washington so as not to offend French President de Gaulle."

The Star says: "If excuses are needed for putting off Wilson, officials point to ceremonial priority which leaders of Canada and Mexico . . . should have in making the first visits to the new president.

"The Canadian government has been consulting informally with the new administration about an early visit by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau."

The Star account says officials from both Canada and the U.S. say no date has been set for any such meeting. Canadian officials have told reporters that the timing of any visit would depend on further consultations.

The Star adds that "the informed guess is that Trudeau will come during the last half of April, before Nixon's visit to

Cadieux Clarifies Service Issue Says Pension Delay Not Intended

Defence Minister Hon. L. A. Joseph Cadieux has denied that his department has proposed a change in the pension policy for retiring Armed Forces members which would see pensions withheld until the age 60.

This was made clear yesterday in a telegram received by the Armed Forces Base public relations officer Captain Dennis Hogan at Trenton.

The telegram was apparently in answer to a news story from Ottawa Friday which said the defence department had made such a proposal to the federal cabinet.

While denying that pensions for retiring service personnel would be deferred until age 60, Mr. Cadieux did say his department was considering a plan under which retiring personnel with more than 10 years and under 20 years service would be given the option of a deferred pension at age 60 or the return of their pension contributions.

Under the present policy service personnel in the above category are entitled to the return of their contributions.

The defence minister said there was no change in the pension policy for personnel retiring at the normal retirement age or with 20 or more years service.

Giant Oil Slick Stymies Officials

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A giant oil slick stretched out over a 200-square-mile area of the Pacific Ocean today and officials still had no idea how to clean up the mess.

Dead sea birds began washing up on beaches Friday as the growing oil slick—fed by an undersea oil well leaking at the rate of 21,000 gallons a day—thrust the film shoreward.

Winds pushed oil toward beaches, then away again, but a thin film of oil had washed ashore along 14 miles of shoreline just south of Santa Barbara.

The thick central part of the slick, about a mile across, wallowed near the well's ocean-drilling rig six miles off shore and officials said it showed no signs of moving onto the beaches.

A program was set up by the California fish and game department to pick up and save oil-soaked birds along the beach. Some dead birds were reported and the department said dozens of grebes and seagulls had become so oil-soaked their lives were endangered also.

Damage to shellfish and other marine life was not yet determined, the department said. The coast guard said the slick covered 200 square miles but was relatively listless and directionless.

Officials said the Union Oil Co. of California, whose well sprung the leak Tuesday, are still assuming full responsibility for cleaning up the slick. The coast guard said, however, that state and federal agencies might take over the clean-up operation if the situation does not improve.

Spraying of detergents on the slick continued Friday from a boat, but the solvent seemed to have little effect, the coast guard said.

Debris from last week's storms was helping to prevent some of the oil from reaching shore.

A Union Oil Co. spokesman said there are indications that the flow from the leak is slowing slightly. The oil was said to come from the well's 3,000-foot level to the 200-foot level, where pressure from natural gas forced it to the su[illegible]e.

Specialists from the interior department and workers from the Red Adair Fire Fighting Co. in Texas joined oil company crews in trying to halt the flow by forcing mud into the well.

Log booms were laid along several harbors and marinas along the coastline in an attempt to keep oil from fouling waterfront facilities and boats.

Industrial Commission to Display Area Products at Exhibition

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Belleville is first and the rest of Ontario follows.

At least this is the case with the Belleville Industrial Commission's decision to sponsor a display on local industry at the upcoming Manufacturers Opportunity Show in Toronto.

"The Belleville Industrial Commission was first to acquire space as a commission at the show," said commission chairman Gerald Joyce yesterday.

"Other communities followed suit after the Ontario government sent out letters mentioning Belleville's plans," agreed industrial commissioner Ray Brown.

And response so far from local industry to the upcoming promotion has been excellent.

At least six industries including Mead Johnson, Northern Electric, Avon Jewellery, Corby's Distillery, Allied Chemical and Stewart-Warner have indicated they will send products to the show.

And why not! Members of the industrial commission in the city feel the exhibition "will do a fantastic job of advertising Belleville and industries already located here."

The commission itself is picking up the tab for the booth as well as seeing it is started. Mr. Joyce and Mr. Brown as well as other commission and company persons will be attending the Feb. 18 to 20 show at the Queen Elizabeth building in Exhibition Park.

Since there has not been a show of the same type since 1962 in Canada it is expected that response to this year's event will be exceptional.

"Its purpose is to find Ontario sources of supply for Ontario manufacturers," said Mr. Brown.

"For Belleville itself the fair will not only display our present industries and capacities but also attract newcomers," interjected chairman Gerald Joyce.

The industrial exhibition is sponsored by the Ontario Department of trade and development and invitations are sent out to all communities and major industries in the province.

Mr. Brown mentioned that there could be as many as 5,000 different displays from more than 100 different companies and communities . . . viewed of course by many thousands of interested businessmen and public.

Besides manufactured goods and products, new inventions, not yet released on the public market, will also be exhibited.

With exposure of this stature Mr. Joyce and other members of the local commission feel the three-day show will do much to bolster industrial interest in Belleville.

It is hoped that as many industries from the city as possible will see the advantage in sending their products to the show and both Mr. Joyce and Ray Brown expect most of them will.

Trustees Get $100

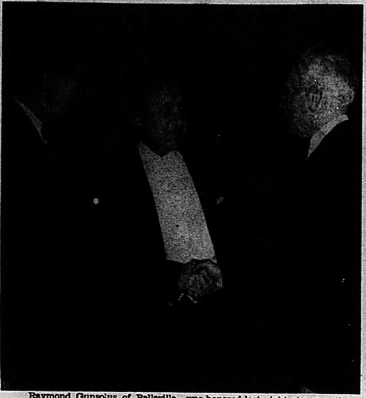
Trustees of the Hastings and Prince Edward counties separate school boards will be compensated for their services at the rate of $100 a month.

The 14 board members decided to set their honorarium at the maximum permitted by an act of the Ontario legislature for separate school trustees on a board with 2,000 to 5,000 pupils under its jurisdiction.

There are about 4,000 pupils in the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward and the southern part of the district of Nipissing served by the board.

In addition, the trustees will receive expenses of 10 cents a mile when travelling on board business beyond a 10 mile radius of their homes.

Early in the month trustees of the Hastings County board of education decided to accept compensation of $200 a month, the maximum rate permitted a public school board with 20,000 to 25,000 pupils. Pupils under the jurisdiction of the Hastings board total about 22,700.



Raymond Gunsolus of Belleville was honored last night at a reception given him by members of the Masonic order from all over Belleville. Over 250 people were in attendance at The Belleville Lodge to recognize Mr. Gunsolus' election to the Board of General Purposes of Grand Lodge.

Masons Honor Gunsolus

Over 250 prominent citizens and members of the Masonic order arrived in Belleville last night to honor Right Worshipful Brother Raymond M. Gunsolus.

They came from every part of Ontario; Sault Ste. Marie to Niagara Falls, to recognize Mr. Gunsolus. He was elected last summer to the Board of General Purpose of Grand Lodge, the highest Masonic board in the order.

Mr. Gonsolus is the first man in 50 years to be elected to the board from the Quinte area. Elections are province-wide and only the officers of the 600 various lodges vote.

Twenty men are elected to the governing general purposes board which meets four or five times a year in Hamilton. A good deal of committee work is also involved.

After the banquet last night, Mr. Gonsolus was made several presentations by the Past Masters, Masters and Wardens Association of the Prince Edward District.

A resident of Belleville Mr. Gunsolus is employed with the Stewart-Warner Company. His election to the board of the Grand Lodge of Canada and the province of Ontario is almost the highest honor that a Mason can be given.

Only the Grand Master of Canada along with the deputy Grand Master supercede the honor for which Mr. Gunsolus was recognized last night.

Mr. Gunsolus is a member of the Belleville Lodge AF and AM 123 GRC. He will serve on the board for the elected term of two years.

New Warden Outlines Policy

NAPANEE — Lennox and Addington again has a warden with a forward look. Harold Creighton, reeve of South Fredericksburgh, attended the first meeting of the County Council for 1969, with a well-thought policy for advancement of the county.

Warden Creighton was sworn in last Thursday by Judge G. F. Smith. The new warden is the sixth generation of Creightons to farm the same land, given to his U.E.L. ancestors.

In his opening speech, Warden Creighton advocated three new features of the government of this county. Welfare, he believed, should be on a county basis, with township boundaries ignored. He planned, he said, to set up a special committee to investigate this matter.

The new warden suggested, also, that one person be appointed by the county to act as building inspector and as a safety construction inspector, to be available to those municipalities who could not find a suitable man for either or both of these duties. Many of the municipalities have their own inspectors, but some find it difficult to find someone who is qualified, and the county appointee could be called on when needed.

The third proposal is much in line with the thinking of at least two municipalities in the county. Warden Creighton stated that he would suggest the setting up of a county planning board, acknowledging that he had regional government in mind as one reason for his proposal.

The county is on the verge of a period of expansion greater than any within its history, the warden believed, and it behooves the council to be prepared for it. "We must think, not only of today and of how ourselves will be affected, but of tomorrow, and of how it will affect future generations," he affirmed.

Obituaries and Funerals

MRS. ROSA MAE ANDERSON
(Cannifton)

One of the oldest residents of the immediate Belleville area, Mrs. Rosa Mae Anderson of Cannifton died Friday at the Belcrest Nursing Home. She was in her 102nd year.

Born in Ameliasburg shortly after Confederation, Mrs. Anderson was the daughter of the late John Adams and Laura Way and had lived in Ameliasburg before moving to Cannifton to reside with her late son Earl Anderson.

She was a member of Burris United Church in Ameliasburg.

Predeceased by her husband, James Edgar Anderson, she is survived only by one brother Merrit Adams of Ameliasburg.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service in the chapel at 1.30 will be conducted by Rev. John Hobbs. Entombment in Belleville vault with spring interment in Albury Cemetery.

WILLIAM JOHN DOWNEY

RALPH EMERSON REES
Stirling

A former millwright with Bethlehem Steel at Marmora for 16 years, Ralph Emerson Rees, 154 Mill Street, Stirling, died suddenly this morning from a heart attack in Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Rees had shopped in Belleville on Friday and later suffered the heart attack, and was taken to hospital. He was in his 70th year.

Born in Circleville, Ohio, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Rees and lived in Belleville before moving to Stirling seven years ago. He was a life member of The Steel Workers Union of America.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edith May Fleming, two sons, Donald and Frederick, both of Stirling; and three daughters, Mrs. John (Fay) Anderson, Bayside; Mrs John (Marilyn) McKeon, Los Angeles, Calif., and Mrs. Donald (Reta) MacDermaid of Picton.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon from the John R. Bush Funeral Home where service at 1.30 in the chapel will be conducted by Rev. Stanley Gentle. Interment Glenwood Cemetery, Picton.

Friends are invited to call at the funeral home from Sunday noon.

REV. BENEDICT LEO FARRELL

DESERONTO — The funeral mass for Rev. Benedict Leo Farrell was said Wednesday in St. Vincent de Paul church in Deseronto, of which Father Farrell had been the pastor since May 1, 1962. Celebrant of the mass was Msgr. John Gerald Hanley, V.G., of Kingston.

Death occurred in the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Kingston, Monday, January 27, and the body rested at the White and Morris Funeral Home until Tuesday at 3.00, when it was removed to the church to lie in state until funeral mass was celebrated. He was in his 70th year.

Father Farrell was born in Marlbank and received his education there; in Napanee; Ironside, Que.; St. Michael's College, Toronto; and in the Grand Seminary, Montreal.

He was ordained in 1924, and before coming to Deseronto served in Kingston at St. Mary's Cathedral; in Marmora, Railton, Smiths Falls, Odessa and again at St. Mary's Cathedral. For ten years in various parts of Canada he was a chaplain with the armed forces.

He had been in failing health for several years and was hospitalized a week before his death.

Father Farrel was the last surviving member of a family of five, the children of the late John Farrell and his late wife, formerly Marcella Hayes. He is survived by a brother-in-law, Joseph Forestall of RR 1, Shannonville; two sisters-in-law, Mrs. Michael Farrell of Kingston and Mrs. John Farrell of Belleville; and two nephews, sons of his brother Maurice, Rev. Raymond Farrell of Sault St. Marie, and Rev. Francis Farrell.

Asisting Msgr. Hanley in celebrating the mass were two nephews; Dean Charles Baker of Tweed, and Rev. Jonas Finney of Erinsville. The eulogy was spoken by Rev. John Callaghan of Gananoque and Archbishop O'Sullivan, retired, of Kingston was in the sanctuary.

Msgr. Hanley conducted the committal service in St. Mary's Cathedral Cemetery in Kingston, assisted by Father Martin and Father Wylie of Amherstview.

The pallbearers were Matthew Cassidy, Wayne Cassidy, Ernest Dorey, Edmund Dowling, Joseph Forestall, and Stanley Merrick.

IN MEMORIAM

ROSS — In loving memory of my dear husband and father Edward Ross who passed away one year ago Feb. 2, 1968.
Always a smile, instead of a frown,
Always a hand when one was down,
Always true, thoughtful and kind,
Wonderful memories he left behind.
—Ever remembered by wife Susan and boys.

IN MEMORIAM

BERNHARDT — In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather Marvel Galveston Bernhardt who passed away two years ago February 2, 1967.
Please God forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our father was here,
There are others, yes we know,
But he was ours, we loved him so
Dear God take a message,
To our Father in Heaven above,
Tell him how much we miss him
And give him all our love.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Gloria, son-in-law Allen, granddaughters Lori Ann, Mary Ann and Alanna Kim.

BERNHARDT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Marvel G. Bernhardt, who passed away Feb. 2, 1967.
We will always remember the way he looked,
The way he spoke and smiled,
The little things he said and did
Are with us all the while,
For down the lane of memories
The light is never dim,
Until the stars forget to shine,
We will remember him.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by his wife Loretta and family.

CALBERRY — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Mrs. Myrtle Calberry who passed away, Feb. 1, 1965.
Oh how patient was thy suffering,
When no hand could give thee ease,
God the helper of the helpless,
Saw thy pain and gave thee peace.
—Never forgotten by sons Peter, Raymond, Joseph and daughters-in-law, Jean, Evelyn and grandchildren.

CALBERRY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Myrtle Mary Calberry, who passed away Feb. 1, 1965.
Her memory is our keepsake,
With which we'll never part,
God has her in His keeping,
We have her in our hearts.
—Sadly missed by son George, daughter-in-law Barb, grandchildren Ted, Terry and Trudy.

CONNELL — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother Mary Jane Connell who passed away February 2nd, 1954.
Treasured thoughts of one so dear
Often bring a silent tear,
Thoughts return to scenes long past,
Years roll on but memories last.
—Ever remembered by Lottie, Earle and grandchildren.

FROST — In loving memory of a husband, father and grandfather, Harold James Frost who passed away February 2nd, 1968.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath,
Will never fade away.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Pearl, children and grandchildren.

MASTERS — In loving memory of a dear son and brother Laverne Verdon (Jinx) Masters who passed away Feb. 2, 1966.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Many think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies in the heart concealed.
—Sadly missed by mother, dad, Deverde and Charlene.

PRITCHARD — In loving memory of a dear brother-in-law and uncle, Joe Pritchard who passed away 3 years ago, February 2, 1966.
Through our troubles he helped us along,
If we live like him we will never go wrong,
God bless you uncle, you were one of the best,
—Remembered by sister-in-law Hattie and Elsie and Pete.

Cubs Sponsored

PICTON (Staff) — The Picton Kinsmen club will sponsor the 4th Picton cub pack as well as a scout troop.

Kinsmen Ted Flint, group committee chairman, said club members at their last meeting had decided to take over sponsorship of the Cub and Scout groups. The cubs previously have been sponsored by the Presbyterian Church.

A new charter will be applied for giving Kinsmen complete sponsorship of both groups.

Under Kinsmen sponsorship the 36 member Cub and Scout groups will meet in the Armory Mall. Tentative leaders for both groups have been found and the first meeting will be held in about two weeks.

Hees Raps Liberal Policy As Government by Compromise

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

AMELIASBURG — The federal MP for Hastings and Prince Edward said he was pleased to "learn the opposition" was hard at work in the area.

In commenting on their activities, Conservative George Hees recalled the days he played football for the Toronto Argonauts. "I was doing my best when the going was the toughest" was the attitude he adopted in similar situations, he said.

Mr. Hees said he was aware the Liberals intended keeping Conservatives on their toes. His answer was to follow a policy of not expecting to win by just working on election day. "Work every day, every year from the day the election is over is the formula for winning," he maintained.

The Prime Minister in Ottawa has still not proven himself, said the former trade minister. "After nine months in office Mr. Trudeau has yet to show any results. He seems to be a nice fellow, charming and bright. But Norris and I know a government is not judged by good looks," he said.

Mr. Hees stated that Finance Minister Benson's announcement the government had a change of mind and decided to extend the estate tax exemption to $50,000 was an example of how the opposition can be effective in the interest of the people. He said there have been few issues which have prompted such an increase in his mail.

The government's decision to refuse a formal request for a separate member's vote on amendments to the Criminal Code was unfortunate. He considered changes in the law against legal abortion, homosexuality and legalization of gambling were bad points — while measures to make it tougher for people to drive and drink and restrictions on firearms deserved a vote.

Mr. Hees agreed there should be a separate department set up for housing and rural development. He pointed out the Conservatives favored making money available to municipalities for low cost housing projects.

The government's apparent lack of Cabinet solidarity was a worrisome matter, he observed.

Regardless of Trudeau's like and dislikes regarding the military, Canada should support NATO "because any sign of weakness would give the Russians an excuse to walk over the world." He illustrated his remarks with references to the seizure of Czechoslovakia last year.

Whitney Claims Airport Depends on Many Factors

AMELIASBURG — The principal speakers at the annual meeting and election of officers held by the Ameliasburg Conservative Association last night made reference to the publicity the Liberals had created by making a bid for the location of an international support in Prince Edward County.

Norris Whitney, MPP, however, suggested the committee responsible for the presentation take more care with collecting the facts. He explained they had called for the diversion of Highway 33 to eliminate two railway crossings at the southeast corner of Ameliasburg township when in fact the location mentioned is near Belleville, "a good 20 miles out of place."

"I hope they give the other parts of the report a lot more consideration because people might start to question the validity of their statements," he said.

He said the airport idea had merit but the outcome depended on a whole series of events being brought into synchronization.

Mr. Whitney said there were other activities of the opposition that amused him.

"Usually in politics the defeated candidate is trusted with dispensing the patronage. Such is not the case in this riding according to the information that's been provided to me. They have a self constituted ombudsman's committee to decide who gets the handouts. Are they trying to hide the fact patronage is a dirty word by improvising in this manner?"

Mr. Whitney said he was hearing criticism of county school boards being set up by the provincial government when in reality similar legislation was the main plank in the Liberal platform in the 1967 provincial election.

Answering the critics of regional government in the area he pointed out that a great many steps have to be taken before the undertaking becomes a reality in Prince Edward County. The transformation was already under way in the county with the appointment of an assessment commissioner, planning board and welfare officer for the county he said. It is gradually progressing here but the situation differs in parts of the province where there is duplication of services and where municipal borders overlap.

"There are really no vital problems here to force the government to speed up the process. Still a number of years remain before it (regional government) is needed," he said.

Mr. Whitney drew attention to four former wardens present — Earl Onderdonk, Melvin Pulver, Harmon Montgomery and Harold Bonter.

He presented a scroll on behalf of Premier Robarts to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Woods, members of the association celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary on Feb. 5.

The new executive of the Ameliasburg Conservative Association elected last night is as follows: Laird Adams, president; Delbert Bush, first vice-president; Earl Onderdon, second vice-president; Elmer Young, secretary-treasurer; Mac Wallbridge and Melvin Pulver, auditors.

He also is sounding out public opinion on what could be the eve of the referendum on regional and Senate reforms. Observers believe the referendum also will be a vote of confidence in the president.

Although the student demonstrators associated themselves with the cause of Breton nationalism observers felt their underlying protest was against the Gaullist movement as a whole —in an apparent continuation of the student revolution movement which swept the country in May and June.

Police believe that by arresting 42 men, including four priests within the last month they have largely dismantled the separatist Brittany Liberation Front which they hold responsible for some 30 bomb attacks against government property over the last two years.

The front pledged in November to suspend operations during de Gaulle's tour.

Seven Guns Stolen at Tweed

TWEED — Police today are still seeking clues in the theft of a small arsenal of firearms here.

Town police say seven used rifles and shotguns are missing after a burglary at Holmes Garage.

Thieves stole the guns — along with 25 cartons of cigarettes — after removing a window in the garage.

Careless Driving

TWEED — A Belleville woman Jean Bertha Ellis, of 53 Wilson Ave., has been charged with careless driving as a result of a two vehicle accident on County Road 8, five miles west of Stirling on Friday afternoon.

Provincial police at Madoc said that the Ellis car was in collision with a second vehicle driven by Olive Muriel Spencer of R. R. 3 Stirling.

No one was injured although damage to the two vehicle amounted to approximately $350.

Come Monday these women will be heading a crucial funds campaign in Belleville. Mrs. Russell Scott, wife of city's mayor, and Mrs. R. S. Morphy ready canvassers' kits for March of Dimes drive.

Just three years ago there were fears the Deseronto Mohawk Indian had suffered car-crash injuries that were fatal.

Now he's earning his way in a March of Dimes rehabilitation workshop in Toronto.

"He was so badly hurt it was believed he wouldn't live," says Mrs. Stephen Morphy, Belleville chairman for the March of Dimes.

Monday, the March of Dimes stages its peak fund-raising event — the one-night door-to-door blitz by its famed volunteer recruits, the Marching Mothers.

Funds underwrite rehabilitation for the disabled, persons handicapped through mischance or from birth.

Donald Claus, for instance, suffered skull fractures causing double vision as well as multiple injuries in his car crash.

After psychological assessment he was transferred to the Toronto workshop run by the March of Dimes. Now he's being taught spray-painting.

Recently, the March of Dimes rehabilitation foundation arranged to have him fitted with special shoes after examination by an orthopedic specialist.

"The aim of the rehabilitation course is to restore Donald to normal life pursuits," says Mrs. Morphy.

"Our objective is still to place him in competitive employment," adds Mrs. Morphy.

Principal at Albert Resigns

A familiar figure has retired from Belleville's education scene.

Bert Simpson, principal of Albert College, has resigned his post for health reasons, the college board of governors confirmed today.

He will be succeeded by Lorne Shewfelt, now principal of Wexford Collegiate, Toronto.

Mr. Shewfelt's appointment is effective July 1.

Education at Albert — 112 years old and one of Canada's oldest private schools — has been guided by Mr. Simpson since 1964.

He became principal of the College after 38 years of service as a teacher.

The college, operated by the United Church, has a current registration of 150.

Mr. Shewfelt, 45, is a prominent lay member of the United Church and, among other activities, is an elder of his church in Scarboro.

He has been principal of Wexford Collegiate for the past five years.

Until he assumes his appointment J. H. McKay, vice-principal and mathematics teacher, will be acting principal.

Full House

Drama Production Success

It was a full house last night at St. Michael's Academy in Belleville as the drama club of Nicholson Catholic College presented Arsenic and Old Lace.

Tonight at eight p.m. there will be a repeat performance and drama club officials, on the basis of the response to last night's production expect the house will be packed again.

Starring in the play are Denise Rainbow, Peter Gray, Thomas Shannon, Joanne McAlpine, Molly Doyle, Alan McAlpine and Denis Brazeau.

Other performers are Paul Black, Peter Gray, Patrick Wall, Milton McCrystal, James Gilmour, Ronald Hall and Michael Reed.

Sister Mary Fleurette directs the production.

After the final performance this evening the drama awards for the past year will be presented to members of the club at Nicholson.

The curtain goes up at eight p.m.

Carnival Cancelled

Lateness of the season prompted the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to decide against holding a full scale winter carnival this year, but a costume skating party will be staged at Zwick's Island.

The tentative date for the skating party has been set for Feb. 22, or if the weather does not co-operate, on Mar. 1.

Approximately 25 persons turned out last night for what was slated as a winter carnival organizational meeting.

However, the general feeling it was now too late in the season to plan for a complete well organized program was prevalent and those in attendance opted for the skating party.

A special committee was set up to meet again next week to play for the skating event. Several local groups, including high school groups, the Jaycees and recreational department staff volunteered to assist in planning the skating party.

No Noise At Airport

PICTON (Staff) — William B. Lane, chairman of the special committee which has proposed a super airport for Prince Edward doubts that plane noise would be much of a problem to area residents.

In reply to the claim by the Prince Edward Milk Committee that noise from big jets would result in loss of milk production for area dairy farmers, Mr. Lane said plane take-offs and landings would be well below the sound barrier so there would be no sonic booms.

He expected areas some distance from the airport would be more affected by the noise, although he admitted there would be noise in the immediate area.

"Prince Edward county would be more affected by the noise if the airport were located somewhere else," he said.

The Shirt Off His Back

It finally happened (if it has not happened before), a taxpayer sent the shirt off his back to pay his tax bill.

The revenue department in Ottawa sent a collection notice to the man, an Edmonton citizen, and got back a cheque written on a freshly-laundered and pressed, but used, blue shirt. Ottawa said the payment would be accepted and the shirt mailed back as a cancelled cheque.

A cheque of course may be written on almost anything that will take pen and ink, and it was a nice touch of symbolism by the fellow out in Alberta which we hope will not be lost upon the federal authorities.

Meanwhile, the government is moving to reduce consumer costs in at least one area — drugs. In the Commons recently, Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford spoke of measures being introduced to give small Canadian firms a chance to compete with the major manufacturers. He described the latter as an "exclusive club" with high profits and big tax-benefit promotion who could afford to cut prices or face competition from cheaper imports.

The bill before the house was a government-sponsored change to lessen the Patent and Trade Marks Act protection against importation of patented drugs — one of several steps the minister said were under way to inject new competition in the drug industry and thereby lower prices.

The measures are timely. From casual observation alone, inside any drug store, it is clear that drugs are big business. Thousands of dollars worth are dispensed daily in towns and cities across Canada. Any reduction in cost to the consumer would still leave the manufacturers with a handsome profit.

Top Dogs

Canada is a big country with a relatively small population. But sparsely-populated as we are, Canadians can claim "firsts" or near-firsts in a variety of spheres.

There was that report the other day that Canadians smoke more cigarettes per capita than any other country in the western world, bar the United States, more than the people of the United Kingdom, Irish republic. Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Switzerland, West Germany and Belgium in that order.

In size we have the second largest land-mass in the world after the Soviet Union, and our mineral wealth is second to none. For instance, Canada produces more nickel than any other country. Russia comes second And who is third?

New Caledonia — that's who. This is French island territory some 1,000 miles north of New Zealand. Annexed by France in 1853 and admitted to the French republic in 1946, New Caledonia's mines yields more than 65,000 tons of the metal annually.

To return to this country and its achievements. We may not be in the race for the moon (although Canada does supply parts for space capsules), but supposing the lunar planet one day is colonized by earthlings, or has visitors from earth for a few days at a time at least, then presumably some sort of permanent radio contact would be established. And since Canadians make more use of the telephone than the people of other countries, the chances are, eventually, that we would extend our prowess in that area to radio communications with the moon . . . !

Well who knows? A mere 50 years ago the dream of a flight around the world was a "flight of fancy." A decade or so later it became a reality. Soon man will set foot on the moon and communicate across more than 200,000 miles of space to earth.

Climatic Hazard

Canadians are fortunate in their climate. It may be rigorous, but we know what to expect and how to live with it — winter in particular, even though the latter season does take its toll in lives. On the other hand look at California, a land of sunshine and mecca for tourists and settlers from near and far, now a raging sea of rain-swept terrain, so devastated that it has been declared a disaster area. If it is not rain (and it is rare enough in California) then it is the heat that must be watched. Brush fires in recent years have taken a heavy toll of property, including the homes of movie personalities in Beverly Hills. That man is always at the mercy of the forces of nature has been proven once again by this news from California.

Ottawa Offbeat

Puppet Parliament Dances to Civil Service Tune

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA, — What is Liberal MP Eugene Whelan talking about when he publicly warns of the 'big battle" with the federal bureaucracy facing Prime Minister Trudeau if he intends making good on his promise to give back the actual "running" of the country to Parliament?

The same thing that parliamentarians, Liberal and Conservative, have been talking about for years — the takeover by the senior civil service of the "real power" of decision-making in national affairs.

They long have complained that successive governments more and more are becoming the legislative stooges of the policy-making mandarins, the deputies and their deputies in the civil service.

But what makes it different now and more meaningful is that the warning comes from no backbencher, but from a member of the government establishment.

For Eugene Whelan is not just the Liberal MP from Essex, but parliamentary secretary to both Fisheries Minister Davis and Forestry and Regional Development Minister Marchand.

And this makes Gene Whelan a cabinet minister-in-training.

He had to get this sub-cabinet appointment on nothing else than sheer ability.

It just was not possible that it went to him because he was a nice guy, meekly doing as he was told and going along quietly with anything the government cared to propose.

For he is, and does, none of these things. Rather, he is a tough guy, abrasive, blunt. Speaking his mind, he has told off, among others, former Prime Minister Pearson and Senator Martin when Oom Paul was external affairs minister.

So what has this rising, if outspoken parliamentarian been saying about what he calls the civil service power usurpation?

Just this, in public, on a University of Windsor panel discussion:

"This fight with the bureaucracy is one of the biggest problems the prime minister faces . . .They (the senior civil servants) have become so powerful they can bring down a government . . . The mandarins laugh at Parliament . . No other country in the western world is so under the bureaucratic thumb. . ."

Gene Whelan, who came to Ottawa in 1962, says he had his eyes opened a year later, at a diplomatic reception, to civil service sins against Parliament and the Public.

The occasion was a farewell party given by the Yugoslav ambassador for a Canadian diplomat being posted to the Belgrade embassy.

It was the dean of the diplomatic corps,a man of the world — he had seen most of it — who told the Essex MP that nowhere in the free world was the bureaucracy in such complete control as in Canada.

Many senior civil servants, says Gene Whelan, have conceded this is so and some agreed with him that this is both wrong and even dangerous.

Since then, the more he sees of who actually has the quick and easy access to the levers of real power, the more he has become convinced that it is the empire of the bureaucracy and not the democracy of Parliament or even of the government itself that rules.

But what about that strange warning that the senior civil service has become so powerful it can bring down a government?

Not so strange, insists Gene Whelan, adding: "If they don't get their way, they can make it impossible for you, embarrassing, harassing and undermining you."

Has it ever happened, though?

"Some people say that is what happened to Diefenbaker's government."

Root of the problem, he goes on, is that while parties and governments may be changed by elections, the oligarchy of the civil service goes on forever.

In any new government, the way he puts it, there are "too many tame cabinet ministers willing in their dependency on their deputies to be led around by the nose."

Gene Whelan does not advocate a "slaughter in the top echelons of the mandarin empire as is routine when the guard changes in the White House, but he would not object to some "judicious blood-letting" when a new man takes over in the East Block.

The bureaucrats are in such tight control now, he fears, that they have been able to engineer themselves salary increases up to $9,000 (making some salaries $40,000) and promote themselves into presidencies of such crown corporations as Air Canada and the CBC.

Meanwhile, the combative parliamentary secretary is carrying his battle against the mandarins to the taxpayers in letters and speeches, and to the Liberal government caucus — but if the fight follows form, he will find it a losing game.

PSI Issue . . Pollution . . Taxes

Unions Have 'Social Conscience,' Says Official

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I was one of four delegates from Local 1538, U.A.W., Stewart-Warner Corporation, Belleville, fortunate enough to attend the last quarterly meeting of the Canadian U.A.W. Council, at which there were a further 250 delegates representing 110,000 U.A.W. members across Canada.

The rate increase of 46 per cent in P.S.I. Comprehensive Blue Plan which covers most of U.A.W.'s Canadian members and which is to take effect April 1st had priority in the discussions.

In many Union contracts all increases during the life of a collective agreement must be borne by the workers, thus months of collective bargaining by hundreds of thousands of workers is undone by a stroke of a pen unilaterally wielded by the medical profession.

The Council charged that the increases are "not only inflationary in themselves but no doubt related to the unilateral 10 percent increases in fees previously announced by the Ontario Medical Association." Both were done without any sort of public enquiry. The UAW is demanding that the Department of Insurance reveal the current financial position of PSI and the information submitted in support of their request for premium rate increases.

It is the union's contention that PSI and the medical profession are "getting theirs" before Medicare comes into operation.

The Council also urged the Canadian government to give full subpoena power to its proposed Prices and Incomes Commission to ensure a genuine in-depth investigation.

Highest policy-recommending body in the union in Canada, the Council, noted with approval the suits the U.S. Department of Justice has announced it is starting against "Big Four" auto companies for delaying the introduction of devices which would have curbed the emission of air pollutants by their products. It said the Canadian Government ought to do likewise and should set up a special agency to "ride herd on the auto industry management in the public interest."

"Actions in restraint of trade which have been a way of life in this industry in the past, have been mostly along the line of collusion on prices, unethical pressure on dealers, and the like," the Council noted, "but this new turn indicates a truly sinister collective management mind at work, to the great detriment of the public interest."

The Ontario Legislature was asked to write into law the right of arbitrators to modify discharge and other penalties inflected on workers in labor-management disputes. For about 20 years, arbitrators have interpreted the Ontario Labor Relations Act as giving them that right. It was recently taken away from them by a decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in what has become known as "The Port Arthur Decision". The legislature must act to restore the right of arbitrators to modify penalties, the Council declared, or workers in the province will be left without either the right to strike or the right to arbitrate during the life of a collective bargaining agreement. The result will be industrial chaos, unless the legislature responds.

The federal government's recent two percent tax increase, with its $120.00 ceiling, was hit as "soaking the little guy". Return to the graduated income tax and implementation of the capital gains tax and other measures included in the Carter Report on Taxation were urged instead.

The above discussions, among all the others, proved to me and my fellow delegates on our first experience with the U.A.W. Canadian Council, that the Unions, especially the U.A.W., are not concerned exclusively with conditons in the plants but that they have a very active social conscience in terms of the community at large, and I would appreciate seeing the above printed in your paper.

Jetport! Well How About A Few Other Attractions As Well?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I see in the Tuesday Intelligencer that the dreamers are at it again. Apparently someone had a vision and imagined a jumbo jetport and gambling casino for Prince Edward County, and a super city on the Trent River.

Surely someone in Ottawa will look at all this and say "You've got to be kidding!" You people who can't cope with a new arena — you people who still live with antiquated liquor laws — you people who are still toying with the idea of whether the local fair should open on Sunday — you want Ottawa to look at all this dreamwhip and give her blessing?

The vision makers would approach Howard Hughes and ask him to erect a gambling casino in South Marysburg Township, and of course his reply would be, "I thought you would never ask!"

And a jumbo airport right in the middle of the Prince Edward snow belt — the runways would be closed half the winter!

Perhaps the super city on the Trent River would be practical due to the excellent bridges at Glen Miller and Frankford.

So why stop at this point? If we are going to go big, let's go all the way and bid for the Olympic Games at the Shannonville Fair Grounds, and the World Series on Zwick's Island. While we're at it we could establish a missile range at Point Anne, and why not dismantle the Taj Mahal and rebuild it on Devil's Elbow?

JAMES A. McGOVERN,

Self-esteem Important In Family

From a survey by Stanley Coopersmith, associate professor of psychology at the University of California, quoted in PTA Magazine.

* * *

Parents of children with high self esteem were significantly less permissive than the parents of children with low self-esteem. The boy with permissive parents is likely to be alarmed and insecure. He is forced into making decisions in areas where he has neither the knowledge nor the experience to make a reasoned choice. He suspects that his parents don't enforce rules simply because they don't much care what happens to him.

Volunteer Group Will Assist Clergy to Enter Lay Society

TORONTO (CP) — A volunteer organization to assist clergy of all denominations to re-establish themselves in lay society after leaving the active ministry or religious life opened its first Canadian office here today.

Paul Harris, chairman of the executive committee of the Toronto branch of Bearings-for-Re-establishment, said that "in the old days the stigma of 'defector' was attached to someone leaving the religious life . . . but today it's disappearing."

Bearings was founded two years ago by a former Roman Catholic priest, William Restivo, who returned from Africa where he had been a missionary. He found it difficult to readjust to secular life and to find work, so when he found his bearings he established the organization in New York City.

"The phenomenon of clergy leaving the church has accelerated in the past several years," Mr. Harris said, "and Bearings is merely a natural response to a need."

The organization now operates in 13 American cities. Ottawa is expected to follow Toronto as the next Canadian branch, Mr. Harris said.

"Bearings is an ecumenical endeavor since it assists clergy of all churches," Mr. Harris said. On the Toronto executive are a United Church minister, two Roman Catholic priests, a former missionary, a businessman and Mr. Harris, who also is public relations director of the Ontario region of the department of manpower.

Mr. Harris outlined the difficulties the Toronto office expects from the ex-clergy in their "re-entry problem."

"Most haven't much money and are at a loss because their religious institutions have always looked after their material needs. Most need a job but we can't rush them because they are idealists and want a job in which they can give of themselves."

Churches and church organizations are the main source of financial support, Mr. Harris said. "We will eventually ask the top brass in churches to give because this is their problem too."

The Toronto branch hopes eventually to hire a permanent staff member, Mr. Harris said, but until then volunteers will staff the new office.

Volunteers include clergy psychologists, psychiatrists and social workers.

Mr. Harris hoped for more volunteers and said one of the most important social contacts is "families who will offer the former clerics a bed and, most important, friendship."

Anglicans Practise Ancient Ministry Of Faith Healing

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — The ancient ministry of healing, also known as "faith healing," has been practised in at least two Anglican churches in St. Catharines for many years.

Rev. Peter Smith of St. James's Church and Canon Edward Downey of St. George's Church agree that the service is of great value, providing a comforting satisfaction to the parishioners who regularly take part in it.

Mr. Smith says that while most people who do take the service are in good health "they find it meaningful and I think they get something out of it."

But each clergyman says he has never been present when he has been aware of a dramatic healing.

Neither one believes there is any magic about the healing service.

"It is the same category as absolution," Canon Downey says. "As in the sacraments, the priest participates in the high priesthood of Christ and in that sense he is no different from any other baptised member of the Christian church."

Mr. Smith says some priests possess special graces or talents but he is not one of them.

"It's not something that is given to everyone," he says. "Spiritual healing is an area where there can be all sorts of quacks."

He says he has heard of a woman who did irreversible damage to herself when she threw away her crutches believing she had been miraculously healed.

But he adds he still thinks there have been many cases in which severe physical disabilities have been cured through spiritual healing.

The church had neglected the ministry of healing for too long.

"You must also recognize the laying on of hands service is an expression of a belief that God is a God of life and healing. . . . Or, in other terms, God's intention is for health."

Canon Downey says a sense of forgiveness is available to all and is of great importance in spiritual healing.

"Forgiveness is an accomplished thing," he says. "It is there waiting for us."

Marmora

MARMORA — Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frost were Mrs. Frost's sister, Miss Madeline Seely, and aunt, Mrs. Ethel Truman, of Montreal.

Mrs. R .E. Bonter has returned home after spending three weeks with her nephew Mr. Val Robinson, and Mrs. Robinson, in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Hubert O'Keefe of Newmarket visited Mrs. John Clairmont last weekend. Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe expect to move to Montreal early in February.

Successful in passing Grade 2 Theory examinations of the Royal Conservatory of Music, with first class honors, was Miss Lynn Shannon of Marmora. A student at St. Michael's Academy at Cornwall, Lynn is a former pupil of Don Pollack of Havelock.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael O'Dell and daughter of Kitchener have taken up residence in Marmora. Mr. O'Dell is employed with the Toronto-Dominion Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bell are vacationing in Florida. Enroute they visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moran at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Breen O'Connor attended a meeting of the Ontario Separate Schools Trustees Association at the Royal York Hotel, Toronto, last Saturday. Included in the program were panel discussions on "Religious Education for Ontario Separate Schools" and "District and County Boards and their Relation to Diocesan Offices of Religious Education." Theme of the seminar was 'What Are the Aims and Objectives of Catholic Schools in 1969?"

There are a variety of ways for men to button up their overcoats this winter. The double-breasted coat with ten buttons can be worn open or buttoned up tight. It is of British wool gabardine and worn with slim-cut trousers of the same cloth. The black and white broad herringbone is a four-button double-breasted coat by Burberry. It has a deep centre vent at the back. The interesting material of the single-breasted raglan coat, also by Burberry, is white herringbone wool tweed flecked with blue and green. Tailoring details are the sleeve tabs and vertical, buttoned side pockets. Northolson of London designed the fly-front top coat in wool whipcord. It has flapped side and breast pockets and trim, notched lapels. The four coats were presented at a style show presented by the Menswear Association of Britain at Harrowgate.

British Columbian Awarded UN Fellowship

The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs' United Nations Fellowship for 1969 has been awarded to Mrs. Lois M. Haggen, Grand Forks, B.C. Announcement of the award was made today by Mrs. Margaret E. Ashdown, National President of The Canadian Federation. The Fellowship is tenable at the sessions of the Status of Women Commission of the United Nations, in New York, commencing Jan. 27, 1969.

Mrs. Haggen, who was a member of the British Columbia Legislature from 1956 to 1966, and whose husband prior to his death was also a member, has an outstanding record of public service. Born in Mobile, Alabama, she spent some time in Washington and Oregon States before moving to British Columbia. She served as president of the British Columbia Historical Association, and during her years in the Provincial Legislature sat on the British Columbia Standing Committees on Juvenile delinquency, Revision of the Provincial Adoptions Act, Trading Stamps, and Milk Packaging.

Mrs. Haggen is active in public life in Grand Forks, B.C., where she ran for the office of Mayor in 1967, being defeated by only 19 votes. She is Chairman of the Grand Forks Senior Citizens Housing Society, and is a member of the Board of Trade, the Red Cross Society, and the Boundary Historical Society.

She has served the Business and Professional Women's Clubs in many capacities and offices, and is at present first vice-president of the British Columbia and Yukon organization, as well as vice-president of the Grand Forks Club. Following her attendance at the Status of Women Commission in January, she will be available to the clubs for speaking engagements.

The United Nations Fellowship award, which involves a grant of $500 and a travelling allowance, is made by the Federation on a yearly basis, as an evidence of its continuing interest in and strong support of, the United Nations. The Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs is affilated with the United Nations Association of Canada, and in the past has sponsored United Nations seminars, held both in Toronto and in New York.

Archdeacon A.S. McConnell to Leave Parish

Rector Archdeacon A. S. McConnell announced to the annual vestry meeting that he plans to finish his parish duties by the end of April of this year.

Telling those assembled that he leaves with mixed feelings, he said, "I have spent over 13 years as your Rector, and they have been extremely happy years."

He continued, "I feel quite sure that if the spirit that has prevailed in the Parish during the past few years will be continued, the image of St. Thomas' Church will continue to play an important and vital part in the life of this community."

Following the appointment of Lieut. A. Tosh as vestry clerk the financial statement was presented by the rector's warden, R. E. Churcher. The statement showed a successful year with all obligations met, including the final liquidation of the debt on the Parish Hall Extension.

Reports of the various Parish organizations were presented and accepted.

The Rector voiced his appreciation of the excellent work done by the retiring warden, R. E. Churcher and presented him with an engraved photograph of the church. Rector's warden for the coming year will be J. Trafford.

A committee of Messrs. H. L. Carruthers; R. E. Churcher and R. T. Morton, with the latter as chairman, presented the report of the nomination committee which was unanimously accepted by the vestry.

The officers for the Parish for 1969 are: rector's warden, John Trafford; people's warden, F. H. Bellstedt; junior wardens, James L. Clarke and J. Leigh Anderson; lay delegates to the synod, Messrs. R. Keel; A. S. Lewis; M. F. L. Jones; H. L. Carruthers; MacDonald Smith and W. Stone.

Alternate delegates are L. A. Kells; R. E. Churcher; H. H. Murray and R. T. Morton.

At this time, members of the Parish executive council were announced. The budget for 1969 was presented by John Trafford and approved. The Parish accepted, in full, the Diocesan appointment.

A brief discussion took place on the method of the appointment of a new Rector for the Parish in which the wardens and lay delegates will meet with the Bishop.

Robert G. Lanning outlined final plans for the Sesqui Centennial of the Parish during the month of February.

Included in these plans are an 'Open House' for all members of the community as well as the Parish. Three special services at which will be two former Rectors of the Parish Archdeacon William J. Robinson of Guelph and Canon F. Arthur Smith of Oakville, and the Right Rev. K. C. Evans, Bishop of the Diocese.

Towards the end of February, the Forum Players will present "A Sleep of Prisoners" in the Church, and an invitation has gone out to the choir of Trinity College, Toronto, to sing a Festal Evensong at an ecumenical service in the church.

Following the closing of the meeting by the Rector, a time of fellowship brought a successful evening to it's conclusion.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

FOXBORO 4-H CLUB

The first meeting of the Foxboro 4-H Club was held this week at the United Church Hall.

Through this club, members learn basic color schemes and then plan, embroider and make various articles such as tote bags or aprons.

Mrs. Johnson led the election of officers and the results: president, Janet Bateman; vice-president, Patricia Gould; treasurer, Barbara Gould and press reporter, Janet Skinner.

Finally, Barbara Gould led a discussion on the story of embroidery which proved to be most informative.

High Fashion Is Now In Armor

PARIS (AP) — Paco Rabanne, the "blacksmith" of French high fashion, dressed his models in featherweight armor as supple as chiffon for his spring and summer collection Thursday.

Models lolled by a pool in water-repellent swimsuit tunics. They "need no drying before dancing," Rabanne said.

The designer insists that the collection is romantic, but most of the models looked like they might have come from the steel foundry. White pajamas are topped by featherweight chain-armor jerkins.

Black, white, brown, some yellow, some pink play up the extraordinary impression of chain and metal you get from plastic chips. They come in coin and "tiddlywink" sizes.

The Christian Dior collection got top billing from buyers, who say that "it's new as well as commercial."

It's a pastel story all the way.

Hemlines have been raised to five or six inches above the knees in the younger coats and suits. Different styles are there for different age groups.

Nothing is stiff, everything sways and the later the hour the more soft and fluid the silhouette becomes.

Belts are dropped to the hipline, on some suits. A new "Saritunic" closes in a surplice line and is exploited throughout.

Earliest Coal-oil Lamps Were Font Burning Styles

In the 1860's after coal oil became the general fuel for lamps, (replacing burning fluid and whale oil) the lamps changed to styles adapted to coal-oil.

The earliest coal-oil lamps were adapted from the small, font burning styles. Coal-oil was not as dangerous in large quantities as burning fluid so coal-oil lamps began to be made with larger fonts that would provide an evening's light without refilling.

Many burning fluid lamps of the period before 1860 were made of glass, usually in an elongated pear shape, pressed, cut or decorated. As the 60's progressed 'composite' lamps became popular, with larger fonts of glass, and glass, metal or marble stems and bases.

A number of American patents were issued to cover the new style in lamps. Atterbury of Pittsburgh and Ripley of Pittsburgh both obtained patents for lamp bodies. Atwood of Waterbury, Connecticut also obtained patents for burners in this period. Manufactured examples of their patents were distributed widely in Canada and turn up with some regularity.

Canadian patents relating to coal-oil lamps start with number 1028 for 'An Improved Fluid Gas Light Apparatus' dated at Quebec, 6 Feb. 1860. It was issued to I. W. McGaffey of Hamilton, Ontario. In December, 1860, Thomas Murphy of Clifton, Welland County, Ontario, was issued patent 1170 for 'A New and Improved Lamp for Burning Coal-oil . . . Without A Glass Chimney.'

The following year J. W. Cunningham of Gananoque, Ontario was issued patent 1204 for 'An Elastic Self-Acting Lamp Chimney Wiper'', the first of a number of inventions in this field.

The smell of coal-oil was not popular and a number of Canadians invented processes to remove the smell.

In 1862 the first Canadian patent for lamp chimneys was issued to Henry Booth of Toronto and on 13 April 1861, Francois Nadeau of Quebec City patented a coal-oil street lamp. A few weeks later the first Canadian patent for a lamp with a mechanically assisted draft was issued to George Perks of Port Hope. This type of lamp is best known in the examples made by R. M. Wanzer of Hamilton after 1866.

The first 'named' oil lamp in Canada seems to have been the 'Victoria' patented by Robert Hopkins, 23 Nov. 1866.

The lamp pictured is an American patent issued to George Henry Lomax. It has a glass collar to catch drips and the imprint 'Sept. 20 1870' clearly visible in the glass. Lomax lamps were available in a variety of styles at about 25 cents each. They sell from $15 to $25 when they can be found.

It is not known whether the early Canadian patents mentioned were manufactured. Authentic examples would be valuable. Lamp collectors should consult Dr. Russell's newly-issued book, 'A Heritage of Light' for detailed information.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

BAY OF QUINTE W.I.

The Bay of Quinte Women's Institutes held their first meeting for 1969 at the home of Mrs. Frank McCormack.

The District president, Mrs. Gerald Irvine will attend the Feb. meeting at the home of Mrs. Cecil Jeffery. Catering for the Institute convention in May was discussed.

The president, Mrs. Arnold Ketcheson called on the convener, Mrs. Frank McCormack, who introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Dorothy Ryan, representing the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit.

Mrs. Ryan discussed the formation, organization and staffing of the unit and its service. This unit was established in September 1966.

She explained that the only thing which is new is the method of organization and administration. It is part of the modern trend toward regionalization of services that one hears so much about in the fields of education and social services.

In summary, Mrs. Ryan added, "we could say that the Board and staff of the Hastings and Prince Edward Health Unit are a group of people with different contributions to make, all working towards a common goal of promoting the good health of all the residents of the area."

Association Hears Reports

On Tuesday evening the Community Concert Association held a meeting in Corby Public Library at which time annual reports were given followed by the election of officers. During the business it was decided that a donation of a scholarship would be contributed to the Rotary sponsored Music Festival to be held Feb. 24, 25 and 26.

New officers for 1969 are as follows: past president, Dr. J. G. Demeza; president, Mrs. L. D. Read; 1st vice-president, Mrs. Douglas Burr; 2nd vice-president, Robert Ord; secretary, H. B. Simpson; treasurer, Les Lennox and for presentations, Mrs. Douglas Horne.

Various committee chairmen named were: reception, Mrs. Donald Leslie; publicity, Mrs. Donald Joss; dinner, Miss Helen Sulman,; ushers, Ed Buchanan; campaign, Mrs. Douglas Vanderwater; co-chairman, Mrs. Lorraine Wardaugh; co-chairman W. B. Vandervoort, and directors, Eugene Lang, S. Alec Gordon and C. E. Templer.

Church Groups

The seventh annual meeting of the Emmanuel Baptist Church was held on Wednesday, January 29th.

The members, with their families (more than 100) assembled for a delicious buffet dinner. Later the members and adherents were presented with reports from all departments, printed and stapled into booklet form.

A new Constitution was also presented for approval, to be voted on at a meeting to be held on February 26th.

Under the leadership of Rev. Charles Savage and the Board of Deacons, with many willing workers to assist, the church has gone ahead both spiritually and numerically. Eleven new members were received into the church during 1968 with one transferral.

The total membership is now 80 and some of these are teenagers who are not yet wage earners. With this small membership the church raised over $9,500.00 in 1968.

Down Quinte Bay way, you hear places referred to, like Adolphustown, Ameliasburg, Ernestown, until it begins to bother you. "Where did they come from?" a young visitor from western Ontario earnestly wanted to know, as he added: "On top of this you discover that these places aren't just a town but take in a whole township."

Perhaps newcomers to this area have faced the same question. Dr. William Cannif in his volume, "The Settlement of Upper Canada," very aptly likens the townships that were formed along the Quinte Bay and upon the St. Lawrence River to Kingston as lively historical pages of a book so packed are they with interest pertaining to the past.

When the United Empire Loyalists came to the bay to settle, the first settlement was simply known as, just that, First Town, it is pointed out. When land allotments were all taken, the next little settlement became known as Second Town, and so on, until all the land about the bay including the St. Lawrence River was taken up with ten townships.

It became sort of common to say you were going to see your brother in Ninthtown or that you had been to Secondtown to visit your parents. As time went on, there was talk that something ought to be done about it." There ought to be names," the people said.

Perhaps so. But what names should be selected to please the townships? That was the problem.

It was just about this time, in 1820, that King George the Third died at the age of 82, having reigned 60 years, leaving a family of 15 children.

Why not, the idea got around name the townships after members of the Royal family; even after loyal subjects and generals? So it was decided and agreed upon.

Kingston was named after His Majesty. Secondtown was named Earnesttown after the eighth son of the King, Earnest Augustus. The thirdtown became Fredericksburgh, after the ninth son, Duke of Sussex. Fourthtown became Adolphustown, after the tenth son, Duke of Cambridge. Marysburgh is named after the King's 11th child, the Duchess of Glouchester; Sophiasburgh after the King's 12th child; Ameliasburg, after his 15th child and seventh daughter. The Duke of Kent, the father of Queen Victoria, who was Prince Edward, became the name of the County, Prince Edward County. Hollowell, was named after a loyal subject; Hillier, after Major Hillier Maitland, while Sidney was named after Lord Sidney, who was Secretary to His Majesty during the Revolutionary War.

(It is of interest to note that an act for the better division of the County of Prince Edward into Townships, was brought in 1836, which is mentioned in Mr. W. C. Mikel's "City of Belleville History.")

Here's an authentic anecdote which explains how one of the township's concessions lines came to be so crooked. "One day near the close of the summer season, one of the Bay's early pioneers, George Young, was surprised to hear the unmistakable sound of a woodman's axe. It was the first time for many months that he had heard this cheering sound; curiosity and still more, a longing for human companionship made him start at once to locate the new comer. But every backwoodsman knows how deceptive are sounds in the unbroken forest; they seem to come first from one side, and then from another. So it was with these sounds of an axe. Therefore the settler seeking to locate the sound left a zig-zag trail, for he blazed the trees as he went, the more easily to retrace his steps. His search proved successful. The two neighbors, if we may call them so became good friends, and in their frequent comings and goings, used the first blazed trail which afterward became a public road and eventually a concession line."

Training Not Enough

SASKATOON (CP) — The executive secretary of the Canadian Association of Occupational Therapists says current training programs do not meet the demand for qualified therapists. Joan Bernd of Toronto said there are about 700 qualified therapists in Canada and there will be need for more.

Dad Should Set Example for Teenager

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 14-year-old son is a little on the smart aleck side. He and his father are forever arguing. I am beginning to wonder who is at fault.

ANN LANDERS

Last night my husband walked over to the chair where Buford was sitting and jerked the pillow from under his head. Buford's head hit the back of the chair and he bit his tongue. He yelled so loud the neighbors in the next apartment began to knock on the wall with a broom.

An hour later my husband yanked the footstool from under Buford's feet. At that time I took my husband aside and told him he should have asked the boy politely for the pillow and the footstool. His answer was, "The kid is not polite to me and I'll be darned if I'll cater to him. I'm going to give him the same treatment he dishes out."

Then my husband accused me of being on the boy's side and reminded me of the column you wrote about kids who play one parent against the other. I need to know if I am right or wrong, Ann. — CAUGHT IN BETWEEN.

DEAR CAUGHT: Parents who complain about smart-mouth kids would do well to listen to themselves talk to their children. Youngsters speak as they are spoken to.

Your husband's behavior is juvenile. He should be setting an example for his son, not playing tit for tat. And you can tell the big baby I said so.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our next-door neighbors are fine people and we love them dearly. The problem is their two dogs. They take them every place. They are well-behaved miniature poodles but they are still dogs.

Several evenings a week we get together at our house to discuss the events of the day. We always end up having coffee and a snack in our kitchen. I'm a pretty good cook and I always have a deliciouse cake or pie or some cookies on hand. Four nights out of five last week, these neighbors fed my pastries to their dogs — right in front of me.

This really burns me up but I don't know if I should say anything. What do you say?—PASTRY CHEF FOR POODLES.

DEAR CHEF: If it burns you up, saye something. But be prepare for a dent in your relationship. People who behave that way think more of their dogs than they think of their friends and they'll let you know it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sister lives on the Coast with a man to whom she is not married. To make matters worse, she has two lovely children, both teen-agers.

I want to see my sister and the children, but I refuse to stay in that house unless the man moves out while I am there. Wouldn't you think she could ask her lover to stay somewhere else for a week? I suggested it and she said no.

Should I cancel my trip? I miss those kids like crazy — AUNTIE MAME.

DEAR MAME: Go. And stay in a nearby motel. I agree with you that your sister's living arrangement is disgraceful, but you have no right to impose your standards on her.

Vegetables Can Be Made Interesting

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: Every year at this time vegetables become a great big bore, unless you use canned, frozen or imported fresh. Could you help me to do something with the cheaper fresh root vegetables? Carrots and potatoes do not present such a big problem, but turnips, parsnips and beets have me stumped. — Pauline H.

ANSWER: Good for you for trying to stick with our Canadian - grown root vegetables. Here is a recipe for each you mentioned.

CHEF REGO'S TURNIPS

Wash, pare, slice and cut a medium yellow turnip into ¾" cubes. Cook in salted water until tender. Drain. Add ½ cup thick pulp from canned tomatoes or 1 medium tomato chopped fine, and one or two tablespoons butter and ½ teaspoon salt. Heat through, gently stirring. A colorful vegetable and a good way to lift turnips from ordinary to special.

PARSNIP PUFFS

Two cups pureed (pushed through coarse strainer or buzzed in blender) cooked parsnips, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 egg — yolk and white separated, salt and pepper, ¼ cup top milk or cream. To the pureed cooked parsnips add the melted butter, seasonings and milk or cream. Beat the egg yolk and add it. Beat the egg white until very stiff and fold it in. Spread on platter and chill. With buttered palms shape into rolls 1" x 3". Roll in buttered very fine cracker crumbs. Place on buttered baking dish and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until puffy and golden brown. Serve boiling hot. These Puffs are delicious with Swiss steak.

BAKED BEETS JULIENNE

- 3½ cups (about) shredded cooked beets
- or two 15-oz. cans shoestring beets
- ¼ cup beet liquid or hot water
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons grated mild onion
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- ½ teaspoon salt
- pepper to taste
- ¼ teaspoon M.S.G. (accent)
- ½ cup fine, dry bread crumbs
- 3 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

If canned beets are used drain beets, reserving ¼ cup beet liquid. Mix beets, sour cream, the ¼ cup beet liquid or hot water (if you cook your own beets), lemon juice, onion salt, pepper and M.S.G. Turn into greased casserole. Mix crumbs and melted butter; sprinkle over beets. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 25 minutes, or until bubbling hot and golden. Serves 6 to 8.

Congregational Meeting

DESERONTO UNITED

DESERONTO — The annual meeting of the United Church last Thursday evening began with a church family potluck supper and promptly turned into a birthday party for Percy Stover when it was discovered that he was 89 years old that day. Mr. Stover is one of the oldest members of the church, and over the years has been active in every phase of its work.

Following the supper, a short devotional period marked the opening of the meeting. Two new elders were elected to the session, Eric Gustavson and Warren Clow of Northport. Since the building of the Quinte Skyway Bridge, a number of Northport families have changed their membership to Deseronto. Three Northport men were also elected to the board of stewards: Leonard Milligan, Walter Roblin and Robert Stewart, as well as David Saunders, Deseronto's new Chief of Police, and Thomas Jordan, Mrs. Beryl Hamilton and Merton Cummings, also of Deseronto.

Reports were heard from all organizations, committees and officers, and many matters came up for discussion. Chief among these was the question of needed repairs on the church itself. It was agreed that a three or, perhaps, a five-year program should be set up to carry out these repairs and improvements.

The meeting of the official Board of the Quinte Pastoral Charge took place Wednesday, in the Deseronto church. This charge also takes in Melrose.

Two events to take place quite close to each other in February came up for discussion. The first is an old-fashioned box social for all the congregation, planned by the Hi-C for St. Valentine's Day, Feb. 14, and the second is on Shrove Tuesday, Feb. 18, when the men will repeat last year's highly successful event, a pancake supper.

Red Cross Youth Orientated

By DORIS CLARK

"One discovery that has been made by research teams investigating the hippies, the nomads, the assorted dropouts from society is that most of them come from comfortable, middle - income homes. Another is that they have higher than average intelligence and good school records.

"It is a puzzling paradox that these large numbers of young people are deliverately turning their backs on the comforts of suburbia. . . . . Now, more than ever, Red Cross has a special obligation to the young people and has a growing responsibility to help them find workable terms by which they want to live their lives.

"A few months ago U Thant said, 'I am looking forward to the time when the average youngster — and parent and employer — will consider that one or two years of work for the cause of development — either in a faraway country or in a depressed area of his own country — is a normal part of one's education.'

"This could well be one of the aims of Canadian Red Cross Youth. . . . .The young people who have been summer volunteers or have worked within their own communities will probably provide the manpower for our future team efforts overseas." — Despatch official publication of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Fall 1968 issue.

Dear Doris: I'm writing this for a mother who is desperate because her 10-year-old boy has been smoking daily for five months. He is the oldest in a family of six and a bright child in school and sports. He has been spanked, talked to, threatened, but it is doing no good.

Now he spends his allowance and buys cigarettes. She also knows he has extra money but is not aware of how he gets it. He learned to smoke from a few of his friends who are older.

The mother is afraid that if she cuts out his allowance he might steal the cigarettes from stores and if she keeps nagging he might turn out to be a juvenile delinquent, as he lies so much to her now.

Do you think she is making a big issue out of this? Worried Friend.

Dear Friend: IT is a big issue. A day will come when that same son will blame his mother for a misguided little boy's poor start in life.

But to prescribe the cure means first of all, discovering the cause. When a younster behaves daringly and lawlessly it usually means he is being shortchanged in love, praise, attention. It means frustrations. It often points to a broken (or badly cracked) home.

Could his father make a chum of his 10-year-old? Does he need a lift in school work? I'd suggest some thought to involving him in physical sports, so that he will become proud of developing a good body and sound lungs.

This is not the kind of thing to tackle by letter. A child guidance resource, right where he lives, is urgently needed.

Confidential to Widow With a Future: It's practical to plan for a larger house; but this fiance of yours wants to provide it. Why not move slowly? Have him and his boy move in with you and your daugher, and together build up a bank account toward a larger house.

What you save goes for the down payment; then rent of your present house goes to help with mortgage instalments — providing this is o.k. with him.

In too few years to be funny both your young people will be grown up and away. Then the smaller home will look real good to both of you.

Opposition Mounts Major Attack Over Liberal Grain Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal government took some more lumps in the Commons Friday for its handling of the damp grain and wheat-marketing problems faced by western farmers.

More of the same is expected Tuesday when MPs resume debate on second reading of a government bill to give interest-free loans to farmerr for drying operations.

On Monday the Commons will start a new week with third-reading debate on housekeeping changes to the Aeronautics Act. Western MPs, led by former prime minister John Diefenbaker, said Friday that the huge amounts of damp and tough grain now on hand should be considered a national emergency.

The grain was left in the fields long past the normal harvesting time owing to poor weather.

Instead of making loans of up to $600 a farmer, the government should be making grants of $200 each, Mr. Diefenhaker said.

The former Conservative leader said there are 217,000,000 bushels of undried wheat on the Prairies. The government was "passing the buck" and leaving the problem on the shoulders of the farmer.

"Our position in Western Canada is a desperate one and calls for action from the government," said Mr. Diefenbaker.

Alf Gleave NDP — Saskatoon-Biggar said the damp grain situation "is a disaster without precedent" and that in a lifetime of farming he had seen nothing like it.

A drawback to the government bill was that it was forcing farmers to borrow more money even though farmers won't be able to sell their product until some time after the grain is dried.

"He has got his neck out about as far as he can put it right now," said Mr. Gleave.

Les Benjamin NDP—Regina-Lake Centre said the cost of drying the damp grain could reach $100,000,000 and it was "unfair, unjust and unthinkable" to ask farmers to bear the entire cost.

"Any government of any political party which comes up with this kind of inadequate measure without really accepting its share on behalf of the whole nation is failing in its responsibilities," he said.

Jack McIntosh PC — Swift Current — MapleC reek was among opposition members hghly critical about the failure to keep enough dry grain on hand to fill export needs.

He said the government excused itself on grounds of poor weather, insufficient transport and a heavier demand than expected.

But this was only an illustration of inadequte leadership and ministerial buck-passing.

Craig C. Stewart PC — Marquette said the $600 loans are too little and too late and called for more aggressive selling efforts.

Youth, 19, Charged with Non-capital Murder In Buffalo Narrows Fire Axe Slaying of Seven

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — A 19-year-old youth who looked "younger than his years" sat quietly in magistrate's court Friday night, his head bowed, as seven charges of non-capital murder against him were read out.

Frederick Moses McCallum, brought here by car, was arrested 30 minutes after eight persons had been attacked with a fire-axe in a home at Buffalo Narrows, 210 miles north of here, early Thursday.

He was arrested after police discovered the bodies of Thomas Pederson, 32, his wife Bernadette, 30, their children Grace Ann, 8, Robert Thomas, 5, Richard Daniel, 4, and Rhoda Beatrice, 2, and 48-year-old John Baptiste Herman of La Loche, Sask., a house guest.

McCallum, about 135 pounds and five-feet, six-inches, was remanded to Feb. 7 after the Crown asked for sufficient time for psychiatric examination.

"Is there any particular lawyer in Prince Albert that you want?" the accused was asked by Judge Thomas Agnew, who allowed him to remain seated throughout the eight-minute uppearance.

"No," McCallum replied.

"Do you want me to obtain one for you?" he was asked.

"If you want to," he replied.

The victims and the accused were all Metis, of mixed Indian-white heritage, as are half the 1,200 residents of Buffalo Narrows.

RCMP were alerted by Rev. A. Dorsche, head of the Roman Catholic mission, who said 10-year-old Cynthia Pederson fled the home in her nightclothes and ran half a mile to her maternal grandmother's home where her sister Connie, 16, was living.

The bodies were flown here for autopsies before being returned for funeral services Tuesday.

Ambulance driver Bruce Clark, 20, said the blood-spattered three-bedroom frame home was a "house of horrors" with some of the victims without faces and others missing the tops of their heads.

Mr. Clark took Mrs. Pederson and her son Fred Donald, 7, to hospital in Buffalo Narrows, then transferred them to nearby Ile a La Crosse where Mrs. Pederson died four hours later.

The boy remained in serious condition Friday night with a skull fracture and possible brain damage.

It was the second mass-murder in Saskatchewan in 17 months. In August, 1967, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. James Peterson and seven of their nine children were found in their farm home at Shell Lake, about 60 miles west of Prince Albert.

All had died of gunshot wounds.

Saigon Attacks

Hit and Run Bomb Squad Wounds Thieu Aide

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong raiders struck three times in downtown Saigon today, one attack wounding a key staff general of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Maj.-Gen. Nguyen Van Kiem suffered a broken leg after two men on a motorcycle hurled a grenade and two homemade bombs at his car. Eyewitnesses said Kiem and four bodyguards managed to jump from their vehicles before the bombs exploded.

In another bombing, four civilians and two civil defence corps youths were wounded in an explosion 300 yards from the Senate building.

Two men on a motorcycle also tossed a pack of explosives into a parking lot used by American vehicles. No casualties were reported and only one car was slightly damaged. None of the bombers in all three incidents was apprehended.

Kiem, 45, was the second high-ranking victim of raiders in less than a month. Education Minister Le Minh Tri was fatally wounded Jan. 6 when a bomb exploded in his car. A government spokesman said Keim's condition is "not very critical." He said the four bodyguards suffered minor injuries.

Officials said the bombing occurred when Kiem's car, accompanied by South Vietnamese military police jeeps, stopped at a traffic light. The general was on his way to the presidential palace.

The spokesmen said two men on a motorcycle, one in civilian clothes and the other wearing a South Vietnamese ranger's uniform, pulled up alongside iKem's car and the "ranger" hurled a homemade plastic explosive charge. It bounced under the rear of the general's car, igniting the gas tank and spreading to the two jeeps. All three vehicles were destroyed.

A government spokesman said the atackers were believed to be Viet Cong agents. The same claim was made about Tri's assassin, but it was never established whether a man later arrested and accused in the case was a Viet Cong agent or a political opponent of the education minister.

Five 100-pound rockets slammed into a market place on the southern outskirts of Hue, the first shelling of the old imperial capital since last May. The shelling coincided with the first anniversary of the Viet Cong assault which led to the 26-day battle for the city during last year's Tet offensive.

Pakistan Seeks Internal Peace As Army Quells City Unrest

KARACHI (CP) — President Mohammed Ayub Khan tonight invited political opponents to a meeting to discuss Pakistan's political problems.

But he qualified the invitation to apply only to "responsible" opposition parties and insisted that any proposals should not damage "the integrity and stability of the country."

This is the format he has previously used to reject the idea of major constitutional change. He did not indicate which parties he considered "responsible."

Ayub made the offer in a broadcast to the nation—his first official reaction to eight days of anti-government violence in which at least 31 persons have been killed. The army has been called out in most major cities to quell unrest. Government troops enforced curfews in seven cities.

In the broadcast, Ayub said the constitution is not unchangeable.

He would not hesitate to accept decisions that were the outcome of mutual discussions on proposals which he specified should be "conceived in the larger interest of the people."

Ayub said he and the governing Muslim League party are ready to discuss opposition proposals for sweeping constitutional changes.

"We will have no hesitation accepting whatever can be decided by mutual discussion." he said.

"I shall shortly invite representatives of the responsible political parties in this connection."

Some opposition leaders had hoped Ayub would announce that he would not be a candidate in next January's election. But he did not do so.

Ayub is 62. He was seriously ill for two months last year with a lung disease, although he has shown no outward signs of illness in recent appearances. Since November, the two principal opposition leaders, former foreign minister Zulifakir A. Bhutto and Asghar Khan, former air force commander-in-chief, have urged him not to run again.

Eight opposition parties have banded together in the three-month-long political crisis, and they are wary of any meeting with Ayab, fearing he may use it to divide them.

They are demanding a federal parliamentary system and direct adult franchise. Under the current system provincial and national assemblies and the president are chosen by an electoral college of 80,000, elected by their home districts.

Early Bird Retires To Emergency Role

WASHINGTON (AP) Early Bird, the world's first commercial communications satellite, has been put on the shelf—a shelf 22,300 miles above the Atlantic Ocean.

And that's where it will remain for generations—perhaps centuries.

The Communications Satellite Corp. said Friday the work of Early Bird's circuits has been transfered to Intelsat III which was launched from Cape Kennedy, Fla., last month and now is in commercial service over the Atlantic.

Early Bird, Comsat said, "remains on station in orbit as a reserve for emergency and experimental purposes."

Originally designed as an experimental-operational satellite with a life expectancy of 18 months, Early Bird introduced live television across the Atlantic when it was launched June 2, 1965.

Designed to serve the heavy communications lanes between North America and Europe with its 240 high-quality voice circuits, or its one TV channel capable of color transmission, Early Bird had an operational record of 100-per-cent reliability.

Although the spacecraft handled all forms of communications, it could transmit between only two stations at one time, and had to relinquish voice and record circuits to transmit television.

Early Bird was operated by Intelsat, the international consortium in which Canada is represented by the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corp.

Comsat said Early Bird received and tramsmitted more than 34 TV programs totalling about 265 hours before its retirement Jan. 19, and handled many thousands of telephone calls, data and record messages and other communications without a "service breakdown."

The sophisticated new Intelsat III, and a sister craft to be launched into orbit over the Pacific next Wednesday, can transmit all forms of communications—telephone, television, telegraph, data and facsimile—simultaneously. All earth stations in the Atlantic Basin also can communicate through it simultaneously, either in pairs or in groups.

Champ's Style Started as Therapy

TORONTO (CP) — When 19-year-old Linda Carbonetto first laced on a pair of skates it was not for amusement or sport — it was medical therapy.

As a baby she broke the bones in both her ankles and at five, doctors recommended ballet lessons or skating as recuperative measures. Linda decided on the skating.

"At first we did nothing more than skate across the rink, but from then on I was always crazy about skating."

That rapport with the blades carried Linda to the highest pinnacle of her career Jan. 27 when she dethroned Karen Magnussen, 16, of Vancouver to win the Canadian figure-skating championship with an almost perfect display of free skating. She took the next day off, but now is back at work, perfecting her school figures for the North American championships Feb. 6-8 at Oakland, Calif., and the world final Feb. 25 to March 2 at Colorado Springs Colo.

Miss Magnussen had the lead in the championships after the compulsory figures section, but a fall in the free skating opened the door for Linda to stage her comeback.

She is only five-foot-three and 108 pounds, but she jumped from 24th to 13th place in the 1968 world final on the strength of her free skating.

"My parents didn't want me to compete anymore after last season," says Linda. "They thought at 19 I had gone as far as I could go. . . .

"A lot of people didn't think I could do it. I had a lot to prove. Now when I go out to skate. I keep telling myself 'Keep your head and show them you can win.' I don't think that's being conceited; it's just positive thinking."

Miss Carbonetto trains in Toronto. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Carbonetto, live in Ottawa where her father works with the Canadian government travel bureau.

Seals Flip Leafs To Cellar Country

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Carol Vadnais sounds like a girl's name, but opposition goaltenders have come to regard it with a mixture of respect and fear.

MIKE WALTON

Vadnais, who languished in the Montreal Canaden chain, has more than proved his worth to Oakland Seals who picked him up after the 1967 - 68 National Hockey League season.

The lanky, 190 - pound Montreal native was instrumental in lifting Oakland to a 5-4 win Friday night over Toronto Maple Leafs in the only scheduled game. He scored twice in the second period to offset a 2-0 Toronto lead then set up a goal in the third period as the Seals counted three goals on six shots at Toronto goalie Bruce Gamble.

In tonight's games, New York Rangers are at Montreal, St. Louis Blues visit Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks are in Minneapolis against Minnesota North Stars, Pittsburgh Penguins entertain Philadelphia Flyers and Oakland is in Los Angeles against the Kings.

Sunday night Toronto is at St. Louis, Montreal in Chicago Pittsburgh at New York, Detroit visiting Boston Bruins and Minnesota at Philadelphia.

Vadnais' two goals Friday gave him 13 for the season and a tie with Boston's Bobby Orr as the most prolific goal scorer among NHL defencemen.

An NHL Western Division all-star, the 23 - year - old Vadnais scored just one goal in 43 games with the Canadiens before being considered expendable.

Also scoring for Oakland were Gerry Odrowski, Gene Ubriaco and Norm Ferguson, the latter's coming with less than three minutes remaining in the game.

Mike Walton had two goals for Toronto with the others going to Paul Henderson and Bob Pulford.

Oakland's victory moved it five points up on third place Los Angeles in the Western Division standings with 43 points although the Kings have played five fewer games. The Seals trail division leading St. Louis by 16 points.

The Maple Leafs meanwhile remained in the Eastern Division cellar with Detroit and Chicago, each with 54 points.

In other league developments Friday, Philadelphia goalie Doug Favell was sent to the Flyers' Quebc City farm club in the American Hockey League. Although Favell was the victim of six first - period goals in the 12-0 Chicago debacle Thursday night, Flyers general manager Bud Poile said Friday he wasn't making Favell the "fall guy."

"It's something I should have done weeks ago."

Last year, when Favell and Bernie Parent gave Philadelphia some of the stingiest goaltending in the NHL and were responsible for the Flyers leading the Western Division standings, both had an equal share of the duties.

This year Parent has been handling most of the work in goal and Poile admitted Favell's sub-par season has resulted from a lack of confidence.

"He's been fighting himself all year," said Poile in announcing Favell's demotion and the calling up of Quebec goalie Dunc Wilson as Parent's back-up man.

Nats' Rally Falls Short As Soviets Sweep Series

LONDON, Ont. (CP) -- Canada came within a lightly-disputed goal at 3:19 of the third period of upsetting the Russian national hockey machine Friday night, but it wasn't close enough.

The visitors won the game 6-5.

The Russians withstood a furious third-period rally by the Canadian national team, but Yevgeny Michakov's second goal of the game gave them their eighth straight victory of their tour.

Goaltender Steve Rexe protested to referee Bob Nadin following the goal which gave Russia a 6-3 lead, but he rejected Rexe's claim that he was interfered with in the crease.

Forward Vyacheslav Starshinov had been dumped in the crease by defenceman Bob Murdock and Rexe was almost pinned to the ice on the goal.

Canada struck for two goals five mnutes apart mid-way through the period, but couldn't penetrate the rugged Soviet defence or cope with the exceptional forechecking of Michakov and Starshinov the rest of the way.

Alexander Maltsev also scored twice for the Russians, who are scheduled to play in Quebec City Sunday and Sherbrooke, Que., Monday in the final games of the tour. Ivan Petrov, and Vladimir Luchenko added the other goals.

Canada got goals from four former members of Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series—Richie Bayes, Terry Caffery, Steve King and Tom Martin. Kevin O'Shea got the other goal.

Sport Briefs

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Canadian Golf Association announced Friday that the format of play for the Canadian amateur and junior championships will be changed in 1969 to 72-hole medal-play from the long-standing match-play. Match-play, a source of heated argument among golfers for a number of years, is the system of matching two golfers in a hole-by-hole competition as opposed to medal play where the lowest total score wins.

MONTREAL (CP) — Charles Bronfman, chairman of the board of Montreal Expos of the National League, said Friday the club is not certain how the closing of Montreal's Man and His World exhibition will affect attendance at baseball games. "With Man and His World gone, Montrealers will have to look for something else to do with their spare time and they just might decide to come out to a ball game instead," Bronfman said. "On the other hand, we won't get nearly as many tourists attending."

TWO WILL EARN FEATURE SHOTS — Fighters Emile Griffith, Doyle Baird, George Chuvalo and Buster Mathis, from left, are shown at New York State Athletic Commission. Monday, Griffith will meet Baird and Chuvalo will take on Mathis in a double-header at Madison Square Garden. According to the Garden matchmaker, the Griffith-Baird winner will meet Stan 'Kitten' Hayward on Feb. 24 and the Chuvalo-Mathis winner will get Jerry Quarry on March 10. (AP Wirephoto).

Hapless A's Take Trouncing From Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rookie Al Ferguson scored all four goals Friday as Belleville Mo-Hawks continued their drive for an Ontario Hockey Association Senior series playoff position with a 4-3 win over Barrie Flyers.

The win over the second-place Flyers lifted the Mo-Hawks into a share of sixth place, the final playoff berth in the eight-team group, with the idle Kingston Aces.

In one other game Friday, third-place Orillia Terriers trounced the hapless Woodstock A's 13-2 before 700 fans at Woodstock.

At Belleville, Mike Dubeau scored twice and John McMillan once for the Flyers. The Mo-Hawks held a 42 to 26 edge in shots.

George Vail collected four goals for Orillia as the last-place A's were handed their 24th defeat in 31 starts.

Grant Moore and George Ford each scored twice forthe winnrs. Moe Galand, Gary Milroy, Earl Balfour, Doug Kelcher and John Hall added single goals.

Turnstiles Spinning as Junior Habs Grab Share of First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens apparently have as much fan appeal as their National Hockey League counterparts.

Friday night, 18,133 fans jammed into the Forum to watch the Junior Canadiens edge London Knights 4-3 and move back into a share of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series lead with the idle St. Catharines Black Hawks.

The crowd was the largest ever to see a Junior A hockey game in the Forum, surpassing the previous mark of 17,015, set last Sunday.

Meanwhile, Toronto Marlboros strengthened their hold on the eighth and final playoff berth in the 10-team league with a 6-3 win over the Ottawa 67s at Ottawa.

Kitchener Rangers fanned their faint hopes of catching a playoff position with a 3-1 home ice decision over Oshawa Generals and Niagara Falls Flyers forced a tie for fourth place with Hamilton Red Wings by defeating the Red Wings 4-1.

At Montreal, the seventh-place Knights held off the Junior Canadiens until the last minute of the game. Centre Gilbert Perrault broke a 3-3 tie for Montreal with 16 seconds to spare, scoring his team's third power play goal of the night.

Marc Tardif scored twice for the winners, including the tying goal at 7:38 of the third period. Guy Charron scored the other Montreal goal.

The Knights scored all their goals in the first period. Brian Chinnick scored once with the Knights short-handed and Dan Maloney and Bob Roselle added the other goals.

At Ottawa, before a crowd of 6,011, the Marlboros won with four unanswered goals in the second period.

Frank Hamill scored twice and Doug Acomb, Harry Sems, Bill Harris and Yvon Labre added single goals for Toronto.

Bob Clarke, Peter Gaw and Doug Keeler replied for the 67s, who fell five points behind the Marlboros.

The Rangers posted their seventh win of the season and moved to within 11 points of ninth-place Ottawa. Dave Cressman raised his season total to 23 with two goals—his second goal into an empty net after Oshawa netminder Bill Yeo was removed in the final minute in favor of an extra forward.

Dennis Bolton scored the other Kitchener goal and Henry Nowak replied for Oshawa.

At Niagara Falls, the Flyers scored two goals less than two minutes apart late in the third period to beat the Red Wings.

Ross Webley led the winners with two goals, Doug Brindley and Bob Walton added single scores. Terry Newman scored Hamilton's only goal, spoiling Dave Tataryn's shutout bid with less than six minutes remaining in the third period.

With 20 seconds left to play, the game erupted into a wild brawl after Hamilton defenceman Randy Manery tangled with forward Dan Makey. Fights broke out all over the ice and referee Tom Brown handed out a total of 74 minutes in penalties.

Mo-Hawks Tied with Aces in Playoff Spot

STAFF —It could have been the $10 Booster Club "Hat trick" prize or it could have been playoff-fever. But the Belleville Mo-Hawks aren't about to question rookie Al Ferguson's motives for accounting for all their scoring last night as they handed the mighty Barrie Flyers' a 4-3 surprise.

The husky Trenton rookie matched his goal output of 22 previous games in a Mo-Hawk uniform, giving the locals the scoring required to put them in at least a temporary tie with the idle Kingston Aces in the eight-team OHA Senior A loop's sixth and last playoff spot.

In earning their third straight playoff-drive win, the Mo-Hawks did something that isn't done too often — they outhustled, outplayed and out-hit the powerful second-place Flyers and had the margin of play that their 42-26 shots-on-goal advantage indicates.

Ferguson's goalmouth-scramble first goal at 14.20 of the opening period gave the locals first blood with Barrie playing a man short, but the Flyers roared back to square things with Mike Dubeau's goal 23 seconds later.

The scoring came after the Mo-Hawks' Ralph Plane and the Flyers' Dave Ferguson got the game off to a raucous start with a penalty box brawl that earned each of them game misconducts.

Other events on last night's card saw a usually mild-mannered George Godson stand up to Corby Adams' foot height advantage and burly Greg Marchen thump Mike Dubeau in the middle frame.

And the 1,051 who jumped on the playoff bandwagon to watch the end-to-end battle enjoyed every minute, goal, and punch of it.

Former Toronto Maple Leaf John McMillan put a temporary damper on the crowd's enthusiasm at 5.56 of the second period when he poked the puck in an open corner from the side of Mo-Hawk goalie Larry Holmes for a 2-1 Barrie lead.

A minute later, Holmes kept the Mo-Hawks in the game when he stopped McMillan sent in alone by Wayne Weller.

Ferguson tipped in one of Eddie Marineau's patented point shots at 9.56 to make it 2-2, triggering a shower of popcorn boxes and paper cups from the delighted hometowners, many of whom saw the same Barrie team beat these same Mo-Hawks 10-0 last Oct. 25.

The turning point came around the fifteen - minute mark of the middle fram, when Holmes stood fast to McMillan's atempts to deke him ou of position on a 24-carat breakaway from centre ice.

Three minutes later, Ferguson got his hat trick by shifting around three Flyers between centre ice and the Barrie goal before picking a small corner to beat Ken Payne and give the Mo-Hawks a 3-2 margin.

At 4:50 of the final stanza, George Godson sent "Fergy" in alone on a two-on-one situation to flip the puck over Payne's left shoulder.

Dubeau's second goal brought the Flyers within range with less than two minute to go in the game, but the Mo-Hawks played cautious when the Flyers emptied their goal for a sixth attacker and settled things by forcing a faceoff in the Barrie end with seven seconds left.

The Mo-Hawks travel to Collingwood tomorrow, setting the stage for a dramatic home-and-home set with Kingston next week.

A bus will be running to Kingston for the Tuesday night game at $2.75 for transportation and game admission.

Collegians Thump Moira To Pad Lead

STAFF — B.C.I. seniors continued their front-running ways in Bay of Quinte Class "A" high school basketball Friday, but Moira juniors slapped back a collegian challenge for domination of more than one of the three divisions.

Paced by Richardson's mighty 29-point effort, the senior Collegians whomped Moira 83-33 to stretch their season's unbeaten record to 7-0 and remain six points ahead of the seven-team pack.

But Moira's juniors edged B.C.I. 67-61 to go two points up on the Collegians with a perfect 6-0 season's record. Moira bantams won their game 48-43.

Meanwhile, Quinte teams were making a clean sweep of their day's hoop activity, dumping Centennial seniors 60-44, winning the junior encounter 56-47, and whipping the bantam Chargers 61-42.

The junior win kept the Saints within two points of division-leading Moira and tied them in second at 10 points with B.C.I. Brooks paced Quinte with 13 points.

Down 13-11 after the first quarter, the senior Saints got their third win in six outings, paced by Baker's 17-point contribution. Quinte and Moira are in a fourth-place tie in the senior grouping.

The Chargers' Neron was the senior game's top scorer with 18 points.

Centennial seniors have now lost all seven of their league games.

Hopkins Holds Fort

Jr. Hawks Catch Morrisons

TRENTON (Special) — The higher-standing Trenton Golden Hawks had to settle for a 3-3 tie with the Belleville Morrisons in Eastern Ontario Junior B action here last night.

And the visitor's goalie Paul Hopkins was the reason. Hopkins had to stop 45 shots to only 18 propelled at John Garrett in the Golden Hawks net.

For holding the Hawks scoreless for two periods Hopkins received the first of three stars awarded players for outstanding performance.

Down 3-0, Hawk shooters continued to blast away at the Belleville stronghold in the third period. Their persistence paid off just after the four minute mark when Pete Hammel and Jim Steenburg combined for Trenton's first counter.

The same combination, with Steenburg pulling the trigger this time, delivered again for the Hawks less than five minutes later.

The goal Trenton needed to put the team in better position in the stretch to the play-offs came two minutes later as the Hawks pressed with more power tactics. The credit for the equalizer went to Don Potts on a set-up from Bim McFall and Gary Lisle.

John McConnell and Dennis McCormick were the leading point getters for the Morrisons. Each collected a goal in the first period which ended with Belleville up 2-0.

The only scoring in the second period resulted when Allen Jones and McConnell fed Ted Waite who made no mistake in notching the third Morrison goal.

Few penalties marred the play until in the third period when Dan Goheen of Trenton and Brian Coughlin of Belleville became involved in a fracas, the former drawing seven minutes detention for a high stick and fighting infraction while the latter went to cool off for five minutes for his part in the exchange.

Sunday, the Morrisons are at home to Cobourg's fifth-place Cougars at 2.30 in the Belleville Arena, while Trenton travels to Peterborough to tackle the second-place Don Byes in a 7 p.m. contest.

Summary

BELLEVILLE — Goal: Hopkins; Brown, Candler, Jones, Janitsch, McGillivray, Summers, Waite, Coughlin, Latimer, McConnell, Fuller, McCormick, Buchanan, Lambert, Storms, Scott, Weskit.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

NOTICE

NOTICE OF APPLICATION BY THE CORPORATION OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE TO DISPENSE WITH A VOTE OF THE ELECTORS

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville intends to apply to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the construction of the Sidney Street Bridge Phase I (Canadian National Railways Grade Separation Project) at an estimated cost of $683,000.00, whereof the amount of $267,500.00 shall be raised by the sale of debentures payable out of the general rate over a period not exceeding twenty (20) years.
2. Application will be made to the Ontario Municipal Board for an order to dispense with the assent of the electors to the undertaking of the said works. Any ratepayer may, within twenty-one days after the first publication of this notice, send by post prepaid to the Clerk of the Corporation of the City of Belleville at the address given below, a notice in writing stating his objection to such proposal and the grounds of such objection.
3. The Ontario Municipal Board may order pursuant to the Statute that the assent of the electors shall not be required and may approve of the said works, but before doing so it may appoint a time and place for a public hearing when any objections will be considered.

Dated at the City of Belleville this 22nd day of January, 1969.
Adam S. Stalker, City Clerk,
City Hall, Belleville, Ontario.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Child Is Allergic to Dog, Must Give Up Pet He Loves

A child and his dog: separating them is like performing a major operation. Only a dog-lover, one who has had the privilege of growing up with a pet, can have real empathy for the youngster who loses his dog. Parents who, on doctor's orders, disturb this loving relationship know how painful an operation it is.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Would you please give me a few answers and explain some questions that are disturbing me and making life almost unbearable? What I want to know is this: are babies and small children allergic to dogs? And if so, what are the symptoms and complications?

I have a 2-year-old grandchild. When he was brought home from the hospital after his birth, he came into a home where a dog had been living for four months. The baby is absolutely enchanted by the dog which licks him and loves him in return.

As soon as the youngster wakes up he looks for and asks for "Bow-wow." When he plays with his blocks or pulls a toy train, the dog is there like his shadow. When the child sees any other dog on the street his face lights up. When he hears a dog bark in the distance, he says "Bow-wow" and looks up at you to see if you have heard, too.

I could go on and on, but I think I have made it clear that this child loves all dogs. But here is the problem. While still in his first year, the baby developed a wheeze and a cough.

The doctor has diagnosed it as asthmatic bronchitis. He says the child is definitely allergic to dog dander. Nothing will help, he says, unless the dog is removed from the house.

I have observed very closely and it seems that whenever the child comes in contact with the dog much, or even when he is around where the animal stays or sleeps (which is in the garage in normal weather) that he develops a harsh cough and begins to wheeze.

I have told my son that he must make a choice between the health of his child and keeping the dog in the house. He is reluctant to give him up because he doesn't want to hurt the youngster's feelings. I have to have some answer to this problem before I go out of my mind and start climbing walls. — An anxious grandmother.

Comment: As hard-hearted as it seems, the choice is evident. The child comes first.

I presume that the doctor has taken X rays, used special elimination diets, tested for sensitivity to dust, molds, bacteria and pollen. He has reached his decision after considered study that the presence of the pet has been endangering the youngster's present and future health.

If you have ever seen any patient in the throes of an asthmatic attack, I think you would agree that this child deserves the chance to get well — and not get worse. If removing the dog from his environment will do it, then there is only one answer. Find a good and loving home for the dog. I have seen numerous instances where an apparently inseparable pet has gone to live elsewhere and has apparently been happy and content in his new surroundings.

As one who grew up with a dog myself from the age of one week, I assure you I know the difficulty you must have in making the choice. Nevertheless, the child's welfare comes first.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY,
Manpower Counsellor

It is significant to note that employment opportunities listed with the Canada Manpower Centre by local employers during the month of January were substantially higher than for January, 1968.

This improvement is especially interesting in view of the fact that due to the recent adverse winter weather, the labor demand from the construction field has been very light, even for this time of the year.

The local industrial complex, aside from those firms supplying the construction field, continue to require additional plant workers at the professional, technical and plant labor entry levels.

Despite this activity there is a considerable number of persons, both male and female, seeking employment either of a temporary or permanent nature.

It is opportune, at this time of the winter, to draw to the attention of all local employers the varied skills possessed by those women and men now registered at the Canada Manpower Centre and seeking employment.

Among the female clients looking for work are qualified and experienced secretarial and clerical office workers, as well as experienced and capable workers for the retail sales outlets. In our files at the present time, are a number of women with experience in various factory labor occupations and who are looking for plant labor work.

Among the male job seekers are skilled tradesmen such as from the construction trades. There is also a good supply of truck drivers ranging from the heavy tractor trailer driver, dump truck driver to the light truck driver.

A number of our male cliand experience suitable for either one or a combined requirement calling for an office manager, administrative assistants and also junior accountants.

In additon to these clients there are a number of clients seeking work requiring unskilled labor.

The Belleville and District Winter Employment Campaign Committee asks that all support and participate in their campaign to encourage increased winter employment, by "Keep People Working — Do It Now".

If you have any type of labor requirement you are invited to contact the Canada Church Street, Belleville, or telephone 962-8681.

Paris Peace Talks Go Full Circle; Bog Down on What to Talk About

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnam peace talks are bogged down after only two sessions on precisely the procedural arguments that delegates voted to bypass.

It took 14 hours of speechmaking in the first two meetitgs for the conference to come full circle, back to arguing about what to discuss first. On Jan. 18 the United States, South Vietnam. North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front had hoped to avoid such time-wasting arguments by agreeing to proceed without an agenda.

Officials on both sides said the talks have not progressed since the first "substantive" session Jan. 25.

The United States and South Vietnam want to begin with negotiations on military reduction, specifically, guarantees of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam.

Hanoi and the NLF want to talk first about the political future of South Vietnam.

The Saigon regime, backed by the United States, maintains South Vietnam is a sovereign state and thus its political future cannot be debated by any international conference.

Hanoi's Xuan Thuy and the NLF's Tran Buu Kiem have said categorically that without political settlement there can be no military reduction. In fact, Thuy added, unless the United States agrees to negotiate a political settlement first, North Vietnam will "fight on until total victory."

American negotiators believe that North Vietnam, and, to a lesser extent, the NLF genuinely want to negotiate an end to the war. For this reason the U.S. delegation remains interested in the other side's peace terms, even if the terms are thought to be 'maximum positions" intended to gain a bargaining advantage.

But because the Saigon government is adamantly opposed to political negotiations at this point, the Americans cannot openly display their interest during formal conference sessions.

Thuy lost no time trying to exploit this hint of difference between U.S. chief negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge and South Vietnam's Pham Dang Lam. A nine-word phrase used by Thuy last Thursday has aroused wide interest in conference circles and evident misgivings among Saigon officials.

Restating Hanoi's four-point peace plan, Thuy called for self-determination in South Vietnam "in a situation where the National Liberation Front exists." This was a switch from the previous wording, which called for self-determination "in accordance with the political program of the NLF."

Sources speculated it could foreshadow a formal demand for a Saigon coalition government dominated by the NLF, or it could be a hint that Hanoi might be satisfied if the NLF were merely allowed to operate as a political party and take its chance in free elections.

American officials would like to ask North Vietnam for a clarification, in secret, private contacts outside the conference room. But the Hanoi negotiators are playing hard to get and have made it clear that private U.S.-North Vietnamese contacts which were frequent prior to Jan. 18 are simply not in the cards right now.

"If the Americans have any questions to raise, they can do so in the conference sessions," a North Vietnamese spokesman said.

If Lodge follows this advice and asks a question in the semi-public session about the future political role of the NLF, he might risk an open breach with Saigon. It would be tantamount to discussing what Hanoi and the NLF want to discuss, namely political questions, and Saigon would consider it an irretrievable and unwarranted concession.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 2

Your birthday today: Adjustment is the path upward for the coming year. From the most extreme external force to the finest detail of personal routine, some profitable or constructive change will become apparent to you. Try for it purely for your own satisfaction. What the outside world is more likely to see of your personality comes on smoother as the year progresses. Today's natives are usually gifted in many lines but often do not work at their highest levels of skills.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Share in the community expression on this day. Take pride without boasting: give others benefit of the doubt. Make an early end to the day's activities, conserve energy and tempers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): There is such a thing as running a good line of action to an extreme. Courtesy and tact are essential, as any error will be at once beyond reach of retraction. Avoid unnecessary travel this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make the most of the day's opportunity for social expression. Using patience, wind up the amenities in good order among all closely associated with you. Restrain the temptation to scatter small money in the afternoon.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): If you will placidly do what is expected of you, many little snarls will dissipate and leave you free. It is better to stay near your home-base and let others come to you.

LEO (July 23 Aug. 22): Seek family conferences for stabilizing any problem for perspective on the expectations of everybody in the immediate future ahead of time can avert squabbles later.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Accept every chance to reconcile. Where relationships are ending, keep things very simple and clear without recrimination or bitterness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): During the day's activities, listen rather than offer commentary. Some of your insights into the nuances of your friends may surprise you. Create a light mood in companionship.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Forebearance continues to be very important in your life over this long Sunday. Wait for others to settle their confusions. Tonight set aside time to consider the merits of your present plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Do your full duty to the community, your family, your friends this Sunday. There will be other times for your needs. Younger people find your comments very important, so consider carefully what you say.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The full moon tends to bring out into the open emotional conflicts; this one provides you with relative peace within yourself while others' are wide open for your view.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today marks turning points for most Aquarians. Personal ties may diminish; offer every courtesy but there is no immediate help for it.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This day brings release, deeper understanding of some old problem. Make a mental survey of your environment before you clutter it up.

For Feb. 3rd,

Your birthday today: Frequent change and reconsideration mark the coming year. Sudden decisions have dramatic results. Newly learned skills emerge. Emotional development is rich and satisfying. Today's natives are all one-of-a kind, strongly individualistic, restless, willing to think along experimental lines.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): This week begins under pressure and nothing seems to come easily. Be content with a slow start. Romantic considerations are confusing; wait for a better response.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): More than usual, your regular routines require full and undivided attention. You have what it takes to do the job right. Your loved ones may be capricious: have patience.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Today begins the first of a series of stray thoughts. Take none of them seriously until later verification or repetition. Don't scatter energy over such a broad range that nothing is achieved in any direction. Endeavor to straighten out this evening.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Petty aggravations provide you with an opportunity to develop your ability to endure. Every detail is expanded beyond its proper importance. If you overreact you miss the message.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Leave tensions in the office. Home affairs develop some added quirk, requiring presence of mind. Pay attention to this passing opportunity! Children, your own or others, are very important to your happiness now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Working conditions test your tolerance this week. Improvement is slow. Remain out of others' disputes, particularly at any place of employment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Social amenities (avoiding incongruous combinations) go a long way to bridge the gaps this week. Begin early this morning making life more pleasant for yourself and those around you. A slow start is no serious deterrent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your personal concerns must be put aside for professional considerations. Muster as much enthusiasm as you can. When you quit for the day, take your mind entirely off the work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): The spirit is hidden in the pile-up, but it is there! Work out details since nobody else has a quick grasp of anything today. Children are important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Begin planning for promotion. Consider home situations to increase enjoyment of what you have. It is not yet time, however, for action.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): New associates or at least some new personal expressions come into view. Take nothing for granted, check it all out. The temptation is to invest in gadgets: save your money.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): People around you scatter their energy. Just don't let anybody stampede you into excess spending. Avoid loans at this time! Lend your shoulder this evening for somebody to have a good cry, but don't intervene.

Nurse Tells for First Time of Horrors After Airliner Crash

By ROBERT AVERY
(Staff Reporter)

TRENTON — "When I got to the scene of the crash all I could see was a ball of fire. I didn't believe anyone could have survived."

But there were survivors in the Czechoslovakian airliner crash which occurred in Gander on Sept. 5, 1967. And some of them owe their lives to Trenton Nursing Sister Joan Cashin.

For her outstanding courage she will be made a member of the order of the British Empire on Tuesday.

And in the first personal interview she has given since the night of the crash some 14 months ago, Miss Cashin told the Intelligencer of the desperate situation which she encountered that night.

"I was at the base when I was told about the crash so I jumped into a pair of slacks and put on my slippers," she said.

"I really had no idea of the seriousness of the crash but when I arrived at the scene all I could see was a great ball of fire — I don't know how anyone survived."

When she did go out to the scene with police and firemen Nurse Cashin was faced with the "most frightening and terrifying scene I will ever see."

Reaching the crash with an ambulance driver and an attendant she questioned a passenger in German and found out that there were more survivors.

While searching for survivors she also organized the carrying of litters through the swampy bog where the crash occurred.

"Some of the survivors were walking on their knees because their legs were forced under on the impact of the crash and they were too shocked to realize they were not on their feet," she said.

"When they saw me, another human being, they collapsed."

Throughout all of this Nurse Cashin worked without proper equipment. But perhaps most important is the fact that she was not prepared for a crash of this scale.

"When the ambulance driver carried the first survivors to the hospital I was left alone and had no communication to call for more aid."

"I would have to scream across the bog for blankets and other supplies," said Nurse Cashin.

"It was a terrifying experience — one that I wouldn't want to go through again."

Nixon Backs French Mideast Talks Plan

VICTORIA, B.C. POLICE and city officials were turned back Saturday when attempting to evict occupants of home scheduled for demolition. Shown here are Wayne Coburn, brother Bart 9, and tenant Sylvia Nickason, 17.

Hopes Russia Follows Suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has decided to accept a French proposal for early talks among great power representatives at the United Nations on ways to break the deadlock in Middle East peace efforts.

He hopes particularly for parallel action by the Soviet Union.

A reply to the Paris government is due to go out this week. It is expected to make clear that while the United States sees hope in consultations with the Soviet Union, Britain and France, its primary purpose is to move off dead-centre the UN peace-seeking efforts of Swedish Ambassador Gunnar Jarring.

In a related move, Nixon will send a friendly message to Gamal Abdel Nasser in the near future, replying to a note of congratulations he received from the Egyptian President.

His note will be designed to indicate that if Nasser, as reported, will propose resuming diplomatic relations with the United States he will find Nixon responsive.

Nixon has set in motion a plan to visit several Western European capitals in the next two months. He expects to visit Paris, site of the Vietnam peace talks, and meet with President Charles de Gaulle. Other capitals which figure in informed speculation are London, Bonn and Rome.

A meeting with Soviet leaders is not being considered at this time, although the President hopes to visit Moscow later on.

Jets Hit Arab Town

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two Israeli jets slammed a rocket barrage into a suspected Arab guerrilla position inside Jordan today, the Israeli army announced.

The Israelis said their planes were sent over Jordan shortly after an army patrol was fired on near the border settlement of Neve Ur, nine miles south of the Sea of Galilee. For about 15 minutes the jets strafed the desert Jordanian village of Mansiya from which the army said the patrol was fired on.

U.S. Army Resists Cut In Europe

GRAFENWOEHR, West Germany (AP) — U.S. Army leaders are stiffening their resistance to further cuts in the combat troops America has stationed in Europe.

This has been made plain here by both Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, the American who is the Supreme Allied Commander Europe, and Gen. James H. Polk, commander of U.S. forces in Europe.

The army desire to keep what it has got at least is perhaps the most significant development to come out of the current military exercise, Carbide Ice, that will end Tuesday.

Polk told reporters that airlifting troops from the United States to use equipment in Europe, as in Carbide Ice, was second-best to having the troops here all the time.

Lemnitzer declared that although air transport capability has vastly improved, the bringing of forces from the United States to Europe was a reinforcing action, nothing more.

Lemnitzer emphasized that the U.S. troops now here are at a bare minimum to keep up their commitments. U.S. forces in West Germany have 230,000 men.

Rifle and Court Injunction Keep Home Man's Castle

VICTORIA (CP) — A man's home is his castle and that's the way William F. Coburn intends to keep it.

"You bet I do," he said in an interview from his duplex which has its doors barricaded with timbers.

City officials, who want to evict the Coburns and their five sons, marched on their home Saturday, but were turned away by the sight of rifles and later by a court injunction.

A city bulldozer sat 75 feet away from the home Sunday night. It has been waiting to demolish the house, expropriated by the city for an urban renewal project.

Mr. Coburn said he expects the battlefield will shift from his yard to the courtroom today as the city is expected to contest an interim injunction preventing it from trespassing or cutting off services to the house.

Mrs. Coburn filled all the bathtubs in the home with water Sunday "just in case."

The city has offered $12,500 for the 71-year-old home, but Mr. Coburn says he wants $17,500 "because I want to move into something just as good as the home I'm in now."

"I couldn't buy anything for the money they want to give me."

Two city officials, solicitor Terry O'Grady and William Hooson, assistant municipal manager, began bashing front and rear doors with crow bars and sledge hammers as Mr. Coburn warned:

"You better be careful boy. Anybody who breaks into this house is asking for trouble."

One of the men was met by Mr. Coburn's son brandishing a rifle and they beat a hasty retreat.

"There was nothing in the gun," Mr. Coburn, a city parks employee, said later. "But it's going to be different if they get wild about this thing."

A spokesman said the city wants to avoid violence "if possible . . . and we certainly don't want any gunfights."

Viet Cong Ambushes Two Units

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong troops firing from ambush along the banks of a canal cut into two South Vietnamese companies in the Mekong Delta, killing 28 and wounding 15, military spokesmen reported today.

Viet Cong casualties were not known.

It was one of the worst setbacks suffered recently by the South Vietnamese army.

The ambush 60 miles southwest of Saigon was one of half a dozen fights that flared up Sunday to the south and northwest of the capital.

PM's Office Has No Comment On Language Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office had no immediate comment today on the demand of Prairie premiers that the official languages bill be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada.

But in November, Prime Minister Trudeau rejected such a suggestion in an exchange of letters with J. T. Thorson, retired president of the Exchequer Court of Canada.

Mr. Trudeau at that time said he saw nothing in sections of the British North America Act cited by the Manitoba-born jurist that should prevent the government from going ahead with the bill.

New Grain Shipping Gets Test

SASKATOON (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, minister of trade and commerce, says a new shipping system for Canadian grain, to be tested during February and March, is just one step in trying to solve the Canadian grain situation.

Mr. Pepin, addressing a dinner Saturday, said the new system will use 50 shipping blocs instead of the existing 2,000 shipping stations scattered across the country.

One bloc in the Medicine Hat region will be tried this month and a second one in the Dauphin region of Manitoba next month.

Groundhogs Face Sun And Winter

Don't put away those winter clothes for a while yet!

Yesterday was Groundhog Day and as far as the Quinte district was concerned any of the pasture-field rodents who poked his head out of his hole had the opportunity of seeing his shadow.

And that's supposed to mean six weeks' more winter weather.

Drivers Deny Youth Aid Ere He Is Slain on Street

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Police said an 18-year-old college student was shot to death on a South Side street Sunday night while at least six witnesses watched.

At one point the victim, Michael T. Altschul, tried to get away from his attackers, police said, by entering passing cars, but the drivers rolled up the windows and locked the doors.

A witness said he saw Altschul and two other men fighting in the street. He said Altschul, after trying to enter two passing cars, walked toward the two men with his arms outstretched.

One of the men pulled a revolver, the witness said, and shot the youth from a range of about six feet. The two men then walked to a waiting car containing two others and drove away.

A tow truck driver found Altschul lying in the street. The youth died a short time later in a hospital from a gunshot wound in his chest.

The victim was a freshman at the University of Missouri-Kansas City and worked part-time as a drug store clerk. His parents said he often hitchhiked rides.

Police said at least six persons saw the shooting, but only one came forward immediately to report it.

Hog Producers Plan Meetings

February days are pork production days for Hastings county hog producers who have announced a series of three meetings during the month.

The first day is the regional swine conference to be held at the Rock Haven Motel at Peterborough. The morning will be taken up with discussions on the new grading system, while in the afternoon, there will be workshops on hog feeding, breeding and on herd health.

County hog producers will hold their annual meeting at Ivanhoe in Frebruary. The special speaker for the day is John Long, Canada department of agriculture who will deal with the new grading system.

Then on Feb. 19 there will be a Quinte workshop on weanling pig production. The workshop recognizes the fact that the production of market hogs in the Quinte district is falling but the production of weanling pigs for sale to other parts of the province is a large and growing business. Garnet Morrish, Ontario swine specialist and Dr. Peter Oliver, swine diseases consultant, will conduct the workshop.

What Mr. Whitney Said

Norris Whitney, MPP for Prince Edward, today clarified statements on which he was quoted at the Progressive Conservative meeting in Ameliasburg Friday night.

During reference to the proposed airport for Prince Edward, Mr. Whitney made reference to the community of Melville. In error this was reported as Belleville.

Mr. Whitney said the airport brief called for the diversion of Highway 33 to eliminate two railway crossings at the southeast corner of Consecon Lake near Melville.

The provincial member said, in fact, Highway 33 was diverted four to five years ago and the crossings were eliminated at that time. There is now only one crossing in the area at Pleasant Bay and the next one is 20 miles away between Bloomfield and Wellington.

Mr. Whitney said the airport idea had merit but that the fulfillment of the plan depended on whole series of events being brought into synchronization.

He also asked if the group was trying to imply that patronage was a dirty word when he referred to the self constituted ombudsman committee in the riding which decides who gets the handouts.

"Usully it's the defeated candidate who is trusted with dispensing the patronage."

After saying that he had been hearing criticism of county school boards set up by the provincial government, Mr. Whitney also pointed out that regional school boards were also a plank in the Liberal platform in the 1967 provincial election.

Lady Disagrees

Carole Wright, food specialist for the Prince Edward County milk producers association doesn't agree with the proposal for a super jet airport to be located in the county.

She claims the super airport mooted for the south end of Prince Edward County would threaten the area's dairy industry.

This week the Prince Edward — Hastings Liberal Association asked the federal government to consider the southern part of Prince Edward as a site for a super airport to handle jumbo jets serving both Toronto and Montreal.

But in a weekly column prepared for Quinte district newspapers, Mrs. Wright says cows become nervous when exposed to intermittent jet booms and many develop ulcers and their milk production is affected.

"It amazes me that our politicians are seeking a jet airport development at the very time when harassed Americans are vainly trying to reduce the mounting health and property hazards that jet engines cause," she said.

Awards Announced

The names of recipients of the three Carter scholarships awarded to Hastings county grade 13 graduates of 1968 have been announced by Queen's University.

Allan Cooke, who attended Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc, was the first winner. He is now studying mathematics at Queen's.

Robert Reid, a Belleville Collegiate and vocational Institute graduate, now in a pre-medical course at Queen's, was the second winner.

Michael McLaughlin, now studying oriental languages at the University of Toronto, won the third scholarship. He graduated from Moira Secondary School last year.

The Carter scholarships have been awarded for some years on a county basis. Only three are available each year to grade 13 graduates of Hastings County's seven secondary schools.

George Hees, MP for Northumberland, past president Delbert McComb of the Sidney Township Progressive Conservative Association and Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte MPP, talk over local politics at Saturday's organizational meeting.

Potter Seeks Action Meeting

Another first in Ontario has come from Quinte MPP Dr. Richard T. Potter with his plan to hold meetings twice a year between cabinet ministers and the public.

The first meeting is planned for Feb. 19 between Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister and Quinte residents when regional government will be discussed.

If it's successful Dr. Potter hopes it will start a new Ontario Policy.

"Don't just come to the meeting prepared to ask questions, come to make suggestions," Dr. Potter told the members of the Sidney Township Progressive Conservative Association.

"If it's successful," said Dr. Potter, "we will hold these meetings twice a year and have different topics and ministers each time."

"There's been a lot of talk in the media about the 'just society' and people not getting involved or having the opportunity to be heard," he said this morning.

"This is a chance for every resident to express their views."

Discussion meetings of the type planned for Feb. 19 are new to Ontario and Dr. Potter hopes they will start a new policy in ridings.

"There's also been plenty of talk about 'no action' and this could give both the government and the people the start they need," he said.

Also present at the Saturday organizational meeting of the Sidney PCs was federal member George Hees.

Elections for the association were handled by Douglas Whitley of Trenton.

Past President Delbert McComb will be replaced by president - elect Hudson Ketcheson.

Elected first vice-president was Harry Brown. John MacKay will be second vice-president and third vice-president will be Gordon Gay.

Russell Pyear was elected secretary-treasurer.

Scouting activities

A workshop for training troop scouters was held last Friday evening in Eastminster Church hall. Assistant district commissioner John Dodge led the discussions on the scout '68' program.

District venturer leader Bud Jones related how the venturer groups operated under the new conditions. Detailed group discussions on the role of the patrol and troop were held.

District commissioner Arnold Welch reported that plans for the Feb. 22 scout rally were virtually complete. There will be five competitive events — first aid, physical fitness, rope work, highway safety and map and compass work. A patrol will consist of four scouts and each troop may send four patrols.

The 21st Belleville (handicapped) troop, led by Don Allan visited the 17th Belleville 'B' troop last Thursday evening. The combined group of 40 scouts played games, prepared skits, organized sing-songs and ended the evening wth refreshments — courtesy of Murray Maw and his scouters.

The 4th Belleville pack have added 10 cubs to their roster this season. The cubs have passed many badges including the currently popular skater's badge. The troop of this group will shortly inaugurate the Scout '68' program. Three scouts recently were invested and badge work is also progressing. The recent bottle drive was a complete success. Scouts and cubs will participate in a church parade on Feb. 23 at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

The smartly dressed scout at the United Community Services banquet was pioneer scout Stephen Elliott of 1st Avondale troop.

The polaris patrol of the 17th Belleville 'B' troop visited the home of former Mohawk Indian Chief, Melville Hill at Deseronto last Saturday. Mr. Hill has a large personal collection of Indian artifacts The scouts were interested in these, and also in Mr. Hill's stories of the early Mohawk tribes. Cpl. Sam Pittman was in charge of the party.

The night hawk patrol of the 5th Belleville troop travelled to Big Bass Lake on Saturday. The boys led by scouter Basil Kirby stayed at Orval Richmond's cottage and had much fun tobogganing on the nearby hills. The 5th Belleville venturer company under the leadership of Nelson Fitzgerald, Kip Hawley and Tony Le port spent last weekend at Pringle Lake.

The boys made note of animal tracks in the woods and pursued other nature studies.

Nurse Joan Cashin

Nurse Describes Horrors of Crash

For the Trenton nursing sister, "ever minute was like an hour," as she comforted victims until carriers arrived.

"They were so glad to see a human being to take care of them, some just smiled and collapsed."

Crossing the swampy bog gave Nurse Cashin her closest call. "Once I was crossing it, and I began to sink. I was up past my waist when a policeman pulled me out – it was a good thing he came along."

"It was dark and the wreckage didn't give much light, and once in a while you could hear the scream of a survivor."

The Patton Memorial Hospital, two miles from the scene, handled survivors and with the crash occurring at three o'clock in the morning only a skeleton staff was available during the initial stages.

"I couldn't attempt to estimate how many were treated or rescued," she said, "but everyone was helping — everyone on the base was involved.

A helicopter came to the scene to transport the injured and after the last survivor was lifted away Nurse Cashin went to the hospital to help. She had been on the scene for some five hours.

The situation stayed in her mind for a few days after the crash but now it doesn't bother Nurse Cashin.

"Yes, for the first few days I thought about it quite a bit but it has no effect now," she said.

The plane had crashed while taxing off from Gander and was bouund for Cuba.

"The aircraft had just refueled and the pilot tried to land on the belly of the plane," explained nurse Cashin.

When the plane did hit the ground it landed on railway tracks and was cut in half.

"The first half exploded. Those that survived were in the second half."

But what of nurse Cashin? Did she not fear another explosion when she was on the scene as close as 40 yards to the plane? And what of the effect of seeing the charred bodies of children?

"You don't think of anything at a time like that," she said, "all I had on my mind was to save as many as I could."

BIRTHS

STRATTON — Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Stratton, Meyers Street, Belleville, are happy to announce the birth of their son, on Sunday, February 2, 1969, at Belleville General Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

BERNHARDT — In loving memory of a dear father, Marvel Galveston Bernhardt, who passed away two years ago today, February 2, 1967.

Within our hearts, we always keep,
A special place for you,
And try to do our very best to live,
As you would want us too,
Many a thought, many a tear,
Remembering the days when you were here.
We miss you so, it seems all [illegible] vain,
Life must go on, we know it's tru[illegible]
But it's not the same since we lost you,
You gave us love in fullest measure,
Care, devotion and memories to treasure,
You shared our hopes, our love and our tears,
We thank you, Dad for those precious years.

—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by son Bob and daughter-in-law Joyce.

SMITH — In loving memory of Daddy, who passed away Feb. 3, 1967.

'Gone dear father, gone to rest,
Away from sorrow, care and pain,
May you rest in peace, dear father,
Until we meet again'.

—Lovingly remembered, Jeanne and family.

SMITH — In loving memory of (Jack) Ewart Smith who passed away Feb. 3, 1967.

A little tribute true and tender,
Just to show we still remember.

—Sadly missed by wife Marion and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank my frien[illegible] neighbors and relatives for th[illegible] gifts, cards, flowers and lett[illegible] while I was in the Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Russell Scott and Dr. Totten. Also the nursing staff of second west.

Joseph B. Roth.

I would like to express my grateful thanks to Dr. Douglas, Dr. Empson and Dr. Russell Bateman and to the nursing staff on second floor west for excellent care I received while a patient in Belleville General Hospital; to the ministers and friends who visited me and to all who sent cards, flowers and books. Also many thanks to my daughters and Bruce for their help at home.

Could Last Three Days

Hearing on Proposed Shopping Plaza Starts Tomorrow

By ROY PEACOCK
(Staff Reporter)

Repeatedly in the news for the past year and the topic of lengthy discussions both in and out of city council, Belleville's proposed $2,000,000 north end shopping plaza will hopefully have its fate decided this week.

Tuesday morning, after two previous dates were cancelled out, the Ontario Municipal Board will commence hearing the city's application for a zoning change which would allow construction of the proposed plaza.

City solicitor E. Guss Porter says the hearing could last three days with the city's submission alone expected to take at least a day and a half.

The board will likely reserve decision on the zoning change application.

Tuesday's hearing was originally scheduled for Dec. 7 but had hardly got under way when solicitors for Oshawa Wholesale had a request for adjournment which was granted. A new date of Jan. 7 was set.

Then the January hearing was adjourned when the firm's solicitors said that because of a previous commitment in Western Canada they would be unable to meet the Jan. 7 date.

At that time OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy said he would be concerned about any further adjournments of the Belleville hearing and City solicitor Porter says he expects it to go ahead.

Oshawa Wholesale, parent company of Towers Discount Store, located outside the city's western limits, is opposing the requested zoning change on the grounds that the Quinte area could not support another large scale shopping plaza.

The Oshawa Wholesale opposition was lodged almost immediately with the announcement from Cambridge Leaseholds Ltd. of Windsor early last year that they proposed construction of the plaza.

Both city council and the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board have given approval to the plaza.

George Elliott, Toronto manager of Cambridge Leaseholds, says his firm is prepared to go ahead immediately following OMB approval of the zoning change.

While few details of the shopping plaza have been made known, it is intimated there could be up to 30 stores with employment provided for close to 300 persons.

A national motel chain is reported also to be interested in the area — if the shopping plaza does ahead.

The fact that Oshawa Wholesale, operating a store outside the city limits, can object to the city's request for a zoning change has raised wonder on the part of many Belleville citizens who would like to see the proposed shopping plaza go ahead.

But municipal board chairman J. A. Kennedy says the Oshawa Wholesale objection is quite in order.

The OMB chairman points out that under the municipal act the operator of a similar business in an adjoining municipality is entitled to lodge an objection.

Accordingly, he said, the board had no alternative but to order the hearing.

Whatever the decision of the municipal board on the city's zoning change request the Oshawa Wholesale objection and the repeated hearing adjournments has resulted in a delay for Cambridge Leasehold plans.

The Belleville Plaza Merchants Association has also entered an objection to the proposed north end shopping plaza.

Belleville's downtown businessmen, while not formally opposing the new shopping plaza, will, it is understood, ask that the OMB decision be delayed.

They feel that any OMB decision on the zoning change should be delayed until the completion of the city's downtown urban renewal study now underway by a firm of Toronto town planning consultants.

Trenton Roads Slippery

TRENTON — Hazardous driving conditions in the Trenton-Brighton area have had drivers fighting slippery situations and this morning one man was taken to hospital following an accident.

In Trenton Memorial Hospital is Alfred Jones, 44, of Toronto. He is suffering from minor bruises and shock and is currently in the hospital under observation.

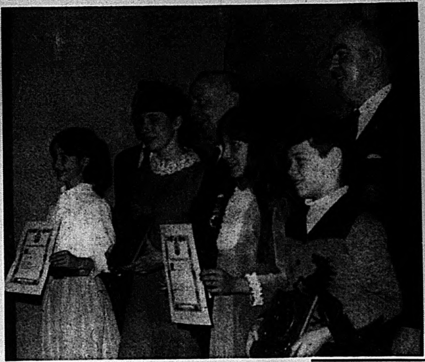
He was thrown from the panel truck he was driving at the Wooler interchange of highway 401.

Brighton OPP report that Mr. Jones was not seriously injured, but did suffer minor cuts and abrasions. The truck contained diving equipment which was spread over the highway and had police working for one hour to clear the road.

Although the Brighton OPP report only two minor accidents since the snow began to fall, they warn drivers to take it easy.

"The 401 is starting to clear up," a spokesman said this morning, "but area roads still have to be worked on."

Trenton police say quick road clearance and sanding action is the reason they have had no accidents during the spasmodic storm.



Future Orators Spoke Out in Belleville and Trenton

Grade 7 and 8 category winners in the public speaking contests sponsored jointly by Branch 99 and 587 Royal Canadian Legion in Belleville discuss speeches with contest judge Ken Ross. Joanne Fahey, Beverly Lewis, Susanne Haggerty and Lisa Vincent talk over their scores. The contest was held Saturday and Sunday with 53 students participating in four categories. In Trenton there were 35 students who entered the contest sponsored by Branch 110. On the right winners display their prizes with Legion and contest officials. Gerald Magne, William Lawson, Mary Campbell, Louis Knack, Joyce Wilson, Glynis Marks and Fred Levere stand left to right in the photo. Winners of both contests go on to Stirling for zone competition.

This week's Belleville "Mayor of the Week," Harry Smith of Moira Secondary School, views pictures of city's earlier chief magistrates with former mayor Gerald B. Hyde, now the city's purchasing and personnel officer.

Moira's Student Mayor Has Political Background

The Belleville Rotary Club "Mayor of the Week" program which has seen all city high schools send a representative to city hall, entered its fifth and final week today.

So far the program has seen two boys and two girls spend a week at city hall and with Mayor J. Russell Scott as he carried out his municipal duties.

This week's "Mayor of the "Week" is 18 year-old Harry Smith, grade 12 student at Moira Secondary School, who says he will be interested in seeing how municipal business is carried out.

However, his interest in municipal affairs comes only naturally. He is the son of Macdonald Smith, long time member of Belleville school board's and now a member of the new county board.

Although he will be interested in learning about city hall affairs, Harry doubts he will take his job as seriously as a former Albert College student who, as "Mayor for the Day" some years ago, really took advantage of his office.

Former Mayor Gerald B. Hyde, now city purchasing and personnel officer, recalls he was city mayor at the time.

"I moved right out of my office and he took over for the day," Mr. Hyde told the current "Mayor of the Week."

"He called in my secretary and dictated letters to all his friends and relatives."

Number of City Fire Calls Decreases Over Previous Year

The Belleville fire department answered 623 calls during 1968 — a decrease of 97 from 1967. Fire damage in the city amounted to $437,473 during the year.

That's $13.25 per person living in the city.

However, retired Fire Chief Ted Poste pointed out in his annual report to the city manager that two general alarm fires caused $338,955 of the total damage. Three general alarms during the year were all on Front St.

In his report Chief Post listed all the activities of the fire department during the past year, including the motorcycle races, the Santa Claus parade and the Christmas Toy Exchange as well as others.

There are now eight captains and 35 firefighters in the department as well as the chief and deputy chief, a captain instructor, a chief fire prevention officer and one inspector.

Also included in the annual report was a summary of the activities of the fire prevention bureau of the department.

The year round program designed to prevent fires perhaps takes up more time than any other activity at the fire station. Inspections, publicity, and licencing all increased during the year in an effort to bring down the number of fire calls.

During 1968, 3,500 inspections were made by the Belleville fire department which was a large increase over 1967 and the preceding five years.

Training is also a big thing with the department and 428 hours were spent learning how to handle and use new and old equipment — both for fire fighting, safety and first aid.

The report submitted to the city manager will be the last ever to come from Chief Poste as he retired from the department last week after 30 years of service.

Deputy chief Leo Culhane, who has been on the force since 1940, has taken over the position.

Picton Variety Night Draws Large Audience

PICTON (Staff) Variety Nite '69, with the theme 'Happiness Is' was performed Thursday and Friday nights before audiences numbering nearly 300.

The show was directed and produced by the students of Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, and performed in the school auditorium.

The review, said Bruce McGinnin, producer and director, "gave everybody a chance to do what they liked doing best."

The program included vocal and instrumental music, skits, and some choice humor.

The music ranged from folk through some of the latest Broadway productions right up to arrangements by Gordon Lightfoot.

Bruce said that they had received excellent co-operation from everyone, including the weatherman. He said the performers had started practising for the show in November.

About 50 students took part in the production.

The other producers and directors were Charles Cole, Arlene Alyea, and Monica Alyea. The emcees were Janet Briggs, Charles Cole, Steve Carroll, Wayne Hutcheson, and Bob Clapp.

Man Hospitalized

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton area boy was rushed unconscious to Prince Edward Hospital at Picton Friday night after the motorcycle he was riding collided with the rear of a truck. He is reported to be in fair condition.

Picton police said that Robert Hoare, 17, of RR4, Picton was westbound on Main Street when near the intersection of Johnston Street, his machine collided with the right rear of a jeep driven by Brian Hutchison, 16, of Bloomfield.

Damage to the motorbike amounted to about $500 and to the jeep about $150.

Nixon Fights Crime

During the United States election campaign all candidates emphasized the necessity of restoring law and order. Republican candidate Richard Nixon, new the president, was no exception.

Good as his word, Mr. Nixon is making a start on home ground in Washington, which he has described as oppressed by "marauders and criminals."

To one degree or another the situation is the same in cities throughout the U.S., but Washington — with almost 70 percent of its city population of 800,000, Negro — has long been one of the most blighted areas where crimes against the person are concerned.

New York, Boston, in these and other centres crime is rife, and Nixon's task is an uphill one. Bank robberies alone ran at the rate of more than one a day in the first 20 days of this year. Overall, major crime reported for the year ending last November was up 27.9 per cent over the previous year.

There is talk of recruiting an additional 1,000 to 2,000 policemen and of increased spending on other anti-crime measures. We can only hope these will be effective, for a country whose people are at the mercy of hoodlums is not one to be envied.

Women's Talents

Discussing the status of women recently, an area newspaper observed that women should be more ambitious. It suggested there were other things in life besides "pouring tea and admiring each other's hats."

The same point has been made by a Vancouver woman alderman, Marianne Linnell. A widow, with a son of 24, Mrs. Linnell told Toronto writer Zena Cherry that there are "too many women's clubs doing too little."

"I would like to see women tackle the real problems of our country. There is a crying need to stop pollution.

"Women's reaction today is, "Why doesn't the government do it?" This attitude even prevails over such issues as the location of crossing guards on the street for the safety of school children. Why don't their mothers organize their own guard system? All these services raise our taxes."

Mrs. Linnell wondered how many women ever attended sessions of their municipal or provincial governments, and added: "I think the average woman feels 'I can't do anything myself.' But you would be surprised how much effect a phone call to your member, or a letter has. Each one of us who stands up for an ideal or strikes out against injustice, sends forth a tiny eddy of activity and these joined together can make a better world."

Well worth taking seriously, this advice of Mrs. Linnell of Vancouver. By and large people today are too docile — and this stems from government overlordship, the increase in social welfare, and general affluence. We all need to speak out more as individuals, and not just take everything for granted.

Students' Day Off

Out west in Vancouver they are unaccustomed to snow, except on the mountain ski slopes. But west coast Canadians do enjoy the outdoors and they are making the most of the current surfeit of snow on their doorstep. It could be, too, that school authorities there are more sensitive to the value of the outdoors where the young are concerned, than their counterparts in the frigid and regimented east. Be that as it may, take a lesson from a recent happening on Grouse Mountain. Six hundred pupils and 35 teachers from North Vancouver's Handsworth secondary school recently enjoyed what was described as a "novel Ski Day." A Vancouver Sun photograph shows school principal A. G. Stables getting a shove on what looks like a toboggan, from two laughing teenage lasses, while students in the background let out a cheer. Skiing or tobogganing . . . the point is, here were students and teachers having a day off, and spending it amid the clean mountain air and the snow, to return to their desks the following day, stimulated and refreshed.

Face-saving Tactics

Gamesmanship and Compromise the Rule in Ottawa

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentary compromise appears to have been adopted as a tactical device by the Trudeau administration.

The latest example involves a pullback from previously-announced positions on legislation governing estate and gift taxes.

It follows a pre-Christmas withdrawal of a controversial time-allocation rule for Commons debates in a compromise step to win agreement for a number of other changes in House procedures.

The Liberal government has also indicated it is willing to accept worth-while changes in its pending tax-reform legislation expected by June. Finance Minister Edgar Benson has labelled it a draft bill, which further indicates the government does not regard it as fixed policy.

If the government follows through in this spirit of compromise, it will enhance the power of the official opposition, the Conservatives, and the other two opposition parties, the New Democrats and Creditistes.

The message seems to be that if the opposition is willing to kick up enough fuss about a measure, then the government will listen.

Not perhaps just because the opposition is objecting. But because the objections arise in part from groups outside Parliament. The opposition objections can be regarded as a reflection of a segment of public opinion, which cannot be ignored.

In the previous Pearson administration, which lived in danger of an election-causing defeat on the floor of the Commons because of its minority position, there was an immediate practical reason for giving in to opposition demands.

The Trudeau administration, with its sizable majority, — 155 of the 264 Commons seats — has no fears of a defeat and has the power to put through Parliament pretty much what it likes.

However, the evidence so far indicates it is more prepared to risk a loss of face through a change of mind than ram through measures without regard for public opinion.

Prime Minister Trudeau has exhibited a gamesmanship flair in the daily question period in the Commons. Something of the same spirit appears to encompass the Liberal party's over-all approach to Parliament.

It will be interesting to see how deeply the idea of bargaining over government measures takes hold. So far it has been selectively used.

There's been no lack of 'diligent pursuit,' Mr. Minister

Commuter-bus System Woos Workers Away from Cars in Flint, Michigan, Experiment

(Rudy Platiel in The Globe and Mail)

Bus driver George Nichols sat waiting behind the steering wheel looking first at his watch then at the darkened windows of the house.

George Nichols doesn't go knocking on the doors of all riders who are late but Flint's new commuter bus service — called the Maxi-cab Commuter Club — is a highly personalized service that seems like a bus rider's daydream fantasy.

For between $9 and $18 a month, it picks up customers either at their door or within a half block, and drops them off at the plant entrance nearest their work.

The sleek, immaculate new buses have contoured bucket seats and riders are soothed by stereo music. Newspapers are available free. Occasionally one of the young female service representatives — nicknamed bus bunnies — rides along serving coffee and donuts and chatting with customers. They are supposed to listen for dissatisfaction and suggestions for improvements, but even with the service only about a month old, they are receiving more proposals for dinner and marriage than complaints.

The passengers of this exclusive portal-to-portal service are not briefcase-toting business executives and white-collar workers. They are all blue-collar factory workers — the only ones to whom the service is available at the moment.

The Maxi - cab Commuter Club service is a three-year experiment sponsored by private, city and federal Government agencies to see if new life can be breathed into deficit-plagued municipal transportation systems in the United States.

James Stebbins, project technical manager, said the start came back in 1964 when Flint City Coach Lines "called for help" after nine successive years of deficits.

Flint, an industrial city of 196,940, is close to being a one-industry community. More than 700,000 persons are employed at the six General Motors complexes in the city and two on the outskirts.

With acres of valuable land being tied up to create enormous parking lots, GM was more than willing to co-operate with any attempt to induce a trend toward use of mass public transportation.

"Three years may seem like a long time but a man and his car is an awfully hard thing to change. The car is almost like a mistress to him — it is always there and it does what he wants," said Mr. Stebbins, who is employed by the American Academy of Transportation.

"These people (the blue-collar workers) have got so much money that they don't care how much it costs — we found that out fast," Mr. Stebbins said.

Candace Parks is one of three service representatives or bus bunnies — "that started as a joke around the office".

"Everyone seems satisfied except those who are in love with their cars," she said. 'Do you know some of them are so in love with their cars that they carry pictures of them in their wallet?"

Letters to the Editor

Politics and the Sabbath Day

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Back a few years ago there was a man named, Patrick Henry, who cried "Give me liberty or give me death". Just recently in Ireland a Presbyterian church leader, Rev. Ian Paisley and his aide were arrested. What happened to their liberty?

Could it be that politics and religion do not mix? Once a government or a city council starts making laws that touch on a religious matter, someone's religious freedom will be touched.

Take a look at Czechoslovakia, Spain and Ireland. You may say, "That it can't happen here"; why not? There is unrest in the hearts of men that makes them do strange things.

Why does a man or a group of men prepare a bylaw to force or enforce their thinking of someone else? Will it make the gambler a better person? No sir, for I used to be one.

What the people of Belleville and the whole world needs is more of the divine love of God in their heart.

Why must man legislate his opinions to others? For instance, the Sunday issue on "Why Not Call," and the special news items from ministers and laymen alike.

Let us look at some viewpoints. Re: Encyclopedia Britannica "Sunday, the first day in the week, is the day particularly dedicated to worship in Christendom, in memory of Christ's Resurrection'.'

The only text I could find that came near to a memorial was in I Cor. 2: 23, 24. " That the Lord Jesus the same night in which he was betrayed took bread, and when he had given thanks ,He broke it and said, take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you. This do in remembrance of Me."

Christ is the resurrection and the life. We who believe need to dedicate our life, not a day in memory of his resurrection.

In many peoples minds they are worshipping a day, or an act, and miss the whole point. Sunday is not found in the Bible, for it is a pagan name derived from sun worship.

In the Bible (New Testament) the first day of the week is mentioned eight times. Math: 28: 1. Mark 16: 2. Mark 16: 9. Luke 24: 1. John 20: 1. John 20. 19. Acts 20: 7. 1 Cor. 16: 2. Not one of these gives man the authority to change the Ten commandments.

When men set up laws in contradiction to the laws of God there is nothing but confusion. God's law is called "The Perfect Law of Liberty" James 1: 25.

How can a man or a group of men, especially Christians, make laws to force their thinking on others. Man has been enforcing Sunday and its laws upon humanity since the day of the Christian Emperor of Rome, Constantine. Hundreds of these Sunday laws have been forced upon man through the years and it looks like this "Christian" city of Belleville is no exception.

Ian Paisley is Moderator of the Free Presbyterian Church of Ireland (a militant offshoot of the Presbyterian Church) which is dedicated to the maintenance of the Protestant dominated state in Northern Ireland. Mr. Paisley and an aide, Major Ronald Bunting, commander of the Protestant Loyal Citizens of Ulster, were recently jailed for unlawful assembly in Armagh (which incidentally is the ecclesiastical capital of Ireland) during civil rights clashes between Protestant and Roman Catholics in the city.

Artist Expresses Thanks

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

How can one explain a feeling of good all over. It feels wonderful. One can only thank, and this is what I am doing — thanking all the people of Belleville and district for their response to my exhibition at the public library for the hospitality and effectiveness of your professional services.

And thanks to your progressive newspaper for letting me thank you.

Young People and Marriage

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

The age at which young people can marry without the consent of their parents should be jacked up from 18 to 21, says the Ontario law reform commission.

You could stir up some lively argument, with plenty to be said on either side, by tossing out that topic for debate in any mixed group of young people and old people.

There are a lot of grandmothers around who might argue that if the girls of their generation could take on the responsibilities of homemaking at age 16, the current crop of girls should be able to do as well.

You might find, also, many teenagers who would be relieved to have the decision taken out of their hands, and be told definitely that they cannot get married yet.

The one thing we do not want is an age of consent that is higher in Ontario than in neighboring provinces and states. A Mexican divorce may not be recognized in Ontario but a Manitoba marriage is.

Putting the marriage age higher in Ontario would inevitably create a series of Gretna Greens just across the line in Manitoba, Michigan, New York and Quebec.

It could work the other way, of course. If the 19-year-old girl was urging the 20-year-old youth to set a date, and he was reluctant,' he could refuse to be enticed outside Ontario.

Council Approves A Raise

Windsor Star

City Council has voted to boost the pay of individual members to $5,000 per year. It has been $3,000. The increase is retroactive to Jan. 1, 1969.

It would have been more diplomatic had the members voted the increase to become effective Jan. 1, 1970, when there will be a new council. This will be elected next December.

There will be many in accord, many loudly opposed. There will be objection to the members voting themselves a pay boost. But, that is the only way they can get it.

For those who are opposed, there is this effective channel of protest. They can go to the polls next December and register their protest by voting against the incumbents. It is doubtful if many, even any, of them will be defeated.

Student Malcontents

Martyrdom or Aggrandizement?

Peterborough Examiner

Anyone who has tried to understand the motivation for aggrandizement which has become the windblown fad of university students will be fascinated by the most recent selection of activities.

Consider these examples:

In Montreal, Foreign Affairs Minister Sharp faced an insulting, ill-mannered faction while trying to give a speech to an audience of students at the University of Montreal. As he began to speak in French the students greeted him with loud snoring, coughing, sighing and thumping. Some students hurled paper darts.

In Kingston, Lester Pearson was given an enthusiastic reception at Queen's University, was applauded vociferously when he made oblique rebuttal to the political claptrap of Judy LaMarsh, and engaged in an informal and pleasant discussion on domestic and international affairs

In Ottawa, Carleton University's student council voted 14-5 for a motion objecting to the method of appointing Mr. Pearson as the university's chancellor, the majority claiming it was the method and not the personality to which they were in opposition. They were upset, it seems, because they had not been consulted in the appointment by the board of governors. However, another motion that called for an attempt to delay the appointment was defeated by an identical vote of 14-5.

In Aberystwyth, Wales, four students have barricaded themselves in a lecture room at the University of Wales and undertaken a hunger strike because they do not wish to be school mates of Prince Charles in April. Charles is to take a crash course in the language, history and conditions of Wales in preparation for his investiture as Prince of Wales July 1.

In Madrid, 2,000 students, some carrying posters charging police with murder, marched in silence toward the University of Madrid to protest the death of a student who died in the custody of police. A riot inevitably broke out between the police and students. The police say the student, being questioned for distributing illegal labor leaflets, jumped to his death from a window; an independent report suggested the death was accidental.

In Czechoslovakia and Hungary students are burning themselves to death in protest against the influence of the Soviet Union in their countries.

The common indication in all of these examples is that some students have an infatuation with their own importance. They resist dialogue when it is likely to be contradictory but encourage it when it fits their purpose they embarrass the famous knowing that there will be a reluctance in most cases for engagement in a verbal brawl, but they sensationalize their own kind to the point where self-immolation seems heroic.

In this context malcontents seem to be the same the world over but we remind them of what Oscar Wilde wrote: "In this world there are only two tragedies. One is not getting what one wants, and the other is getting it.

Laws Perpetuate Injustice

Law Must Become Instrument of Social Reform Says Turner

TORONTO (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner said Saturday Canada's laws perpetuate injustice and help destroy the community. He said the law must be changed and become an instrument of social reform.

He said urban laws have been "part of a conspiracy in the failure of community instead of creating the atmosphere of community."

The law often discriminates against the poor, he said.

"For many living in the city, the law is the law of the established and privileged."

Mr. Turner, addressing a conference on city problems sponsored by four area Liberal riding associations, said Canada has been slower than the United States in recognizing that the law itself creates social problems and that social problems require legal solutions.

He said the idea that law cannot act until an offence has been committed must be replaced by "the practice of preventive law which would not only defend rights once they are abused, but would protect them from becoming abused."

He called for "an activist law," which would seek out groups denied their rights or whose rights require further legal clarification.

The activist law would bring test cases to court "for the purpose of challenging established practices and for the pressing for recognition of new rights."

France Gets NATO Bills

PARIS (AP) — The United States and its Atlantic Alliance partners have presented France bills totalling about $800,000,000 for military installations left behind when President de Gaulle evicted them, it was learned Saturday.

Hard bargaining seems certain, especially since authoritative French sources said their government is studying the notes and "deciding how to reject them."

The bills represent what the military allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization consider to be compensation due for the "residual value" of more than 400 installations built in France as part of the common Western defence system while France was still a member of NATO's military comand.

The claims were presented in separate notes to the French: One for abandoned U.S. installations, the other for facilities which formed part of NATO's infrastructure. Each claim is said to total about $400,000,000.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said the government is still studying whether Canada will make a separate claim, related mainly to giving up the French bases at Marville and Metz.

He had no comment on claims by the alliance as a whole.

Prairie Premiers Agree Fiscal Items Are First

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prairie premiers have agreed that fiscal matters should take precedence over constitutional topics at this month's federal-provincial conference.

They also stand together in denouncing changes in estate tax legislation and in demanding that the Official Languages Act be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada.

They found the common ground at a meeting Saturday of the Prairie economic conference which consists of the three premiers—Harry Strom of Alberta, Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan and Walter Weir of Manitoba.

"The most important thing we accomplished . . . is that we have agreed to a unified Prairie approach at the constitutional conference," said Premier Thatcher.

All three told reporters they expect to carry more weight at the conference with the rare display of solidarity. They said the Prairies have been overshadowed in the past by Ontario and Quebec.

"We have strong feelings on some basic issues," said Mr. Thatcher. Telegrams on most of their views were sent to Prime Minister Trudeau at the end of the meeting.

Endorsing the stand of Premier Weir, the council told the prime minister that finance is the first priority for the Feb. 10-12 conference in Ottawa.

Premier Weir said Friday he had a letter from Prime Minister Trudeau which indicated Manitoba was the only province feeling strongly about fiscal matters.

A telegram signed by the premiers expressed "the strongest opposition to the (estate tax) changes . . . proposed . . . without consultation with the provinces." An ultimate result could be the loss of family farms and businesses.

"We urge most strenuously that you and your cabinet colleagues give serious consideration to withholding further action on these proposals pending consultation with the provinces."

They also urged that no changes take place in mining taxes.

Mr. Thatcher said that former finance minister Mitchell Sharp "flatly told premiers and provincial treasurers that before changes in tax measures were introduced, we would be consulted."

He listed four major changes, including the social development tax, which have been introduced without consultation.

He said Finance Minister Benson's handling of the proposed estate tax changes has been a fiasco. The legislation, toned down from original proposals, was introduced in the Commons Friday.

The premiers asked for a court ruling to determine whether the official languages bill is constitutional.

Mr. Thatcher said if Prime Minister Trudeau failed to seek a court ruling, "we will."

He objected to federal civil servants in his province having to be able to speak both languages and to the option of either language in criminal court cases. About four per cent of Saskatchewan's population are French-Canadian, he said.

The premiers also proposed appointment of a transport controller to clear up a bottleneck that has developed in getting Prairie grain to western ports.

He would have "absolute authority" to allocate boxcars on a priority basis and use any other means in making certain grain sought by buyers was available at Vancouver terminals. This would be in an attempt "to prevent any further loss of wheat sales."

On a long term basis, the premiers suggested a complete investigation into the most efficient means of moving grain to market.

Constitutional Issues Get Quebec Priority

QUEBC (CP) — The constitutional question involving Quebec and the rest of Canada must be dealt with before considering the province's economic problems, Quebec economist Francois Angers said Saturday.

Mr. Angers, director of the Institute of Applied Economics at the Montreal School of Commercial studies, told students at Laval University.

"In our situation, it is the constitutional struggle which is . . . the front line . . . for the safeguard of everything else."

Quebec now views Confederation unfavorably, Mr. Angers said, because of the spirit of hostility towards its rights "prevailing in the federal government and in the English-Canadian mentality."

Mr. Angers said Confederation will only be accepted by Quebec when these rights are recognized.

In the economic field, Mr. Angers said Quebec development and prosperity are impossible if sufficient powers are not granted to the province.

At present, he said, two things are called for—recognition by Ottawa of the necessity for a bi-national economy policy and sufficient powers for the Quebec government to enable it to plan its development and ensure employment.

Three Die Ice Fishing

PULASKI, N.Y. (AP) — Two children and a man in his 50s were drowned Sunday at Sandy Pool on the eastern shore of Lake Ontario when the car from which they had been ice-fishing crashed through a weak spot in the ice.

The children's father and a seven-year-old brother escaped from the vehicle after it sank into the icy 12-foot-deep water, protected from the lake by a reef.

Four divers brought up the bodies of James Colvin, 4, Teresa Colvin, 6, and Theodore Anderson, described by state police as in his 50s.

Melvin Colvin, 28, escaped and his son, Joseph, was rescued and taken to a hospital. The Colvins are from Brewerton and Anderson was from Cicero, both Syracuse suburbs.

Witnesses among the many ice-fishers on the pond said the car was about a mile from shore and returning to land about 5:30 p.m. when the ice suddenly collapsed. The ice normally 10 to 20 inches thick, was four inches thick at that spot.

China Ready to Talk With Canada at Cairo

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two reporters during the weekend indicated there has been some contact between Canadian and Communist Chinese officials over recognition by Canada of the Peking regime.

Both said Chinese officials suggested Cairo, Egypt, as a site for discussions on recognition. One said the Communists demand that Canada drop her recognition of Nationalist China.

After the first report from the newspaper Akhbar in Cairo, an external affairs department spokesman in Ottawa said Saturday there has been no initial contact yet between Canada and the Peking government.

The Japanese news service Kyodo reported in Tokyo Sunday that China has demanded that Canada withdraw its recognition of Nationalist China as a price for establishing relations.

In a dispatch from Cairo, Kyodo said China made the demand in preliminary contacts with Canada. Kyodo attributed the report to Western diplomatic sources in Cairo.

The agency also quoted Communist Chinese sources as saying if Canada agrees to the Chinese demand, formal negotiations at the ambassadorial level on exchanging ambassadors may begin in Cairo in a few weeks.

Kyodo said Canada is inclined to accept the Chinese suggestions of Cairo as the site of the talks.

Chinese Defector Not in U.S.

THE HAGUE (CP) — A senior Chinese diplomat who fled his post here 10 days ago is still in Holland but has not asked for political asylum, a justice ministry spokesman said today.

Observers said the fact that Liao Ho-shu, acting charge d'affaires for China in The Hague, has not requested asylum here indicates he does not feel safe in Holland and plans to seek refuge in another country.

There were earlier reports that the diplomat was believed to have already travelled to the United States.

Some officials said Liao had been flown to Bonn last week for interrogation by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and one report quoted a Dutch official as saying he had been flown to the U.S. on Sunday.

But a justice department spokesman said the diplomat still is here and is being treated like an ordinary political refugee.

Liao, the first Chinese diplomat known to have gone over to the West, took refuge with the Dutch Jan. 24.

In one of his routine visits to the Dutch foreign ministry several months ago, Liao indicated he wanted to defect as soon as his wife and children were safely out of China. He told the Dutch he had been ordered home to account for the death in The Hague in 1966 of a Chinese scientist said to have sold a secret nerve gas formula to U.S. agents.

Dutch officials approached Romanian diplomats because they have good contacts in Peking. Two weeks ago at a reception at the Romanian embassy, Liao learned that his family was safe in Hong Kong.

Dutch Justice Minister Polak is said to have told the parliamentary justice and foreign affairs committee that Liao "knows an unbelievable lot."

Humphrey Gives Views

Anti-missile Defence Aimed At Spurring Curbs on Arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert H. Humphrey suggests in a report released Sunday night that former president Lyndon B. Johnson authorized a United States anti-missile defence to spur the Soviet Union toward talks on arms limitations.

The former U.S. vice-president says the decision followed conflicting assessments by Johnson's scientific advisers about the Soviet ability to get nuclear warheads past such a defence.

"I have always been skeptical in my own mind about the security value of deploying an ABM (anti-ballistic missile) defence," Humphrey writes.

"At the same time, I understood the reasons why the president felt that preparations for a limited deployment might quicken the interest of the Soviet Union in meaningful negotiations on the strategic arms race. . . ."

Humphrey's comments are in an introduction to a report on the anti-missile controversy by the Centre for the Study of Democratic Institutions, located in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The centre, which claims a membership of 85,000, describes itself as a non-profit educational institution "devoted to clarification of basic issues confronting a democratic society."

Among pro and con comments in the report is an assertion by Dr. Jerome Weisner, scientific adviser to the late president John F. Kennedy, that an anti-missile defence could not prevent 30,000,000 American deaths in a nuclear attack.

China May Test IBM This Year

LONDON (AP) — New Western estimates suggest China may test fire a 6,000-mile range rocket in 1969.

These estimates were made known Sunday by Asian and European diplomats who said they are based on intelligence information pooled by several non-Communist countries, including the United States.

The informants reported that, if the Chinese test of an intercontinental ballistic missile proves successful, the Peking government will be able to begin stockpiling the weapons by 1972.

And in 1975, or thereabouts, the Chinese at their present rate of progress should be in a position to deploy 15 or 20 ICBMs.

Roses for Ex-chief's Wife

Mrs. Ted Poste receives a beautiful bouquet of red roses from Mrs. Paul Stephenson, wife of the president of Local 497 Firefighters' Association. A dinner and dance sponsored by the association was held in honor of retiring Fire Chief Ted Poste, at the Elks' Hall on Saturday evening. Close to 200 people were in attendance representing area fire departments, city departments along with a large number of personal friends. Shown in the background is a huge horseshoe for luck with the figures denoting the 30 years of service by the retiring chief.

Garden Club Presents Award For Contribution to Horticulture

TORONTO (CP) — The woman who earned coast-to-coast recognition for her lilacs and peonies row is sporting an honor that can't be grown.

About 200 members of the Garden Club of Toronto have given Minerva Castle a gold medal reflecting appreciation for her "outstanding contribution to horticulture in Canada."

She has been in the business of plants for just over 50 years and today directs a 10-acre nursery near Toronto with a fragrance and reputation known to customers as far away as Australia.

The Garden Club has borrowed from Miss Castle's talents since a group of women formed it in 1946 and called on her to suggest a name. She recommended Horticulture Club. But the original members thought most people wouldn't be able to spell it, so Miss Castle's first suggestion became the last ever to be passed up.

Her most recent contribution to the flower world is the St. Joan lilac a double, white and sweet-smelling bloom.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

(Carmel Women's Institute)

The January meeting of the Carmel Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Selden Homan with a good attendance.

Mrs. G. Graham vice-president opened the meeting and took charge of the business. At which time Mrs. A. Whitmore and Mrs. S. Homan were appointed nominating committee.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Earle Ross when Mr. and Mrs. Genereau will speak on landscaping.

Mrs. Allan Gowthorpe convener for health and home economics gave a reading on today's children and the sewing of plaids.

Mrs. Arthur Treverton convener for agriculture and Canadian industries gave the highlights of her trip to the Winter Fair given for 4-H leaders.

Mrs. Clayton Sullivan convener for citizenship and education read a number of roll calls and mottoes. Mrs. George Graham convener for historical research gave a reading on the life of Bobbie Burns whose birthday was Jan. 25.

Mrs. Duane Martin took charge of the program. Lois Martin favored with three selections on the accordion.

Mrs. Martin also gave the explanation and an example of a resolution.

A debate — "resolve that women spend more on luxury than do men," caused much interest and enjoyment. The affirmative was taken by Mrs. Allan Gowthorpe and Mrs. Geo. Graham. The negative by Mrs. Gerald Swan and Mrs Wilfred Clare. The judges were Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, Mrs. Russel Ritz and Mrs. Lyle Bradshaw. The negative side won.

Mrs. Martin thanked those taking part and presented each with a gift.

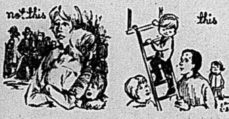
A contest was conducted by Mrs. Martin and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants.

Bans Mini-skirts

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Education Minister Julius Kiano advised 125 arriving American Peace Corps volunteers to drop politics and hemlines before taking up teaching in secondary schools. The non-politics rule applies to African teachers as well as Americans, he noted. In his special warning against American mini-skirts, Dr. Kiano said: "They should never be worn, especially when teaching boys."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Almost 7,000 persons died in home accidents caused by fires last year, the National Safety Council reports. Many of the deaths were caused because families did not know how to get out of burning houses quickly.

If fire strikes, be sure your family knows what to do. Map escape routes and provide auxiliary stairs — or at least a window ladder — for upper floors. Have regular fire drills so children will not panic in case of a real fire.

Make your home at least as safe as a well-organized factory or school by anticipating the possible dangers of a fire.

Ottawa Mother of Three Writes Mystery Novel

OTTAWA (CP) — An attractive mother of three grown children may seem an unlikely person to write murder mysteries. But Mrs. Clive Rippon of Ottawa is already on the road to success.

Marion Rippon mailed the rough manuscript of her first book to a big American publishing house last Sept. 13 —a Friday, even—and three weeks later back came an advance cheque for $1,000.

Her book, a 250-page "sort of psychological mystery," has been placed on Doubleday's Crime Club list.

"This almost assures terrific circulation," Mrs. Rippon said. Set in France, the book is to be on sale by April.

The Hand of Solange excludes the usual sex and violence. "In fact, the murders in it aren't very important.

"It's a different kind of mystery story and I kept it as fictional as possible."

At first Mrs. Rippon pictured herself as a Canadian writer, using Canadian characters and settings.

"But people aren't interested in Canadian settings. It's too bad. I mean, a crummy old cafe in Montreal wouldn't be the same as one in a little town in France.

"And Canadian publishers pussyfoot around."

Mrs. Rippon originally got in touch with a Toronto publisher but, after a five-month wait, decided to go for the big time.

For her, travel and nursing have proven great experience for writing.

With her lawyer husband working for the air force, she moved 17 times in 26 years. And as a former nurse in a psychiatric ward, she got to understand the workings of a troubled mind.

"Being a nurse has been invaluable to my work. If you understand the mind of a mentally-ill person, you can write about real people."

She stressed the word "real."

"After you've lived almost 50 years and have worked closely with people, you can then sit down and write realistically. I couldn't have done this when I was 20."

But back to crummy old cafes and the way the whole thing started.

One night, while she and her husband were travelling through France in a trailer, Mrs. Rippon stopped for some croissants at a small-town cafe.

When she got back to the trailer she remarked to her husband: "What a beautiful place for a murder in there."

Mrs. Rippon described the cafe as "the dirtiest place I've ever seen in my life."

Solange—the main character in her first book—is an ugly, overweight proprietress of just such a small cafe.

But the gross, middle-aged woman, whose husband is "a little wee, sad-looking man," happens to have beautiful hands.

The book is all about what happens to her when her one beauty is gone.

"I wrote this type of story with the sole purpose of selling it," Mrs. Rippon said. "You have to sell something before people will listen to you, before you can write what you really want to write about."

It took her six months to write. "But most of the time was spent typing it out. I'd never laid hands on a typewriter before."

Although she studied typing last summer, Mrs. Rippon still writes her stories in longhand, in the middle of the night, with no outline.

Doubleday has already purchased the option on Behold the Druid Weeps for Thee, her second mystery which is almost completed. It is a sequel to The Hand of Solange.

"If Pascal, its main character, hates you, despises you or loves you, you're all right. But if Pascal pities you, may your soul rest in peace, because he's going to put you out of your misery."

50th Anniversary Presentation

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Wood of R. R. 1 Ameliasburg celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. On the weekend they were presented a scroll by Norris Whitney, MPP, acting on behalf of the provincial government.

MR. AND MRS. KELVIN CECIL BOYLE

Boyle — Donly

Eldorado United Church was the scene of the recent wedding when Georgiena Lamoyne Donly, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Donly of Eldorado became the bride of Kelvin Cecil Boyle, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Boyle of Eldorado.

Rev. W. Sedgwick officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Fred Bailey of Eldorado.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a toe-length A-line gown of white chiffon velvet featuring long sleeves. The round neckline was trimmed with guipure lace as was the hemline and cuffs of the dress. A long train fell softly from the waistline in folds and was edged with matching lace. Her wedding ring headdress of matching white velvet studded with pearls and rhinestones was caught to a four-tier nylon net veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of sweetheart roses entwined with ivy.

Miss Marilyn Parks of Madoc, as maid of honor wore an A-line full-length dress of cranberry shade velvet with the Empire waist encircled with a dainty rose trim. Her headdress was a circlet of white fur and she carried a white fur muff adorned with a solitaire American Beauty rose. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Bonnie Jones of Tweed and Miss Lynda Fox of Madoc were dressed identically to the maid of honor. Little Miss Jill Donly was "mock bride," while Scott Hayton of Bancroft was the "mock bridegroom." They were dressed identically to the bride and bridegroom respectively.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother Kenneth Boyle of Eldorado while the ushers were Merrick Boyle and Lorence Donly of Eldorado.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church basement where the bride's mother received the guests attired in a three-piece forest green suit with feathered hat, black accessories and a corsage of bronze 'mums. Assisting, the bridegroom's mother wore a two-piece blue and black brocaded double knit suit with white accessories and a corsage of pink 'mums.

For the wedding trip to Florida, the bride chose a rust colored wool suit with beaver collar, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

On return the couple will reside at 366 Sidney Street, Apt. 3 in Belleville.

New Mom Complains Of Figure Change

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Although I have gained only two pounds since my baby was born, my figure has changed completely. Everything I had before is still there, it's just relocated. With the proper foundation garments, I look fine from the waist up. It's the rest of me I'm concerned about.

I used to have a nice curved look in the back but now I'm flat as a board. I don't know how to describe it except to say I've lost my fanny. Is there some exercise I can do to rebuild it? Thanks for your help. — NO LONGER WELL REARED.

DEAR NO LONGER: I know of no such exercise, but don't despair — help is on the way. Recently I saw advertised (by a very respectable store) a girdle with special padding. It will do for the back what falsies do for the front.

And please, girls, don't write and ask where these girdles can be purchased. I'm not pushing underwear this season. Call your local department store or lingerie shop.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I went with Kirk for several years. I tried to break up with him at least six times. Each time he cried and pleaded with me not to leave him, so I continued to see him. Kirk frequently said and did things that indicated he was unstable. I pleaded with him to get professional help but I got nowhere.

Last summer while vacationing out east I met a wonderful man — a widower with a child. We saw a great deal of each other and now I think I'm in love with him. He telephones me twice a week and sends something in the mail almost every day. He is coming to see me next week.

Yesterday I told Kirk there is someone else. He became hysterical and cried, "If you leave me I'll kill myself."

I am frightened and mixed up. If Kirk commits suicide I'll never forgive myself. I need advice at once. — STAR SISTER.

DEAR STAR: Don't allow Kirk's illness to ruin your life. Emotional blackmail can be a dangerous game. Those who become victimized pay a dear price.

Tell Kirk one more time that he must get professional help. Then bid him good-by — and mean it. You will have done as much for him as anyone could — short of sacrificing your own life. And that, you don't owe him.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm 18, a girl, and want to have my nose bobbed. I've seen some awful results as well as some beautiful ones. I'm reluctant to ask a person the name of his doctor because most people would like you to believe they were born with the nose they now have.

How does one go about finding a truly skilled plastic surgeon? — D.S.

DEAR D.S.: Don't ask a person who obviously has a botched job. Ask someone who has had great success. A pleased patient should be happy to recommend his surgeon. I think.

In the meantime, be aware that the outcome of rhinoplasty depends not only on the surgeon, but on what he had to work with.

Marriage Takes Second Place

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My grandson was to have gotten married last June. His girl friend put the wedding off until November and later wrote me that she had put off the wedding again. My grandson thinks she is just putting him off with no intention of marriage.

She was always asking him to buy her expensive gifts until he was broke and now he has decided to leave her go, as she does not want his love. She is more concerned about gifts she takes a fancy to. He has left her in B—with his diamond engagement ring, his TV, radio, vacuum cleaner and so many other lovely pieces of furniture.

But this is my problem: I gave my grandson a bed ensemble, also a chimes clock. I have written her, saying now that the marriage is off I should like her to please return the gifts I gave them as a wedding present. She had told my son-in-law who lives near her that she would pack them up. But I believe she has no intention of doing so.

I shall wait for your advice before making any further efforts. I have not got money of that kind to lose as I am a widow and have only my pension to live off. — Worried.

Dear Worried: No girl with self-respect would hang on to expensive home furnishings with the wedding called off. A lawyer's letter asking for immediate return of everything, listing the items, might get some action for you.

Dear Doris: On Friday the 13th our cat delivered a full house of kittens, three dark point whites and a pair of blacks. My husband who is a poker fan, was quite excited about it.

To please him, when they were four weeks old I spent hours on end trying to get a photo of them. I finally got one which I think is quite good — the pair, then the three of a kind, in a basket and all facing the camera.

Friends have suggested it could be worth something, possibly to a playing card firm. Would you have any ideas? — Full House.

Dear Full House: Some fun. I daresay they are a houseful, at that.

Was your prize shot taken on a fine grain film? If it was, I'd suggest getting an eight-by-ten glossy print. Provided this looks good and clear, send it to a playing card company or to one of the calendar publishers on the list I am sending you.

If you found it intriguing to pose your kittens and snap them, why not let this one try spark further efforts? Photography is creative and satisfying; and there are camera clubs where other enthusiasts would add fuel to your fire.

Dear Doris: Things were going along very well at the dance until my boy friend's new friend Bob started asking me for a birthday kiss or a slow waltz. I refused the kiss and then he pulled me to do the waltz with him. My boy friend became quite angry and started picking a fight with Bob.

However, he came a couple of weeks later with Bob and the rest of the gang. The evening was pretty good, but Bob started acting up again. I tried ignoring him, but on the way home Bob put his head on my shoulder and fell asleep.

Well, that did it! My boy friend wouldn't say a word to me until we got home. Then at the doorstep, he gave me a sermon, that since he has to study, we can't do much, etc. etc.

I haven't seen him for a while and I feel simply terrible. I want to explain to him, but how can I? Would it be all right to write him? How could I put it so it wouldn't sound as if I were chasing him? — Problem.

Dear Problem: Explain what? That if a boy gets fresh you have no control over the situation? Better leave the whole thing alone, and next time do something before you show yourself to be an easy mark. You would be chasing him, wouldn't you?

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Delicious Upside Down Cake

By MARY MOORE

The first opportunity to do a good-cooking deed in the New Year occurred on Jan. 5 when I was in Victoria. Nine-year-old Sue asked, "Gram, will you show me how to make something for dinner?" I snapped up that urge and asked if she would like to make the apricot upside down cake her mother had planned for dessert. "Yes! Can I do it all myself?"

So I glued myself to a kitchen chair and guided the complete operation. The only step I took was to open the can of apricots on the electric can-opener. What follows is each step of the preparation as Sue did it. NOTE: Ingredients are numbered.

APRICOT UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

Turn oven on at 350 deg. Fahr. Place strainer or sieve over medium-sized bowl. 1) Open 28-oz. can apricot halves and drain through strainer. Reserve juice. 2) Measure 1-3 cup butter or margarine by filling a one-cup measure 2-3 full of cold water and adding butter or margarine until water level is at one - cup line. Drain off water. Tip butter into 9 x 9" square pan and slip it into the oven. 3) While butter is melting measure ½ cup light brown sugar. Wearing oven mitts remove pan containing melted butter from oven and stir in brown sugar evenly. Cover with apricots, spaces between with maraschino cherries. Stand pan aside on top of stove or over warming oven. 4) Into beater bowl break 2 eggs and beat on high speed for 5 min. 5) Gradually add 2-3 cup granulated sugar, beating 10 min. in all. 6) Add 6 tbsps. of the reserved apricot juice and 1 tsp. vanilla and beat 1 min. longer. 7. Sift all-purpose flour and spoon it carefully into measuring cup and measure 1 cup. 8) Sift it over a sheet of wax paper with ½ tsp. baking powder and ¼ tsp. salt. Raise beaters from egg mixture and add flour mixture all at once, lower beaters and beat on low speed until flour is mixed in about 30 seconds. Remove beaters and finish mixing with rubber spatula. Pour batter all over top of prepared fruit in pan. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 45 min. Have ready a large cake plate. With oven mitts on your hands remove cake from oven invert cake plate over it and quickly invert, grasping both firmly. (See Note.) Fruit will be topside up. Leave pan over fruit for a few minutes to allow all syrup to drain from pan. Serve cut into squares or oblongs, with cereal cream if desired.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Deep Chicken Pie; Lettuce Wedge Salad with Thousand Island Dressing; Blanc Mange Pudding topped with Canned Peaches; Coffee.

NOTE: Maybe the turning out should be done by mother for it is a dangerous trick. I suspect licking the batter from the bowl and beaters was the best fun for Sue.

BOOTLEGGER FINED

LONDON (AP) — Helen Tiborez, 44, said she hadn't intended to begin a large moonshine operation. "I had hoped to sell just a few bottles for Christmas, but once people tasted it they came back for more," she told a London magistrate. He fined her £735 — $1,911 — for evading duty and possessing an unlawful still.

Native Land No Longer Home

Dark-eyed Greek Beauty Finally Returns to Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — She is like a modern Juno, both in figure and style. She is Irene Papas, a living symbol of Greece, a country to which she dares not to return.

The dark-eyed beauty is back in Hollywood after an absence of 12 years, this time playing a Greek-American in A Dream of Kings opposite the noted Zorba the Greek, Anthony Quinn, who is actually Mexican-Irish.

Irene Papas is Greek, no doubt about it. She has her countrymen's curious combination of ebullience and sadness, though she has more reason to be sad nowadays. The reason: Control of her native land by a military junta with which she disagrees.

Like Melina Mercouri, she has been outspoken in her opposition to the Greek regime. Unlike Mercouri, she has received no retaliation.

"I still have three or four houses in Greece, as well as 200 olive trees which will soon be producing oil," she said. "They have not been confiscated, unlike Melina's property. I figure that such a big fuss was raised over Melina that they do not want to risk more trouble.

"They try to win me over. Every six months I must renew my passport, and when I go to the consulate, they say to me, 'You are a patriot, Irene; please go to Greece and meet thse people. You will like them.'

"And I reply, 'No doubt they are marvelous, but why don't they let the Greek people vote for the government they want. Perhaps they even want a Fascist regime, but at least give them the chance to voice their opinion.' "

So far the actress has resisted all invitations to return. She even declines to fly on Olympic Airlines owned by her friend Aristotle Onassis—"I actually know his wife better"—lest the flight be misdirected to Athens. She says she will not return to Greece until free elections are held.

Her return to Hollywood appears to have pleased, though not overjoyed her. Asked if she had been able to renew acquaintances with friends, she reponded: "I have no friends."

After making an impression with her classic beauty and intense dramatic style in Europen plays and films, she came here for a contract at MGM. The timing was poor; the studio and the industry in general was entering a period of turmoil. Her one film was the ill-fated Tribute to a Bad Man.

"We went on location in Colorado, and then Spencer Tracy withdrew from the picture," she recalled. "He claimed it was because of the altitude—then he went and made The Mountain in the Alps. After he was replaced by James Cagney, another cast member, Robert Francis, was killed in an airplane crash."

Miss Papas returned to Europe and starred in such films as The Guns of Navarone, Electra (her own favorite) and Zorba the Greek.

QUEENSBORO — Mrs. Allan Sager, Mrs. William Roushorn, Mrs. Harold Tokley, all local 4-H homemaking club leaders, attended the training school for "needlework" in the Catholic Church Hall this week.

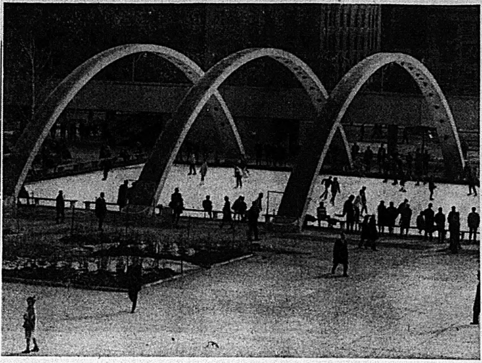
Mr. and Mrs. Ted Cassidy and family of Ajax visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank O'Rourke on the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Olmstead of Maple Leaf visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Declair and called on Mrs. Declair, who is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. Frederick Feeney and Joanne of Peterborough spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barry.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Devolin and children of Oshawa spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. George Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Thompson attended the sportsman's show in Toronto this week.



Popular Spot in Toronto

Perhaps the most popular spot in Toronto during the winter is city hall square and the public skating rink. For it attracts an average of 1,422 skaters a day including teachers who brave weather and their brood of wobbly tots.

North Ireland Premier Plans To Face Extremists at Polls

BELFAST (CP) — Prime Minister Terence O'Neill of Northern Ireland appears likely to seek a showdown at the polls with extremist Protestants and rebels in his ruling Unionist party.

If he does he likely will be opposed by Rev. Ian Paisley, the militant protestant leader.

Political sources speculate a general election in this semi-autonomous province of Britain might come within a month.

Paisley led thousands of Protestant demonstrators through Belfast Saturday, demanding dismissal of O'Neill because of his attempts to give a new deal to Roman Catholics, who claim they are discriminated against in jobs, housing and local government elections.

Police estimated the crowd at the outset at 7,000. Hundreds more joined it from smaller parades starting in side streets and by unofficial estimate the crowd soon topped 11,000.

Strong police reinforcements guarded Catholic areas of the city and public buildings in the city centre.

Paisley told reporters Saturday he would oppose O'Neill, "in jail or out," if an election was called. Paisley is appealing a three-month sentence for unlawful counter-demonstration.

Observers said O'Neill might welcome a chance to test his strength against Paisley. They said an election victory for the government could clear the way for O'Neill's attempt to meet demands of Catholics.

The problem facing O'Neill is more acute within his own party.

Right-wingers opposed to any concessions to the Catholics have tried to unseat the prime minister because they fear he is moving toward the demands of the Catholics for "one man, one vote." Catholics, who usually back the Labor party, make up one-third of Northern Ireland's population.

Thirteen-Year Watch Is Kept On Embassy Housing Cardinal

BUDAPEST (AP) — A plain-clothes policeman leans on a green, Soviet-made sedan outside the U.S. Embassy. Another, wearing black jack boots with civilian clothes, talks to him quietly.

The scene is one of few visible reminders of the 1956 revolution. The policemen are waiting for Jozsef Cardinal Mindszenty, 76, the Roman Catholic primate of Hungary who has been in asylum in the Embassy since the revolt was crushed by Soviet tanks.

If he steps outside, he may face arrest and the remainder of his life sentence on charges of treason, espionage and black market dealings. He was sentenced in 1949 at the height of the cold war and freed from jail during the revolution.

The United States raised its legation to an embassy in 1966. The cardinal at the time was reported to have felt the United States had abandoned him. He threatened to leave the Embassy and face arrest.

He was dissuaded from doing so, on orders from the Pope, by Franz Cardinal Koenig of Vienna. Cardinal Koenig is the only person outside the embassy's 21-man American staff who ever talks to the cardinal.

He is eligible for pardon under an amnesty. In the past, he insisted that the government declare he was innocent on the charges on which he was convicted.

But last March, Cardinal Koenig told reporters in Vienna that Cardinal Mindszenty had changed his mind and was willing to leave. He said, however, the Hungarian government was not as anxious as a few months earlier to have him leave.

Unless the problem is resolved, the policemen outside the Embassy will see the cardinal leave in a coffin.

Newsweek Says Nasser Prepared For Concessions

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine says Egypt's President Gamel Abdel Nasser has set forth concessions Egypt would be willing to make in return for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories seize in the Middle East war of June, 1967.

The magazine says the concessions were part of a peace plan outlined by Nasser in a Cairo interview with Newsweek senior correspondent Arnaud de Borchgrave recently.

Newsweek says Nasser said he would not guarantee to talk directly with Israel if there were a withdrawal, "but I can tell you we sat down with the Israelis after the 1948 war under the armistice agreement until the 1956 war, and that we are prepared to do so again."

The concessions Egypt would be willing to make in return for an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories were: A declaration of non-belligerence, freedom of navigation on international waterways, recognition of each Middle East country's right to live in peace, a guarantee of territorial integrity within recognized borders and a just solution to the Palestinian refugee problem.

Nasser added that Egypt would be willing to demilitarize its border with Israel, Newsweek says:

The points followed the lines of the United Nations Security Council's November, 1967, resolution on the Middle East, to which Egypt has declared agreement.

Newsweek gives no indication whether Israel has been informed of the Egyptian terms stated by Nasser or had reacted to them.

Israel's objection to the UN formula has been that the resolution does not call for bilateral agreement's between Middle East countries and that the Israelis would not feel safe withdrawing from the occupied lands until such agreements were made.

Beliveau Joins Club

Habs Need Pair To Stay With Bruins

By IAN MacLAINE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Jean Beliveau, who entered the National Hockey League's exclusive 450-goal club Saturday, exploded for three more goals Sunday as Montreal Canadiens downed Chicago Black Hawks 6-4.

The victory enabled the Habs to keep pace with Boston Bruins, leaders in the NHL's Eastern Division, who kept their unbeaten string alive at 17 games with a 4-2 win over Detroit Red Wings.

The Bruins, with 71 points, are six ahead of Montreal and 11 up on third-place New York Rangers, 7-3 victors over Pittsburgh Penguins.

In other Sunday games, St. Louis Blues stretched their lead atop the expansion Western Division to 20 points over idle Oakland Seals with a 5-3 decision over Toronto Maple Leafs and Minnesota North Stars nipped Philadelphia Flyers 3-2.

In Saturday's games, Montreal drubbed New York 6-2, St. Louis blanked Detroit 2-0, Los Angeles downed Oakland 8-5, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh tied 2-2 and Chicago tied Minnesota 5-5.

Beliveau's 450th goal Saturday in Montreal was his 20th of the season. Only two players in NHL history have scored more, Detroit's Gordie Howe with 713 regular-season goals and Maurice Richard of Montreal who retired with 544 goals.

Beliveau's three goals and an assist Sunday increased his point total to ,1072, surpassed only by Howe's 1,648.

Also prominent in Montreal's win Sunday was Yvan Cournoyer with his 29th and 30th goals of the season. Dick Duff tallied the other Montreal goal before 16,666 Chicago fans.

Pit Martin, Jim Pappin, Doug Mohns and Stan Mikita scored for the Black Hawks who played most of the game without scoring ace Bobby Hull who suffered a cut hand in the first period.

At Boston, Glen Sather, Phil Esposito, Johnny McKenzie and Ed Westfall gave 14,659 something to cheer about. Dean Prentice, who ended a 172-minute, 12-second Red Wing scoring drought, and Howe, with his 25th of the season, provided the Detroit goals.

The Bruins played the game without all-star defenceman Bobby Orr who Boston officials announced earlier had suffered a slight strain in his left knee during a game at Los Angeles Thursday.

Danny O'Shea, Danny Grant and Jean-Paul Parise scored for Minnesota before 13,294 Philadelphia fans while the Flyers replied with Brit Selby and Forbes Kennedy.

Gary Sabourin's tie-breaker and the winner by defenceman Al Arbor at St. Louis were both set up by Frank St. Marseille who had tallied an earlier Blues' goal. Craig Cameron and Jean Guy Talbot were the other St. Louis scorers.

Norm Ullman, Bob Pulford and Dave Keon scored for Toronto.

Rookie defenceman Brad Park assisted on four New York goals as the Rangers scored in spurts. Jean Ratelle, with two, Rod Gilbert, Bob Nevin, Ron Stewart, Vic Hadfield and Arnie Brown were the New York goal getters. Val Fonteyne, who also drew two assists, Jean Pronovost and Ken Schinkel scored for the Penguins who saw their winless string run to nine games.

JEAN BELIVEAU
In '450' Club

Saturday, in Montreal, John Ferguson, Gilles Tremblay, Jacques Lemaire, Bobby Rousseau and Claude Provost scored for Montreal in addition to Beliveau's historic marker.

Nevin and Ratelle replied for New York in front of 18,024 fans.

At Minneapolis, the Chicago-Minnesota game was a see-saw affair with the lead changing hands three times. Grant, with two, Parise, Claude Larose and O'Shea matched the Chicago output by Bobby Hull, Mikita, Bobby Schmautz and two goals by Mohns.

Red Berenson's goal late in the first period and shutout goaltending by Glenn Hall provided St. Louis' victory margin in Detroit. Jim Roberts scored into an empty Red Wing net in the closing seconds of the game to complete the Blues scoring. The shutout was Hall's sixth of the season and 72nd of his 16-year NHL career.

Howie Hughes, Gord Labossiere and Eddie Joyal eached scored twice in Los Angeles' home victory. Bill Flett and Real Lemieux completed the Kings scoring while Mike Laughton, with two, Gene Ubriaco, Norm Ferguson and Bill Hicke replied for Oakland.

Pittsburgh's 2-2 tie with the Flyers broke a seven-game Penguin losing streak. Duane Rupp and Schinkel scored for Pittsburgh, Gary Peters and Andre Lacroix for Philadelphia.

Soviets Make Minute Count

QUEBEC (CP) — The visiting Russian national hockey team maintained its unbeaten record Sunday with a 7-4 defeat of Canada's Ottawa-based eastern national team.

The Russians, taking their eighth victory in eight games in Canada, made sure of their win in one minute and one second in the second period.

Boris Mikhailov scored at 13:48, 16 seconds after Canada's Richie Bayes had tied the game 3-3.

Russia 7
Nats 4

Vitoly Davidov scored 17 seconds after Mikhailov and Alex Maltsev got his second goal of the game at 14:49. The Canadians never caught up again.

Other Russian marksmen were Anatoly Firsov, Vladimir Vikulov and Valery Kharlmamov, while Jim Adair, Jean Cusson and Steve King got the other Canadian goals.

The Canadians twice racked up short-lived leads. Adair opened the scoring at 4:02 of the first period but Maltsev tied the game at 12:30. Cusson put Canada ahead again two minutes later but Firsov matched that goal 38 seconds afterward.

Vikulov's goal at 7:08 of the second period put the Russians ahead for the first time but Bayes' tying marker was the last to leave the teams even.

Both teams scored once in the last two minutes of the game.

The Russians outshot Canada 34-21 and referees Frank Daigneault and Marcel Vaillancourt called eight minor penalties, five to the Russians.

The Russians played their first game in Toronto Jan. 19 and defeated Canada 4-2.

Their tour was to wind up Jan. 30 but the Russians said they would stay a couple of extra days to make up a game scheduled for Montreal Jan. 18.

Hornets' Pace Too Much for Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Barrie Flyers outscored Galt Hornets 16-3 in the eight-team Ontario Hockey Association Senior series over the weekend, but still lost ground to the Hornets in the chase for first place.

At Barrie Sunday, the Flyers shelled the hapless Woodstock A's 16-3 while Hornets posted a 7-2 win over the Oaks at Oakville.

Saturday, while Barrie was idle, Galt doubled the score on third-place Orillia Terriers 6-3 before 2,129 fans at Galt.

Belleville Mo-Hawks caught up to Kingston Aces in the struggle for the sixth and final playoff spot Sunday with a 6-5 win over Collingwood Kings at Collingwood after the Aces clipped Oakville 8-2 on home ice Saturday, leaving the Aces and Mo-Hawks tied at 27 points.

In one other Sunday game, at Orillia, the Terriers edged the Aces 5-4 before a kids' day crowd of 2,300.

At Barrie, eight Flyers scored. Adams, Bob Forhan and Dave Luciuk led the way with three goals each. Mike Dubeau and Pete Panagabko both scored twice. Dave Ferguson, Jon Weeks and John McMillan all scored once.

Dave Del Papa scored twice and Jerry Harrigan once for the A's. The Flyers beat Woodstock starting netminder Brent (Sonny) Pennington for seven goals over the first 40 minutes. In the third period, Juri Lees, the reserve A's netminder permitted seven goals.

At Galt Saturday, the Hornets started their winning weekend with Fern Belanger scoring twice, captain Joe Hogan, Pete Brennan, Bob Ertel and Bill Hway once each against Orillia. John Hall, George Westfall and George Ford shared the Terriers' scoring.

The Hornets broke out with three goals in a space of 56 seconds Sunday to disappoint 1,725 fans, the largest crowd ever to see a senior hockey game at Oakville Arena.

Vance Millar and Howie Dietrich led Galt's 26th win of the season with two goals each. Hway, Brennan and Ron Hergott added single goals. Terry Holmes and Jack Price replied for the fourth-place Oaks.

Before only 472 fans at Collingwood, Belleville handed the slumping Kings their seventh straight defeat.

Time for the six furlongs run between the seventh and eight races was 1:11.5. Miss Early is trying to become a licenced jockey in California.

Canada's Abby Hoffman Cops 880 Title at Boston

BOSTON (CP-AP) — Two world indoor records fell and two Toronto runners won their events Saturday night at the 80th annual Boston Athletic Association Games.

Willie Davenport, a member of the U.S. Olympic team, cracked his indoor record for the 45-yard hurdles with a 5.3-second clocking after he had equalled his own world record of 5.4 in a preliminary heat.

Earlier, George Brenn set a world indoor record in the 35-pound weight throw with a toss of 73 feet 3½ inches. The former record of 72-2½ had been held by Harold Connolly of the U.S.

Bob Finley of Toronto swept to an easy victory in the two-mile run, winning in a meet record time. His time of 8:37.2 broke the meet record of 8:38.4 set by Kerry O'Brien in 1967.

Abby Hoffman of Toronto won the women's 880-yard dash in two minutes 13.7 seconds. Penny Werthner of Ottawa's Upland Harrier track club was third in the same event in 2:18.4.

HOW TO HANDLE WINTER WITH POWER BRAKES

Some motorists will be using power brakes and steering on snow and ice for the first time this Winter. Perhaps a few words of caution now may save somebody from a costly and injurious collision.

The main thing to bear in mind is that a skid occurs when the front wheels are turned in a direction other than that in which the car is moving. It takes very little speed to cause this to happen on packed ice or snow.

If a skid should occur, turn the front wheels in the direction the front of the car is skidding while you gently apply the brakes until the momentum has slowed to allow you to straighten out again.

A skid is much more easily caused by power steering until you become used to it. The reason is that the turn is often sharper, putting the wheels abruptly at an angle to the car motion. The same problem of suddenness applies to power brakes, so press your foot down as gently as possible. It is even better to pump them, releasing your foot each time.

When starting on ice, the least possible pressure on the gas pedal required to move the wheels is the best pressure.

Snow tires are a good investment and they often pay for themselves in avoided accidents, towing charges and inconvenience. They may even save your life.

Chuvalo's Ring Future Hangs on Outcome of Mathis Bout

NEW YORK (CP) — George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion, puts his boxing future on the line tonight in Madison Square Garden when he meets big Buster Mathis in a scheduled 12-round bout.

At 31, Chuvalo has had his ups and has fought the best of them, including Cassius Clay when that controversial figure still reigned as heavyweight champion.

Chuvalo lost a 15-round decision in Toronto to Clay, not now recognized as champion in the United States and some other countries because of his refusal to be inducted into the U.S. armed forces.

A fourth-round technical knockout suffered at the hands of Joe Frazier in July, 1967, almost had the rugged Toronto boxer down and out for good.

But after a broken cheekbone was repaired, Chuvalo started a comeback and climaxed it with a fifth-round TKO over Manuel Ramos of Mexico in the Garden last October.

Chuvalo now is riding the crest of a six-fight winning streak.

But a bad defeat at the hands of Mathis, the slimmed-down giant from Grand Rapids, Mich., plus the Canadian fighter's age, could again deal Chuvalo a serious blow.

A victory, on the other hand, could move Chuvalo further up the boxing ratings. He is rated fourth by Ring magazine and seventh by the World Boxing Association. Mathis is ranked eighth by the WBA and is not ranked by Ring. The winner of the Chuvalo-Mathis bout will fight Jerry Quarry here March 10.

Chuvalo considered the Ramos fight a "crossroads" in his career and tonight's bout fits into the same category.

Chuvalo now is the owner of a Toronto nightclub called Chuvalo's Caravan and has also begun to dabble in real estate.

"I don't feel I can go on much longer," Chuvalo said in an interview.

"I have the club back home but right now I feel more like a fighter than a nightclub operator. The thing is, I do have a little time and I want that chance to be champion."

Chuvalo climbs into the ring tonight against Mathis in the familiar role of the underdog.

Mathis is a 2-to-1 favorite to get by the durable Canadian.

In their last Garden outings, which led to tonight's battle, Chuvalo was much the more impressive in taking care of the world-ranked Ramos who was an overwhelming 12-to-5 favorite. Chuvalo was unranked at the time.

Mathis, figuring to have an easy time on the same card against lightly-regarded New Yorker James J. Woody, almost blew it. He won only one of the first five rounds before coming to life to score a sixth-round TKO.

Chuvalo says he has watched films of Mathis's fights and his corner sees something that "will provide a knockout along the way."

Referring to Chuvalo, Mathis says: "There has to be a limit to what a man can take. If you pound a brick with a sledgehammer all night, the brick has got to break."

Chuvalo says he is a "determined, different fighter now" and he credits his new-found image to his new trainer Max Kadin who took over after the Frazier setback.

"Before Max took over," Chuvalo said, "I didn't persevere enough when I had an opponent on the ropes."

"In other words when I hurt a man I wasn't a good finisher because I was careless. That's been changed now, I think."

Chuvalo takes a record of 53 wins, 14 losses and two draws into tonight's match. George has scored 45 knockouts. Mathis is 28-1, his only loss coming at the hands of Frazier who knocked him out in the 11th round of their five-state world title fight.

In a 10-round co-feature on tonight's card, former five-time world welterweight and middleweight champion Emile Griffith faces Andy Heilman of Fargo, N.D. Heilman is a last-minute substitute for sixth-ranked middleweight contender Doyle Baird of Akron, Ohio, who had to pull out at the last minute with a muscle spasm.

Favored European Entries Fare Poorly in Daytona Event

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — They can't laugh any more when Lola sports cars enter an endurance race; not after a 1-2 finish in the 24 hours of Daytona during the weekend.

But the favored German Porsches and the Ford GT40 team from England probably don't have to worry about the Lola-Chevrolet challenging them for the 1969 world title.

Mark Donohue, 30-year-old chief driver and one of the mechanical brains on the winning car, said the team will go to Sebring Fla., for the next event on the 10-race world title series March 22.

"We don't plan to go beyond there and Watkins Glen, N.Y., later in the year." Donohue said.

Montrealers Jacques Duval and George Nicholas finished ninth in their privately-entered Porsche 911.

Four other Canadians also finished the race. Fritz Hochreuter and Rainer Brezinka of Toronto ran 20th in a Porsche 906, followed closely by Maurice Carter and Nat Adams of Hamilton in a Camaro.

The Lola made 21 pits stops—almost twice as many as other cars—because only 21 gallons in the fuel cells would transfer to the fuel injection system on the engine. That, plus a break in one combustion chamber that had to be welded in a one-hour pit stop, left the Lola 200 miles out of first place early Sunday until double trouble struck the favorites.

Four Porsches had already fallen and the fifth went into the discard after 18 hours, just after Jackie Ickx of Belgium spun the last surviving Ford GT40 against the concrete retaining wall of Daytona International Speedway. The fire which resulted left Ickx unhurt, but eliminated the car.

The Lola inherited first place and held it the rest of the way, beating the second place Lola-Chevy—entered by movie star James Garner—by more than 100 miles although the speed of 98.268 miles an hour was the lowest for the winner of this 24-hour test.

Ottawa's Jarry Blooms

As Pierre Goes, So Go 67's

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year, when the Ottawa 67s finished a dismal last in their debut in the 10-team OHA Junior A series, Pierre Jarry was their outstanding player with 57 scoring points.

By mid-January this season, Jarry was only one point shy of that total with 20 regular-season games still to play. And he had edged into the league's top-10 list of scorers.

Perhaps not by coincidence, the 67s' over-all performance has shown about the same degree of improvement this season.

Although still a long way back from the league leaders, they are at least involved in a fight for a playoff spot and appear in no danger of falling into the basement again.

Pierre Jarry has two main concerns during the next few months: To get the Ottawa 67s into the playoffs and to prove himself capable of playing in the National Hockey League.

Since neither ambition is either a sure thing or a dreamer's delusion, the 19-year-old right winger is going to be an interesting player to watch.

Last year Jarry was chosen by French-speaking writers and broadcasters as the best French-speaking amateur athlete in Ontario and western Quebec, and was a member of the league's all-star team.

A few days ago he was judged the city of Ottawa's outstanding hockey player by 37 sports writers and broadcasters.

But with all the awards and accolades, he has still not quite proved himself the complete hockey player to himself or his coach.

A native of Montreal, he says that "like every Frenchman" he loves to skate and stickhandle, but by his own admission "could tighten up my checking a bit."

Coach Bill Long has no hesitation in calling Jarry the 67s' leader.

"He skates well, is an excellent puckhandler, and has a helluva shot when he wants to use it."

He adds, however, that Pierre could be even better if he showed more drive and took more shots instead of trying to be fancy.

Forum Crowds Continue

Hawks Keep Stride With Jr. Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fourth place in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series changed hands Sunday as Niagara Falls Flyers nipped London Knights 2-1 before 3,524 fans, largest crowd at London Gardens this season.

The Flyers pulled two points ahead of Hamilton Red Wings as the streaking Montreal Junior Canadiens edged the Red Wings 4-3 in front of a Montreal Forum crowd of 16,541.

St. Catharines Black Hawks kept even with Montreal in first place with a 5-4 home ice win over eighth-place Toronto Marlboros.

In other games Sunday, Oshawa Generals and Peterborough Petes battled to a 1-1 tie at Oshawa and last-place Kitchener Rangers won their eighth game of the season, 4-3 over the 67s at Ottawa.

Jack Powell scored the winning goal for Niagara Falls late in the second period, only 86 seconds after Bob Channell tied the score at 1-1 for the Knights. Ross Webley gave the Flyers a 1-0 first-period lead.

A third period brawl produced 13 penalties, including five game misconducts, and three fans were involved in a scrap with Paul Scherer of the Flyers. Referee Merrill Schott called a total of 126 minutes in penalties in the fight-filled game.

At Montreal, a goal by captain Rejean Houle with 52 seconds remaining in the third period gave the Junior Canadiens their win over Hamilton.

The Canadiens, who collected their 26th win of the season, opened up a 3-0 lead going into the third period on goals by Jocelin Guevremont, Gilbert Perrault and Jean-Pierre Bourdeleau. But the Red Wings rallied to tie the score as Tom Williams, Tom Trevelyan and Ron Climie scored in the space of two minutes and 31 seconds.

Marcel Dionne and defenceman Wayne Ego each scored two goals to lead the St. Catharines win over Toronto. Dennis Gianinni scored the other goal for the winners.

Doug Acomb, with his 48th goal of the season, Frank Hamill, Gord Davies and Ric Jordan replied for the Marlboros.

Sheehan Back in Fray

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Centre Bob Sheehan, the suspended Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series individual scoring leader, was "conditionally reinstated" Sunday by St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Sheehan, a native of East Weymouth, Mass., was suspended last Monday by the team executive for disciplinary reasons. He had returned to Halifax, where he played the previous two seasons for Halifax Junior Canadiens.

Sheeham had arranged to meet Saturday with Brian Shaw, the St. Catharines manager-coach, but his trip back to St. Catharines was delayed by bad weather.

The two met Sunday afternoon and the suspension was lifted in time for Sheehan to pick up an assist Sunday night in a 5-4 home-ice win over Toronto Marlboros.

A Home of Your Own - by Rollins...

A JOB WELL DONE—

Charlie and Ethel have just completed the finishing of their ROLLINS 'SELF HELP' Home and they are PROUD. They took care in their work and now they have a beautiful home of their own. Sure, there were a few problems but the people at Rollins were always there to help and offer sound advice. Now they have a home finished the way they want it because they did the interior themselves.

Ethel can't wait to show off her new home, so tonight they are having their friends Sid and Annie over for an evening.

"Hey! This is some set up, Charlie", Sid commented . .

"I WISH I HAD YOUR MONEY"

"I CAN NEVER SEEM TO SAVE UP ENOUGH FOR THAT BIG DOWN PAYMENT YOU NEED."

Charlie was quick to explain how he didn't have a Down Payment either, but Rollins didn't require one. Convenient terms were arranged so that he wasn't paying as much as his rent had been at the apartment building.

Now Sid was really getting interested. He had always regretted having to pay such high rent. And at the end of the year he still didn't have anything to show for his money!

Late Mo-Hawk Goal Sinks Kings

★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Weekend Wins Good for Playoff Berth Tie

STAFF — What to do for an encore after you've scored four goals in a game? Score three in the next one!

That sums up Al Ferguson's weekend performance for Belleville's Senior A Mo-Hawks.

The husky Trenton right-winger accounted for all the Belleville scoring in the Mo Hawks 4-3 Friday home win over Barrie, then potted three yesterday as the locals edged Collingwood 6-5 on the road.

Even with that kind of performance, "Fergy" had to share the spotlight with Lorne O'Donnell, whose goal with less than two minutes remaining in Sunday's Collingwood game gave the Mo-Hawks their fourth straight win and a points tie with Kingston Aces in the senior loop's sixth and last playoff spot.

The Aces had temporarily broken the ice created by Friday night's Mo-Hawk win over Barrie when they dumped Oakville 8-2 in Kingston Saturday. But yesterday's road win, combined with a 5-4 Kingston loss in Orillia, put the Mo-Hawks right back on even terms with the Aces, who have only one game in hand.

Next game for the locals comes Friday night when they are at home to Orillia before staging a dramatic Tuesday-Friday home-and-home series with Kingston next week, and winding up the regular schedule away to last-place Woodstock Sunday, Feb. 16.

A 15-point record in the last 11 Mo-Hawk games has put the pressure on Kingston, who play either front-running Galt or Barrie in three of their remaining five games.

It took Lionel Botly only 30 seconds to give the Mo-Hawks a 1-0 lead at Collingwood Sunday as the defenceman-captain counted his third goal of the year from Lorne O'Donnell and George Godson.

A pair of goals 18 seconds apart just past the 14-minute mark by the Kings' Claire Alexander and Bill Abbott left the locals down 2-1 going into the second.

Keith Smeltzer's quickie 35 seconds after the middle frame started made it 3-1 for the Kings, before Ferguson's first goal at 14.47 with Godson and O'Donnell again in on the play.

The Kings took a 4-2 edge on Dave Fitter's tally less than three minutes later, but Ferguson took only six seconds to complete his hat trick at 18.18 and 18.24, thanks to a couple of helpers from Godson and one by O'Donnell.

AL FERGUSON

Seven Goal Weekend

The 4-4 stalemate was broken by Fern St. Onge's goal early in the final stanza, but John "Shaker" Baker, who had suffered rough luck around the Barrie goal Friday, found the mark at 8.02 from Bob Taylor and Ralph Plane to knot the score at 5-5.

O'Donnell's horeoics came at 18.23, when linemates Godson and Ferguson dug the puck out from behind the Collingwood net for him to bang home the winner.

In all, the Godson line accounted for 13 scoring points yesterday in handing the Kings their seventh straight defeat.

Larry Holmes made 35 saves, compared to 27 by Collingwood's Don Rich.

Only two penalties were called during the game — a first-period tripping minor to Eddie Marineau, and an interference minor to the Kings' Robertson in the second — but neither figured in the scoring.

Late Outburst Spells Defeat for Morrisons

A four goal outburst in the final eight minutes enabled Cobourg Cougars to defeat Belleville Morrisons 8-4 Sunday afternoon at the Belleville Arena and move into a tie with Kingston for the fourth and last playoff spot in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" Hockey League.

Paul Massey scored the winning goal for the visitors at 12.04 of the final period to break a 4-4 deadlock, while Paul Gutteridge added a pair of goals and Garry Hart a single goal in the final eight minutes to ensure the Cobourg victory.

John McConnell had tied the score for Belleville at 6.12 of the final period, after the teams battled to a 3-3 stalemate in the first period, and the Cougars went ahead 4-3 in the middle stanza.

Right wingers Ray Summers and Ron Fuller, and left winger Dennis McCormick tallied the other goals, for the Morrisons who were mathematically iminated from the playoffs by the defeat.

The Morrisons are off until Sunday when they travel to Peterborough for a 6 p.m. game with the second place Don Byes.

The Morrisons will run a special bus to Peterborough, for their game and the OHA Junior "A" contest, between the Peterborough Petes and the Hamilton Red Wings, which follows the Junior "B" game. The total cost is three dollars return and anyone interested should contact either Jim Matthews or "Red" Mavety. The bus leaves the Belleville Arena at 2.30 p.m. and will return after the Junior "A" game.

Golden Hawks Lose Ground

TRENTON — Centreman Jim Bennett and the Peterborough Don Byes upended the Trenton Golden Hawks 3-0 last night and threw the playoff race in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" league into a three-way scramble for the third and fourth spots.

Bennett was potent and consistent, tallying a goal in each period as he accounted for the game's only scoring. Linemate Phil Grady picked up assists on Bennett's third and third goals as the second place Don Byes moved to within one point of the league leading Oshawa Crushmen.

The loss leaves Trenton in third spot with 23 points, and four games remaining, while Kingston and Cobourg are tied for the fourth and last playoff spot with 22 points. Kingston has five games remaining in their 30 game schedule, while Cobourg has four.

The Golden Hawks deserved a better fate last night, but the game was decided on the ability to finish off plays, at which Peterborough's Bennett excelled. Don Potts and Gary Lisle experienced a frustrating night, coming close many times, and hitting the post one each.

The Golden Hawks are off until Friday night when they play host to the league leading Oshawa Crushmen at the Trenton Community Gardens.

Oshawa Tops at Port Huron, Kinsmen Lack 'Lady Luck'

PORT HURON, Mich. — Belleville Kinsmen bantams travelled to Port Huron, Michigan Friday for the seventh annual North American Silver Stick hockey championships, but left their luck at home.

The Kinsmen outshot Brantford 26-12 on the game and 10-2 in the final period, but dropped a 4-1 decision in the first round of the double A single knockout tournament. Andy Ricketts scored the only Belleville goal in the third period after Brantford built up a 4-0 lead.

Teams from Oshawa won two division championships Sunday to capture top honors at the weekend tournament.

In bantam triple A action, Oshawa kinsmen nipped Toronto Marlboros 3-2, while in peewee triple A Oshawa Red Barn all-stars defeated St. Clair Shores, Michigan 6-1.

Collingwood, Ontario, scored a 5-1 win over Detroit for the double A Bantam title, and Gatineau, Quebec beat Petrolia, Ontario, 4-1 for the peewee double A championship.

A 5-0 shellacking of Dearborn, Michigan gave Forrest, Ontario, the bantam A title, and Lambeth, Ontario, beat host Port Huron 4-2 for the peewee A crown in the 63 team tournament.

Gananoque Tournament

Novices Capture Crown

A 3-2 victory over the host Gananoque club Saturday gave Towers Food City novices the Class "A" championship at the Gananoque novice hockey tournament.

A first period goal by Brent Walmsley and third period goals by Randy Hutchinson and Bobby Crawford carried Belleville to victory in the championship game.

Belleville advanced to the finals with a 5-2 first round win over Trenton and a 5-1 second round win over the Cobourg novices.

Bobby Crawford was the big gun for the Food City crew with seven goals in the three games. Crawford notched four goals in the game with Trenton, added two against Cobourg and one against Gananoque.

Billy Whalen counted Belleville's other goal in the Trenton game with Pat Mulvihill and Peter Coates counting the locals other goals in the Cobourg encounter.

Peewees Win, Tie

Weary Novices Held to Tie Sunday

Smith Fuels peewees were held to a 4-4 draw Saturday by Napanee, but Sunday the chips fell in place for the defending Ontario champions as they scored a 6-0 victory over the peewee house league all-stars in an exhibition game at the Belleville Arena.

In other weekend action, a tired Food City novice team, who played three games on Saturday, were held to a 3-3 tie Sunday by a Cobourg club they defeated 5-1 Saturday. The weekend's other game saw the Western Tire juveniles drop a 3-2 decision to Picton.

Bobby Crawford scored his eighth goal of the weekend Sunday, while Brent Walmsley and Peter Coates added single goals for the Food City novices in their tie with Cobourg.

Garnet Hopkins and Steve Moore scored for the Western Tire juveniles in Sunday's losing cause.

Cats Now Champions

The Bear Cats clawed their way to the Northern Electric Hockey League championships Sunday with a 3-2 victory over the Jets, while the Comets defeated the Flyers 7-2.

Rick Rosebush scored a pair of goals for the Bear Cats and Bob Totten added a single goal while Doug James and Charles Reynolds replied for the Jets.

Hatfield had a hat trick for the Comets while Ford notched a pair of goals for the winners and singletons went to A. Jones and T. Jones. Ken Weeks scored both goals for the losers.

Imperials Drop Opener

Three third period goals spelled the difference Sunday night as Trenton Lions midgets defeated Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets 7-3 in the opening game of a best two out of three series in the first round of the Ontario playdowns.

Terry Meagher's hat trick accounted for the Imperial midgets scoring, while Gerry Teeple notched two goals and two assists and George Ferguson tallied a goal and two assists to pace the Trenton attack.

Bob Dailey, Chris Long, Jeff Howard and John Gravelle counted the other goals for the Trenton crew who have lost only two games all year.

Legion 99 Girls Tie Napanee 1-1

Belleville Legion Branch 99 battled to a 1-1 tie with the Napanee Royals Saturday in Picton and District Ladies' Hockey League action at the Picton Arena.

Betty Boomhower scored for the Belleville girls, while Marlene Monroe replied for the Royals.

WINTER DRIVING CAN BE FUN

Driving's a breeze . . . Life-Saver GLASS-BELTED

HIWAY-WIDEWAY

BIGGER, WIDER and HUSKIER! An easy going giant of a tire that dwarfs all winter driving problems. Highway Wideways seem to "swish" through hub-high snow that leaves others in a deep down struggle. On hard-packed snow and treacherous "skating-rink" road surfaces, you'll find good reason for more confidence than ever before. Panic stopping time is reduced too! It could be just enough to turn a "hit" into a lucky "miss", for when a fender dent costs a $100 or so, what about broken bones.

THE INSIDE STORY—it's what you can't see that makes Hiway Wideway so revolutionary, with more of everything you need!

Yes, the beauty of this tire is much more than tread deep. Hidden beneath are bias-plys of extra heavy polyester cord and 2 circumferential Fibre Glass Belts. Twice as strong as conventional tires! Better riding, extra traction, thump-free morning starts, extra stability particularly at high speeds, easier rolling with resultant better gas mileage. Equals the 40,000 mile rating of expensive European, steel-belted radial tires. So sure of the Highway Wideway, we'll refund your money if you don't agree with all of these claims. (See catalogue money back guarantee).

TYENDINAGA RESERVE — Among those from out of town attending the funeral of Mrs. Susan Claus in All Saints Church Saturday were: her grandaughter Mary of Edmonton, Alta.; her grandson Kenneth of Toronto; her foster-granddaughter, Mrs. Ronald Brant, with her husband and sons of Oshawa; her brother-in-law, Delwin (Winnie) Claus of Ransomville, N.Y.; her nephew, Avery Miller and Mrs. Miller of Rochester; and cousins, Mrs. Leta Colbysuk, formerly Leta Hill, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Maracle of Hamilton, and Mr. and Mrs. Noble Walker of Picton.

Mrs. Melvin Maracle of the York Road has again returned home from the Belleville General Hospital.

The ACW of the Tyendinaga Parish will hold its January meeting at the rectory Thursday.

Chief Earl Hill and Mrs. Hill were in Toronto Sunday, to take the Chief's sister, Miss Jennie Hill, back to her home. She had been with their sister, Mrs. Franklin Green of Highway No. 2, who has been confined to her home with flu for two weeks.

Paul Anderson, area superintendent of schools, is visiting schools on the Reserve.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

Immune Serum Globulin Able To Protect Against Hepatitis

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

You have been in daily contact at the office with a co-worker who has come down with a severe attack of hepatitis. What to do? Your husband is home in bed with hepatitis. You will be his nurse: bring him his food, administer his medications, etc. Aren't you leaving yourself wide open? What to do? Your child has been at school with another playmate who has contracted hepatitis. What to do? Is there any form of protection at all for those exposed?

There is. Probably you have heard of Immune Serum Globulin. Here are the highlights of a report issued in a meeting (June 1968) by the Advisory Committee on Immunizing Practices, U.S. Public Health Service. They will raise the curtain on some of the backstage question marks about the feasibility of protection against hepatitis:

"The agent that causes human infectious hepatitis has not yet been identified but is presumed to be a virus. No vaccine is available.

"Administration of immune serum globulin to exposed persons can, however, afford a high degree of protection against infectious hepatitis.

"Transmission of the disease is principally by the fecal-oral route and is most likely to occur under conditions of inadequate sanitation or close contact with infected individuals.

"Direct person - to - person spread of infection otherwise is unusual. Transmission is also possible by the parenteral (needle) route. The incubation period of infectious hepatitis is relatively long, in most cases between 15 to 50 days (average 25 to 30 days.)

Immune serum globulin is prepared for intramuscular injection from large pools of plasma (1,000 or more donors) obtained from venous or placental blood, or both."

What to do? The decision whether to give it should be up to your own doctor. For protection it should be administered as soon as possible. "Its prophylactic value decreases as time increases after exposure. The use of Immune Serum Globulin more than five to six weeks after exposure is not indicated."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been diagnosed as having a duodenal ulcer. For the past six months I have been having pain in the rectal area. I also have sudden urges to have frequent bowel movements. Could these complaints be due to the ulcer? — Mrs. Y.

Comment: I doubt it. I suggest you have a sigmoidoscopic examination (hollow lighted tube into lower bowel) and any necessary X-rays to discover the real cause of your symptoms. Also, a lab examination of your stool.

For example, the rectal pain might be caused by a fissure in the rectum, by hemorrhoids or by a chronic fistula—among other causes. And the sudden urges to have bowel movements might be due to some growth, ulceration or chronic infection in the lower colon (large intestine). As I said, it's more likely that your duodenal ulcer is an innocent party to all your discomforts.

• • •

For Mrs. K. (Akron, O. There seems to be little question that emotions may be directly concerned with overweight. It is not uncommon for the tense, nervous person to be constantly nibbling (some are continually smoking) to overcome their deep anxieties. As a result of piling in additional calories they pile on excess weight. Many patients lose easily when they stop worrying about a specific problem.

Hydro Workers Quit Jobs But Power Flows

TORONTO (CP) — Areas of southwestern and northwestern Ontario today were hit by a series of rotating strikes against Ontario Hydro.

A hydro official in Toronto said supervisory personnel had been dispatched to all areas affected and everything was "flowing smoothly."

The strike by Local 1000 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees was ratified last Monday when 8,900 of the 9,500 union membefs voted for strike action.

Last minut talks, mediated by Ontario chief consiliator W. H. Dickie, failed in Toronto Sunday night. Talks resumed today.

Nearly 600 power-producing and maintenance employees walked out in the southwestern Ontario centres of Toronto, Hamilton, Welland, Dunnville, St. Catharines, Stoney Creek, Kitchener and Brantford.

Affected in northwestern Ontario are Fort Frances, Kenora, Central Patricia, Dryden and Red Lake, all west of the Lakehead.

The union says it will not state how long the strikes will last or where the next will occur.

Kealey Cummings, president of the local, said the public will not be inconvenienced by the rotating strikes which were called to harrass management by forcing them to move managerial staff from one point to another.

A union spokesman said that regional operators will remain on duty to supervise the flow of power and system security. Emergency crews have been notified to stand by.

He said that the strike could move to other areas of the province but added that Hydro management would be given eight hours notice before any such walkouts take place.

More Tests Are Likely For Alleged Axe Killer

PRINCE ALBERT (CP) — The 19-year-old youth charged with seven counts of non-capital murder in the axe-slayings last week of seven persons at Buffalo Narrows 210 miles north of here may undergo more extensive psychiatric tests, his lawyer said Sunday night.

J. H. Clyne Harradence, court-appointed counsel for Frederick Moses McCallum, 19, of Buffalo Narrows, said in a telephone interview he had spoken with McCallum twice since his appointment Saturday.

Mr. Harradence said it was possible he may ask to have his client escorted to Saskatoon where more extensive psychiatric tests could be made.

McCallum was arrested about 30 minutes after police found the bodies of two adults and four children in a home in Buffalo Narrows, a community of 1,200 persons. A third adult, the mother of the dead children, died later in hospital.

McCallum, remanded to Feb. 7, was told when he appeared in court Friday night that a lawyer could be obtained for him.

His only reply was "if you want to." Throughout his eight-minute appearance, he sat quietly with his head bowed.

The victims were Thomas Pederson, 32, his wife Bernadette, 30, their four children ranging in age from three to nine years, and Jean Baptiste Herman, 48, of La Roche, Sask., a guest at the home.

Police said the murder weapon was a single-blade fire axe.

A 10-year-old daughter, in the home at the time of the slayings ran out into 40-below-zero weather to alert her maternal grandmother, who notified Roman Catholic priest, Rev. A. Dorsche. Another daughter, Connie, 16, was living with the grandmother.

The only survivor of the attack Fred Donald Pederson, 7, was flown to a Saskatoon hospital where he remains in serious condition with a skull fracture and possible brain damage. Police said the boy suffered axe wounds to the back of his head.

Bruce Clark, 20, the ambulance driver who removed the bodies, described the three-bedroom frame home as a "house of horror."

He said some of the bodies were missing the tops of the heads. On others the faces were missing or unrecognizable. All had died of head wounds.

The Pedersons had been attacked in bed, apparently while they slept. The body of Mr. Herman was found on the living room floor.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market continued advancing to new high ground in active trading today.

By mid-morning, the industrial index was up .47 to a record at 192.94. Gains in all sections outnumbered losses by almost two to one.

Western oil and mining stocks were slightly lower.

Ocean Cement rose 1 to 24, MacMillan Bloedel 1 to 36, Aimco 1 to 18½ and Abitibi ¼ to 10¾.

Among the most active industrials, Interprovincial Commercial Discount gained 30 cents to $4.50 and Hardee Farms 20 cents to $2.30. Tonecraft dropped 1⅝ to 26⅞.

Famous Players advanced 2 to a record at 79 before trading was halted pending a statement from the company. The stock gained $7 Friday.

The three major steel companies were strong. All reported higher annual earnings. Stelco was up ⅝ to 27½. Algoma ¼ to 21½ and Dofasco ⅛ to 26.

Texaco gained ¼ to 33 and ITL Industries ⅜ to 18¼. These companies also reported higher annual profits.

Among mines and western oils, Placer fell ½ to 37¾, Northgate ½ to 16 and Cassiar Asbestos ⅛ to 17⅞.

Granduc gained 1 to 13¾ and Canada Southern Pete 20 cents to $7.80.

Aetna Investments was up 55 cents to $6.20. The mining company has agreed to acquire real estate interests in Toronto, including the Forest Hill Golf and Country Club.

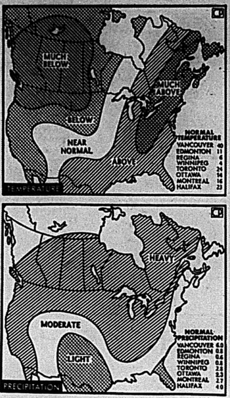
Observe Golden Anniversary

TWEED — Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Provost, of Metcalfe Street, Tweed, quietly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on Jan. 24.

Guests over the weekend were their daughter, Mrs. Edward Tucker, their niece, Mrs. N. Bozian, and Mrs. Provost's sister, Mrs. Cecil Ogglesby, all of Toronto. The many beautiful cards and visits from friends and relatives made their day a happy occasion.

Mrs. Provost was the former Miss Ethel Brill, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Brill, of Tweed, and the marriage was solemnized at their home on Jan. 24, 1919.

The officiating clergyman at that time was the late Rev. A. L. Brown of the Methodist, (now St. John's United) Church, Tweed.



Warm in East

The United States weather bureau in its 30-day outlook released Friday predicts heavy precipitation for almost all of Canada. Temperatures are expected to vary across the country with much above temperatures for eastern provinces and much below in the west. Temperatures in central Canada are expected to be near normal to above and below normal. This outlook is not a forecast and changes may occur.

Radiology Graduate

TWEED — Miss Jean Varty was among the graduates in radiology at the graduation ceremonies held on Saturday, Jan. 25, 1969, in Education Hall, at the Kingston General Hospital.

Miss Varty received her training in the two-year course at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, and has accepted a position on the staff of the Queensway General Hospital, in Etobicoke.

Attending the graduation and reception as her guests were: her parents, Mr. and Mrs Harold Varty, of RR 3, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Varty, of Islington, and Charles Van Alphen, of Stoco, Ontario.

Policeman's Mistake

Officer Wounds Three U.S. Customs Officials

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — A police officer shot and wounded three U.S. customs agents accidentally Saturday and is under a physician's care for shock, Police Chief James Chambers said Sunday.

Chambers identified the patrolman as Alex Donald McLennan, a 10-year veteran on the force.

The federal agents were in plain clothes, said Chambers.

He said a force of 17 federal customs and narcotics agents, state narcotics officers and Concord police, including McLellan, set up a stake-out Saturday night at the Concord Inn for Lawrence Allen Fassler of Tucson, Ariz., named in a federal warrant charging marijuana possession.

Shortly after noon Sunday, Fassler sped off in a car with the officers in pursuit. His car apparently rammed or was rammed by one of the cars, and three customs agents alighted with guns drawn.

Not recognizing the three agents and believing they planned to shoot him, McLennan "fired three shots, possibly more."

One of the three agents, George P. Gudbranson, about 29, of Walnut Creek, Calif., was shot in the head and wounded critically.

The others were Leon Jassaud, 29, of Pleasant Hill, in a hospital in fair condition with an arm wound, and David Wilson, 26, of San Francisco, fair with a leg wound.

Fassler was arrested at the scene.

Inter-club Meet Held by Kinsmen

TWEED — The ninth regular meeting of the Tweed Kinsmen Club was held at the Stoco Lake Hotel this past week. The Tweed Kinsmen hosted an inter-club meeting with the Pembroke Kinsmen Club.

There were 37 Kinsmen and three guests in attendance, 17 from Pembroke, three from Picton and 17 members and three guests from Tweed. Among the Kinsmen from Picton was Deputy-Governor Ronald Hotston.

After an enjoyable dinner a short business meeting was held. President Thomas White, Jr., read a letter of invitation from the Belleville Kinsment Club to attend their 55th anniversary dinner and dance on Feb. 21. Kin Ronald Way reported on the draw, which is in progress. He encouraged everyone to sell tickets. The draw will be made during the weekend of the Winter Carnival in Tweed, February 7, 8, and 9.

President Ed. Gallagher of Pembroke, presented the Tweed Kinsmen Club with a banner from their club as a momento of their visit and thanked them for an enjoyable evening. President Tom White and Kin Guy B. Hughes expressed appreciation, on behalf of the Tweed Kinsmen, to the Pembroke Club for travelling so far to be their guests. Kin Guy Hughes spoke briefly on the importance of fellowship along with Kinsmanship.

The meeting was adjourned followed by a social evening.

GEORGE FOX
Madoc

MADOC — After a lengthy illness, George Fox, Madoc, died at his home on Sunday.

Mr. Fox was born at Eldorado, 62 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Fox and spent his lifetime in the Madoc district. He was employed with the department of highways for many years and was well known and highly respected in his community.

Mr. Fox was a member of Trinity United Church and was an elder of the congregation. He also served on the board of stewards for some years.

Surviving are his wife, the former Freda McCoy, one son, Terry Fox, Madoc, and three daughters, Miss Joy Ann Fox, Madoc, Mrs. J. (Sharon) Souvage, Burlington and Miss Lynda Fox, Kingston.

Also surviving are four sisters, Mrs. B. (Ida) McCarey, Belleville, Mrs. H. (Annie) Sabin, Mount Albert, Mrs. G. (Evelyn) Palmer, Eldorado, Mrs. J. (Ethel) Hancock, Toronto, and four grandchildren.

Mr. Fox is resting at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc. Service will be held in Trinity United Church on Wednesday, Feb. 5 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in Eldorado cemetery with Rev. D. W. Heard assisted by Rev. Alfred Poulter officiating.

MRS. WILLIAM BURLEIGH
Campbellford

The funeral of Mrs. William Burleigh, Portage Street, Campbellford, was held Friday from the Bennett - Weaver Funeral Home with service in the chapel conducted by Rev. Lange B. Woods. Entombment was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery vault.

The bearers were Ronald Cox, Glenn Fry, Corry Burleigh, Larry Gough, Bill and Jim LaBrash, all grandsons of the deceased.

Mrs. Burleigh died Wednesday in Campbellford Memorial Hospital following a six months illness. She was in her 84th year.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Shedrick Mitchell, she was born at Wooler and lived in Havelock before moving to Campbellford. She was a member of the United Church.

Pre-deceased by her husband, she is survived by five daughters, Lillian (Mrs. Percy Jones), Louise (Mrs. Charles Urenn) both of Toronto, Effie (Mrs. Frank Cox) of Oshawa, Winnie (Mrs. Raymond Fry) of Bowmanville, and Lucille (Mrs. Manson LaBrash) of Campbellford, and two sons, Reginald Burleigh, RR2, Norwood, and Alton of Campbellford. One son, William Burleigh, pre-deceased her.

Also surviving are three brothers, John Mitchell of Corry, Penna.; Ernest of London; and Lorne of Wooler, as well as 13 grandchildren and 21 great grandchildren.

WILLIAM EDMONDSON

The funeral for William Edmondson was held from the Grant Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon.

Rev. Roy E. Vessey conducted the service in the chapel and also said the graveside prayers at Belleville cemetery

The bearers were Walter Waite, James Dafoe and four members of Belleville Lodge IOOF No. 81, Harley Joyce, Bruce Prindle, Harry Way and James Stubbard.

MRS. ELIAS DELEEUW

Following a short illness, Mrs. Jacoba Deleeuw, Hastings Manor, died in hospital on Saturday.

Mrs. Deleeuw was born in Holland, 95 years ago, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Johannes DeYong and came to this country 39 years ago.

Surviving are two sons, John Deleeuw, RR1, Thomasburg, Edward of Nanaimo, B.C. and four daughters, Mrs. Henriette Oudkerk, Mrs. Pete (Clara) Dalmulder, and Mrs Edward (Elisa) Mengerink all of Hilversum, Holland, Mrs. Herman (Winnie) VanWyk, Thomasburg.

Also surviving are eight grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren. Her husband, Elias Deleeuw, died some years ago.

Mrs. Deleeuw is resting at the Thompson Funeral chapel. Service will be held in the chapel on Tuesday, Feb. 4 at two o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Dr. H. M. Davis officiating.

MRS. ALICE O'HALLORAN

The funeral for Mrs. Alice O'Halloran, formerly of 243 Farley Avenue in Belleville, was held from the Symington Funeral Home, Kirkland Lake, to Holy Name Church last Wednesday.

Rev. Francis Murray celebrated Requiem Mass and interment was in Holy Name Cemetery.

The bearers were Angelo Rooozza, James McCarthy, Jean Paul Fortier, Bruno Datori, Leo Simpson, and Dominic D'Andrea, all members of the Knights of Columbus.

The body was forwarded to Kirkland Lake by the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

MRS. GRACE PARKER MANSFIELD

The funeral for Mrs. Grace Parker Mansfield was held from the John R. Bush Funeral Home on Saturday afternoon.

Canon R. B. Wright conducted the service with entombment in Belleville cemetery vault for interment in the spring.

MRS. KEITH STEWART MARCH

Mrs. Mary Ann March, 124 Spencer Avenue, Toronto, and formerly of Belleville, died suddenly at her home on Saturday in her 25th year.

Mrs. March was born in Belleville, a daughter of John Bryden and the late Mrs. Kathleen Bryden and had resided in Toronto for the past six months. She lived her entire life in the Belleville district.

She was a member of the Anglican Church.

Surviving are her husband, her father, one son, Roy March at home, one brother, William Bryden and one sister, Miss Violet Bryden, both of Belleville.

Mrs. March is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Tuesday, Feb 4 at three o'clock.

Interment will be in Belleville Cemetery with Canon R B. Wright officiating.

BURROWS COLDEN JORDAN

In failing health for one year, Burrows Colden Jordan, R.R. 6 Belleville died in hospital on Saturday.

Mr. Jordan was born in Thurlow township, 72 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jordan and had been a resident of the township all his life. He farmed in the township for many years and retired some years ago.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Surviving are one son, John Jordan, Ottawa, three brothers Anson and William Jordan, Belleville, Frank, Oshawa and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Fenn, West Hill, Mrs. Andrew (Sarah) Reid, Niagara Falls.

Also surviving are three grandchildren. His wife, the former Bessie Jeffrey, died some years ago.

Mr. Jordan is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Wednesday, Feb 5 at 1.30 p.m.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Rev. A. L. Sutherland officiating.

WILLIAM FINLEY SHAW
R.R.1, Eldorado

MADOC — A lifetime resident of the Eldorado district, William Finley Shaw, RR1, Eldorado, died Saturday in Belleville General Hospital following a brief illness. He was in his 69th year.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shaw, he was born in Madoc township and had farmed at Eldorado all his life. He was a member of Eldorado United Church.

He is survived by his wife, the former Jane H. Gordon, and by two daughters, Miss Nona Shaw and Mrs. P. (Barbara) Gryce, and a son Dean Shaw, all of Belleville and a brother Hedley Shaw of Eldorado. There are three grandchildren and a step grandson.

A sister, Mrs. A. (Laura) Shaw, a stepson, Gordon Bateman, and a step grandson predeceased him.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc, to Eldorado United Church for service at two p.m. conducted by Rev. W. M. Sedgwick.

Interment will be in Eldorado Cemetery.

Watch his big smile that says "Thank You"

When the boy comes to collect...

Your newspaperboy makes it his business to collect at a regular time—convenient to you.

That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

You can help, too, by having the money there so he won't have to come back. He'll appreciate that.

Because this boy is in business. He depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. And repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Hence, next time the boy comes by to collect, be ready—and watch his big smile, which says "Thank you."

Movie Monster Boris Karloff Dies in England at Age 81

LONDON (AP) — Boris Karloff, the man who created the Frankenstein monster and a whole range of horror films, died at a hospital near London Sunday, it was announced today. He was 81.

Karloff, whose real name was William Henry Pratt, became synonymous with horror entertainment although he was a gentle, courteous Englishman in private life.

He became a movie monster only by chance.

That chance changed the course of his life and turned him into a household name around the world.

He was in Hollywood in 1931 playing a small part in a movie as a journalist when a producer asked him if he would like to play a monster.

Karloff recalled:

"A monster indeed: But I didn't look a gift horse in the mouth and I've been eternally glad."

He was born in London in 1887 and began his stage career in the United States in 1910. His film career started in 1920.

Karloff attended the University of London's King's College before leaving for Canada in 1909. He worked as a farmhand in eastern Ontario, as a logger in Vancouver and worked briefly for a repertory company in Prince Albert, Sask.

When he left university and decided to emigrate, he left it to the toss of a coin which way to go: heads to Canada, tails to Australia. Canada won.

He completed his last picture last year in Britain. He had been ill for some weeks.

He was a polished performer who received critical acclaim for his 1956 Broadway role as a bishop in The Lark, French playwright Jean Anouilh's saga of Joan of Arc. Karloff called the Broadway role, "the high point of my career as an actor."

Karloff's Hollywood career languished until 1931 when he landed the role of Frankenstein's monster.

He played the lumbering tall-browed creature in only three films, but they set the standard for hundreds of movie chillers.

His non-Frankenstein roles were in such equally spooky movies as The Mask of Fu Manchu, Voodoo Island, The Body Snatcher, Isle of the Dead, and Stranglehold.

Karloff said he was grateful for being typecast for horror films.

"The monster was the best friend I ever had," he once told an interviewer. "Certainly I was typed. But what is typing? It is a trade mark, a means which the public recognizes you. Actors work all their lives to achieve that . . . I got mine with just one picture. It was a blessing."

Born in Dulwich, England, he was the youngest of nine children of Edward Pratt, member of the British Indian civil service.

Karloff was aimed toward a career in the consular service. But at age 10, he played the part of a demon in his parish's annual Christmas pantomime. It sold him on an acting career. He appeared in two more annual parish presentations before his older brothers found out and forbade him acting.

Turned down from First World War service because of a bad heart, Karloff emigrated to the U.S. where he toured in stock companies.

In 1919, he appeared in his first Hollywood role, that of a Mexican bandit in His Majesty the American, starring Douglas Fairbanks.

It wasn't until Frankenstein, however, that he achieved recognition. He chose a new name, his mother's family name of Karloff, and added Boris to keep the Slavic flavor.

Karloff made his Broadway debut in 1941 in Arsenic and Old Lace, in which he appeared 1,400 times before returning to Hollywood.

His other starring Broadway roles included The Linden Tree, The Shop at Sly Corner, and Peter Pan.

With the advent of television he made a series, Colonel March of Scotland Yard, in the early 1950's.

Karloff returned to England in 1951 because, he said, he was a rugby fan and "it's hard to find a game in the States."

But he was back in Hollywood in 1960 at age 73 to be host on a mystery television series, Thriller.

He was married five times, the last in 1941 to Evelyn Helmar, who survives. He also is survived by his daughter Sara Jane, child of his fourth marriage to Mrs. Dorothy Stine Pratt.

Unemployment of Trained 'Explosive' Worry--Stanfield

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Canada is confronted with the "explosive new situation" of unemployment among the educated and trained, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Saturday night.

Unemployment in the past has been most critical among the uneducated and those from regions of slower growth, he said in a speech to the Progressive Conservative Association of Quebec.

But while this problem remained, a new and disturbing dimension had been added with unemployment of trained people.

In the spring, he said, 98,000 people will graduate from universities and institutes of technology. And recruiting on campuses has declined.

"This is dangerous for Canada," Mr. Stanfield said.

"It means we will waste priceless talent and valuable training. Even more dangerous, it might mean that we will turn more young Canadians against their country."

Mr. Stanfield suggested that the Liberal government has increased unemployment as a means of fighting inflation.

It had deliberately set out to create a slack in the economy in hopes of putting a brake on inflation.

Two Men Set Selves Afire, One Rescued, Other Dies

TORONTO (CP) — Peter Thomas, 60, of Toronto suffered third-degree burns to nearly half his body early Sunday when he set himself on fire near the home of his estranged wife in north Toronto.

Two unidentified motorists saved Thomas' life by smothering the flames with their coats. Police found an empty gasoline can nearby.

Thomas is in hospital where his condition was described as favorable.

The burning was the second such incident in two days in Toronto.

Early Saturday Paul Balaski, 36, a security guard, was found burned to death in the boiler room of a suburban stationary and printing firm where he worked.

Police said an empty gasoline can was lying near the body and that a note resembling a will was found in an office at the plant.

Pelletier Is Critical Of Reporters' Conduct

OTTAWA (CP) — State Secretary Gerard Pelletier says reporters acted "unethically" in pestering Prime Minister Trudeau's dates in London recently.

At a press reception Friday night, he said events and movements of principal characters in the news are justifiable targets for reporters. But personal lives of their non-political associates were off limits.

Mr. Pelletier, a former newspaper man made the comments after he was named Man of the Year by the Ottawa-Vanier Junior Chamber of Commerce.

He was honored for outstanding contributions to the capital and the country, particularly in the area of bilingualism and biculturalism.

The state secretary said the reporters' offences in London were particularly distasteful since the women interviewed were generally unaccustomed to dealing with high-pressure journalists.

Had they been working for a newspaper under his direction, they would have been disciplined for ungentlemanly behavior.

While he was editor of La Presse in Montreal, he said, he suspended two reporters for pestering the mother of a juvenile held in connection with a bombing incident.

Women Needed as Doctors

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I have written about this before, a dozen years ago, but the situation is now worse than it was then, and still nothing much has been done. I refer to the shortage of doctors in the prejudice against women in the medical profession.

The country could use another quarter-million doctors, but many young men are not able to go through the lengthy and expensive period of medical education; on the other hand, hundreds of thousands of college-trained women could take up the profession if they were encouraged to do so.

The majority of doctors are women in Russia, and in the Scandinavian countries and throughout Europe generally, there are many times more women doctors than in the U.S.

Male chauvinism does not run nearly as high in those countries as it does here. Even female lawyers are frowned upon in the U.S. (both inside and outside the legal profession), are paid less given more menial assignments, and rarely elevated to positions of any real responsibility in public service, as their male counterparts are.

It may be a plausible (though not, to me, persuasive) argument that women lack the toughness of fibre to make first-rate lawyers; but surely no similar argument applies to their potential abilities as doctors.

In the first place, women tend to be natively more sympathetic to physical ailments than men; women are more aware of their bodies, more sensitive to biological processes; more emotionally engaged in the arts of nursing and nutrition and conservation of health.

Secondly, and just as important, women have a naturally deeper understanding of psychohomatic ailments . . . which are at the bottom of more than 50 per cent of all cases seen by doctors —because their own minds and bodies are so intimately related, so delicately interpenetrated by one another.

And, so far as the techincal skills of medicine are concerned, these can be learned by any competent and ordinarily intelligent person of either sex. What chiefly distinguishes a good doctor from a mediocre one is precisely the area in which women excel: the ability [illegible] identify with the patient, to communicate and interact on a level beneath the merely verbal and intellectual and clinical.

It is one of the scandals of our society that we fail to extract the vast potential from our women, and still condemn them to second-class citizenship in the profession that needs them most.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 4

Your birthday today: This is the year of confrontation in your private life. You have the opportunity to share in both sides of every pastime. The temptation is to meddle. Emotional fulfillment is promised. Today's natives tend generally toward technical specialization. This year continues several years of psychic unrest for these complex individuals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Yesterday's self-restraint begins to pay off. Things move at a better pace. Leave emotional concerns out of business; those you do business with are not those who have given you trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Continue the steady effort but quit as soon as possible. If there is something you should tell your contacts, near or far, do so this evening and get it over with. Delay causes extra confusion.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): News from distant places and people is emphasized. Many pertinent facts are left out (which would give a different overall view). Let people come and go without pinning them down; they'll all be back.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Open a new creative project, expecting to make some adjustments later for the sake of family or associates. Keep your own counsel about ultimate purpose, but tonight compare notes with others.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Other people are inclined to be sensitive as to what you say and do. By neglecting their feelings you may set up a bad turn of events for the next few days.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Somewhere in the nearby scene is considerable help for you from other people's resources. Focus on individual effort until you clearly see opportunity in group effort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Trivia overfills the time and space you have available. Never mind: let things take their course. Creative ventures and romantic interests are more important to you now!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Keep an eye on the near future, in proportion to what you plan to do later. An extra streak of luck may come from something that one of your kin does without your having asked.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): A more philosophical mood is promised for today. Fresh sources of information and materials should be investigated promptly. Romance is smiled upon this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Consistent work rather than hasty spurts pays off better. Sentimental concerns take unusual turns but you have no way to prepare for what happens; just accept a novel situation for a short time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Decisions you make today will have lasting impact on your future, even though the issues may be trivial at this point. Regard everything as if it were vital.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Creative endeavors are preferred over all others today. Just make a fuss over anything; do what is appropriate in your judgment.

OMB Hearing on Belleville Shopping Centre Rezoning Opens

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The latest episode in the trials and tribulations of Belleville's bid to win approval for a new shopping plaza is finally down to details, if little drama.

Twice-delayed, an Ontario Municipal Board hearing into the city's proposed rezoning of a North Front Street land bloc — opening the area for the shopping centre — is now underway at city hall.

But an excited expectancy drained early as the hearing tortuously unwound its opening phases.

The hearing, under the chairmanship of OMB member W. H. J Thompson, settled down to business after slight preliminary fencing between lawyers representing antagonists in the controversy raised some minor verbal sparks.

Early in the proceedings Robert Macaulay, counsel for Oshawa Wholesale, a leading opponent of the plaza venture, drew reaction when he promised to query the validity of city council's procedural bylaw — virtually the constitution of Belleville's local government.

There were immediate protests from R. B. Robertson, representing Cambridge Leaseholds, plaza developer, and city solicitor E. Guss Porter, who directs the city's case.

Mr. Robertson said Mr. Macaulay was attempting to embarrass and delay the proceedings.

"It seems to me we're spending a good deal of time getting these proceedings underway," he told the OMB panel.

Mr. Porter protested the validity of council's procedure rules had nothing to do with the hearing.

Mr. Thompson agreed and ruled against producing the bylaw.

The hearing was interrupted twice by 2 adjournments in little more than an hour. The last recess saw Mr. Thompson

Nixon May Attempt Accord With China

U.S. May End Ban on Travel

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — President Nixon plans to start a new diplomatic investigation later this month into the possibility of improving U.S.-Red China relations.

Nixon is considering proposing to the Chinese regime that, as a first step, the two countries relax travel and communications barriers somewhat. Easing of the U.S. embargo on trade with the Chinese mainland might eventually follow.

Some state department officials believe there is an outside chance the Peking regime may be shifting its police from a high degree of isolation to a more flexible position.

The limited hope held by some experts is based on the fact that China proposed last November that the next round of diplomatic talks with the United States should be held Feb. 20—a month after the Nixon administration took office.

The date, which the state department accepted by agreement with President-elect Nixon's advisers at the time, was coupled with a Chinese proposal —which some officials here considered hopeful—that the two countries make an agreement "on the five principles for peace coexistence."

The principles include respect for territorial integrity, non-aggression, non-interference, equality and living together in peace. The United States and China have held unofficial meetings for several years in Warsaw, Poland.

The action by the Nixon administration comes amid increasing indications that Canada and China may be moving towards the establishment of diplomatic relations.

There have been several reports that representatives of the two countries have already had preliminary discussions on establishing diplomatic relations, but these have been denied in Ottawa.

Japanese Hear Canada Might Ignore Formosa

TOKYO (AP) — A Japanese government source said today Canada has indicated to Japan it would be prepared to sever diplomatic relations with Nationalist China in exchange for establishing similar ties with Communist China.

The sources who asked not to be identified, said Canada took this stand following reports that Peking would reject any offers of diplomatic relations if Canada continued to maintain ties with Nationalist China.

Language Bill Delayed

Court Test of Legality Looms But PM Disturbed by Prospect

OTTAWA (CP) — Basic differences among the federal and provincial governments on language and other questions have been disclosed in advance of next week's constitutional conference.

Results of a year's study by officials since last February's federal-provincial conference were made public Monday, indicating agreement may be farther away than when the round of discussions opened.

Also on Monday, Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons the provinces are once again questioning the federal government's spending powers.

This was essentially a constitutional and not a fiscal matter and had a high place on the Feb. 10-12 federal-provincial constitutional conference.

George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked whether the government will refer its official languages bill to the Supreme Court of Canada as asked over the weekend by the Prairie provinces.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will not proceed with the bill until after the conference. If there was no agreement on the bill to make French and English official languages in the federal administration throughout Canada—it was possible the matter might be referred to the court.

Outside the House, Mr. Trudeau said his government has no doubt itself about the constitutionality of the bill, but that if some provinces insist on a court reference, Ottawa will consider it.

Premiers of the three Prairie provinces urged during the weekend that the measure be tested in the courts. Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Monday "if there is any doubt it would probably be more satisfactory if its legality were tested."

Mr. Trudeau said he fears that this attitude would confirm the belief of some Quebecers that a bilingual country can't be built.

It would be "really retrogressing" if the premiers didn't allow progress even in this area.

This comment appeared to be linked with the "consensus" of last year's conference that French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec should have the same rights as English-speaking Canadians in Quebec.

Mr. Trudeau told reporters he would be disturbed if anything intervened to prevent progress on the bill.

"I feel that it is very important now to make the French-Canadians feel that the federal government at least . . . is serious when it talks about bilingualism."

If even this step cannot be taken, he said, "we might as well all go home . . . and that's the end of the ball game."

Carol Home Reduced to Ruins

By ROBERT AVERY

TRENTON — A flash fire here this morning saw a family of four jump two stories to safety to escape the flames that levelled their home, and sent a young girls to hospital.

In hospital is 12-year-old Wanita Carol, who is suffering from minor burns and shock.

The fire fighters at CFB Trenton rushed to the dwelling on Highway 2, after receiving the call from Mrs. Amy Carol at 5.40 a.m.

"When we got there the fire had too much of a start," said a CFB spokesman, "the whole building went".

Fire fighters say that Mrs. Carol jumped from a second storey window, along with her daughter and one of her sons.

Sparsely clad, they faced the exposure of sub-zero temperatures, but luckily were immediately ushered into a Belleville OPP cruiser.

Pilot Defies Hijacker

MIAMI (AP) — A knife-wielding Cuban hijacked a jet airliner with 93 persons to his native island Monday. But the passengers and crew of a second huge jet were spared a similar detour when their pilot decided a long-haired youth lacked the nerve to carry out his threat.

The youth, Michael Peparo, 18, of Cold Springs, N.Y., and a girl companion, Tamsin Fitzgerald, 18, of Paughkeepsie, N.Y., were arrested when National Airlines New York-to-Miami flight landed here. Both were charged with air piracy and kidnapping and held without bond.

Airline officials said Peparo was carrying a knife and a can of mosquito repellent when he forced his way into the cockpit of the flight carrying 73 persons.

The flight engineer, Harry L. Hendrickson, said Peparo gave way to tears several times while talking with the crew. Davis told officers he "doubted the boy had the nerve" to carry out his threat.

He said the crew convinced Peparo they would need more fuel to make the trip to Havana and he agreed to land in Miami. After they were on the ground, Peparo agreed to give up the plan entirely.

High School Students Strike

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Officials today were uncertain whether any disciplinary action will be taken against thousands of Ontario high school students who stayed out of classes Monday to protest extension of the school year to June 13.

About 40 students who walked out at Woodstock Collegiate Institute also sent a letter to principal Ernest Berry to say that extension of the school year was only one of their grievances.

In Owen Sound, the city's two high schools reported only a few absentees from Grade 12 and Grade 13, but said most students in the lower grades missed school. The schools have a total enrolment of 2,800.

Durham district high school reported a walkout by 95 per cent of its 300 students and at Port Elgin, about 60 out of 400 students at Saugeen district high school boycotted classes during the morning.

At Brantford, about 100 students from three high schools marched to a downtown park. The three schools have an enrolment of 5,500.

Walkouts were also reported at Wingham, Listowel, Clinton, Kincardine and Walkerton. Toronto schools said there was no unusual absenteeism.

Low Bidder Named On UIC Building

A Toronto area contracting firm, Olympia and York Construction Ltd., of Don Mills, were the low bidders on the provision of proposed accommodation in Belleville for the regional office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The tender was for the provision of rental accommodation for office quarters to house up to 300 employees.

The tender submitted by the Toronto area firm was for an annual contract of $234,618 over a 15 year period, or an annual cost of $225,500 over a 20 year period.

The tenders were opened Friday in Toronto by federal works department officials who said that some of the bids were within cost margins originally estimated.

However, the specifications must be studied in depth before works officials make any recommendation. A decision is not expected for about two weeks.

Speculation that the UIC office now located in Toronto would be moved to Belleville has been rife since last summer.

Commission officials have been reluctant to say definitely the office will come to the city but the Belleville location was said to be the most suitable of several surveyed.

In anticipation of the move employees of the Toronto office have toured the city checking on housing availability.

High Salaries Are Criticized

High salaries being paid to executive and administration officials of the new Hastings County School Board came under fire from Mayor J. Russell Scott at yesterday's meeting of city council.

Mayor Scott said he was concerned about the costs of the new county board and was also concerned that the city would have to collect taxes for the board.

The city, he said, would be blamed for the high taxes when actually it had no responsibility in setting school board costs.

Referring specifically to the $29,000 salary being received by Eric Runacres, the new director of education for the county board, Mayor Scott said this was approaching the amount paid the premier of the province.

School board trustees were to receive $2,400 per year, or double the remuneration received by members of city council.

"There are only 24 hours in a day and a man can do only so much — and there is a limit also to what we can pay out in taxes," the mayor said.

"It is hard to justify some of the school board executive salaries and it is making it difficult to negotiate with department officials at city hall."

He said a great many people were concerned about the high salaries being paid by the school board.

"If it started with the school custodians and worked up it wouldn't be so bad," he said.

Council Invited To Talk

Hastings County board of education chairman James Clarke this morning invited city council to discuss matters of mutual concern with Belleville's elected representatives on the county board.

"We are shocked that Mayor Russell Scott would choose this method of criticizing the school board," he said in reference to the mayor's remarks in council last night.

"If the mayor and council are genuinely interested, we, the five Belleville representatives on the board, would be very pleased to discuss issues of mutual concern at a public meeting."

Mr. Clarke stressed that the discussion should be fully open to the public.

Shopping Centre Rezoning Hearing Proceeds Slowly

call all three lawyers in to private session, details of which were not known.

Mr. Macaulay also is contesting the rezoning request for the eastend Belleville Shopping Plaza Merchants' Association, and for Marchland Holdings, which owns property on North Front street near Evans street. Oshawa Wholesale, parent company of the westend Towers Discount Department Stores complex, is a partner in Marchland.

To 12:30 p.m.—when the session was adjourned for lunch—the hearing was taking testimony from its second witness—Frank Stalkmans, assistant city planner.

Mr. Stalkmans said the projected plaza site was "very well chosen."

"As a matter of fact I would say one of the best spots in the Belleville area," he added.

Earlier, Mr. Macaulay asked city clerk Adam Stalker if there had been any move to repeal Belleville's store closing bylaw.

I've no knoweldge of that", replied Mr. Stalker.

The city's early-closing bylaw does not involve grocery stores, he added.

It will be exactly one year this week that the thorny issue first raised itself in city affairs.

On Jan. 14 the first rezoning application was filed with city hall by Belleville realtor Douglas Grant.

The Belleville and Suburban Planning Board first met to consider the request Feb. 8.

Subsequently, both the board and city council approved the application — in effect giving local government sanction to the plaza project.

Eventually, the application was filed with the OMB which called a public hearing in Belleville Nov. 4.

At the outset of that meeting legal counsel for Oshawa Wholesale won an adjournment until Jan. 7.

Early in the New Year the same group again successfully sought a further delay from the OMB which postponed the hearing until today.

Picton to Negotiate With Hallowell Township

PICTON (Staff) — At last night's town council meeting a resolution was passed that "town council enter into negotiations with the township of Hallowell concerning all services to residents." The matter will be pursued by the planning and development committee.

Councillor William Lane said, concerning the matter of the poor co-operation between Hallowell and Picton, "we'll never get anywhere if we don't try."

The discussion arose from a petition sent to council by a person living just outside the town's limits, asking that he be allowed to receive town water.

Council decided that they could not go along with the request because of a resolution stopping the sale of water until some agreement had been reached with Hallowell Township.

All the councillors agree that something should be done to improve relations with the Township.

CNR Employee Retires Feb. 28

A Canadian National Railway employee with 46 years of service will be retiring officially on Feb. 28.

Kenneth "Torchy" Edgecombe of 23 St. Charles Street has been a clerk in the accounting department and in the superintendents office in Belleville since beginning service in 1924.

Mr. Edgecombe is the first accounting department retirement in Belleville since the CN reorganiztd in 1962.

The employees held a party for him Friday at which he was the recipient of various pieces of camera equipment — a movie projector, screen and camera — given by the company and his fellow employees.

Mr. Edgecombe is active in the Legion, Army-Navy and other lodge organizations. He is a past master of Eureka Lodge.

Local Group Handles Enforcement of By-law

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society which now looks after animal control operations for Belleville and Trenton will step up enforcement of the city's dog by-law.

This was indicated to city council yesterday by Alderman Robin Jeffrey in a report of Society operations.

Mrs. Jeffrey said that instead of every day local operations being controlled from Toronto, these in the future would be under a local shelter committee composed of E. W. Fair of Belleville, A. L. Gnaedinger, and Mrs. Shirley Moran of Trenton.

Most of the recent complaints with respect to the animal shelter had been the result of personnel problems, it was stated.

A new shelter warden, Howard Gardiner of Barrie had been appointed and an additional warden will be hired.

Extended animal pickup times will be from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

A 24 hour answering service will be provided.

The city by-law with respect to animal control will be more rigidly enforced. Under the by-law it is not absolutely necessary for a warden to catch a dog before its owner can be charged for allowing his pet to run at large.

But even though enforcement will be stepped up, the pet owner could still get a break.

When apprehended dogs are wearing the required tag, the animal may be returned to the owner without being taken to the animal shelter. The owner will still be required to pay a fine for allowing his pet to run at large but there will be no pound fee.

In the future dog licences for both Belleville and Trenton will be available at the animal shelter.

Rotary Leads Drive

TRENTON — The Trenton Rotary club is leading the way in raising funds for the new RCAF Memorial to be situated here and it is hoped the rest of Canada will follow the club's effort.

Col. Harold Carswell last night spoke to the Trenton Club and praised the Rotarians for taking the first step in raising money for the proposed $3 million complex.

The club is bringing the Don Cossack Chorus and Dancers to the base for two one night concerts on March 16 and 17. The goal for the proceeds to go towards the memorial is $5,000.

"I wish to thank you for taking the first step and we hope your enthusiasm will stretch over Canada," stated Col. Carswell.

He went on to label the new memorial as "more than a pile of dusty records."

"We are trying to capture a spirit in this building, the spirit of airmen — past, present and future."

Some of the largest benefits from the building, according to Col. Carswell, will be seen in the town of Trenton.

"There will be a great influx of tourists into this area as a result of the memorial," he said, "and this will mean increased tourist accommodation."

"If it turns out like we hope there won't be a person in Canada who will not want to see it."

He said the fund raising campaign has just begun and as yet it is too early to discern any results.

"Everything has begun in earnest with the recent announcement of the architects contest, things will start to take shape now," concluded Col. Carswell.

IN MEMORIAM

SWEET — In loving memory of my dear husband Erastus Sweet, who passed away Feb. 4, 1965.

Since you've gone first and I remain,
One thing I'd have you do,
Walk slowly down the path of death,
For soon I'll follow you.
I want to know each step you take,
That I may walk the same,
For some day down that lonely road,
You'll hear me call your name.

—Never forgotten by his loving wife Ina Sweet.

BEARE — In loving memory of dear sister, Esther who passed away Feb. 4, 1967.

Beautiful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture we tenderly hold,
Deep in our hearts your memory is kept,
To love, to cherish, to never forget.

—Ever remembered, Hilda, Bill and Dorothy.

Battle Not Yet Over

Sunday Fair: A Two Month Hassle Over an Illegal Motion

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The two month long discussions on Sunday operation for the Belleville Fair are right back where they started following talks at yesterday's meeting of city council.

More than 50 local church people and representatives from the Belleville Ministerial Association crowded into the council chambers in support of Alderman Donald Williams' notice of motion to bar Sunday gambling.

The notice of motion was introduced two weeks ago following an unsuccessful attempt by church groups to have a previous council recommendation allowing Sunday fairs reversed.

But as it turns out the original recommendation, passed some weeks ago by council, has been ruled illegal without a covering bylaw.

In view of this Alderman Williams withdrew his anti-gambling motion and the whole Sunday fair issue was right back where it started.

At least it was until near the end of the meeting when Alderman Kenneth Soden brought in a new notice of motion to "show that Belleville is still in the 20th century."

Alderman Soden's notice of motion asks that the Belleville Agricultural Society be allowed to conduct the Belleville Fair on Sundays when required, including all normal operations such as midway, games of skill, bingo, restaurants and booths, and that the necessary bylaw be prepared.

Earlier when Alderman Williams withdrew his anti-gambling motion he said he would take no further action unless the matter was again brought before council.

Acting as spokesmen for the various church deputations were Rev. A. L. Sutherland for the Belleville Ministerial Association, J. J. Demeza, in his role as secretary to the official board at Bridge Street United Church and Bill MacKay for Tabernacle United Church.

All three spokesmen said their groups wholeheartedly supported Alderman Williams' motion opposing Sunday gambling.

Mayor J. Russell Scott told deputation members that he appreciated their sincere interest in council business, and suggested it would be better if more people exhibited the same interest.

Alderman Kenneth Soden said he did not question the sincerity of deputation members but did not understand what he termed their "narrow-mindedness."

He said the feeling of deputations with respect to Sunday fairs was not entertained by the vast majority of city residents.

"The people of Belleville elected city council to do the city business and if they do not agree they can defeat us at the next municipal election."

Speaking to his anti-gambling motion, Alderman Williams hoped that when council took action on any motion it would be for the betterment of the people.

Gambling, he said, is downgrading and is only for financial gain.

If a Sunday fair was to be allowed, it should be held for display purposes only and for cattle judging, he said.

City manager J. R. Reynolds said the city solicitor had advised that the original recommendation of city council allowing Sunday fairs was illegal and that a bylaw was required.

Mayor Scott, however, said if such a bylaw was to be brought to council it would have to be by a member of council. "I will not bring it in" he said.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey, on a matter of privilege, took exception to remarks by Alderman Soden with respect to the day's delegation.

"They are a democratic body and as such should be treated with respect and common courtesy without being called narrow minded," she said.

The deputation's willingness to speak out against what they felt was wrong was good democracy in action she claimed.

Jeffrey Withdraws Motion

Committee to Discuss Regional Government With Municipalities

Following a two week delay city council last night moved to appoint a special committee to engage in preliminary discussions on regional government with neighboring municipalities.

Named to the committee were Mayor J. Russell Scott, and Aldermen Gerald Joyce, Douglas Boyle and E. A. Orr along with city manager J. R. Reynolds.

In the meantime, Alderman Robin Jeffrey withdrew her notice of motion calling for a conference between city council members and department heads to discuss regional government and for preparation of a brief for submission to county council, expressing city views on regional government.

Mayor J. Russell Scott brought in the motion two weeks ago calling for appointment of a committee to meet with county council, but a tabling motion from Alderman Jeffrey precluded discussion on the subject.

Yesterday Mayor Scott returned with the same recommendation and explained his reasons for wanting preliminary discussions with the county on regional government.

"We should have preliminary discussions with the county to see if there is any type of regional government acceptable," said the mayor.

There would be no thought of a permanent committee — the idea would be but for a fact finding committee to ask the county what it had in mind.

To illustrate his point the mayor said that Ameliasburg township was anxious that it be included with Belleville in any regional government setup and asked to be included in any discussions.

Alderman Arthur Keegan felt the committee suggested by the mayor was the first step toward regional government, but Alderman Enos David urged that the view of administrative officials be received before the committee went to county council.

Alderman Gerald Joyce said that in considering Alderman Jeffrey's notice of motion council would be getting ahead of itself.

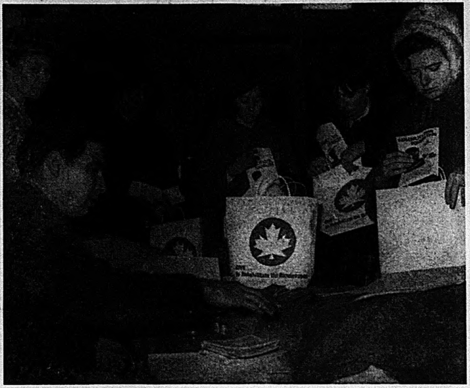
This view was also taken by city manager Reynolds who said that discussions should be first at the political level. Administrative details of any regional government set-up could be settled later, he said.

He foresaw parts of at least three counties involved in the future regional government for the Quinte area.

However, in the final analysis, regional government boundaries would be determined by the province.

"We may get what we want and we may not," he said.

The motion to appoint the committee to meet with councils of area municipalities was carried by a 9-2 vote with only Aldermen Jeffrey and Douglas Boyle dissenting.



At campaign headquarters in Deacon Shirt factory offices, returns are counted as canvassers trickle in with door-to-door donations. Results are expected to show Bellevillians subscribed about $6,500 to fund for aid to handicapped.

Bone-chilling March Nets $6,500

Belleville's Marching Mothers did it again last night.

Despite freezing weather and bucking a bone-chilling wind, scores of women canvassers stoically strode door to door gleaning funds for the annual March of Dimes campaign.

This morning, returns were still coming in to campaign headquarters. But by that time organizers of the big volunteer funds-push were confident the drive had been a success.

The March of Dimes sets no pre-determined goal, tallying its successes only by previous campaigns.

Judged by this measure, the 1969 drive hit the mark.

By today, organizers estimated Bellevillians had donated $6,500 to the campaign. This is $700 more than 1968 — which also set a new high — and paced the Ontario average increase of 12 per cent.

No Action Taken

Belleville city council wants no part of rent controls.

The Ontario government recently stated that it was considering legislation to permit rent controls on a municipally administered basis as an emergency measure during the present housing shortage.

Yesterday a resolution from the city of Woodstock favoring rent controls was on the local council agenda but it received a cool reception.

Alderman Gerald Joyce, chairman of the Belleville Industrial Commission, said rent controls would discourage development in the present inflationary trend and would be a backward step.

No developer would build rental accommodation if they knew rents were to be controlled, he said.

Council voted no action on the resolution.

Emerson Named Deputy Chief

The appointment of former deputy fire chief Leo Culhane as the new chief of the Belleville Fire Department was formally approved yesterday by city council with the passing of the covering bylaw.

At the same time Lieut. Bob Emerson was named to the position of deputy fire chief.

Chief Culhane, veteran of 28 years with the fire department, succeeds Chief Ted Poste who retired at the end of January. Prior to his becoming chief, he had served four years as deputy chief.

The new deputy fire chief, Bob Emerson, has been with the department for 21 years and worked up through the ranks as fireman, lieutenant, captain and for the past four years, captain instructor.

A veteran of World War II he served five and a half years in the army and joined the local fire department in 1948 after working briefly at International Hardware.

CPR Crossing May Get New Lights

Provision of automatic crossing protection for the Mary Street CPR level crossing will be investigated by the city traffic committee.

The suggestion is that signal equipment now at the nal equipment now at the xing closed Bay Bridge Road level crossing be moved to the Mary Street crossover.

Council at the same time approved a traffic committee recommendation calling for implementation of closing of James Street and the widening of the Mary Street crossing.

The widening of Mary Street will be done in conjunction with the reconstruction of West Dundas Street.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said widening of the actual crossing could be accomplished with provision of a few planks and a bit of asphalt.

Council also approved parking to be restricted on the north side of Bridge Street from Coleman to Cedar Street from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and that no standing be allowed in the same area from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Also yesterday council approved the installation of new lights on both the Upper and Lower bridges. Cost of the lights will be $4,400 to be amortised over a 10 year period and included in the city's annual light bill.

Spotlight on Youth

Young people today are seldom out of the spotlight — and it must seem in these days of student power and greater freedom that much of what we hear is, at best, disturbing.

Yet most of the time, the real "best" of the younger generation fails to make the headlines, simply because it is so normal. The same applies to society at large. Life today may be a good deal more unruly than it was, say, in the mid-thirties, but by and large the human race continues to do its best.

Syl Apps, MPP for Kingston, had something to say on this theme the other day, while expressing concern on the subject of smoking and drinking by teenagers, Mr. Apps said, "As far as we're concerned most of the young people are very fine individuals."

Chairman of the Ontario select committee on youth, Mr. Apps told a Belleville audience that good teenagers were never publicized as much as the minority that gets into trouble.

One tragedy of our day is what is known as "the generation gap." It is a gap that must be closed if both young people and adults are to make a mature and lasting contribution to society. We still must deal with human beings, whose problems differ only in kind from those that went before. The objective, as ever, should be to make the world a better place.

Speaking Frankly

It was Sunday morning — but that was no barrier to the CBC when it felt like indulging one of its flights of program derring-do. This time the subject was nudity. Was it obscene . . . that sort of line of chatter.

And did they chat. There were six or seven panellists, clergy from the Protestant, Roman Catholic and Jewish faiths and a couple of educationists, including a woman professor.

They talked so much and so hard that they interrupted and contradicted each other persistently. But then, that seems to be the trend on such programs nowadays. What an example to the youngster in whom parents may be trying to instil some old-fashioned discipline.

Father: "Don't interrupt — don't contradict your mother like that."

Child: "Well, look at those people on television — they do it, don't they?"

We have the new morality (incidentally one panellist spoke of this in terms of the swing of the pendulum — society, he said, is headed for a return to the puritan concept), perhaps this is the new equality. You cannot tell anyone, children included, anything anymore.

On the subject of nudity itself, there was a fair amount of emphasis on Freudian concepts of guilt, repression . . . after the fall and so on. None made any mention of the fact that a nudist society after a time would surely be a monumental bore. Quite apart from the moral aspects. Nor did anyone say anything to the effect that clothing, after all, greatly enhances the human frame.

Road Repair

These on-again, off-again thaws, alternating with cold spells, are playing the usual havoc with roads and sidewalks. Men of the Works Department were out Saturday morning doing filling-in jobs near the bottom of North Front Street. Good . . . but the thought occurs, those same auto-jarring holes may have served a purpose in holding down speed fanatics. There are drivers, once they are over the bridge and past Grove Street, who think they are at Mosport or Watkins Glen. However, since the city is intent on filling in the offending cavities, the task of curbing the speedsters will have to remain one for the police. Meanwhile, there are a number of formidable gashes along the entire length of Church Street that need looking at. And no doubt there are others.

Golf Is Her Forte

Hurrah for Sandra Post! She is the young golfing expert from Oakville and she was a hit last week at the Ontario Sports Writers Celebrity dinner in Toronto — just as she is on the professional golf circuit. Since turning pro, Miss Post's game has improved tremendously. In 1968 she collected $18,000 in straight golf earning and about doubled that amount through endorsements and guest appearances. The turning point in the Canadian girl's pro career was her success in the Ladies Professional Golf Association title in Sutton, Mass., last June, when she beat the experienced Kathy Whitworth. Miss Post incidentaly is helping to enhance the glamor aspect of golf. She has her own line of golf clothing and as her appearance at the sports dinner testified, a girl may be a whiz at golf but that is not to say she cannot turn male heads as well.

Strings Attached to Mandarins' Hefty Pay Increase

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The new prime minister, his partisans promised when this new government opened the 28th Parliament just four months ago, would bring the mandarins, the federal deputy ministers, sharply to heel.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau would rock the realm of civil service empire-builders until he shook these departmental despots loose from the power they had purloined from Parliament during the reign of that super-mandarin, Lester Bowles Pearson.

Or that was the way the Ottawa representatives of the Quebec press, radio and television — who presumably would know this new and radically different prime minister best — were telling it.

So were some of the Liberal MPs, especially those from Quebec.

The new prime minister came close to confirming it when he spoke of "giving back the running of the country to Parliament."

And then along came those salary increases — up to $9,000, raising the elite among the deputies to $40,000, to the disappointment and perhaps even despair of many parliamentarians.

Among them — perhaps the most vocal and certainly the most vigorous in taking quick counter-measures — has been Essex Liberal MP Eugene Whelan, parliamentary secretary to Fisheries Minister Davis and Forestry and Rural Development Minister Marchand.

The way Gene Whelan sees it, the humbling of the high and mighty mandarinate is going to be one of the prime minister's priority problems.

He warns in speeches and in a flood of letters, in caucus and in the Liberal lobby that the mandarins will "fight for their administrative life" with muscle enough to break the government itself.

He is careful to say they could, not that they would wreck a regime.

The last prime minister to take the measure of the mandarins was R. B. Bennett who wiped out an entire department.

No prime minister has succeeded since, although John Diefenbaker did have his trade minister, Winnipeg's Gordon Churchill, force out — a back-door firing — his deputy Mitchell Sharp.

But the way the Ottawa ball bounces, Churchill ended up the villain and Sharp became the hero-martyr and one of Prime Minister Pearson's cabinet proconsuls.

Gordon Churchill now is out of public life and Mitchell Sharp continues front and centre of the parliamentary stage as Prime Minister Trudeau's minister of external affairs.

If now there is a developing tug-of-war between the prime minister and the mandarins, Gene Whelan wonders how Trudeau expects to win it when he approves increases up to $9,000 for the deputies.

Were the worried Whelan, a cabinet-minister-in-training, to read the fine print in the minister's pay boost announcement, he might find a crumb of comfort.

For it is just possible that the pragmatic — as he calls himself — prime minister is isolating the mandarins in their tower of power.

Up there in the $40,000 salary heights, cold winds are starting to blow.

The prime minister has promulgated that the previously impossible become the possible.

He has decreed that the mandarins may be transfered, even demoted, and of all the hitherto most unlikely of things, dismissed.

Into those lofty $30,000 to $40,000 pay levels the PM has injected an element of "risk pay."

The mandarins must "perform," as it is phrased, or else.

The ruling — upon which he has imprinted his stamp of approval — in the labored language of government reads:

"Steps should be taken to ensure that ways and means exist and are used to transfer, demote or remove from office senior public servants who are unable to achieve, for one reason or another, an acceptable level of performance . . ."

Labored language or not, it means, the way the work-a-day world knows it: produce — or else.

MP Gene Whelan may yet get his way.

"I've heard of gabby postmen — but he takes the prize."

Hamilton Spectator

Painting is said to have marvellous therapeutic values. With brush in hand, a canvas before him, and a palette by his side, a man can soon forget all his troubles as he concentrates on his painting. No hobby in the world makes time pass more pleasantly or rapidly.

Proof of painting's health-giving values is not hard to find. Four of Canada's Group of Seven painters, for instance, are still alive more than 40 years after the world-famous "school" was founded. All are in their 80s (Fred Varley, 87; A. Y. Jackson, 86; Arthur Lismer, 82; and Lawren Harris, Sr., 81) and all are still quite active.

The Group of Seven's paintings did not have therapeutic value when they first were exhibited. Most critics lambasted the bold brush-work of the artists, the vivid colors, and the concentration on rugged "natural" landscapes as subject matter. For many years, the Group struggled to survive. Paintings that today command prices as high as $20,000 could have been bought for as little as $500 a quarter of a century ago and for much less than that in the 20's.

With the Group of Seven at its zenith, it is surprising that more art galleries across the country aren't holding retrospective showings of its work. It would be very easy to gather together 50 or 60 representative paintings (the Art Gallery of Hamilton, for example, has quite a few already in its excellent permanent collection) and show them to the public. What's more it would at this time be quite possible to get one of the survivors of the Group to be present at the show's opening.

Like it or not, Canada's most famous and valuable paintings will undoubtedly always be those done by the Group of Seven or by its inspirational force, the great artist Tom Thomson who drowned several years before the Group was formed. There should be more showings of some of their great works while some of the artists are alive and active.

A Grade 7 Zoo Makes The Scene

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I read your news article about the class with the 70 snakes. Seventy snakes, how boring.

In the Grade 7 class of the Nipigon Public School we have two gerbils (that won't mate), an iguana (that was eaten by a cat), a guinea pig (that takes fits), a rabbit (which gets boils) fish that jump out of their tanks frogs which shrivel up in closets, an alligator which bit a student and died, a clam which, when we go to throw out because it looks dead, sticks out his foot, and a male and female hamster which fight. To add to our collection we have a pickled moose fetus, pickled crayfish, moose eyes, heart, liver and kidney of a partridge, spinal cord and a pickled lamprey.

(I forgot to mention the live baby lamprey, they do nothing, just hide in the sand.)

Shakespeare Said It Before

Peterborough Examiner

Ann Landers gave typically volatile support in her column in The Examiner to a wife who complained that her husband was sexually impetuous whenever he was drunk. Signing herself Klondike Kate, the wife wanted 'the boys' to know that they were 'lousy lovers' when they were intoxicated, and that wives found them revolting, disgusting and inadequate when they came home 'smashed out of their minds' but feeling romantically inclined.

Shakespeare put it a little more impartially in Macbeth with this dialogue from act two, scene three:

Macduff: Was it so late, friend, ere you went to bed that you lie so late?

Porter: Faith, sir, we were carousing till the second cock. And drink, sir, is a great provoker of three things.

Macduff: What three things does drink especially provoke?

Porter: Marry, sir, nose-painting, sleep, and urine. Lechery, sir, it provokes and unprovokes. It provokes the desire but it takes away the performance. Therefore much drink can be said to be an equivocator with lechery. It makes him and it mars him, it sets him on and it takes him off, it persuades him and disheartens him, makes him stand to and not stand to; in conclusion, equivocates him in a sleep and giving him the lie, leaves him.

North American Defence Dilemma

Peterborough Examiner

The prospect of the United States demanding the right to establish military bases in Canada is aggravating and reprehensible. Yet John Gellner, a military journalist and former Royal Canadian Air Force Officer, has told the Commons committee on external affairs and national defence that the United States would assume this right if Canada abdicated its responsibilities to North American defence.

Canada could save about $800 million a year by abandoning its share of North American defence but, says Mr. Gellner, the U.S. has vast responsibilities and faces great dangers and therefore would quite properly demand to establish bases in Canada for defence against enemy bombers, submarines and missiles if Canada did not provide them.

We should make it clear to the Americans that we do not share their cold war hysteria and that we are not the servant of their defence policy. We should provide them with a place for their equipment on the assumption that we are benefiting from the protection that its presence suggests, but Canadians should not be expected to pay $800 million for a foreign defence system for which they have not created the need.

If we are to improve our position as an influential middle power and avoid the suspicion that we are an errand boy for the United States, it is imperative that our defence policy, now under review, makes it obvious to the world that we participate in NORAD under duress and that we do not think kindly of the great powers for placing us in this position.

The Latin American Scene

Ottawa Journal

Latin America has a population of 225,000,000. In 30 years it is expected to reach 500,000,000. The ministers' report reminds us that "some of the world's largest, most modern, and most elegant cities are in Latin America" and that three of them (Buenos Aires, Sao Paulo and Mexico City) together have a population almost equal to that of Canada.

The problems of poverty, of course, are desperately real, in the great cities as well in the countryside. But the social challenges should not be allowed to obscure the other side of the picture — of the strides which have been made of the continent's rich civilization and culture, and its enormous potential in human and physical resources.

The delegation's report, labelled "preliminary," is largely a document of statistics, confining itself to such general topics as Canadian trade to Latin America ($418,000,000 in 1967—only three per cent of our total) and the extent of Canadian development aid (a start has been made, but the sum total remains pitifully meagre).

Canadian Rainwear Impresses

Montreal Gazette

Montrealers may not yet know what their spring rainwear will look like, but New Yorkers do — and they think it's great.

The bright colors and original styling of Canadian rainwear caught the eye of American buyers this month at a government-sponsored showing in New York timed to co-incide with the semi annual invasion of out-of-town buyers and fashion writers.

Put on by the depaatments of industry and trade and commerce, the promotion featured rain-or-shine fashions of 17 Canadian manufacturers, including eight based in Montreal.

It was billed as the largest such promotion to date of Canadian fashion.

The show weathered well, resulting not only in new orders for the firms involved, but in putting across the message that Candians have their own thing and can do it well.

As one buyer commented, "We're most impressed with the fabrics and fashion awareness. The styling is with-it and young. This is not the image we had of Canadian merchandise—we thought it was more basic."

Commons Gives Final OK to Changes in Canada Evidence Act

OTTAWA (CP) The Commons gave final approval Monday to changes in the Canada Evidence Act — affecting all courts in the land — but only over combined opposition objections.

Despite disagreement at almost every point in debate on that bill and three others, the Commons chalked up a respectable batting average:

— The evidence act amendments were approved and now require only royal assent.

— The report of the transport committee on proposed amendments to the Navigable Waters Protection Act was approved. This legislation now needs only third-reading approval and royal assent.

— Another transport dommittee report on proposed changes in the Aeronautics Act also won approval and now awaits third reading.

— Third reading was given proposed changes in the Veterans Land Act that would remove the five-per-cent interest ceiling on some loans under the act.

Today the House returns to debate on the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act.

The most contentious item of business was the proposed amendments to the Canada Evidence Act, which along with the navigable waters and aeronautics changes already has Senate approval.

Eldon Woolliams (PC Calgary North), a criminal lawyer, led the attack. Although the proposed changes had been known for some time, only recently had he come to see a danger in them.

The amendments facilitate the hearing of so-called expert witnesses, revise hearsay-evidence rules and allow for cross-examination of one's own witnesses under circumstances not now permitted.

It was this latter proposal that drew Mr. Woolliam's ire.

"This measure gives the Crown too much power."

He argued for a delay in giving the bill final approval until Justire Minister John Turner not in the House Monday could answer members' questions. Stanley Knowles (NDP Winnipeg North Centre) supported the suggestion and proposed a motion to that effect.

The Liberals voted down the proposal 89 to 60 against a combined opposition. Debate then resumed on the third-reading motion.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West), another western lawyer, demanded that either Mr. Turner appear or that members be provided with transcripts of the standing committee's proceedings on the evidence act.

Donald Macdonald, government House leader, conceded that the transcripts were not available. But he had been led to believe there was agreement to proceed with the bill since the committee approved it unanimously and Mr. Woolliams was a committee member.

Liberals were forced to a second recorded vote on the bill at third reading when the Speaker said the dissenting voice votes outnumbered those in favor. Again the Liberals, with NDP support, beat down opposition 90 to 41.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 155, Conservative 72, NDP 21, Creditiste 14, Independent 1, vacant 1.

Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), Conservative House leader, also failed on a voice vote to win approval for his amendment to the committee report on proposed changes to the Aeronautics Act.

The amendments increase the regulation-making authority of the transport minister and deputy minister, and of the Canadian transport commission.

Mr. Baldwin argued the government is moving aggressively to take more and more power away from Parliament and place it in its own hands and that of its agencies.

His motion called for the commission to file with the Commons transport committee all orders it made under the act within a year of their taking effect.

Federal Control Is Extended Over Inland Navigable Waters

OTTAWA (CP) — The government turned back Monday a Conservative attempt in the Commons to delete a bill extending further federal control over Canadian water bodies.

An amendment by Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) was defeated in a voice vote. The House committee's report on the bill was approved and now the bill awaits third and final reading.

Mr. Nesbitt argued that the government bill amending the Navigable Waters Protection Act violates the intent of the British North America Act.

Canada's basic constitutional document was never intended to give the federal government authority over every creek and stream.

Among other things, the government bill sought to bring canals and other man-made bodies of water under federal jurisdiction as navigable waterways.

Mr. Nesbitt's amendment sought to exclude man-made waterways lying wholly within a single province and those not directly connected to similar waterways in other provinces.

Both Mr. Nesbitt and George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings), a former transport minister, said cottage-owners would have to get government permission under the new act to build docks and diving boards for personal use.

James Richardson, minister without portfolio with special responsibility for transport matters, said the opposition fears were unfounded.

Small docks, diving platforms and similar facilities would not be affected by the bill unless they obstruct navigation. It would apply only to major projects that extend well into a waterway.

Guaranteed Income Is Asked For All World War Veterans

OTTAWA (CP) — Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo) asked the government Monday to provide a guaranteed income to Canadian veterans of world wars.

Mr. Saltsman, who served in the RCAF for five years in the Second World War, said in the Commons that he is certain that it will not be too long before there would be guaranteed incomes in Canada.

It would be a tragedy if they came too late for those who had fought for Canada. Giving it to veterans first would be a good start.

Mr. Saltsman spoke as the Commons debated a motion by Jack McIntosh (PC—Swift Current-Maple Creek) asking the government to call in former prisoners of war for medical examinations.

The motion did not come to a vote again this session and probably won't be debated.

His motion said ex-Pow's not examined in the last five years should be looked at by veterans affairs doctors to ascertain the effects of privation, malnutrition injury or ill-treatment they suffered. This would forestall "the onslaught of many disabilities and prevent much later suffering and expense."

Hubert Badanai (L—Fort William) said that a few years ago Canadian prisoners of war taken at Hong Kong in 1941 were re-examined and a result had been a sharp increase in pensions for some of them.

Robert Stanfield Says Canada Needs To Fix International Accords Formula

HALIFAX (CP) — It's high time Canada and the provinces worked out a formula for entering international obligations, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Monday.

"I think there's a way for this to be worked out," the Progressive Conservative chief told a news conference, "and it's high time for it to be worked out."

He said the question of provincial activities abroad should continue to be discussed in conferences between the federal and provincial governments.

Mr. Satnfield, back in his home constituency of Halifax to meet the executive of the PC riding association, said Canada cannot sign international obligations which involve the provinces. "This is a gap in our constitution."

The path to settlement of disagreements lies through the continuing federal-provincial conference on the constitution, he said.

The former Nova Scotia premier, who returns to Ottawa today, said he hopes relations between the federal government and Quebec haven't worsen since the June 25 federal election.

Canada Council Asks Artists Get Tax Help

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Council today urged the federal and provincial governments to take a number of tax measures that would ease the financial burden on artists and encourage Canadians to provide more money for the arts.

The council is the agency administering the money that the federal government makes available for promotion of all performing and visual arts.

The council announced in a statement these key recommendations resulting from an independent study undertaken for it:

—The individual taxpayer should be permitted to average his income over a period of five years.

—Charitable donations, which in legal terms include donations to the arts, should be made deductible for both individuals and corporations up to a level of 20 per cent of income, instead of the present 10 per cent.

—Gifts other than cash that are worth more than $500 should be fully deductible if they are made to qualified organizations.

—A deduction of 150 per cent of the value of any donations of a capital nature to approved arts projects should be allowed for income-tax purposes. The council suggests a five-year trial period for this measure.

The council-commissioned study of taxation relating to the arts was undertaken over a period of months by Montreal lawyer Philip Vineberg and two chartered accountants, Marcel Caron of Montreal and Michael Mackenzie of Toronto.

Cabinet Secretariat Split Into Divisions

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Monday division of the cabinet secretariat into planning and operations divisions.

He indicated the planning division will concentrate on longer-term planning than has been done in the past.

Marshall A. Crowe, 47, former diplomat and economic adviser to the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, was named deputy secretary in charge of the operations division.

Michael Pitfield, a 31-year-old lawyer, will head the planning division.

Both men will be responsible to cabinet secretary Gordon Robertson.

Mr. Trudeau said the change reflects an increasingly accepted practice in business and industry and will give added emphasis to planning and priorities.

Young Students of The Ballet Receive Instruction in Poise, Posture

By LINDA GELDART

You see them, school books in hand, faithfully making their weekly journey to the studio. Some are pre-teens, and others are in the senior high school grades. They all have one thing in common — they are students of the ballet.

They range in age from seven to 20, and, often, their motives for going vary as much as their ages.

Of course, some want to make ballet their career; others take part for the exercise, for health reasons, or just for interest's sake. The majority are there because they want to be.

The classes are divided not necessarily according to age, but to the ballet background of the novice, and her overall dance performance. There are grade divisions, but these are determined by the level each individual has achieved.

The criterion for these levels is based on each student's ability to measure up to certain set standards of the dance.

For those who want to work up the dance "ladder," they can enrol in "exam classes", during which a certain grade work is covered, and later be tested by an examiner from a recognized national ballet company.

The young dancers are judged on how well they meet the standards set, and if they are successful, they are granted a certificate to this effect.

Such classes are usually voluntary. If the ballet student shows the initiative and the desire to participate, they are there for the taking.

As one ballet teacher explained, "some of them are made for this — a career — others just enjoy it, and don't want it as a future."

Of the many girls that begin these classes, there are a few that make it big. One teacher told of two of her students who went to Toronto's National Ballet Company.

The cost of sending your future prima donna to ballet classes, runs on the average, about $16 per term, a term being 12 weeks.

The child involved in classes has to be interested in them, or it is simply a waste of time and money for all concerned.

When it comes to teaching the ballet, however, the women doing this kind of work are completely in love with it. One teacher said that she started ballet when she was four and a half years old.

What are the necessary requirements for a student of the ballet? One must have a tiny build, a genuine interest, and endurance, because as the explanation goes, "it's a lot of hard work, and it must be inborn."

Maybe you have contemplated enrolling your daughter in ballet classes ,but you have hesitated. If the child shows a genuine interest, and is used to finishing things once they are started, there is no object. The only possible objection could be her age — she must be younger than nine.

Designers Turn to Lower Prices

MONTREAL (CP) — Talented Canadian designers, following the trend in Paris and New York, are finding the haute couture business on the wane and turning to lower-price off-the-rack boutiques.

Many of the top names also are designing collections for ready-to-wear houses, several of which are gambling on Canadian names and Canadian designer labels. For a long time Canadians in the field, as in the other art forms, have had difficulty in receiving recognition at home until they win acclaim in the United States or abroad.

A pioneer in the field of designing for boutiques and Canadian ready-to-wear houses is John Warden. Born in Niagara Falls, Ont., he now lives in Montreal and has a French-Canadian wife, Lise. In 1966 he opened a boutique called Pour Homme which features his designs in men's clothing, and now designs Warden collections for two ready-to-wear firms in Montreal and Toronto.

The Auckie Sanft firm of Montreal started it all, when they asked Warden to come up from New York where he was working then to design a small collection for Sanft. He did three for them before branching out with his own boutique.

Then the Croydon firm in Montreal asked him to do seasonal collections of rainwear and last year Hudson of Toronto retained him for a fall collection.

This marked the first time that an Ontario firm had given not only carte blanche to a Canadian designer but also label credit in the garments. Then Warden became the first Canadian to be approached by Eaton's for a label collection. And he is the only designer to have won two Canadian Cotton Council awards in one year.

Warden's rise to fame in his own country is, by Canadian standards, spectacular. At school in Niagara Falls he took to art enthusiastically and his first job, in his teens, was selling dresses and helping with displays in a Niagara Falls department store.

Urged on by customer interest, he made the big decision and took off for New York and a four-year course at the Parsons School of Fashion Design. He graduated as an honor student.

After a few months in Europe he returned to New York and worked for three couture houses and a Seventh Avenue ready-to-wear. It was at this point in his career that Auckie Sanft invited him to Montreal.

Now 28 years old, Warden is a shy man with strangers, with long tousled auburn hair and a penchant for Edwardian elegance in his own clothes. However he is most articulate about how he feels Canadian women should dress. He is an out-and-out advocate of femininity—his "soft woman" look, as he calls it. Even his trousered outfits for spring in his second collection for Hudson are ultra-feminine, with longer tunic-styled coats.

Incidentally there were no real mini-skirts in the Hudson collection—a further indication of his feminine thinking, for he doesn't believe women should try to look like teenagers.

He also has a few favorite "loves." His trademark is a daisy—his boutique is covered with them and they invariably appear in gay patterns in his "Rain Babies" for Croydon. He loves white and navy, believing them perfect for any time of day or night, and lately seems to favor scarlet too, but only for daytime.

Warden is creative, with smart innovations in every new collection. This spring it is the turban with everything. "They're chic and practical," he explains. And he's introduced a triple-breasted coat and a double front-buckle belted look for coats and dresses.

WI Helps Establish Library

OHSWEKEN, Ont. (CP) — Card parties and bake sales—and the determination of the local Women's Institute—have helped lead to the recent establishment of the Six Nations public library in this community near Brantford.

Official opening is set for this spring, but already the library, serving many Iroquois in this area, has been given or lent almost 1,000 books. During a two-week period just after it was set up, 57 adults and 85 children joined.

Housed in a brick building once used as a doctors residence, the main floor serves as the adult and children's sections of the library. Money for the library was raised by the Women's Institute, which two years ago began holding euchre parties and bake sales to raise funds.

Mrs. Arnold Hill, treasurer of the seven-member library board, says about $8,000 was spent setting up the library. The librarian, Lillian Montour, took on-the-spot training at the nearby Brantford public library.

"A lot of people are unsure going into a non-Indian library," says Mrs. Hill. "The students and the young people relate to Mrs. Montour because she's an Indian—the youngsters feel much freer with her than with a non-Indian."

Mrs. Hill says the library hopes to open the second floor of the building for student study rooms.

CLUB ACTIVITIES

SPRINGBOOK — BONARLAW

The Springbrook Bonarlaw WI held their first meeting of the new year on Jan. 29, at the home of Mrs. W. J. Barlow, with 15 members and visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Cyril McKeown opened the meeting, and later Mrs. Cyril McKeown conducted the memorial service. Five dollars was donated to the march of dimes, and $18.50 was realized from the last card party. The next meeting is planned for about the middle of February.

District president, Mrs. Hill, gave a splendid address on the consumer and prices. She was presented with a small gift.

Mrs. Gerald Burkitt gave a paper on health, after which Mrs. Fred McKeown gave a humorous reading. Contests were conducted by Mrs. McKeown and Mrs. Burkitt, followed by current events.

The hostess and hostesses served a delicious lunch and a social time was enjoyed.

PARK DALE PUBLIC SCHOOL

The Park Dale Home and School Association held it's meeting on Monday, Jan. 24, in the school auditorium.

A luscious array of home baking greeted members for their first bake sale. Judging by how quickly the tables were cleared, it was felt perhaps this should become an annual event.

Mr. J. Cox, president, presided over the brief business meeting which included setting up a nominating committee. It was decided that the annual fun fair be held on Thursday, March 13.

Inspector R. W. Blatchford of the police department gave an enlightening talk on problems pertaining to school age children ranging from drugs to safety on the streets. A lively question and answer period followed his talk. Refreshments were served by the social committee folloiing the discussion.

Nehru Jacket Out This Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward VII still reigns in the world of men's fashions. Nehru is out this year.

This is the trend shown at the big preview of men's and boys' spring fashions at the convention of Menswear Retailers of America, Feb 1-5.

The collarless Nehru jacket is absent after a brief fling of popularity, although an occasional collarless jacket is still seen.

The Edwardian look, toned down from the extreme of the mod cut imported from Britain about three years ago, is apparent in jackets and trousers, both for casual and formal wear.

The Edwardian look is characterized by jackets with high, wide lapels, generally long skirts, deep inverted pleats, many buttons and pinched high waist.

Trousers are slightly low cut, but not hip hugging, and generally have a slight flair at the cuff.

Shirts have wide collars which generally have their points concealed beneath the jacket.

Wide ties with big knots are still in, and these too are in bold, bright colors. Colorful silk squares or handkerchiefs for the breast pocket add another accent.

'Life Can Get Terribly Lonely': Chef's Wife

NEW YORK (AP) — The life of the wife of a topnotch French chef can be one of lonely ham and cheese sandwich in front of a TV set, messy kitchens, and fabulous spreads for other people to eat.

There are compensations, of course.

Take Dany Giddings. She is the wife of Patrick Giddings, c... at New York's elegant Vois...n Restaurant.

"Life can get terribly lonely," she says. "My husband doesn't return home until 11 p.m., and I am alone evenings and weekends.

"One thing, however, about being married to a chef is that I don't have to cook. He does the marketing and cooking. How wonderful just to sit down and enjoy the best French cuisine.

"Besides, I can barely fry an egg. What's the use of learning when the kitchen is his kingdom?"

Her leopard coat, pearl earrings, gold bracelets and a diamond-studded watch speak eloquently of the rewards of culinary skills.

When company comes, chef Patrick thinks nothing of devoting an afternoon to preparing dinner for four.

"He works alone but calls me in to sample his sauces," says Dany. "He trusts my taste implicitly."

He likes to dazzle his guests with such spectacular dishes as flaming crepes Suzette or kidneys flambes, dousing the dish, in a gesture of bravura, with port and cognac before igniting it. Friends respond ecstatically.

"It may be a beautiful sight, but our kitchen looks as if the French army had marched through, and I have to clear the battlefield," says Dany.

Mrs. Eugene Bernard has no such problems. Although her husband works in a holy temple of haut-cuisine, the Quo Vadis, she might just as well be married to a secret agent. Bernard never discusses his work, his worries or his sauces. She never questions him and, moreover, has never eaten in one of his restaurants.

"Monsieur Bernard enjoys his home and we seldom go out," she says.

"We never see other chefs and never talk food. Around the house he never touches a pan and considers it a crime if he has to boil water. I think he is right. That's what I am for."

Mrs.Bernard likes to work in the kitchen.

"I enjoy cooking for my husband because he is easy to please. I have no complex. I know he is saturated with rich sauces and it's a treat for him to sit down to a home-cooked meal."

Most of the time while her husband works at Quo Vadis, she dines on vegetables and fruit. "Television and solitude make up my daily diet," she says.

Can a French chef ever keep his wife happy?

"Yes," chimes Mrs. Raymonde Millien. When married, she worked out a recipe for marital bliss: "We agreed I would do the cooking for the two of us, but he would don the apron when guests came."

The Milliens entertain twice a month and the monsieur takes over.

"He thinks nothing of feeding six or eight people in spite of a kitchen with no room to turn around," she says. "I am automatically excluded. I set up the table with white embroided tablecloth and flowers in season, and become another guest."

Her husband, chef at the famous Colony Restaurant, works only with French copperware which he finds superior to the aluminum kind made in the United States.

"They are thicker and therefore better to make sauces." He uses a fork instead of an electric eggbeater to whip the egg whites to a frothy panache. "An eggbeater takes up too much time to wash."

Tossing Dough Aids in Making Bread

By MARY MOORE

While I was in Victoria it was Gary's (12) turn to make something impressive so we settled on three loaves of whole wheat bread and a big pan of sticky cinnamon buns.

The news may not have reached you as yet but the way to knead bread (if you are very young) is to toss the dough like a ball — a very big one the size of a basketball. Not once did it hit the floor after 200 tosses among all four of Marianne's children: Gary, Davey, Sue and Danny at the bottom of the totem pole. The resulting bread was wonderful, so if you have sub-teeners who need to be drawn into the cooking circle it is a good trick. (Besides, kneading is hard work for us weak women!)

TUESDAY
(Oven Dinner)

Dinner Menu

Pork Chops baked in Tomato Soupsauce; Baked Harvard Beets; Shredded New Cabbage and Parsley Salad with Mayonnaise; Sue's Apricot Upside Down Cake (see Mon.); Cereal Cream; Tea.

GARY'S WHOLE WHEAT BREAD
(3 loaves and 1 large pan of cinnamon buns)

1 pkge. granular yeast
1 tsp. or cube of sugar
½ cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk, scalded
½ cup light brown sugar
1 cup shortening
2 tbsps. salt
3¼ cups lukewarm water
1 cup fresh wheat germ (optional but recommended)
6 cups unsifted fresh whole wheat flour
6 cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose or bread flour

In clean dishpan soak yeast and 1 tsp. sugar in ½ cup lukewarm water 10 min. Scald the milk in medium saucepan, remove from heat and add the brown sugar, shortening and salt and stir to melt shortening. Cool to lukewarm and add to yeast liquid, along with the 3¼ cups lukewarm water. Mix. Add the wheat germ, whole wheat flour and 5 cups of the white flour and mix very well with strong wooden spoon. Sprinkle large kneading board with remaining 1 cup white flour, turn dough out on it and knead 200 times, adding more flour if dough is too sticky. Or do as Marianne's children did, play "catch" with it, but if you are apprehensive about "grounders" spread brown paper in a six-foot-long strip on kitchen floor. Your hands and the dough will need a little more flouring. Return dough to scraped-down dishpan, oil top of dough, cover and let rise 3 hrs. at room temperature. It should be nearly tripled in size. Turn out on floured board and cut into four equal parts. Shape three of them into small footballs and put into three buttered standard loaf pans to rise, covered. (See baking below.)

To make one pan of Cinnamon-Buns roll out remaining one fourth of dough into a thin sheet about 12 x 18". Spread with soft butter or margarine, srpinkle with 2-3 cup light brown sugar and 2 tsps. cinnamon (and ½ to 1 cup chopped walnuts if desired) and roll up tightly starting at long side. Gently melt 3 thsps. butter in 13 x 9" pan and evenly stir into it 1-3 to ½ cup light brown sugar to coat bottom of pan. Cut roll of dough into 1" slices and place cut sides down, barely touching, in pan. Let rise covered, along with bread. When bread and buns have risen for 2 hrs. and are well above rims of pans bake at 400 deg. F. Bread requires 45 to 50 min. Do not underbake. Buns do not require as long. After buns have baked 20 min. take one out of pan to test it to see if it is baked at centre. Serve buns warm if possible. This bread freezes well if carefully freezerwrapped. Be a good sport and let your kids try the throwing-kneading technique.

MELROSE II

The first meeting of the Melrose Krafty Kittens was held at the home of Mrs. G. McLaren.

The election of officers was held with these results: president, Doris Sherman; vice-president, Nancy Clarke; secretary, floating; treasurer, Mrs. McLaren; press reporter for this meeting, Doris Sherman.

Mrs. Sherman discussed the story of embroidery, and color with color schemes. It was decided that each girl would make a runner.

The second meeting of the club will be held on Feb. 3, at the home of Mrs. J. Sherman.

WALLBRIDGE III

The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Reg McCurdy on Tuesday, Jan. 28. The leaders for this club are Mrs. Omar Chisholm and Mrs. Reg. McCurdy. Five members were present, as well as two guests from a neighboring club, Mrs. C. Vandervelde and Mrs. L. Debruin.

The elected officers are: president, Shirley Sills; secretary, floating; treasurer, Debbie McCormack; vice-president and press reporter, Joyce Evans.

The name of he club is undecided; however dues shall be $1.

Mrs. Chisholm gave the outline of project and of members' requirements. She also exhibited some fancy embroidery done at training school.

Mrs. McCurdy presented the color scheme with the help of a diagram. She later gave each member a quick, one-word answer test about what each should have learned. The meeting then came to a close.

A Home for Unwed Mothers Gives Desired Prenatal Care

By DORIS CLARK

"Recently we are finding that more and more unmarried girls are remaining either at home or in domestic placements during their pregnancy. It seemed to us that they miss out on some of the benefits they would receive in a maternity home — the clinical attention, prenatal classes, the opportunity to discuss with other girls some of their common problems. So we started a prenatal program for them with the help of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

"Any woman having her first baby is often apprehensive about childbirth and many of their ideas have been influenced by 'old wives' tales. These fears are often exaggerated in the case of a single girl, and this group gives them a chance to discuss their fears and to learn how to cope with them.

"In the first hour and a half the V.O.N. nurse describes, with the aid of charts and diagrams, the stages of pregnancy, labor, delivery and personal hygiene. They then practise exercises designed to help them control the discomfort of labor. This is followed by coffee and discussion with the two social workers."

Let the girls report for themselves:

"You know, before I came here I thought I was all alone in this situation. It doesn't seem so bad now that I know other girls have problems too."

"When you go to clinic, you want to ask the doctor so many things but you wait so long to see him that by the time your medical is done you are anxious to leave. I guess if it wasn't for being able to ask questions here, I would just keep getting more worried."

"I thought my doctor would think my questions were silly, but when you are with other girls, it is easier to ask these things." — Foster Home News Children's Aid Society of Hamilton — Wentworth.

Dear Doris: Most always I get a feeling of something to happen a couple of days before some tragedy either in the community or in the family. I could never figure out what it could be but I do get a warning and then get a guilty feeling as if I were to blame for it. Is it possible for people to have this kind of premonition?

When my boys were small I used to dream about their father who died when they were babies. The dream would be that I forgot my husband and in my dream I would visit him in the hospital and try to explain that I did not forget but did not have time. Usually after such a dream, as if it was a warning, something would be wrong with one of the boys, either illness or some kind of hurt.

Now that my boys are married I no longer dream of my late husband but get other premonitions of things to come. Is there any sense to this? — Curious.

Dear Curious: Any one of us is apt to torture ourselves with remorse (with or without cause) when a loved one dies and we have a notion we have not done all we could for them.

We try to push such thoughts out of our minds; then they have a way of turning up in dreams. And the dreams figure importantly in keeping us well-balanced.

There are some instances of precognition — foreknowledge of events to come — but don't go out on a limb about being psychic. It may only be a natural worry-wart type of concern for people who are precious to you.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for her reply.)

DEAR ANN: How can I get my husband to give me some help with the children? Our oldest is seven. The youngest is four months. He says the man is supposed to bring home the pay cheque and the woman is supposed to care for the kids. Since this is his attitude, I might as well kick the slob out and tell him to send his cheques in the mail.

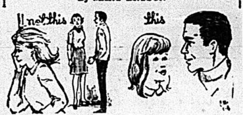
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "What's wrong with Jenny?"

Father: "I was just teasing her about her big feet. I didn't mean to hurt her feelings. She certainly is touchy and has no sense of humor."

Be as tactful and considerate of your children's feelings as you would be of the feelings of an honored guest. You would not tease a guest about physical characteristics.

The teen years are sensitive ones and young girls especially are unduly disturbed about the way they think they look to others. Even gentle teasing may hurt her shaky self-esteem.

He says the man is supposed to bring home the pay cheque and the woman is supposed to care for the kids. Since this is his attitude, I might as well kick the slob out and tell him to send his cheques in the mail.

I showed him this letter and he said I had to tell you the whole story or I couldn't mail it. The reason we are not getting along now is because I poured a bottle of ginger ale over him after he yelled out an order last night. Any advice? — FED UP.

DEAR FED: A father who thinks all he has to do is bring home a pay cheque and a mother who pours a bottle of ginger ale on her husband need more help than I can give. Get counselling, both of you. Your kids deserve better.

OFFENCES INCREASE

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — A magistrate in Kelowna says young women, "particularly young married women," came before the courts for traffic offences "by the tens and twenties" during the months of November and December, 1968. "I had more of them appearing here in those two months than I had in the previous 12 years," he said.

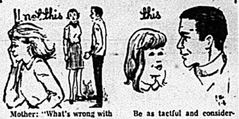
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Mother: "What's wrong with Jenny?"

Father: "I was just teasing her about her big feet. I didn't mean to hurt her feelings. She certainly is touchy and has no sense of humor."

Be as tactful and considerate of your children's feelings as you would be of the feelings of an honored guest. You would not tease a guest about physical characteristics.

The teen years are sensitive ones and young girls especially are unduly disturbed about the way they think they look to others. Even gentle teasing may hurt her shaky self-esteem.

Quiet Hits

Some Programs Just Roll Comfortably Along

NEW YORK (AP) — While variety shows, including Laugh-In and the special programs of the three networks are capturing most of the publicity and a lot of the critical comment, there are a number of other programs that just roll along comfortably year after year.

Some excellent examples of these comparatively quiet hits are packed into CBS's Monday night schedule, starting with TV's oldest western, Gunsmoke, which after 14 years turned up in the most recent Nielsen ratings as the number four program in the top 10 list.

It was followed by Here's Lucy, born 18 years ago as I Love Lucy and with some cast and name changes has continued right along ever since. Then there is Mayberry R.F.D., which emerged out of the long-playing Andy Griffith Show with a new star but the same locale and personnel—and has never been out of the top 20 list. And then comes Family Affair, now in its third season and giving every indication it will jog along until its young stars, Anissa Jones and Johnny Whitaker are ready for college.

Monday night's Gunsmoke was the story of a pair of roistering boozy buffalo hunters accidentally discovering that a quiet rancher, living near Dodge City with his wife and step-son, was the commandant of a Civil War prison where 700 soldiers had died brutally. Townsfolk wanted to lynch him for his actions as a soldier under orders 10 years before.

The story, reminiscent of stories of a more contemporary war, seemed to convey the message that a man should be judged, not by his past, but by the present. At any rate, Marshal Dillon kept the peace and turned the man free—to suffer in his own private hell.

It was not, perhaps, quite up to Gunsmoke's usual tempo and it was followed by what seemed to have been one of Lucille Ball's off nights. The comedy was shot on location at Los Angeles airport. The whole show was one long comedy chase-up and down escalators, around the terminal and on the airport field with Lucy and her accomplice, Gale Gordon, pursued by a pair of spies trying to grab a secret formula. The show is usually less active and considerably less predictable.

Mayberry was an amusing 30 minutes about one of the town bachelors, a quiet fellow whose hobby was coin collecting, falling for a swinging girl whose passion was sky-diving. The gentle style and understated humor of the piece was agreeable and most viewers could sympathize heartily with the poor man who had committed himself to taking a parachute jump from an airplane.

Family Affair had the little stars of the show playing with a tape recorder and bugging some private conversations. There was great good humor in the show, plus a tug at the heart. Like Mayberry, it owes much of its success to its cast, particularly Brian Keith and Sebastian Cabot who work so beautifully with the children.

None of the programs is so stimulating that one is tempted to talk about it the next day. But altogether they provide an amusing, undemanding evening for the tired breadwinner or housewife.

FBI Plots Said Hardly Inspired

NEW YORK (AP) — The FBI, one of ABC's Sunday night stalwarts, has the blessing and co-operation of that agency, and its plots, it says on the screen, are "inspired by FBI cases."

"Inspired" would hardly be the word to describe the usual run of FBI scripts. They are usually routine cops-and-criminal pieces with considerable violence tossed in when the action slows and, of course, at the end of each program.

Sunday night's episode was fairly typical, although it did have an unusual twist. A Latin-American dictator hired the Mafia—in the person of a soft spoken killer named Richard Schaefer, alias Smith—to snatch an outspoken refugee publisher and return him to the dictatorship.

The rest was routine good guys against bad guys. Women and children were held hostage, there was a chase and, of course, the last minute flurry of gun shots.

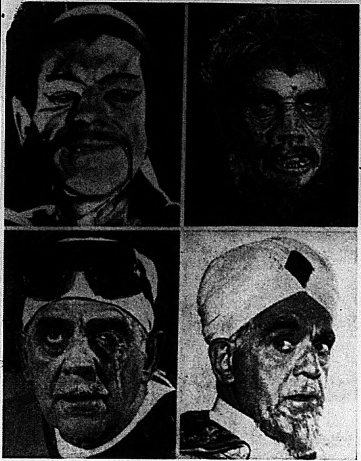
Efrem Zimbalist Jr., as the FBI agent, never really has to stretch his acting muscles.

It was followed, on NBC, by an episode of Bonanza that was a bit of a departure from its usual format and one that, except for a few scenes, gave the regular stars a bit of a holiday.

Company of Forgotten Men concerned a group of shabby Civil War veterans, regrouped by a sergeant who believes that if they raid the U.S. mint in Carson City and seize its gold, they can bully the government into giving them pensions.

The plan worked beautifully since they had in their party an expert safe blower. In fact, if two of the Cartwrights hadn't ridden into town looking for candy, their hired man—he had been taken along on the raid, bound and gagged—they would have gotten away.

Of course, crime can no more pay on Bonanza than it can on The FBI, so the former had to conclude, too, with a shoot-out. However, the show had pace and some style and there were attempts to inject some characterizations among the members of the raiding party.



Karloff ana His Roles

TWEED — Figure skaters from the "Silver Blades" skating club, in Toronto, will be the feature attraction at the Saturday night show held at the Tweed Community Centre, Feb. 8, as a part of the Tweed Winter Carnival Weekend.

The "Silver Blades" skating club was incorporated as a figure skating club twenty-one years ago, although it had been active as a group some time before its incorporation. Since incorporation the club, which is affiliated with the Canadian Figure Skating Association, it has been operated on a non-profit basis by volunteer parents.

Although home ice is the central arena in the Metro-Toronto borough of Etobicoke, it is proud of the figure skating calibre of its members.

In the past five years three members became gold medalists, — one "double gold" — the highest level of CFSA qualification. Six of its members competed in the 1969 Central Ontario Sectional Championships.

Since its inception, the Saturday night show has been a highlight of the Tweed Winter Carnival weekend. This year's program promises to equal those of the past.

In addition to the figure skaters from Toronto, the program will include an old timers' hockey game featuring players from Tweed and Madoc, and the judging of a beard and sideburn growing contest.

The Tweed Curling Club will hold a Bedtime Bonspiel from midnight until 8 a.m. Sunday, February 9th. This is a new carnival feature this year, and will end with a pancake breakfast at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

Shuttle and Shift Method Admits Spectators to School Board Meeting

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

Staff Reporter

Except for quick improvisation of a shuttle and shift system of admitting delegations and the members of the public Hastings County board of education would have played to standing room only again at its second public meeting.

At the first meeting Jan. 6 spectators, including several principals and board officials, were forced to stand throughout the meeting because of lack of space in the former public school board room at 208 Bridge St. East.

When it became apparent that spectators outnumbered the available seats, a shift system of admitting the public was hastily arranged.

Seven members of a delegation from the human growth and development committee of the two former Belleville school boards were admitted first to present a study. They left the board room following room for representatives of architectural firms and contractors, on hand for the opening of tenders for school construction.

Excluded during the report from the human growth and development committee were a home and school council observer, and several principals from Trenton and Belleville schools.

Seated around the board table were the 16 trustees and the director of education. Occupying the 17 chairs arranged around the perimeter of the room were five administrative officials, and three members of the press. Spectators, including a superintendent and business official from Trenton, occupied the remaining chairs.

Trustee Everett Fairman, Belleville, raised the issue of inadequate accommodation during the meeting.

"At the last meeting we had professional people standin in doorways and halls," he said. "Why can't we use the county council chambers for our board meeting? There we would have adequate space for seating delegations and the public, a large parking lot and probably even a place for setting up a coffee urn if necessary."

"This is a county board, serving all Hastings, and there should be no problem obtaining accommodation in the county building," he added.

Mrs. Miriam Graham, Belleville, reminded the trustees clerk, had suggested at the that Carl Bateman, County December inaugural meeting of the board that it might be invited back for subsequent meetings.

"But we haven't received an invitation," she said.

"The suggestion is good," commented James Spry, Bonarlaw, "but when Peterborough county's board made the same request to its county officials it was turned down."

F. John Follis, Bancroft, and Ralph Weaver, Trenton, agreed the county should be approached for use of the county council chambers, but Raymond Rowe, Frankford, suggested the board meetings should be moved from place to place in the county.

"If we were to meet in different schools throughout the county we could get a better knowledge of the buildings we are administering," he said.

"How much knowledge can you get of a school when you meet in one room and go home after dark?" queried chairman James Clarke. "True, some people drive long distances to come to Belleville for meetings, but perhaps they are more used to it than we."

Mr. Spry suggested that board members get together in groups of three or four to tour the schools under their jurisdiction and become acquainted with the situation throughout the county.

Several trustees concurred with the last suggestion and no further action was taken on the location of future board meetings.

New Human Development Course Proposed for Hastings Schools

A new course in human growth and development has been proposed for all grades in Hastings county schools.

A study of the proposed curriculum was presented last night to Hastings County board of education by a committee appointed last fall to investigate the subject.

Their findings were referred to superintendent of curriculum D.C. Stirling. Implementation will depend on the report and recommendations of Mr. Stirling and director of education Eric Runacres.

The study was prepared by a committee of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board in co-operation with the Belleville Public School Board. Serving on the committee were trustees, teachers, students, laymen, a social worker, clergymen and doctor.

A brief presented to the board by a delegation of seven members of the committee, stated that members unanimously agreed that instruction in human growth and development should be provided at all academic levels.

"Whether the course be termed sex education or family life, the content should encompass a knowledge of the psychological and biological aspects of life, family relations during childhood, adolescence, maturity and aging, preparation for marriage, marital adjustment and the responsibilities and duties of the individual and the family within the framework of our society," the brief stated.

Cost of implementing the program throughout the county for the first year would be about $6,000. The course would be introduced in kindergarten and grades 1, 4, 7 and 10 during the first year. In the two subsequent years the course would be extended to all grades up to and including grade 12.

None of the trustees expressed opposition to the course, but a few wondered if provision would be made to exempt pupils whose parents were opposed to the course.

Director of education Eric Runacres told the board the course was optional in North York where he was an administrator, but only a few pupils refused to attend.

"Before the course is introduced, we must make it clear to parents that we are supporting their role in the home, not taking it over," said Wallace Cochrane, supervisor of physical and health education for Belleville elementary schools and a committee member.

Trustee Everett Fairman, a retired elementary school principal, agreed.

"During the last six or seven years a film was shown in my school on human development. I sent a note with each grade 8 pupil explaining the situation and not one mother refused to allow her child to attend and the fathers don't count anyway,"

Referred for Study

Eight Companies Submit Tenders for Additions

Tenders for two school additions were opened at last night's meeting of Hastings County board of education and referred to the architects for study.

Tenders for the addition to Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc to accommodate about 600 students varied from a low of $1,474,000 submitted by Paul Carruthers of Thornhill to a high of $2,297,000 submitted by T. A. Andre, of Kingston.

Eight companies submitted tenders for the building designed by Boigon and Heinonen Architects, of Toronto. The architects were on hand for the opening of tenders, but had no commen on the proposals.

Other tenders submitted were Ball Brothers, Kingston, $1,940,000; Fassel Construction, Scarborough, $1,[illegible]67,000; Thomas Fuller, Ottawa, $2, 036,000; Konvey Construction, Markham, $2,073,142; W. A. McDougall, London, Ont., $1,994,000 and M. Sullivan and Sons, Arnprior, $1,968,000.

W. J. B. Ketih, superintendent of plant, told the board it has approval for debentures up to $1,800,000 and a cash grant of $1,200,000.

The sum of $170,691 has been the architects' fees will be six per cent of the cost.

The board also received three tenders for an addition to College Street School in Trenton, designed by Barnett and Rieder, Toronto.

Lowest tender of $87,620 was submitted by Miron-Trenton. Hugh Murray Ltd., Belleville, bid $91,720 and Konvey Construction, Markham, bid $105,866.

Resignations of Employees Cause Board Concern

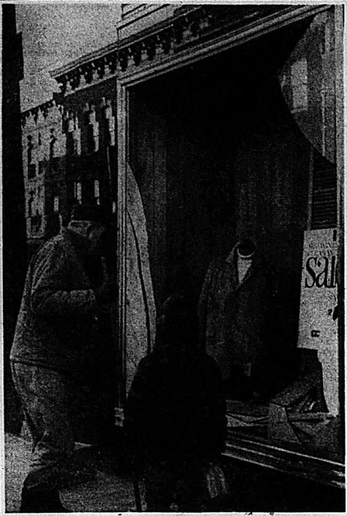
The resignation of two members of the administrative staff of Hastings County board of education caused some concern among trustees last night.

C. R. Cotton, business administrator with the former board of Hastings School Area No. 2 at Tweed, submitted his resignation to the board last night. He has accepted the position of assistant business administrator with the Lennox and Addington Board in Napanee. His secretary, Mrs. Kay MacKenzie, also resigned and will be employed by the Lennox and Addington board.

Trustee Ralph Weaver, Trenton, said other business personnel with the board are concerned about the security of their positions. He suggested permanent posts should be assigned as soon as possible.

"Making appointments will be the first job the new business administrator will undertake," director of education Eric Runacres assured the board. "The permanent assignment of additional academic personnel will be done slowly over a period of time."

The director told the board a replacement for Mr. Cotton would be appointed by March 1. Emerson Robinson, Maynooth and Donald Williams, Stirling, asked that an official be appointed as soon as possible to take over Mr. Cotton's responsibilities for school bus transportation in the county.



Car Crashes Store

Empty Car Hits Store

Tip Top Tailors, at their Bridge St. store are short one display window this morning after a freak car-store collision.

Earle Darrah, 59, of RR 1, Belleville parked his car in front of his own paint and wallpaper store on the north side of Bridge St. next to the Bank of Montreal, and went into a shop to buy a newspaper. He left the car running.

Just to prove that a car doesn't always need a driver the vehicle slipped back into gear. Mr. Darrah had put it in neutral but it went forward and veered across Bridge St. and into the display window of the Tip Top store on the south side of the street.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said that there are no damage figures available.

Students Will Receive Financial Support for Three Field Trips

Students in county secondary school will receive financial support from Hastings County board of education for three proposed excursions this year, but the board refused last night to formulate a set policy on field trips and excursions.

The board asked director of education Eric Runacres for a film outline of the costs involved before approving a policy of student excursions.

However, it gave its approval to three trips in the planning stage for students at Moira Secondary School in Belleville and North Hastings High School in Bancroft.

Curriculum superintendent D. C. Stirling recommended that the board approve the policy of encouraging educational field excursion. In the past, Bay of Quinte District High School Board budgeted $1. a student each year for an educational visits account. The funds were allocated at the discretion of the principals of each school.

"The $1 a student proved to be more than was needed. Some principals had more ideas than others," commented Robertson Collins, separate school representatives on the county board, who also served on the Bay of Quinte Board in the past.

The board approved an exchange visit between geography students at North Hastings High School and a high school in Fergus.

The project had been going on for years explained F. John Follis, Bancroft.

"Why do you have to go to Fergus for a geography lesson?" queried Macdonald Smith, Belleville.

"To let people know where Bancroft is," replied board chairman James Clarke.

Mr. Stirling told the board the students gained the advantage of studying a different terrain during their visit to Fergus.

The board also gave its approval to Moira Adventure '69, a project involving no cost to the board. Under the scheme 32 senior boys from Moira will attend outdoor leadership training courses at a private Huntsville camp, paying for the use of the facilities by doing three hours a day of painting and general cleaning up.

Mr. Stirling said the operator of the camp was a personal friend of the athletic director at Moira and had offered the leadership training opportunity to senior boys.

"He just wants some painting done," commented a trustee.

The third trip approved by the board is an extension of the enrichment week program begun at Moira last year.

This year, about 30 honor students from grades 11, 12 and 13 exempted from examinations will spend a week in June in residence at Carleton University. They will be supervised by Moira teachers and will attend lectures and seminars prepared for them by the university faculty.

Trustee Everett Fairman asked the director of education to meet with all principals in the county to determine the amount needed to adequately finance field trips.

"This could run into a real sum of money, with 23,000 students in the county," commented Donald Williams, Stirling. "Before we commit ourselves to a policy we should know the cost."

In the meantime, requests for field trip approval will be brought to the board individually.

Under the policy of previous boards, the board assumed the total cost of trips taken by all students during school hours.

When selected students participated in an overnight trip, or made a tour on a non-school day, students shared the cost with the board.

Wormald Appointed Board Administrator

Kenneth Wormald was appointed business administrator for the Hastings County board of education at its regular meeting last night.

Mr. Wormald, 45, former manager of general accounting with Mead Johnson Ltd. in the city, takes over his new duties immediately.

His appointment fills the last gap in the four-man team serving directly under director of education Eric Runacres in the board's administrative structure.

Appointed last month were three superintendents: D C. Stirling in charge of curriculum, L. F. Reid in charge of staff and L. A. Kells, in charge of administrative services.

Mr. Wormald was born in Thorold and is a graduate in commerce from the University of Toronto. He achieved chartered accountant's designation in 1950. During the Second World War he served as a pilot in the RCAF.

He is married, with three children and is the current president of the Belleville Rotary Club.

Belleville-Trenton Four Lane Possibility by Summer of 1970

By BARRY GRILLS,

Staff Reporter

Highway 2 between the eastern limits of Belleville and the western end of CFB Trenton could be converted from two lanes to four lanes by next year.

A spokesman for the Department of Highways, C. E. Pritchard, told the regular monthly meeting of the Sidney Township council that "current thinking was to have the highway completed next year."

He told the council that the highway would have a median throughout its expanse and that it would be bordered by a curb that could be driven over.

The proposed highway development will be responsible for an overpass over the CPR tracks near the Belleville cemetery, it is expected.

Many intersections to the highway will be affected by the lane increase and it is probable that some will be equipped with turning lanes and yield signs.

A specific example of intersection improvement will be the converging point of White's Road in Bayside and the highway. This instruction will be equipped with a storage lane for a left turn and a right turn lane to allow easy access to the highway.

This intersection will also be illuminated by the department of highways.

Mr. Pritchard was in attendance at the meeting to explain some of the highway project proposals that would affect Sidney township.

He asked council about sidewalks and lighting for Bayside, one of the more congested areas which the new highway extension would affect.

He explained that the department is proposing that the cost of lighting and sidewalks be split evenly between the department and the township, but that 100 per cent of the maintenance costs be paid by Sidney.

Council decided to hear more reports from Mr. Pritchard at their next regular meeting.

Reeve Jack Bush said the lighting would probably be very well considered.

"We think that this area (Bayside) is one of the growth areas," he said.

Complaints Investigated

Loose Dogs Killing Deer

TWEED — Dogs running at large are ravaging the wintering deer population in this forestry district.

Department of lands and forests officers said today they have investigated numerous complaints of dogs attacking deer in recent weeks.

Examination of deer carcasses confirm the attackers as dogs, not wolves, and all sportsmen in the area now are being warned to keep hunting hounds confined.

Midwinter is a critical period for the deer population and the new threat adds to the hazards of survival.

Weather conditions are part of the problem, say foresters.

Snow in the bush is overlaid by a heavy crust. The layer is heavy enough to hold a dog, but a deer in flight will plunge through, becoming snarled in heavy drifts.

Loose-running hounds may flush a deer from swamp or bush, forcing it across open land where the scent — and pursuit — is taken up by farm dogs.

Deer which evade the chase often die from exhaustion.

"Most of the carcasses we have examined were last year's fawns," says a lands and forests officer.

He warned that, by law, dogs found chasing deer can be shot.

Arts Council Grant Undecided

City council will advance the Quinte Arts Council $1,000 but will not decide on the amount of a city grant until budget time.

Alderman Robin Jeffrey in a notice of motion asked that the Arts Council be made a special grant of $2,240 to assist in the operation of its April Arts Festival.

But Alderman Richard Ellis as council budget chairman demurred, claiming if this request was granted now, council would be besieged with requests for immediate payment of annual grants.

And Alderman Arthur Keegan said a line would have to be drawn with respect to grants which he said were now costing the city $60,000 annually.

The silvered seats of the Market St. Square Gardens didn't seem to provide excessive discomfort to the 1,000-odd senior hockey patrons last Friday night.

It's amazing how a Mo-Hawk win or two can make those seasoned slabs feel like foam, and even take some of that much-complained-of chill from the air.

It was a new experience for many of the 1,051 who paid their admission Friday night.

It had to be — there haven't been more than 600 people out to watch a senior hockey game since before the Apollo moon launch.

We could pause here and insert our conviction that vocal support like that which rocked the rafters Friday could conceivably have meant some difference in a few home games during the lean weeks. But that would be difficult to prove, no matter how true.

So we'll stick to the optimistic todays and tomorrows, and let sleeping fans lie.

Friday night's 4-3 win over Barrie's Flyers — a team that bolted out of the senior starting gate like they were playing for fifty bucks a game (no offence intended) — must have been a traumatic experience for many of the hometown railbirds.

Who among the 2,000 that watched the same Flyers massacre these same Mo-Hawks 10-0 last Oct. 25 would have believed the goings-on down at the rink Friday? It was enough to send them over to Benny's for a triple or two!

But to the small core of loyal Mo-Hawk boosters, the win perhaps came as just a natural link in a chain of events that has seen the local seniors win seven and tie one of their last 11 games.

Players and 'loyalists' alike expect criticism when the losses keep adding up, but what burns both is the griping and sniping by those who either read about the game or hear the score on the radio.

Neither group is about to gloat over whatever success the Mo-Hawks may encounter in their last four regular-schedule games — they just want a play-off berth.

And for the first time in a while, that objective is within grasp.

The locals and Kingston are stalemated in the loop's sixth and final playoff spot with 27 points each, although the Aces have a game in hand.

But the rub for the Limestone City boys lies in their opposition for their remaining five games.

In addition to what promises to be a do-or-die home-and-home series with the Mo-Hawks next week, the Aces have a pair of games with league-leading Galt and one with Barrie. who are not about to let the Hornets run away with first place.

The chances of Kingston winning any more than one of their three Barrie and Galt games would not exactly entice Major Danny McLeod to gallop to the nearest oddsmaker.

And the Mo-Hawks should win at least one of the two remaining encounters with Orillia and Woodstock — quite possibly both.

So after 37 games, what it boils down to is the Tuesday-Friday home-and-home set with the Aces next week.

Anybody who doesn't think those games will be worth watching is further out in left field than Lou Brock running down an Al Kaline line-drive.

Redskins Lure Lombardi Away

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Vince Lombardi, eager for a taste of ownership in a pro football club, said Monday he is quitting Green Bay Packers to join Washington Redskins.

Officials of the two National Football League clubs withheld immediate confirmation that the Packer general manager was becoming executive vice-president and coach of the Redskins, and that he would be getting stock in the Washington club.

While the Packers' executive board was scheduling another meeting today to review Lombardi's announcement, reports circulated in Washington that he would get at least five per cent of the Redskins' stock.

That would help satisfy an ambition by the NFL's most spectacular coach to own a part of the organization he directs, a role deprived him under Green Bay's community ownership arrangements.

Redskins' president Edward Bennett Williams holds five per cent of his club's stock. The majority is held by long-time owner George Marshall, and is administered under a court trust by Williams.

Lombardi was hesitant Monday to speculate on the future of Otto Graham, Washington's coach and general manager.

"I haven't the slightest idea about Otto," Lombardi said.

Williams acknowledged that his club and Lombardi "have had conversations looking toward his coming to Washington," but that "Graham hasn't been dismissed."

Redskins' officials withheld formal comment while the Packers discussed whether to free Lombardi from a contract that doesn't expire until 1974.

Lombardi lead the Packers to five NFL championships and two Super Bowl wins.

Chuvalo Soundly Trounced in Big Test

NEW YORK (CP) — There was no love lost between George Chuvalo and Buster Mathis during or after their 12-round heavyweight slugfest at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

Mathis got the better of the rugged battle, cutting the Canadian heavyweight champion over both eyes, on the mouth and on the right cheek on the way to a unanimous decision.

Chuvalo opened the fight by rushing at Mathis and hitting the massive 232-pound fighter with a left hook as the first round opened.

The veteran Toronto fighter later connected with a low left hook in the same round. As the referee warned Chuvalo, Mathis grabbed the official and angrily pushed him out of the way to get at Chuvalo. Mathis then landed a low left of his own.

After the fight, Chuvalo charged Mathis with butting him while the Grand Rapids, Mich., fighter was angry over low blows by Chuvalo.

"I fought a very bad fight," Chuvalo said after the fight in his dressing room, "but I didn't get too many breaks from the butting that was going on."

"I would definitely like to fight him again," Chuvalo said.

Chuvalo is rated fourth by Ring magazine and eighth by the World Boxing Association. Mathis is ranked eighth by the WBA and is not ranked by Ring.

Mathis was enraged at the low blows in the opening round.

"He hit me low and said 'I'm sorry,'" Mathis said later.

"I was hurt and I told the referee, 'Let me hit him low and tell him that.'"

Mathis knelt in prayer as the decision was announced.

"I said a prayer for George," said Buster in his dressing room. "I'd hate to be in his room now. I know how it is. I've been in that situation."

There were no knockdowns in the 12 rounds.

In a co-featured 10-rounder, Emile Griffith, former world middleweight and welterweight champion, won a unanimous decision over Andy Heilman of Fargo, N.D., an 11th-hour replacement for Doyle Baird of Akron, Ohio who was injured in training.

The battle was a big fight for the 31-year-old Chuvalo who was on a six-fight winning streak after a fourth-round technical knockout at the hands of Joe Frazier in July, 1967.

A victory would have given him a fight with Jerry Quarry in the garden March 10. Instead the fight will go to Mathis.

Despite the defeat, Irving Ungerman, Chuvalo's manager, said after the fight he still has some offers that the Canadian battler could accept.

"We have offers to fight Sonny Liston, Billy Walker of England and Bob Cleroux of Montreal, but I'm going to let George have a rest and then decide for himself what he wants."

Chuvalo's personal doctor, Dr. Joe Greenberg of Toronto, said Chuvalo was not seriously injured in the fight. The battered right cheek was the same one that was broken in the fight with Frazier. Dr. Greenberg operated on Chuvalo after that fight.

The rugged first round set the pace for the fight, with Chuvalo, who weighed 208, pressing throughout against his larger opponent and Mathis catching the Canadian fighter coming in with left hooks and left uppercuts.

Chuvalo came at the massive Mathis throughout the fight and staggered him with left hooks at least three times.

Chuvalo had trouble holding the big man in the corner when he tried to work him to the body. Chuvalo said after the fight Mathis's elusiveness was due more to his size than to his boxing ability.

Chuvalo started to bleed over the right eye at the last part of the second round. His mouth and forehead above his left eye were cut later on. After the 11th round Dr. Edwin Campbell of the New York State Athletic Commission checked Chuvalo's right eye but decided to let the fight go on.

Mathis's nose bled several times after the third round but the injury did not appear serious.

Mathis ran his victory streak to six with the victory. Chuvalo was an 8-to-5 underdog going into the fight, a fact that angered Ungerman so much he barred non-Canadian reporters from the dressing room for five minutes.

Referee Harold Valan scored the fight 10-2 for Mathis, judge Al Berl had it 9-3 and judge Jack Gordon said it was 8-3-1.

A crowd of 14,155 paid a gross gate of $128,536 to see the fight. Griffith was given a $10,000 guarantee and Heilman, the middleweight champion of California, $7,500. Chuvalo was given 25½ per cent of the gate and Mathis 22½ per cent after the two middleweights got their cut.

Nears Team Record

Esposito Chases Scoring Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Phil Esposito, Boston Bruins high-scoring centre, is making a spirited run this season to win the National Hockey League's individual scoring race and in the process stands a good chance to shatter a team record — one he set himself last season.

Esposito currently is seven points away from an all-time Boston scoring record. He set the mark with 35 goals and 49 assists for 84 points.

Statistics released by the NHL Monday show Esposito still atop this season's race with an increased margin of nine points. In 49 games this season Esposito has counted 32 goals and assisted on 46 others for 78 points.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks is second with 69 points, including 32 goals, which ties him with Esposito for the lead in that department.

Stan Mikita of Chicago took over third place with 66 points, including a league-leading 47 assists, while Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings slipped to fourth place with 65 points.

The scoring title has been the sole property of Mikita and Hull since 1964, with Mikita winning it four out of the five years since that date.

Howe and his linemates, left winger Frank Mahovlich and centre Alex Delvecchio, however, are going at a pace which, if continued, will give them a record number of points for a line and also a record for most goals by a line.

The trio now has 164 points and 73 goals, an average of 3.2 points a game and 1.4 goals per game.

Projected over the remaining 25 games, this would give the three a total 243 points and 114 goals. The point record was set by Howe, Norm Ullman and Ted Lindsay of Detroit in 1956-57 when the three collected a total of 226 points. Ullman now is with Toronto Maple Leafs and Lindsay has retired.

The record for most goals by a line is 105, established in 1944-45 by Montreal Canadiens Punch Line of Maurice Richard, 50 goals, Toe Blake, 29 goals, and Elmer Lach, 26 goals, during a 50-game schedule.

Clustered behind Howe in this season's race are Montreal's Jean Beliveau with 60 points and fifth place, and Red Berenson of St. Louis Blues with 56.

Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer, Ken Hodge of Boston and Detroit's Delvecchio all have 54, while Jim Pappin of Chicago has 52, Ullman and Chicago's Dennis Hull each have 51.

While scoring records are threatened in nearly all categories, St. Louis goaltenders Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall are generating defensive interest.

Hall recorded his sixth shutout last week, most in the league, and combined with Plante's five, give the pair 11. This total is the best by a team since 1955-56 when Hall had 12 while with Detroit.

Their combined average in the goals-against department is nearly half a goal a game better than that of runner-up Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers.

Russians End Tour With 14-4 Win

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP) — Lou Peloquin, coach of Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, thought his club could do better than Canada's Nationals against the Soviet national hockey team.

That was before Monday night when the Beavers lost 14-4 to the Russians who came up with their best single-game goal production in a 10-game tour of Canada.

The Beavers were bolstered by a few players from other QSHL teams and netminder Steve Rex of the Ottawa-based Eastern Nationals.

The Sherbrooke coach offered no comment following the one-sided encounter, which saw the Russians, in the wind-up game of the tour, lead 2-0 after the first period and carry an 8-2 lead into the third.

Russian coach Anatoly Tarasov said he was not happy with the performance of some of his players against what he called a small local club.

Tarasov said the majority of his team's better players enjoyed a mediocre game while some of the younger members of the world champion club played well.

The Russian coach also reiterated his team's desire to meet a National Hockey League team.

"The meeting would find the true value of our team," he said outside his team's dressing room.

Vladimir Petrov guided the Russians to their 10th straight victory on the Canadian tour with four goals and added three assists. Boris Mikailov scored three goals and collected three assists.

Other Russian goal-getters were Vladimir Vikulov, Alexander Yakuschdv, Boris Mayorov, Vlacheslav Starchinov, Anatoly Firsov, Alexander Matlsev and Yivgeny Paladie.

For the Beavers, Rene Pepin, Yvon Lacoste, Gaston Bouchard and Gilles Cartier were the marksmen.

In 10 games the Russians outscored their Canadian opponents 73-28.

Bruins Casulty List Grows; Endangers Lengthy Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A growing casualty list has put Boston Bruins' lengthy undefeated streak in jeopardy.

The Bruins, in first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League despite suffering numerous injuries this season, added two more casualties Monday.

It was announced that the Bruins will play at Chicago Wednesday and at St. Louis Thursday without all-star defenceman Bobby Orr and right winger Johnny McKenzie.

Orr is sufferng from a slight strain in the left knee, which was operated on last June. He missed his first game of the season Sunday when the Bruins stretched their unbeaten streak to 17 games with a 4-2 victory over Detroit Red Wings.

McKenzie is suffering from "strained knee ligaments" and has a cast on his leg. The stocky forward was injured Sunday when he collided with team-mate Johnny Bucyk during the third period of the Deroit game.

Orr and McKenzie joined wingers Ron Murphy, Eddie Shack and Tom Williams on the sidelines for Boston.

The injuries come at a time when the Bruins are zeroing in on a NHL record for the longest undefeated string. That mark of 23 games was set by the 1940-41 Boston team.

Should the Bruins avoid defeat at Chicago and St. Louis, they may have a good shot at tying or beating the record. Orr is expected back for two weekend home games.

Replacing Orr and McKenzie for the mid-week games are defenceman Jean Gauthier from Providence of the American Hockey League and right winger Tom Webster from Oklahoma City of the Central Hockey League.

Chicago Black Hawks' Bobby Hull could be more dangerous Wednesday night against Boston than he has been in any game in recent weeks. The wires were removed from Hull's broken jaw Monday and he was able to eat solid food for the first time in 40 days.

Hull's jaw was fractured Christmas Day when he caught an elbow from rookie defenceman Mike Pelyk of Toronto Maple Leafs. His playing weight dropped to 182 pounds from 194 because he was unable to eat solid foods with the jaw wired shut.

Because of a clogged nostril from a previous injury, Hull had difficulty breathing while on the ice and he lost ground in the scoring race. Phil Esposito of Boston leads with 78 points and Hull is second with 69.

Chicago's star left winger developed another problem during the weekend, however, when his left hand was cut in a freak mishap during a game against Montreal Canadiens.

Team-mate Ken Wharram accidentally stepped on Hull's left hand while leaping over the players' bench to enter the game in the first period. The skate blade severed a blood vessel in the hand and Hull sat out the rest of the game.

Elsewhere Monday, Pittsburgh Penguins announced that forward George Swarbrick suffered a cracked left cheekbone Sunday during a 7-3 loss to New York Rangers. It is not known how long Swarbrick, obtained last week in a trade with Oakland Seals, will be out of action.

NHL activity resumes tonight with Philadelphia Flyers playing host to Detroit and Los Angeles iKngs welcoming St. Louis Blues.

In games Wednesday, Montreal is at Oakland, Minnesota North Stars visit Toronto and New York is at Pittsburgh.

Strike Possible

Baseball Players Take Stand

NEW YORK (AP) — The Baseball Players' Association is tightening the screws in its battle over pensions with club owners and the spectre of a major league strike looms larger.

First, the players' association urged its members not to sign their 1969 contracts until the dispute was settled. Then, the association Monday announced plans to boycott spring training unless the pension question is resolved.

Faced with the possibility of unsigned contracts and spring training camps populated only by minor leaguers, the owners could console themselves with the fact that a strike won't include pickets around their ball parks.

"No, I don't think pickets would be necessary," said Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' association. "I don't think players can be replaced if they walk out."

Miller presided over a four-hour meeting attended by about 125 players Monday. At the conclusion of the session, the players issued a resolution supporting their negotiators and saying they would not sign contracts or report to camp until "the negotiations are satisfactorily concluded."

The decision to boycott the training camps came just 10 days before Chicago White Sox are scheduled to open the major's first camp site and less than one month before the traditional March 1 opening date.

Some players have indicated that they would pay their own way to their club's training sites and work out on their own should the pension dispute drag on. But Miller said the players' association was taking a stand against such individual action.

Many clubs claim to have signed contracts on hand, but say they have agreed not to release the names of the players who have signed until the dispute with the players' association is settled.

Miller explained that at the centre of the dispute are the players' rights to radio and television revenue. The players' association contends the owners want to shut the pension plan off from broadcast income "even though the two matters have been directly tied for the last 22 years."

The owners have offered to increase their total yearly contribution to the fund by $1,000,000 boosting it to $5,100,000 annually.

The current plan provides a top of $643 per month at age 65 for a player in the majors five years and $1,288 per month at 65 for a 10-year player.

FILLING THE GAP — Brian Glover of the Moira bantam squad puts up a set shot from between two Picton players as one player rushes up to block the shot while the other turns from his check in time to watch the action. Glover topped the Trojan scorers with ten points, but Picton pulled out a 44-39 victory with a 15 point third quarter outburst.

Junior Trojans Win by 26, Undefeated in Seven Games

Last night's Class "AA" game with Picton served as a breather for Paul Hayes, the 6' 4" centre of the undefeated Moira junior Trojans basketball squad.

Paul, who was a dominant figure in Friday night's 67-61 win over the defending Central Ontario champion BCI squad, played for only a quarter and a half as coach Gord Smith tested his reserves in the 51-25 win over the weak Picton juniors.

Nevertheless, Hayes netted 18 points to top the game's scorers and lead Moira to victory. Hayes had little competition last night whenever he made a move towards the basket, or went up for a rebound.

The situation will be different for Hayes and his teammates Thursday though when they tangle with the once beaten Quinte juniors with first place riding on the outcome of the game.

Hayes was ably supported by Dave Thompson and Martin Warmold with eight points each in last night's defensive game. The score would have been much higher had the Trojans found their shooting range, but they hit on only 22 per cent of their shots from the floor and did not pull away until the fourth quarter

Bill Barrett hooped seven points for the losers while Dennis Bond netted six and Joe Burley added five.

The senior game was the closest contest of the night with the Moira squad breaking a 7-7 first quarter tie and pulling away to a 21-12 halftime lead only to have the second place Picton club come back in the fourth quarter.

The senior Trojans were up to the task though and held off the Picton resurgence to eke out a 33-31 upset, and move to within one game of fourth place in the seven team senior league.

Bob Rolston was a one man scoring machine, hooping 22 of the Trojans' 33 points, many of them on short jump shots or driving layups.

Lorne Blatchford and Ed Cox added four points each for the Senior Trojans, who have now won three games and lost four.

Max Burleigh and Peter Rigby each contributed eight points to lead the Picton attack, while Rick Walmsley added seven points and Wayne Coward four.

Picton bantams used a 1-2-2 zone defence to down the Trojans 44-39, with the help of a 15 point third quarter outburst.

McCrystal Tops Senior Youth League With 1822 for 8 Games

The local rolloff is over and now twelve members of the Senior Youth Bowling League will advance to the zone finals at Trenton on Feb. 15 and 16, for the right to represent the zone in the Provincial finals to be held in Toronto March first and second.

Milton McCrystal's eight game total of 1822 topped the local rolloff, and was almost 400 pins more than second place Allan Bradshaw could muster.

Karen Culbertson paced the girls with a 1758 total for eight games, beating Janet Post by almost 300 pins.

The Senior Boys team is Milton McCrystal (1822), Terry Williston (1445), Allan Bradshaw (1479), Edgar Williston (1460), David Bonsor (1410), Brian Bonsor (1377).

The Senior Girls team is Karen Culbertson (1758), Janet Post (1436), Heather Rutledge (1415), Sharon Lumiss (1388), Louise Chartrand (1348), Kathy Burshaw (1348).

The two teams prepared for the zone rolloff Sunday by taking on the Ontario Provincial Police and a team from the Quinte Classic League.

The first game saw the girls down the OPP by a score of 1125 to 1064, while the boys defeated the Quinte Classic team 1243 - 1112.

The girls maintained their form in the second game, besting the Quinte Classic team 1198 - 1075, but the boys couldn't keep pace and succumbed to the policemen by five pins, the score being 1208 - 1203.

Oarsmen Apply for Funds For Henley Regatta Crew

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen has applied to the federal government's fitness and amateur sports directorate for funds to send a senior lightweight eight-oared crew to this summer's Henley Royal Regatta in England.

At the same time, the CAAO today announced it has sanctioned the entry of a school-boy eight from Shawinigan Lake School in British Columbia for the 1969 Henley Royal Regatta, to compete for the Princess Elizabeth Challenge Cup. The school has failed three times before to win the event, restricted to school crews.

The CAAO also announced that trials for prospective lightweight club eights to be sent to England will be held here June 14, pending directorate approval of funds to send the eight overseas.

F. J. Exner, CAAO president, said the major 1969 international rowing project for the CAAO, ruling body of Canadian rowing, is to send a senior 155-pound eight to the English Henley to compete for the Thames Challenge Cup.

The CAAO also said the 87th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta will be held here July 31-Aug. 3.

The Eastern Rowing Association Championships have been set for July 5 at Brockville, and the Ontario Rowing Championships for July 19 at St. Catharines. The seventh St. Catharines International Invitational Regatta will be held here June 29.

203 Career Wins

Burdette to Instruct Expos' Young Pitchers

MONTREAL (CP) — Lou Burdette, a former major league pitching star who achieved World Series fame in 1957, has joined Montreal Expos of baseball's National League as minor league pitching instructor, it was announced today.

Burdette, 42, a resident of Sarasota, Fla., will be responsible for the instruction and development of young pitchers on Montreal's farm clubs in West Palm Beach in the Florida State League and Sarasota of the Gulf Coast Rookie League.

Burdette was a 20-game winner twice during his career with Milwaukee Braves. He had a 20-10 mark in 1958 and was 21-15 in 1959.

Altogether, Burdette compiled a lifetime record of 203 victories and 144 losses, mostly with the Braves. Near the end of his career, he also hurled for St. Louis Cardinals, Chicago Cubs and Philadelphia Phillies of the National League and California Angels of the American League.

In 1957, after compiling a 17-9 won-lost record, Burdette went on to become the hero of Milwaukee's World Series Triumph against New York Yankees.

He won three games during that series, two of them by shutouts.

Another of his achievements was a 1-0 no-hit victory against Philadelphia Aug. 18, 1960.

Burdette wound up his pitching career, which began in 1950, with California in 1967. In 1968, he scouted in Florida.

Federal Study Group To Recommend Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the federal government's study group on Canadian amateur sport Monday indicated the inquiry team will recommend the formation of an administrative centre for the country's amateur sports programs.

The group, composed of Nancy Greene, women's world ski champion for the last two years; Dr. Paul Desrusseau of Quebec City, and led by Dr. W. Harold Rea of Toronto, was formed last August to investigate the problems of sport in Canada.

It will report its findings and recommendations to Health Minister John Munro within the next two months.

Dr. Rea said he had been most impressed with a visit to Finland, where one central building in Helsinki houses the national administrative offices for each of the sports played there.

Of course, it is possible to buy a new car for less than *$2,454 in Canada.
But you'll end up driving something dreamed up in a country far away from here. With fewer seats for you and your family. Much less space for your luggage. And far less horsepower to get you from A to all the B's you visit.
If you need more than an import and want to pay the lowest price possible for a six-seat, six-cylinder, 2-door compact sedan, see your American Motors dealer and see why a Rambler at *$2,454 is next to nothing.
For the money, it's in a class by itself.

American Motors Rambler: Canada's lowest priced compact.

*All prices are based on manufacturers' suggested retail factory delivered prices including federal sales taxes. Transportation charges extra.

See the Rambler at these American Motors dealers.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

Generation Gap Is Analyzed by Speaker

Analysing a widening generation gap, stemming in large measure from the modern technological and educational explosion, former Albert College student Robin Russell called on Belleville Rotarians yesterday to help smooth the transition of young people to adulthood.

Mr. Russell, who is special assistant to Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon, also called for a greater appreciation of the aspirations of the rising generation.

"The older generation has become alienated from its children. Largely because it has been unable, or unwillingly, to respond positively to our young people who have enough education to take advantage of the new technological advances in society and thereby challenge the traditions of the older generation.

The questioning, challenging attitude of young people, according to Mr. Russell, centres around what they regard as the hypocrisy of older Canadians.

"Young people are rebelling at the double-standard that seems to prevail with the older generation."

Mr. Russell suggested television had brought about an age of instant communication that had radically altered attitudes today. Thirty years ago, he said, "we were taught that mixed marriages were not the thing, but today there was a feeling of "international brotherhood" between young people that never existed before.

"I think parents would be amazed how much children aged three to five absorb watching television three or four hours a day . . . "

Young people, he said, want to be involved in making those decisions which will affect their entire lives. Young people, he suggested further, have a social concern they claim far exceeds that of the older generation.

"The new generation sees hypocrisy in many of our institutions. Few of them find anything relevant about churchgoing. They are tired of hearing the older generation saying one thing but doing something elese.

"The new generation showed its social concern in Canada for the starving Biafrans and the orphaned Vietnamese by demonstrating in front of embassies and legislative buildings and by raising money to assist them. I have heard dozens of these people declare that their parents and the older generation just don't care. They say their parents don't care about the live baby seals skinned in Northern Canada.

"Many will deplore the methods used by young people to assert themselves . . . but citizens must not ignore the growing waves of restlessness and protest around us."

By 1970, Mr. Russell said, more than half of the population will be under 21. And by that time every government in the country will have considered lowering the voting age to 18. By then many will have done so.

The restlessness of the new generation was a challenge, said Mr. Russell. He praised the club's mayor of the week program. He said it was the type of initiative Canadians should be sponsoring in every community.

Picton Council Asked to Back Radio Boost

here last night endorsed a petition from radio station CJBQ requesting an increase in its power.

The radio station is applying to the Canadian Radio and Television Commission to increase its power from 1,000 to 10,000 watts.

Phil Flagler, representing the radio station, told council that new 300 foot towers would improve reception in the Picton and Prince Edward County area. Six new transmitters would be located in the county he said.

Does Fowl By-law Bar Foul Rooster

There will be no more domestic fowl kept within the town limit of Picton.

But whether that includes the rooster that provoked the passing of a fowl-forbidden by-law by Picton town council last night or not is the question to be answered.

The foul-forbidding law may have a flaw.

The by-law was passed as a result of a petition from a rate-payer in the town who complained that a neighbor's rooster was disturbing the quiet of his family.

Council then passed the prohibiting resolution that no fowl could be kept within the city limits.

However, if the rooster is not a fowl then the purpose of the by-law will fall down flat.

According to Webster's New World Dictionary a rooster is not included in the definition of fowl and fowl is not included in the definition of rooster.

Sufferers from Gastritis Should First Find Cause

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is the best way to handle gastritis? My stomach gets upset a lot. I'm tired of taking bicarb of soda to relieve the stomach pains and heartburn. I am 42 and otherwise healthy. — Mr. U.

Comment: Now that you admit to being tired of taking bicarb, I think you will be glad to stop it on my say-so. What you've been doing is using a hit-or-miss extinguisher to put out a fire you know nothing about.

How do you know it's gastritis? Other conditions upset the orderly conduct of the stomach, too: ulcer, gall-bladder disease, hiatal hernia, pancreatitis, hepatitis, growths intensinal disease, and scores of other apparently unrelated conditions.

But let's suppose your trouble really is gastritis. Then we should ask some questions, and try to answer them. You say you're tired of taking bicarb therefore, it's likely you've had the trouble a long time. That makes it chronic gastritis. This usually follows frequent attacks of acute gastritis.

Now, what's acute gastritis? Let's call it an irritation or inflammation of the stomach wall. It gets congested and swollen and shouts for help in the only way it knows: by producing pain, nausea, vomiting, heartburn, belching, etc. Such a patient needs to take inventory of how he has been treating his stomach in the recent past.

Have I been drinking too much? Smoking a lot? Eating food I know always disagrees with me? Do I eat too much too fast? Is the cause of nausea and vomiting due to an unsuspected virus infection?

I could go on and on, but I think you understand, Mr. U. The first essential in handling chronic gastritis is trying to prevent it. Therefore, correct and early diagnosis is important. Following this procedure, prevention and proper treatment with bland diet and drugs easily fall into place.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why the low heels during pregnancy? I am now three months pregnant and comfortable in high heels. — Mrs. U.

Comment: A few more months and you will have your answer. You will find low heels feel better when your centre of gravity pulls you forward.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have rattling in my chest that I can hear. I guess that's reason enough for a visit to the doctor, isn't it? — Mrs. R.

Comment: Be thankful you can hear it. Too many have what we call "rales" in the lungs that can be heard only with a stethoscope. Therefore, they go along for months unaware that they have bronchitis, tuberculosis or worse.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm taking tranquilizers prescribed by two different doctors. They are not the same pills. Is this harmful? — Mr. O.

Comment: Why finish the first bottle? So you won't be wasting your money? Better take one or the other. Double-dosing can get you into trouble: especially when you are behind the wheel of your car.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Why should the entire family be treated for pinworms? — Mrs. Y.

Comment: Because of the danger of spreading the infection (or infestation): and because of the probability of reinvolvement when a family member is unknowingly spreading the worms' eggs around.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: When does a person know he has had food-poisoning? — Mrs. N.

Comment: The stomach and intestines resent it and show it by the usual symptoms such as nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, etc.

Ultra Modern Equipment

Kinsmen to Spend $8,500 for Play Area

At their monthly meeting last night local Kinsmen club approved the expenditure of 8,500 to instal a playground on the property next to the Kinsmen swimming pool on Dundas St.

Kinsmen president Jack Canning said today that the "ultra - modern playground equipment will be installed in the area which will also be fenced off."

Buck-a-bout and hickory dickory dock are just two of the unusual names for the new type of playground equipment that has not yet been installed between Montreal and Toronto.

Buckabout is a horse mounted on very strong and bouncy springs.

"None of the equipment will be ordinary," emphasized Mr. Canning, "and it should provide a lot of fun for Belleville children and entertainment for their parents."

The Belleville club wants to make the area an entire Kinsmen sponsored recreation ground for children and with the new playground it will be complete.

Mr. Canning said that the landscaping and installation of equipment should take place in May so that everything will be set to go by the first of June.

Also at last night's meeting the election for Kinsmen of the Year took place. The announcement of the winner will be made in about two weeks.

Local Sing Out Group Off to Germany

TRENTON — Good will ambassadors, 105 of them to be exact, will be leaving here on Friday to carry the spirit of Canadian youth to Lahr, Germany.

The Centennial Sing Out group has been chosen by military officials as the performers who will supply entertainment to the Canadian Forces Base in Germany.

Col. Thomas Duff, base administration officer for CFB Trenton, late yesterday afternoon gave official word the trip preparations were underway.

"We have always been sending entertainment overseas to entertain the troops", explained Col. Duff.

"We have transported radio and television personalities on previous occasions but this time our Sing Out Group was chosen."

The group was formed in 1967 when a similar type of performers, the Up With People Group, came here.

"They were so impressed by this group that they came to me and asked if they could start one", said Col. Duff.

Well they started one and now they operate mostly on their own with officials staying in the background.

"But they don't just entertain," continued Col. Duff, "they carry a message to younger people wherever they perform."

He says the group carries a challenge to the youth to try and make the world a better place for every kind of person to live in.

The group has not performed outside of Canada yet but the three times they have left Trenton to entertain a new sing out group has emerged.

"It would be a great thing if we could start a lot more of these groups," smiles Col. Duff.

While in Germany the young performers will perform three concerts. Each of these will last for two hours and contain 33 songs. The group will return on the next Thursday.

Approximately 70 per-cent of the group, which range in age from 14 to 20 go to Trenton High School.

J. S. McKeown Dies in Belleville

John Statswood McKeown, 16 Alexander Street, druggist and owner of a store in Belleville for over half a century and prominent in the community life of his native city, died at Hastings Manor on Monday afternoon.

He was in his 98th year and had been in failing health for a lengthy period of time.

Mr. McKeown was born in Belleville, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McKeown and lived his entire life in the community. After graduating from public and high school he entered the drug business and opened a store on Front street, which he operated until his retirement in 1943.

He was one of the original group of druggists, who brought the Rexall Drug Company of Canada in 1918 and was a Canadian director of the Company for many years.

Fraternally he joined The Belleville Lodge AF and AM No. 123 in May of 1895 and in 1900 was Master of the lodge and at the time of his death was one of the oldest Past Masters of the Craft in Ontario.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

Surviving is one daughter, Mrs. Clare D. (Helen) McPherson of Woodstock, two grandchildren and three great grandchildren. His wife, the former Caroline Vine Lingham, died some years ago.

Mr. McKeown is resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home. Service will be held in the chapel on Thursday, Feb. 6 at 1.30 p.m.

Interment will be in Belleville cemetery with Rev. A. L. Sutherland officiating.

Picton Low Rentals Defended by Official

PICTON (Staff) — Picton town council met last night with Reeve Barney Hepburn taking over in the place of Mayor McFarland who was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

The council was addressed by W. S. Knox, from the Ontario Housing Commission, concerning both senior citizens units and the low rental housing which is to be started in the spring.

Mr. Knox explained the difficulties that the OHC had in procuring land for the senior citizens units which are to be built on Lake St. north of Albert St.

He told council the cost of the 16, one - bedroom units, would be $145,592 and showed members preliminary blueprints of the building.

Counsellor W. Lane, acting on behalf of local ratepayers concerned about low rental housing, asked Mr. Knox to explain to council the type of dwellings that would be built and how the new subdivision would fit into the existing neighborhood.

Council had recived a petition from concerned citizens living near Disraeli St. where the new units are to be built.

These people, 10 in all who signed the petition were worried that the low rental housing area would turn into a slum. They felt that the new units wounldn't be up to the standard of their own homes.

Mr. Knox assured council that it would be no slum area and that people living there would not be welfare cases.

The new homes are to be built by Douglass McDonald Homes Ltd. and will be finished by this fall. Two of the units will be located somewhere other than the Disraeli St. area.

African Leader Assassinated

DAR ES SALAAM (Reuters) — Army experts today analysed fragments of a time bomb which killed leading African nationalist Eduardo Mondlane in a beach house explosion in this Tanzanian capital.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Many Anglicans Are Opposed To Return of British Methodists

LONDON (AP) — Plans to reunite British Methodists with the Church of England they quit two centuries ago could run aground this week.

Results of voting in the Anglican diocesan conferences, to be made known Friday, are expected to disclose that a substantial body of opinion in the Church of England does not want union at all.

Already, local voting shows that yes ballots are not reaching the 75 per cent which the Cenaterbury and York clergy convocations have said is the minimum they will accept when they vote themselves.

Methodists opposing unity said last week they would secede and form a Methodist Evangelical church if union is approved. Some elements in the Church of England have also hinted they would go it alone.

Voting at the diocesan conferences in Britain was on four questions posed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey. These were:

—Do you agree that unity should be sought in two stages, namely the establishment of full communion followed later by union of the churches?

—Do you approve the new joint prayer book?

—Do you approve the proposed service of reconciliation for uniting the two ministries?

—Do you wish the convocations (the Church of England clergy) to give final approval to the inauguration of stage one?

The convocations will debate these diocesan votes. The church assembly's House of Laity will vote in May, and in June a referendum of the clergy will be held.

Strictly Personal

Naked Body Not Obscene

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The word "obscene" means "tending to cause sexual excitement or lust." I don't know why this should be considered a bad thing by society, but even granting that it should what makes a naked body "obscene"?

Two University of Wisconsin students last fall were indicted on obscenity charges (later withdrawn when no witnesses could be found) for performing in a nude version of "Peter Pan" at two performances of the musical production.

I didn't see the performance, but I have seen naked bodies, and they are lovely or laughable or pathetic or uninteresting or droll, but none has ever impressed me as obscene, in any sense of the word.

An act can be obscene, an attitude can be obscene, but a body per se cannot be. It is only a dirty mind that can see dirt in a clean body: to the (unconsciously) impure, all things are impure.

The plain common - sense fact is that a naked body is about as unlustful and unexciting in itself as a plucked chicken. Many years ago, as a reporter, I covered (or uncovered) a nudist convention, which was about the most Puritan convention I had ever attended in my life.

Because the members of this nudist group didn't regard their bodies — at that time, in that place — as provocative or symbolic of sexuality, they were totally unself-conscious; and after an hour or so of reconditioning, I became just as unaware of their nakedness.

Everyone knows that a woman wearing diaphonous garments that tease and promise and conceal as much as they disclose is 10 times more "alluring" than a stark naked woman prancing around. It is her attitude that makes her "obscene" or not; it is not her equipment. And it is the attitude of society, not the fact of nudity itself.

Recently I saw a record album cover of two young singers, totally naked in front-face, as it were. The photograph was amusing because it was so utterly unerotic; they both looked like sad sacks, standing there smiling foolishly at the world, for no particular reason. It was enough to drive a man into a monastery.

Actually, the more nakedness, the less sexuality: the more we take the body for granted, the less we feel prompted to fumble for forbidden fruit. It is the false aura of mystery that invests the body with a meretricious glamor. Japan, where men and women freely bathe together, has fewer rape cases in a year than the U.S. in one day.

Your birthday today: Diversity and discrepancy complicate your year. All programs of activity have to be expanded, revised, or perhaps relocated before the cycle runs out. Unexpected results are in order this year but can be very helpful. Today's natives usually have broad views and strong powers of projecting them. They are generally well respected but often misunderstood.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Circumstances continue to clear up. Stay on the same basis for a while longer before changing your approach. Communications are good; listen to the news all around you and to nearby people.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your efforts now attract the attention of more important people than usual. Get on while the getting is good. The temptation is to let daydreams slow your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Continue sifting the various incomplete ideas that come drifting in. Eventually enough of them will jell. Avoid fatigue. Modest entertainment or quiet conversation is indicated tonight.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Review your holdings and think about converting some of them into more fluent forms. Put time into your hobbies this evening if you are free. Share information with others in the same field.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your pride may suffer a blow today. If you show any anger, a worse defeat comes later. Older people are easier to deal with, if you can concentrate on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Today runs a course much like yesterday. Be consistent in your chosen approach; avoid squabbles over details. Flexibility is best.

LIBRA (Sept. 23—Oct. 22): Friendship turns out to be rather important before the day is over. An intuitive act of yours brings help and support to someone near. Extend a hand without fretting over rewards.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Hold to a conservative line in what looks like a perfectly ordinary day. Complete all loose ends while the coast is clear. Serious study this evening will produce great returns.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): There is a message for you in some apparently silly or superficial remark. Be alert (since it may not be repeated for a long time). Communications are not to be neglected. This evening think over the last few weeks; seek a pattern.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Organize your efforts and await breaks. Check the safety and security of your home and working place. Light entertainment for the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Intellectual ferment is apt to beset you today. Nothing can be safely left as it is. New ideas on all sides must be taken into account. Be observant in your area of interest.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Let the other fellow be the one to speak extreme words or divulge information. Dealing in unhappiness is pointless, no matter how harsh the reality. Patience may clear up any bad news.

North American Life reports another year of progress

New ideas in Life Insurance products and service contributed greatly to the Company's overall success in 1968. Significant increases were achieved in New Assurances and Annuities, Assets and Net Interest Rate. The unique Enhanced Protection policy was in popular demand accounting for nearly 44% of new individual sales. In 1968 the Company introduced another first..."Indexed Protection," a policy created to build and maintain inflation-proof values for the future. These modern concepts, backed by "Total Financial Planning," exemplify the Company's ability to meet the changing needs of the public with new ideas in life insurance protection and service.

As we enter the new year, the holders of more than 265,000 ordinary policies and 299,000 group certificates are now providing more than $5.2 billion of assurances and annuities as future security for themselves and their beneficiaries.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 88th ANNUAL REPORT

New Assurances and Annuities..................$ 754,491,000
Increase $99,800,000

Assurances and Annuities in force....................$5,236,438,000
Increase $539,569,000

Long, Tough Road Ahead

Ky's Statement Shows Just How Wide Is Gap at Peace Talks

PARIS (AP) — The latest exposition of South Vietnam's case by Vice-President Nguyen Cao Ky illustrates just how far apart the sides are in the Vietnam peace talks.

As the four delegations prepare for another session Thursday, the prediction is that the road ahead is long, tough and strewn with obstacles which at this time seem insurmountable. Each side says the next move is up to the other. Neither shows an inclination to move away from stated positions.

Ky said in an impromptu news conference Monday that the first thing that must be discussed is "how to end the war of aggression by Communist North Vietnam against South Vietnam."

The North Vietnamese and the National Liberation Front says the first order of business must be "an end to the U.S. aggression."

Thus South Vietnam in effect demands that its adversaries concede in advance that they are aggressors, and North Vietnam and the Viet Cong in effect demand that the Americans concede in advance they are the aggressors.

This does not prevent Americans here from expressing confidence that in the long pull, something positive will result from the talks. But the operative word is "long."

Ky said his government has made concessions and is willing to make more. He did not spell out just what the concessions have been or might be.

But Ky rejected any notion that political matters can be discussed in Paris, at least until military matters are dealt with. And Hanoi and the NLF insist that military and political matters must be dealt with as a whole, simultaneously, with emphasis on the political. This involves the demand that the NLF be recognized as the decisive factor in the South's political future.

The Americans hunted eagerly through last Thursday's speech by Hanoi's Ambassador Xuan Thuy for vague signs that the North Vietnamese might be bending a bit. They seized upon a line that Thuy said described his side's "just and reasonable" stand.

That line, part of a discussion of his side's various "points," said conditions must be created for "the settlement of the political problem in South Vietnam in accordance with the principle of self-determination in the conditions of the existence of the South Vietnam National Liberation Front, the authentic representative of the South Vietnamese people."

Was this a change? Did the word "existence" mean less than the demand for a decisive voice?

The Americans pulled out their magnifying glasses again. They found, according to a South Vietnamese delegation spokesman, that the line was exactly the same, word for word, as Thuy had given in the preliminary talks between the United States and North Vietnam as long ago as July 17. This tended to dispel the idea that Hanoi was weakening.

Electioneering Far from Picnic In Prairie Winter

EDMONTON (CP) — William Yurko was only half-kidding as he unveiled the last plank of his platform—outlaw elections in the winter months.

Unlike his three opponents in next Monday's provincial election in Strathcona East, the Progressive Conservative candidate has had his fill of stumping the southeast Edmonton constituency in sub-zero weather.

Mr. Yurko and the New Democratic Party's Garry Allen were fed innumerable cups of coffee as they counted heavily on a door-to-door campaign to introduce themselves to approximately 19,000 voters.

Social Crediter William Johnson and Liberal Percy Marshall tried their luck with campaign meetings, which also suffered as the temperature dropped below zero in the first week of January and stayed there for 26 days.

Former premier E. C. Manning, who vacated the seat shortly after giving up the office to Harry E. Strom in December, had held the seat by comfortable majorities since it first was contested in 1959.

Mr. Manning's retirement left Social Credit with 55 of the 65 seats in the Alberta legislature. There are six Conservatives, two Liberals and an independent. Strathcona east is the only vacancy.

Mr. Allen, 25, is the only political newcomer in the race, although Mr. Yurko's previous bid for office was an unsuccessful attempt to win the Conservative nomination for Edmonton Centre in last year's federal election.

Mr. Marshall and Mr. Johnson ran in the 1967 provincial election, Mr. Marshall finishing last in a field of four to Mr. Manning in Strathcona East while Mr. Johnson was beaten by Conservative Lou Hyndman in Edmonton West.

Like his opponents in a constituency fringed by oil refineries, the Social Credit candidate favors strong anti-pollution laws. A lawyer, he heads the Social Conservative Society which seeks to implement Mr. Manning's theories for political realignment.

In a letter distributed throughout the constituency, the former premier urged the election of Mr. Johnson because "the people of Strathcona East need representation on the government side of the legislature."

Mr. Yurko, a chemical engineer, has called for creation of satellite cities to combat rising land costs in urban areas and a graduated driver's licence fee that would penalize motorists who accumulate demerit points from traffic violations.

Mr. Marshall, also a lawyer, says increased government spending is needed to cope with a "crisis" in hospital services. He advocates provincial loans to home buyers with a good credit rating and a steady income who are unable to afford a down payment.

In the 1967 election, Mr. Manning received 6,314 votes to 2,976 for the Conservative runner-up, 1,909 for the NDP candidate and 1,458 for Mr. Marshall.

SEED TALK

THE TWIN SILO SYSTEM

One For Corn . . . One For Forage

With the realization that forage is, after all, our cheapest and most practical source of protein, big feeders are now turning to a two-silo system, filling one with high-energy corn and the other with high-protein forage.

Although any good forage mixture will provide ample protein if cut at the proper stage, Alfalfa is the natural species for this purpose. No other forage crop can yield with pure-stand Alfalfa. Cut it at the late-bud stage for optimum feeding value and to let the second crop make use of the remaining spring moisture.

When it comes to selecting the best variety for your soil and purpose, let us tell you about Saranac, Iroquois and Vernal. There's a place for all three on your farm and probably some Trefoil to boot!

APPOINTMENT

ALBERT VAN REEWYK

Gerald Joyce, President, Gerald Joyce Realty Limited, Realtor, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. Albert Van Reewyk to their real estate department. Mr. Van Reewyk is a native of Holland and prior to coming to Canada graduated from Agricultural College in Holland. On arriving in this country, he farmed in Eastern Canada, then spent some five years in the construction industry. For the past 11 years, Mr. Van Reewyk has been active in the General Insurance business in the Belleville and Trenton area. Prior to joining this firm Albert passed with honors the prescribed Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards' training course. Mr. Van Reewyk will be specializing in farm and rural properties throughout the Quinte area, together with his General Insurance Agency.

Supreme Court in BC Rules Comox-Alberni Vote Invalid

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Liberal party was still assessing its options Monday night in the wake of a British Columbia Supreme Court decision which ruled invalid the June 25 election of Liberal Richard Durante in the Comox-Alberni riding.

Two Supreme Court justices voided the federal election result in the Vancouver Island constituency when they ruled 12 Canadian armed services men voted illegally.

The party can either contest the ruling or call a byelection in the riding.

Mr. Durante, who can remain in his House of Commons seat for one week, was expecting a byelection. He termed the court decision "a real break for the NDP and its former leader Tommy Douglas."

"When Douglas is defeated Feb. 10 in the Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands byelection, he will be able to seek re-election in the Comox-Alberni byelection."

But in Toronto, Senator Richard Stanbury, president of the National Liberal Federation, said his party will consult lawyers and called an appeal of the court's ruling "one of our alternatives."

In Ottawa, chief electoral officer Jean-Marc Hamel said he could not think of an instance where a ruling under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act had been appealed to the Supreme Court.

The New Democratic Party appealed Mr. Durante's election under the act after incumbent Tom Barnett had been unseated by nine votes, 11,939 to 11,930, in a judicial recount. Mr. Barnett held the seat by three votes on election night.

In the Supreme Court ruling, Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan and Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe found that the servicemen voted at Comox-Alberni civilian polls when they should have voted at their military base with their votes applying to ridings where they were registered across Canada.

Lawyer Kenneth Page, acting for Mr. Barnett, argued the men were disqualified from voting because they did not complete a "change of ordinary place of residence" required under armed forces voting rules.

The Comox-Alberni Constituency Association has already endorsed Mr. Barnett as a candidate, but Mr. Durante said that whether he becomes a candidate again is a decision which is not his to make.

"But if the people of the Comox-Alberni riding and the Liberal party think I should be a candidate, I will probably be available," he said.

"This has placed my wife and two children in a difficult position. Six months ago I had a good, secure position as a school principal. I resigned to work full-time as an MP. Now I am unemployed."

Mr. Douglas said in an interview that the Liberals should call a byelection as soon as possible.

If a byelection is called, it will mean that the only two vacancies in the 264-seat House of Commons will be on Vancouver Island.

Current standings are Liberals 155, Progressive Conservatives 72, NDP 21, Creditistes 14, Independent one, vacant one.

Mayor Says Support for Plaza 'Overwhelming'

ROBERT MACAULAY

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Mayor Russell Scott today told the Ontario Municipal Board that Bellevillians are questioning delay in development of a new shopping plaza in the city.

The mayor claimed an "overwhelming" cross-section of Belleville residents supported such a project — currently the focus of an OMB hearing at city hall which now could last into next week.

Mayor Scott went before the inquiry as it entered its second day of scrutinizing a city council application to rezone an 18-acre North Front Street land bloc, opening the way for development of the plaza.

The mayor was granted permission to address the hearing in mid-morning by OMB panel chairman W. H. J. Thompson.

The mayor was not sworn as a witness and was not questioned by R. B. Robinson representing Cambridge Leasehold, Robert Macaulay, representing Oshawa Wholesale or City Solicitor E. Guss Porter. His remarks were couched in a brief address to the hearing.

Mayor Scott said he presided over city council moves during last year leading to the rezoning application.

Other than a spokesman from Towers Discount Department Stores — whose parent Oshawa Wholesale is among contestants of the new plaza project — "at no time has there been any delegation or any petition from any group of citizens opposing this," said Mayor Scott.

"We have had correspondence from ratepayers' groups sent to council in support of this," he added.

As mayor he is in contact with "a great many people" and "an overwhelming number of people from all walks of life" support the northend plaza plan, said Mayor Scott.

They also are querying when the project will get underway and the reasons for delay, he told the hearing.

He reckoned the numbers in contact with him over the issue "up in the hundreds."

Trudeau to Talk Tough To Language Bill Foes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will come down hard at next week's constitutional conference on any and all English-speaking provinces which oppose his government's official languages bill, informants said Tuesday.

They added that Mr. Trudeau can be expected to talk as bluntly to these provinces as he did to Quebec at the fist constitutional conference a year ago.

At that time, Mr. Trudeau, then justice minister, said Quebec would no longer have a claim to "special status" in Confederation once French-language rights were guaranteed across Canada.

The first constitutional conference reached a "consensus" that French-speaking Canadians in English Canada should enjoy the same language rights as English-speaking Canadians in Quebec.

Objections have been raised by some provinces not only to constitutional guarantees for language rights but to the languages bill itself, which affects only the federal administration.

The bill would make French and English official languages of the federal administration and establish bilingual districts throughout Canada where federal services would be available in both languages.

OTTAWA (CP) —Prime Minister Trudeau is prepared to test the constitutionality of his administration's language bill in the courts if the provinces press for it.

The Liberal leader gave the undertaking Tuesday in the Commons, although he said the government holds the bill is within the federal government's power to enact under the British North America Act of 1867.

Under opposition questioning, Mr. Trudeau indicated the government has no intention of dropping the bill, given first reading last Oct. 17, even if the Supreme Court of Canada calls it unconstitutional.

Instead, the government would "fight very hard" to amend the BNA Act to permit the government to implement the bill. The BNA Act is the written cornerstone of Canada's constitution.

The official languages bill, delayed in its parliamentary passage until after next week's three-day federal-provincial constitutional conference, would make French and English official languages in the federal administration. Bilingual districts throughout Canada would provide federal services in both languages.

Replying to Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) in the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said the language bill arose from the year-ago conference's recommendation.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Dry sunny weather will prevail in most localities today but it will be chilly and rural areas in particular will experience heavy drifting and blowing snow. A general increase in snowflurry activity is expected Thursday in southern Ontario.

Highways Are Closed By Drifts

BARRIE (CP) — All major highways in central Simcoe County were closed to traffic today by provincial police as high winds piled deep drifts across roads, isolating this city of more than 20,000.

OPP Sgt. Bernie Cain of the Barrie detachment said "at one point every road in and out of Barrie was blocked this morning."

The weather disturbance that is creating the wind stretches from Thornton, 10 miles south of here to Oro, 15 miles north and from Lake Simcoe on the east to the Nottawasaga Bay, the southern part of Georgian Bay.

Arab Pupils March

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Anti-Israeli protests flared anew today in the occupied West Bank sector and the Gaza Strip. Israeli police broke up a second demonstration by Arab school children in the West Bank town of Nablus.

Schools and stores remained closed today in Nablus, the result of a curfew imposed on the city's casbah by Israeli troops following a demonstration by school girls Tuesday. Arab businessmen closed their shops to protest the police measures.

Mayor Hamdi Kan'an told reporters: "There will be no rest as long as the occupation prevails. We will probably wait another six months and then revolt against the occupation—if only with sticks."

Schools reopened in the Gaza Strip today after a two-day closure, but students refused to enter the classrooms and shouted curses and Palestine Arab slogans at Israeli troops. The soldiers did not react.

The Israelis closed the Gaza schools Sunday after a clash between troops and rioting schoolgirls in which 93 Arab girls were injured.

In Cairo, the Palestine National Council ended a three-day meeting with a statement pledging to continue guerrilla attacks on Israel.

Peace Army Of Asians Proposed

The countries most frequently mentioned are Japan, Indonesia and Burma. These and other Asian countries have been discreetly sounded out by the United States, the sources said.

Health, Welfare Costs Will Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government figures it will spend money at the rate of about $650 for every Canadian in the financial year that begins April 1 — about $55 a person more than this year.

A record total of $13,617,651,503 in spending estimates for 1969-70, presented to Parliament Tuesday, is an increase of more than nine per cent from the estimated outlay in the present year of $12,406,934,848.

Excluding projected old-age security payouts of $1,760,000,000 from main budget spending, as the government does, the 1969-70 budgetary estimates amount to $11,857,651,503, an increase of 9.5 per cent from the corresponding current-year tally of $10,825,934,848.

More than half the billion-dollar increase in budget estimates will be siphoned off by health, welfare — apart from old-age pensions — and education.

Forecast health-welfare costs will climb by about 20 per cent to $2,838,000,000 in round figures.

Defence, second-biggest item after health and welfare, will cost less than six per cent more, but the total of $1,814,097,000 is the biggest defence budget since the Second World War. Previous peace-time high was the $1,759,000,000 of 1956-57.

The public debt of more than $23,500,000,000 will cost the country $1,604,000,000 in interest and administrative charges, an increase of about nine per cent from this year and third biggest item on the budget after health-welfare and defence.

"I wouldn't call it austerity," said estimates author C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board. "But we have shown at least a reasonable degree of restraint," he added outside the Commons.

Inside the House, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield agreed indirectly that an increase approaching 10 per cent was hardly austere, and he doubted aloud whether much restraint was displayed.

The government, pledged to

Ontario Revenue Climbs

TORONTO (CP) — Total net general revenue received by Ontario in the year ending March 31, 1968, was $2,144,606,639, an increase of more than $345,000,000 over the previous year, according to the annual report of Provincial Auditor George H. Spence.

Net general expenditures were $1,931,620,084—up more than $442,000,000.

The auditor's report was tabled in the legislature Tuesday by provincial Secretary Robert Welch.

The departments of education and university affairs accounted for $907,373,717 or more than 39 per cent of net general expenditures. This was an increase of more than $247,000,000 over the previous year.

The health department was the next-largest spender with $314,235,937, an increase of more than $10,000,000 in a year.

Italians Strike Over Pensions

ROME (AP) — A nationwide 24-hour strike cut deep into Italy's heavy industries today, but first estimates indicated that only half the country's labor force was out.

The three major unions called a general strike in an attempt to force Premier Mariano Rumor's government to speed the reform of the pension system it has started.

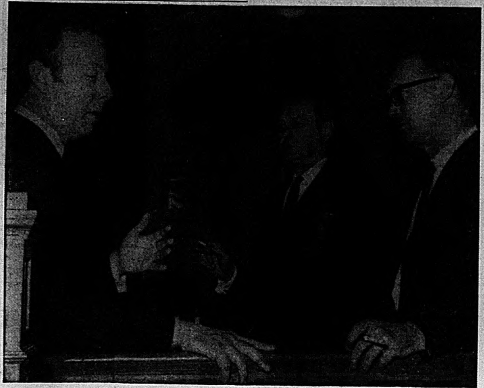
While heavy industry was hit hard, trains and buses ran; telephones worked; electric-power and gas were on; most schools, stores, banks and filling stations were open, and police and firemen were on duty.

Riot police all over the country were on the alert to combat any violence during the strike, biggest since the Second World War.

Some 1,500 demonstrators demanding higher pensions marched through streets here, carrying placards reading, "Away with starvation pensions."

Maoist youths, wearing red scarves and red jackets, marched in the middle of the column shouting, "political power grows out of the barrel of a gun"—a quotation from Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Shops pulled down their shutters as demonstrators passed.



Back in Belleville for Ontario Municipal Board plaza rezoning hearing is P. J. Beavis (right) former city planning director, now Brantford planner. Here he chats at end of opening-day session with Robert Macaulay (right) lawyer for Oshawa Wholesale opposing rezoning and city solicitor E. Guss Porter.

Municipal Planning Issue Brought Back to Public Light

Municipal planning in Belleville may be back on the public block — this time with the Ontario Municipal Board looking on

The issue was sprung yesterday by opponents of the city's bid to foster development of a north end shopping plaza through a rezoning plea before a board inquiry at city hall.

And waiting in the wings is a man who only too recently raised a flurry in local government affairs — P. J. Beavis, Belleville's ex-planning director, now Brantford director — who blasted district planning practices before quitting last year.

Responsible for animating the issue was Robert Macaulay, legal counsel for Oshawa Wholesalers (and its shopping - centre offspring, Towers Discount Department Store) and the Belleville Shopping Plaza Merchants' Association.

Mr. Macaulay:

● For nearly two hours plied assistant planning director Frank Stokmans with questions on the planning involved in the plaza project.

● Successfully overcame opposing lawyers to win recognition of a recent planning furor as pertinent to the current hearing.

W. H. J. Thompson, board panel chairman, ruled admissible minutes of a Belleville and District Planning Board meeting last year during which the city's planning director quit.

The document contains harsh criticism of public planning methods, levelled by planning director Beavis as he tendered his resignation last Aug. 8.

City solicitor E. Guss Porter objected to introduction of the meeting's records as irrelevant to the rezoning issue but Mr. Macaulay held that the document was basic to his arguments about local planning.

The minutes quoted Mr. Beavis criticizing local authorities for exerting "little effort, or interest" in pre - plan development. " . . . Instead he (Beavis) saw a growing tendency for the local authorities to be swayed by self-interest groups," the minutes said.

"The vital fact that planning is essentially a matter of establishing and adopting principle by which development of the urban and rural area will be carried out and the subsequent adherence to these principles is not appreciated," the document records.

"He said he is, therefore, reluctantly forced to reach the conclusion that his efforts have been largely wasted and, more important, there is very little likelihood of him achieving any professional satisfaction in his appointment in the foreseeable future."

Mr. Beavis sat among the group of spectators, many of them business representatives on both sides of the rezoning controversy, throughout the first day of the hearing.

Later he told reporters he had been summoned to testiy by "both sides."

The man on the spot throughout much of the first day's proceedings was assistant planning director Stokmans.

The assistant planner was plied with questions on the plaza scheme — a project earlier described by Mr. Macaulay as "illogical, unimaginative and uneconomical."

Mr. Stokmans said no economic survey had been taken on the feasibility of the project before planning board approval had been given.

However, the planning "assumed the developer knew what he was doing."

"It may have been good for the developer, but what effect would it have on the downtown business sector?" queried Mr. Macaulay. ". . .You've said you don't know what effect it would have?"

"That's correct," replied Mr. Stokmans.

During the lengthy cross-examination, Mr. Macaulay put the planner through a wide range of questions, from proposed traffic control in the North Front Street area to regional population growth.

No detailed plan of the project was provided before the rezoning bylaw was given third — and final — reading by council, Mr. Stokmans said.

However, he believed terms of an agreement between the city and the plaza developer, Cambridge Leaseholds, plus the bylaw, sufficiently protect municipal interests.

R. B. Robinson, Cambridge lawyer, emphasized it was "manifestly impossible" for detailed plans to be available at such an early stage in the project.

Unnamed Group Oppose Plaza

An anonymous group of Bellevillians, with a former alderman as spokesman will petition the Ontario Municipal Board Thursday against the controversial north end shopping plaza project.

There are 90 names on the petition — initially refused yesterday by the board panel refereeing the controversy at city hall — but the identities of its organizers are a well-kept secret.

George Wishart, former city councillor who presented the document, said he wasn't the organizer of the petition but was "invited in" to a group objecting to the proposed North Front Street plaza development.

Asked if he could name the real sponsors Mr. Wishart said "they didn't want their names to be public at the moment."

The protest criticizes the plaza project as "premature" and says it should await completion of urban renewal and official plan studies.

Mr. Wishart, who served seven years on city council until his retirement in 1964, emphasized he had no "pecuniary interest" in the issue.

The 90 signatures on the petition were canvassed by various people, he added.

It was this last point on which W. H. J. Thompson chairman of the board panel refused to immediately accept the petition from the former alderman.

Mr. Wishart must personally be able to verify every signature and verify them as ratepayers' before the petition could be recognized, he ruled.

Mr. Wishart then withdrew the protest, but last night said he would be back before the hearing Thursday with the necessary legalities organized for acceptable presentation.

OMB Hears Mayor

"There has only been three instances where anybody has spoken to me opposing this," said Mayor Scott.

The mayor's statement briefly interrupted examination of witnesses which this morning saw three city public servants on the stand.

The hearing finished testimony from assistant planner Frank Stokmans, who was called late yesterday morning.

Mr. Stokmans told the OMB panel that, since there were only two planners on the city planning staff, it was not possible to complete an in-depth economic analysis of the plaza project. Such a study, he said, might have delayed the current rezoning application another one or two years.

He was queried by OMB member B. E. Smith if a current economic study of the city could possibly recommend against such a project.

"I don't think I'm in a position to say that sir," said the planner.

Public utilities commission manager E. L. Burnham said the city could deliver up to three million gallons of water a month to the site. At present about half that volume is used by the city's only other plaza in east Belleville.

City engineer Wilbur Purcell said traffic signals on a feeder road from North Front Street to the shopping site would provide sufficient traffic control "for a few years."

Widening of North Front Street would follow "as the area developed and traffic increased to require it."

A meeting in March last year, that included police and department of highways officials discussed the project's effects on traffic, he said.

The meeting concluded that traffic signals would be desirable along with a four-lane road south of the plaza.

The engineer told Mr. Macaulay that traffic counts were taken in the area last fall. However, up to July 15, no reports on traffic volume had been given city council or local planning authorities.

All Pupils Now at One School

DESERONTO — The Deseronto public school pupils were all under one roof Monday morning for the first time since Sept. 1967, when a class was set up in the Sunday School room of the Anglican church. Since last Sept. two additional classes have been taught in the Sunday School rooms of the United church.

The school now has 12 regular classrooms, and a library which will also double as a classroom half of each day. The gymnasium is especially welcome, Principal Rodney Uens stated Tuesday. There are various other rooms for special classes.

The move was made smoothly, with some classes moving their belongings Friday afternoon. Over the weekend desks were moved from the temporary classrooms to their new homes.

The school has an enrolment of 378, with 13 full-time teachers.

Obituary

NORMAN W. WHITNEY

TRENTON — The funeral for Norman W. Whitney, 44 Kidd Avenue, Trenton, who died suddenly in Trenton Memorial Hospital on Saturday, was held from the Weaver Funeral Home on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. J. A. Payton conducted the service in the chapel and entombment was in Mount Evergreen cemetery with interment in the spring.

The bearers were Charles Ede, John Wilman, Tom Nicholls, Luke Glover, Richard Glover and James Hennessey.

Mr. Whitney was born in Ontario County, 79 years ago, and had resided in Trenton for the past 21 years. He was a carpenter by trade and had been living retired for some years.

Mr. Whitney was an adherent of the United Church.

He was an associate member of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 110, and a member of the Senior Citizens' Club.

Surviving are two daughters Mrs. Roy (Reta) Delong, Brooklin, Mrs. Russell (Audrey) Wray, Brantford, and three sons, Kenneth Whitney, Newcastle, Cecil, Whitby and Earl of Harcourt.

Also surviving is one sister Mrs. Fred (Marjorie) Webb, of Toronto, as well as nine grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

Provincial Grants Increase

Provincial grants in lieu of taxes for the senior citizens housing complex on Turnbull Street, will be increased this year from the previous $25. to year from the previous $25. to $101. per unit.

Mayor J. Russell Scott told council this week that under the new agreement, the grant in lieu of taxes for senior citizens housing units would be the same as for low rental family housing.

The Ontario Housing Corporation is currently calling tenders for the construction of additional low rental senior citizens housing in the city.

Ottawa Will Spend More

war against inflation as the prime immediate threat to the country, has promised to try to spend no more than it gets in revenue.

Income for the 1969-70 year, as budgeted last October, is forecast at $11,675,000,000.

Mr. Drury said that the perennial failure of some government departments to spend the full amounts allotted to them would bring actual spending down from his total budgetary estimate of $11,858,000,000 to "something below" the target set last October.

However, he warned the Commons that spending could vary by more than $100,000,000 either way, especially on health, welfare and education costs which depend largely on what the provinces decide to spend.

Outside the House, he told reporters spending in the health-welfare-education fields is "unmanageable."

On the other hand, the federal estimates forecast an outlay of $370,000,000 for medical care insurance on the basis that all 10 provinces will be in the shared-cost program in 1969-70.

The federal treasury could save on medical care because only Saskatchewan and British Columbia are in now while five others are expected to join soon.

Mr. Stanfield, mindful of the way supplementary estimates have a way of bumping up original spending forecasts each year, said Tuesday's tally should be taken with a grain of salt.

Mr. Drury had said "the government is determined that such supplementary estimates, if any, will be kept to a minimum and held to figures consistent with the declared objective of a balanced budget."

Present forecasts are that supplementary estimates will raise the current year's spending outlay by $155,000,000 before March is out.

Supplementary estimates have added an annual average of more than $570,000,000 to the original forecasts in the five previous years. But the government figures its estimating methods are more accurate now and the provinces are sharpening up their estimating on shared-cost programs.

Tuesday's forecast figures on an increase in federal budgetary spending that outstrips the projected growth in the country's wealth.

The government has foreseen expansion of the gross national product total wealth produced in goods and services by between seven and eight per cent.

IN MEMORIAM

STAPLES — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Charles William Staples who passed away Feb. 5, 1960.

Although we smile and make no fuss,
No one misses him more than us,
And when old times we oft recall,
That's when we miss him most of all.

—Lovingly remembered by his family.

MORGAN — In loving memory of W. T. (Bill) Morgan who passed away Feb. 5, 1958.

Without farewell you fell asleep to rest at last,
Free from pain and worry,
Free from cold and hurt,
God has you in His keep,
I have your memory in my heart
—Rest in peace, ever remembered by mother.

Property Purchase Is Issue

PICTON — Clealan Blakely, manager of the Public Utilities commission in Picton, has declined to make any statement about the purchase of a Spencer St. building purchased without the permission of the town of Picton.

The commission will be summoned before council at its next session in March to explain the purchase.

According to the Ontario Municipal Act no PUC may improve or expand its facilities without first getting the permission of the town.

Mrs. Margaret Ackerman, a first time councillor brought the matter to the attention of council and said the commission bought the house some years ago.

It was to be used to expand the present system according to Mrs. Ackerman but it has never been used for that purpose and is presently rented to tenants.

Clerk - treasurer Andrew Jarvis said the town collects the rent as added revenue.

Mrs. Ackerman, still not satisfied with the explanation, agreed to a proposal by deputy reeve Donald Thompson that PUC officials be called before council to make an explanation.

Mr. Blakely said there are two houses on the property, one of them occupied by Elmer Vanscombe, an operator at the waterplant. The property was purchased from him.

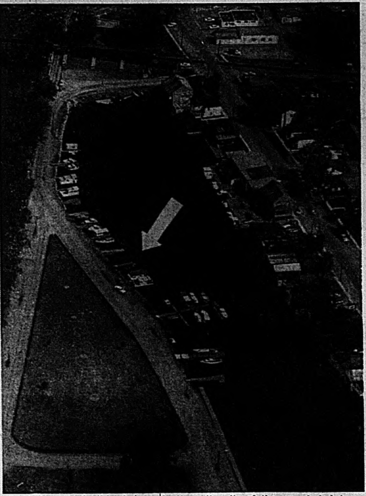
The Public Utilities Commission collects the rent on the property and pays its taxes, according to Mr. Blakely.

Barbers Elect New Officers

Belleville Barbers' Association last night elected a new slate of officers to steer the organization for the next year.

Named to the association executive at Columbus Hall were John O'Niell, president, Ralph Duffie, vice-president, Sid Moss, treasurer, Jane Clarke, recording secretary.

The entertainment committee is Rick Adams, Elvin Smith, Graham Gale.



The arrow in this photograph shows the site of the new dock being put in the inner harbor for next season's boaters. It will replace four smaller docks and will accommodate 24 boats, 19 more than the present four dock holds.

New Docks Constructed At City Yacht Club

A new larger dock in the inner harbor will be completed by the time this year's boating season comes into being.

According to Donald Barrett, harbor master, the new dock will replace four old ones and will accomodate 24 boats. The four original docks could handle five boats.

The new dock, part of a rennovation project, will be situated north of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club almost directly between the clubhouse and the CPR crossing.

The dock will have four fingers on each side and will enable mooring of big and small boats alike.

Construction has so far reached the point where drilling has begun for postholes for the docking piles.

The platform will be of the type that can be raised or lowered according to the water level in the harbor.

Mr. Barrett said this morning that the new dock is a result of lack of accomodation for boatowners in Belleville.

"The demand is increasingly getting greater and greater," he said.

He added that the new dock would not solve the problem completely and that it was "only the beginning of much more that will have to come in the next few years."

Mr. Barrett said that eventually there will be at least two more similar type docks and he doubts that that will be enough.

Mr. Barrett said he did not know the cost of the new facility.

Conservation Report Praises Domtar for Pollution Control

TRENTON — "If other industries along the Trent river would take half the trouble to reduce pollution that Domtar Paper does we would soon have little or no pollution in the Trent river.

This statement was made by C. G. MacDonald, chairman of the Lower Trent Valley Regional Conservation Authority, in a report released last night concerning a recent tour of the Domtar plant by authority members.

In the past the Domtar plant came in for some harsh criticism for the role it was believed that the paper plant played in the pollution of the Trent.

However the report destroys many of these previously held notions.

"George Boyce, manager of the plant, laughed when he was asked if there was a pipe for delivering a black liquor into the Trent," reads the report.

He assured the members there was no such pipe and that this liquor, which is a byproduct of the paper making operation, is kept in large storage ponds. Then the substance is used on county roads in the summer.

And the water which is returned to the river undergoes treatment to make it germ free and harmless to domestic animals.

Mr. Boyce reported that the water, 150 gallons a minute, is processed through a $100,000 stainless steel filter but he did admit that the water did have the odor of pulp and a dirty brown color.

The chemical staff at the plant makes a number of tests on the river at 27 different points in the warm months at least once a week.

These reports, which are sent to the Ontario Water Resources Commission, surprised authority members by showing that there were strong areas of pollution far removed from the Domtar Plant and that raw sewage was still being dumped into the river on the west side.

The report states that the touring members found the steps Domtar was taking to abate were "most gratifying."

The group included Mr. MacDonald, Claude Trumble of Stirling, Edward Colden of Rawdon township, Art Wartman of Warkworth and William Menzies and Paul Tripp of Trenton.

The OWRC has been informed that Domtar has cut down the volume of water expelled by their plant.

"We have been told that they have gone down from 900,000 gallons per day to 350,000 gallons per day," an OWRC spokesman said this morning.

And to confirm this figure the OWRC will be coming to Domtar next week to carry out more tests.

The spokesman said they would like to see the figure cut down even more so the expelled water could be pumped into the municipal system and purified there.

However, if this cannot be done the OWRC could start pumping some of the 350,000 gallons per day into the municipal system. This however is still under consideration.

Federal Building

Air Conditioning Costs $350,000

The federal government will be spending $350,000 to completely air-condition the Federal building in Belleville.

And Campbellford and Frankford will also be the target of $216,000 federal dollars to construct two new post offices.

The new cool air system to be installed at the Belleville government offices should eliminate the problem of excessive heat that in former years has caused employees to be relieved from work for various periods of time

The three expenditures in the Quinte area are included in the initial public works program of $132,215,000 to be spent by the federal government during the fiscal year beginning April 1.

According to the public works department in Ottawa $350,000 will be spent on a total air conditioning system for the federal building here as well as some other minor alterations and repairs.

Frankford and Campbellford will get some of the appropriated funds for new public buildings in the amounts of $66,000 and $150,000 respectively.

Both communities will be getting brand new post offices during the year although it is not known when construction will begin.

The new Campbellford post office will also handle the Department of veterans' affairs business and Department of transport business.

Locations have been picked for both the new Frankford post office and the one in Campbellford. There is still some dissension in Campbellford, however, as to the prospective location which some people say will not afford enough parking.

Dates for the start of construction should be available shortly.

The great bulk of the new government spending will once again be in Ottawa, with $98,456,000 allocated for new buildings and improvements in the capital. A year previous Ottawa received over 51 and a half million dollars of the initial Ontario total.

A year ago the allocation of funds for Ontario was $112,282,000.

Depression Is Subject Of New History Course

This may come as a shock to those in the over 40 age bracket, but the depression of the 1930s is now an important segment of the high school history course.

So important, in fact, that educators are developing an experimental project to improve teaching of the subject.

One of the 200 classes in Ontario selected to test the experimental method is the grade 12 class at Nicholson Catholic College here, under the direction of Sister Anna Moran.

The Ontario Institute for studies in education has provided the class with a kit of instructional material for the purposed research. It contains records, slides, film strips and copies of original documents of the period.

Now, all the students need are "resource persons" from the community to complement the material in the kit.

Translated from the educational jargon, a resource person is anyone from the district with memories of the depression and a willingness to share them with the students.

By interviewing people who lived through the history the students are studying, young people learn the methods of historical research and gain an appreciation of the atmosphere of the period.

The students plan their own approach to the study of the depression years, and the Nicholson students have decided to begin by re-creating a 1930's atmosphere in their classroom. They have issued a call for clothes of the era and pictures they can borrow for a week.

"We want to set up a store in the classroom with all the items tagged with the prices current in the 1930s," a student explained.

The students decided to divide into three groups, one to delve into the social aspects of the decade, another to research economic matters and the third to deal with politics.

But they need local people with first hand recollections of "the way it really was", to help them with the project.

The results of the students' work with the "discovery method" of studying history will be reported to the Ontario Institute for studies in education for assessment and guidance in possible re-vamping of the course.

After only a few days on the project, the students have decided opinions of their own.

"You may not cover as many events and dates this way as you did by the old method of memorizing a text book, but you never forget what you learn."

Runacres Says . . .

Education Grassroots Business

"Hastings County should put its educational money where the action is — with the teachers, in the classroom, working with the child," director of education Eric Runacres said last night.

On his second day on the job in Belleville he took time out to speak informally to members of Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children at their regular meeting at their school.

"Education is a grassroots business," he affirmed. "I believe in centralizing leadership only in such details as accounting, payroll and purchasing."

"The only reason we exist is to serve, not to build up a power hierarchy of superintendents and administrators at headquarters," he assured his audience.

He told the group that one of the first tasks undertaken since creation of the new county-wide board on Jan. 1 was setting up task forces throughout the county to consider curricula suited to local needs.

"If we, (the county board and its administrators) provide exactly the quality of education you now have, we will provide it more efficiently and at less cost," Mr. Runacres said.

He based his claim on experience with amalgamated boards, where savings had been achieved through tendering and centralized purchasing.

"But are you satisfied with the quality of the education you have now?" he asked. "If not, it will cost you more money."

An indication of the groups' reaction to the question came during a question and answer period. On hand to hear the director at his first speaking engagement were trustees Emerson Robinson, Maynooth, Mrs. Jean Hutchison, Trenton, and Robertson Collins, Belleville, members of the standing committee on trainable retarded children of the Hastings County board.

Representatives from the mental health clinic, county health unit, crippled children's society and Ontario association for retarded children in Toronto.

Mrs. Margaret Maddocks of the Belleville association said the greatest educational gains with retarded children are made between the ages of three and five. She mentioned the need for preschool training for the retarded and asked if provision of facilities was the responsibility of the association, the county board or the municipality.

"The normal child is not fully dealt with as yet in all parts of the county," commented Mrs. Hutchison As an example she mentioned the lack of kindergartens in many rural areas.

In reply to another question Mr. Runacres said it seemed imperative to him that psychological services be provided in the county school system.

Out-of-town visitors questioned the director about provisions for handicapped students in regular schools

"Architects and educators have ignored this aspect of school buildings," the director admitted. "Our present schools are not designed to accommodate the physically handicapped."

"Equality of education in Ontario is a myth," he asserted. "I hope it becomes a reality in the future. Our curriculum may not be adequate, we must look into it and change it to meet our needs. The new board's role is to launch an intelligent plan."

Director Welcomes Belleville 'Hospitality'

Eric Runacres doesn't take "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" personally.

Hastings County's new director of education used the phrase last night to assure parents at the meeting of the Belleville Association for Retarded Children that recent criticism had left him unbowed.

"My second day on the job has been a fascinating one," he told the audience. I've listened to your radio, and I've been hit right, left and centre."

Amid good-natured laughter from his listeners he assured them he considered the criticism directed towards the position and not the person filling it.

"At dinner tonight," he continued, "my wife showed me the literature delivered by the Welcome Wagon. I was impressed by a beautifully printed card welcoming me to Belleville on behalf of the city council. It was signed by the mayor. I welcome that kind of hospitality."

In a more serious vein, he said he liked to work in a "climate open to risk."

He promised "dedication, hard work, and respect" and assured his listeners he would answer the public's questions honestly, "without hedging."

"I respect the youth of today, I respect their teachers and the people of this county. I expect respect in return," he added.

Two Killed in Blaze

BANCROFT — An Ontario Fire Marshal's investigator today was probing the cause of a fire that took the lives of an elderly couple in a lonely North Hastings hamlet north of here yesterday.

Killed in the blaze were Max Miller, 87, and his sister, Esther, 82.

Scene of the tragedy was their two-storey frame home outside New Carlow, a rural settlement about 25 miles northeast of here.

The couple's nephew, Roland Miller, owns and lives in the house. He was in Bancroft at the time of the fire.

Neighbors who rushed to the scene were driven back by the intense heat as flames roared through the structure. The house "went up like a matchbox" reported a provincial police officer and it was impossible to attempt rescue.

The nearest firefighting service is at Bancroft.

After the blaze police spotted a body in the ruins but were unable to reach it because of scorching debris.

Officers surmised the fire may have been caused by overheated stove pipes. The house contained wood and oil stoves.

Today, fire marshal's inspector Paul McKerracher, recently appointed to Belleville, will probe the ruins.

That Generation Gap

Whatever their methods, young people cannot be ignored. That was the theme of Robin Russell, special assistant to Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon in an address to Belleville Rotarians the other day.

Well, that should go for other members of the human race too — those over 30, or even over 25 whom teenagers and those in their early twenties regard with some misgiving. It is partly because the young tend to ignore those older than themselves that there is a "generation gap."

It is true that because of educational and technological advances, allied with virtually instant communications, young people today have access to knowledge far beyond anything their parents enjoyed.

But maturity . . . and knowledge of the world at large, its history, geography and traditions, as well as the acquisition of such old-fashioned qualities as courtesy, good breeding and manners, these are disciplines that escape many, and not only among the young but in all age groups.

The so-called generation gap has always been with us. As Mr. Russell noted, it is becoming wider and deeper because of the educational and technological explosion. But young people and adults alike should learn to respect each other as members of the human race. And they should learn to pull together.

Out West, in Victoria, there has been some spanning of the generation gap. The new president of the student council at the University there is 46. Norman (Papa) Wright, a college drop-in after 30 years away from formal education, is father of three and plays drums in a restaurant dance band for a living.

"The youngsters seem to find me interesting," observed Mr. Wright. "It's 'welcome back to the human race,' or 'gee dad, that's tough,' but it's a good relationship." Tough, we presume, because poor "Dad" is 46.

Yet at 46, Mr. Wright is well-placed to span the age barrier. He is neither too young nor too old, and while youthful sallies like "welcome back to the human race" may be amusing they are eloquent of youthful arrogance that people like himself should set out to tame. It is not until a man reaches his kind of age that he really knows anything.

It is the kind of experience Marion Rippon of Ottawa has amassed. Mrs. Rippon, whose success as a fledgling mystery writer was described in this newspaper the other day, is wife of a lawyer and a former nurse in a psychiatric ward.

"After you've lived almost 50 years and have worked closely with people," she said, "you can then sit down and write realistically. I couldn't have done this when I was 20."

There in a nutshell is the voice of experience. And it applies in all walks of life.

Hijackings Continue

The hijackings to Cuba continue — and still no one has come up with an answer to them. U.S. airlines are now offering a reward of $25,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of hijack plotters. Perhaps if the plotters knew what was in store for them they would think twice.

The Castro government is reported to be losing patience with the hijack game, to the extent that the hijackers themselves are unknown quantities and represent more of a nuisance than anything else. On the other hand, with $2,500 a time in landing fees involved, it is difficult to see Cuba moving to put a stop to it.

Meanwhile, a Toronto writer-photographer team has returned from covering the 10th anniversary of the revolution in Cuba. Reg Innell and Wayne Edmonstone had both been in Cuba before and both report the country lacks the color and flamboyance it exhibited in the early days of the Castro takeover. Castro himself has mellowed.

Said Innell on his return to Canada: "When I first went there, two years after the revolution, Castro was a fantastic man to photograph. He was a man of a thousand moods and full of fiery gestures . . . Today he is very calm, very assured — and very dull.

The Cubans themselves have changed a lot, too. The people are restrained. There are no folk dresses, folk dances, none of the magic that used to typify Cuba. Everything is conformity."

Cuba is an enigma, a national phenomenon without parallel anywhere in the world. It is a country that once had close ties with the United States. That it was exploited economically by the United States and was governed by a corrupt regime is undeniable. Yet today it is isolated, in the western world but not of it, and dependent to a large extent on Soviet support. No longer is it the exuberant place visitors knew of old. Hardly fit even for a hijacker.

Jetport Concept—Were County Residents Consulted?

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

A group of local men have recently proposed that a supersonic jetport be built in Prince Edward County. They have even gone to Ottawa, actively soliciting this development for the Quinte area.

I would like to ask these men, as a group, why?

Granted that the location is suitable for an airport, and granted that it would lead to a fantastic industrial and commercial growth. However, do we want it? Do we want the noise? Do we want the pollution? Does the area need money so badly?

I would like the people concerned, not the business people, to express themselves.

Does everyone realize that no one could live within five miles of the runways? That houses, schools, hospitals within 15 miles would need to be soundproofed at great expense? That the value of residential property would decrease? Even people within 30 miles of a supersonic jetport would be affected by the noise, and not even the experts know how to deal with the problems that will arise with the arrival of jumbo jets?

Does everyone realize that the people of West Toronto are objecting strenuously to the expansion of the Toronto airport?

Does anyone think that Prince Edward County would remain a tourist centre, a recreation centre, a place of beauty as it is now? Would anyone camp at the Outlet Park with a continuous stream of supersonic aircraft overhead 24 hours of the day? Not likely!

Now does anyone think it is good for such a development to be dumped on the Quinte region, with a nuclear power plant and Howard Hughes thrown in for good measure? Do we really deserve all this?

Let me ask the men who are promoting this idea, who gave them the right to decide what is good for Prince Edward County and the Quinte district? Did anyone of them ask the people of Picton, or Bloomfield, or Belleville or Trenton?

I suggest that these men are suffering from blind arrogance, and that if they think there is a political advantage in this scheme, they are mistaken.

They will give us all a jetport, and we will remember them every time a jet screams overhead.

I think the promoters of this scheme owe the people of Quinte an explanation and an apology.

It's Still A Bottleneck

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

One of the funniest items in a long time appeared in one of your issues last week.

Like jokes about the Bronx or Brooklyn, the news item on page 2 of the issue of Jan. 29 is strictly topical, and its humor would escape anyone outside this area who might happen to read it. Briefly, it has to do with residents of Prince Edward county complaining about traffic congestion where the new CPR overpass joins Dundas St. West.

As you know, this overpass or phase 1, in conjunction with phase 2 and phase 3, was designed to move traffic at an accelerated rate, and this is what made your news item so priceless.

It would appear that our planners and consultants have made tremendous progress, to the extent that they have succeeded in moving a bottleneck from one area to another.

In recognition of this accomplishment, perhaps some one would like to nominate those responsible for Rowan and Martin's Fickle Finger of Fate award, or its local equivalent, "A Stroll Up Belleville's Garden Path."

Some Aspects of Our Changing Times

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Permit a few remarks on the recent news items. First, the use of Sunday, second, Rochdale (Weekend Magazine, Jan. 18) third, the idea of a Canadian Las Vegas gambling institution.

The Lord's Day suffered a terrific blow in the Centennial Celebration, followed by the announcement that the Toronto Exhibition would be open on Sunday. Now, every small country fair wants to follow the example of the big cities.

The Rochdale article was a sad commentary on youth morality. No wonder the author was shocked and embarrassed. Is this incident, and many just like it, a reflection of the loss of moral and spiritual values, growing from a loss of respect for moral law?

Gambling is growing apace. Gambling at the races is 15 times as much as it was 10 years ago. The National Pari-Mutuel record was — $377,274,980. Now comes the suggestion that we have a Canadian "Las Vegas."

Las Vegas has a population of 144,000 and it had 13,000,000 visitors in 1965. They spent $350,000,000. A Gamblers' Paradise!

When the Belleville Ministerial Association expressed its concern about the contemplated use of Sunday for the Fair, they realized the basic importance of the observance of this day. It is so easy to undermine moral and spiritual principles. Remove the central fact of worship, split the day up into worship, sports, and business, how long is it, till the day is lost? Drop the idea of a Holy Day, how long will it be till you have disrespect for parents, murder, adultery, stealing, lying, and so forth?

Many nations have gone down the drain, violating the Moral Law. At no time in history are they better prepared to blow themselves to bits than they are today.

Red Chinese Doubletalk

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The problem of recognizing Communist China could be solved to our advantage if we could just establish a proper interpretation of their language.

By "their language" I mean the terms in the Red lexicon with their real meaning—A former top Communist editor says the Communists developed a deceptive Aesopean language in order to mislead the non-communist world. And here he gives a few examples:

Peace — non-opposition to communism; peace loving — supporting Communism; peaceful co-existence — non resistance to communist policy and moves toward world conquest; people's democracy — Communist slave state; aggression — any firm action to prevent Communist expansion; oppressed people — those living in countries the Reds wish to seize; liberation — the Communist take-over of a free country; Fascist state — any country which takes firm action against Communist infiltration, espionage and subversion; religious bigot — anyone who opposes the suppression of religious freedom in a communist state.

Water Pollution Experiment Could Kill Fish Population

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I understand the news from Ottawa is that the Federal Fisheries Research Board is deliberately going to pollute 100 lakes in the Kenora district. To find out what?

Have we no more respect for our natural resources than to commit ourselves to a project of this sort? Goodness knows we do not want to add more pollution to our rivers and lakes.

These lakes, no matter where they are situated, are of great value to our economy, especially if they are stocked with pickerel, pike or trout. We need all these waters, and cannot afford to have them destroyed. Dumping pollutants in the lakes is going to make them sterile, so they will not be productive for years to come.

If every person were more pollution conscious, I think it would make the task so much easier for everyone that is working along these lines.

While I am on the subject, I would like to draw your attention to the power plant they are going to erect in Prince Edward. Plants like this one locate along a shore-line so they can dispose their discharge into the lake. I have read many a report on some of these plants in the United States and now they claim problems are starting to show up.

I would like to know what gallonage is going into our waters, and what degree of heat this water will be, because a considerable amount of this could destroy organic matter and could promote the growth of algae, especially in warm weather. I was wondering if this heated water would be put in cooling ponds before it is returned to the lake.

Ottawa Acts to Curb High Cost of Drugs

Kitchener - Waterloo Record

There was a warning note in the voice of Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford when he spoke to the Commons health committee about drug prices. He said he has already told presidents of big drug firms that they should be eager to see his drug bill succeed.

The Basford - sponsored bill, now at the committee stage, is intended to cut retail drug prices by lowering bars to the importing of patented drugs.

Mr. Basford's meaning was quite clear. He says that if this method of reducing drug prices does not succeed, tougher methods will be employed. He tells the big drug firms that they should be happy to lose a little profit, when the alternative is to lose a lot of their profit.

He does not exclude socialism for the drug industry. If Canada's retail drug prices do not come down, Mr. Basford is ready to entertain the idea of having drugs manufactured by a crown corporation. He said as much in reply to a question by Max Saltsman (NDP-Waterloo).

This tough talk may be good education for the big drug companies. Most of them operate in Canada as the subsidiaries of big-American firms. They have not realized that there is a difference between the Canadian and the American attitude toward public ownership of industry.

The Erie Canal was built by private capital; the Welland Canal as a government project. The railway network in the United States is a hodge-podge of competing companies; more than half of all the railway mileage in Canada is a state - run enterprise. The United States has no state airline; we have Air Canada.

It has been the Canadian way for more than a century to put vital services under public control whenever private enterprise is falling down on the job.

Larose Forest

A Lesson in Conservation

Cornwall Standard - Freeholder

Whether it was the result of true foresight or simply a by-product of steps taken to prevent soil erosion, the pioneering of the Larose Forest project near Casselman in 1928 offers a useful lesson in 1969.

Drive along almost any county or township road in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry and you will see an almost shocking amount of marginal land, much of it overgrown with weeds and brush. Such land would be far better producing forest products and obviously would provide a much more attractive countryside.

Few farmers bother to plant trees on such land because it takes more than half an average life-time for such stands to yield cash crops. But it is practical for municipalities to do so and they are beginning to realize this.

There are many advantages to managed forest areas. Good stands of trees help to conserve moisture and thus stabilize the water table; they provide recreational areas where game birds and animals can be expected to prosper; and they create a reservoir of pulp and timber which will help keep the wheels of industry operating when natural supplies of wood and timber dwindle.

The Larose forest is considered one of the largest managed forest areas in North America. It provides jobs for several people and has turned a sandy, barren area into one of the most attractive areas in Eastern Ontario.

Dotted with picnic grounds, it is a bit too far off the beaten track to receive the attention it merits. But construction of Highway 417 from Ottawa to Pointe Fortune is expected to put the forest on the tourist map.

Cary Grant Soldiers on

Here is an item for our How-Time-Flies department: Actor Cary Grant became eligible for U.S. Social Security benefits when he reached the age of 65 last Saturday.

The fact that Cary looks 15 years younger than 65 (at least on film he does) makes those of us who are near 50 and who look like 60, sick with envy.

Piracy Fad Grows

Hijackers on Havana Run Show No Common Purpose

MIAMI (AP) — They're different—like the mystery man in dirty cowboy clothes, the team of 15 with machine-guns and the Negro shouting "Black Power!"—but their destinations are the same. They are the hijackers on the Havana run.

From a comparatively slow start early in the Fidel Castro era, the sky piracy fad caught on in 1968 when 20 commercial airliners and four smaller planes were forced to visit his island.

There have been few parallels in motives on the Havana run.

Cuban authorities said Lawrence Rhodes was the man who commandeered a Delta Air Lines DC-8 jet Feb. 22 last.

"He told us he didn't care who he killed or how badly he shot up the plane," stewardess Joy Bleil of Elmwood Park, Ill., told reoorters after the big jet was allowed to return to Miami. Rhodes was wearing soiled cowboy-style clothes, passengers said.

He was charged with piracy and kidnapping.

Then teamwork developed in the airways. In November, three gunmen took over a jet flying from New York to San Juan, Puerto Rico. The next day a team of five men took a Chicago-to-Miami flight—and even gave the stewardess $20 to buy drinks for all the passengers.

The idea blossomed to its fullest Sunday, Jan. 19, when a team of 15 hijacked an Ecuadorian airliner. Three skyjackers carried sub-machine-guns and one had a bomb. The president of Colombia tried to derail the trip by refusing jet fuel to the plane, but the aerial bandits gained their goal with death threats.

"One of the hijackers told me he wanted to go to Cuba so he could see freedom," stewardess Maria Flores said. "He said: 'Cuba is a paradise. I want equality.'"

Another tense refuelling was part of the story Nov. 5 last when a National Airlines jet set down for fuel at New Orleans and then continued on to Havana. Morris Bedlin, a Miami Beach, Fla., taxi driver, said the hijacker collected money from the passengers as "contraband of war" and said the jet seizure was part of a black nationalist movement.

"He said: 'We're going to take over a new ship every day for 100 days,'" Bedlin told reporters in Miami. The threat failed to materialize.

The age of air piracy was introduced to the world in 1959, four months after Fidel Castro seized power in Cuba. Four men with drawn guns forced their way into the pilot's cabin of an airliner flying across the Caribbean island with 22 passengers aboard. A revolver at the back of the pilot's neck enforced the command to turn for Miami. The four hijackers had been policemen during the regime of the fallen dictator, Fulgencio Batista. They were fleeing Castro's firing squads.

The daring gamble succeeded and the airborne buccaneer was born.

Many more fled Cuba the same way in the muddled days following Castro's revolution. There were four more hijacks in 1959, all coming to Miami. Three followed in 1960.

Antulio Ramirez Ortiz, an American of Puerto Rican birth, turned the tide May 1, 1961. He took control of a National Airlines plane over Florida and forced the first landing of an American passenger plane in Havana. Ramirez, who said he would join Castro, tied himself to history. He booked passage as "Confresi El Pirata"—Spanish for the pirate Confresi, a raider of the Spanish Main.

Four other successful 1961 hijackers were split—two in each direction—and a third headed for Havana was foiled when police shot away the tires of a Continental Airlines jet which landed at El Paso, Tex., for fuel.

The pace slowed to one a year in 1962 and 1963, both going to Cuba, and there were no more for three years. Then in 1967 U.S. army Maj. Richard H. Pearce added a new twist. He stole a rented light plane at Key West, Fla., to fly himself and his four-year-old son to Havana "for personal reasons." Pearce, 36, had a top security clearance as aide to the commander of the 4th Army when he defected May 21. Pearce now is reported to be serving as a teacher of English at the Maximo Gorki language school in Havana.

Ernest M. Hall of Albuquerque, N.M., reopened the book Jan. 30, 1968. He was arrested and charged with grand larceny after U.S. jet interceptors forced a stolen plane down at Key West.

Then the fad boiled to its current, unprecedented level.

Despite the great surge in numbers, sky pirates never lost the individuality that made each a separate story.

A flying school manager sat on the tail of a small plane and used his Luger pistol to keep a student pilot from flying the plane to Cuba in February.

One of three hijackers who took over a Pan American Airways jet in November held a baby in one hand and trained a pistol on the pilot with the other. The hijacker of an Eastern jet Dec. 1 may have listened to his performance on an expensive radio he held to his ear most of the way from Miami to Havana.

The threat of aerial disaster is always present along the Havana run. A young man with a Mexican passport hijacked a Peruvian jetliner carrying 110 passengers—all but 22 of them exchange students bound for homes in the United States. He told the cockpit crew: "My life doesn't matter. Neither do the lives of you or the passengers. I want to go to Havana."

It is this constant threat that has spurred the search for a cure to hijackings. In the early stages, the U.S. Congress passed a law providing a minimum penalty of 20 years in prison and a maximum of death. But the hijackers weren't deterred. Suggestions since have ranged from a metal detector to spot weapons to teaching karate to stewardesses.

Money is being offered as a hope. A bill now before Congress provides a $30,000 reward for apprehension and conviction of anyone who hijacks an American plane, and calls for on-board safeguards.

The airlines—burdened with the high cost of the illegal trips—are hard at work on prevention. But to make the trip safer until a solution is found, Eastern, Delta and National airline pilots have been issued cards printed in Spanish and English to aid communication between the pilot and his unwelcome passengers.

U.S. carriers have established a good credit link with the Fidel Castro regime to help ensure accommodation and quick return of planes and passengers.

Neutral Switzerland, which represents the United States in Cuba, handles the plan. Cuba bills the Swiss embassy in Havana for landing fees, fuel, weather reports, food and lodging for passengers.

The cost runs $2,500 to $3,500 a trip. But the expense doesn't stop there. The plane usually returns with only the crew and others must be sent for the passengers. And a pirated plane is out of service to the airline. An Eastern spokesman puts the total cost at $7,500 to $10,000 a hijack.

A point of mystery is the future of the hijackers themselves. They generally disappear after they leave the plane and head for the terminal in Havana, under guard. U.S. officials say the Cuban government treats them "as the nuts and criminals they are, rather than heroes." Some reports say they are imprisoned. A U.S. state department official disagrees, however.

He says the hijackers are "carted off to jail for at least two to three weeks."

"Then they're put under house arrest indefinitely, with big brother watching all the time."

At least two accused hijackers, and possibly a third, have fled Cuba. The Key West Citizen reported the other day that William Alben Barkley Truitt, charged with hijacking a private plane to Cuba last October, is in Canada.

Two men are in custody in the U.S. Leonard S. Bendicks, a 33-year-old former schoolteacher from Williamsport, Pa., is undergoing a mental check. And Willis Jessie, a 27-year-old U.S. Army deserter, is awaiting trial.

Jessie took his two-year-old daughter to Cuba with him. When he returned, he said: "I know I will have to go to jail. But my only hope now is to ensure my daughter's future. We had no future in Cuba."

Nothing to Lose

Frustration and Failure Face Plane Hijackers

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — His life has been a nightmare of frustration and failure. Mentally, he is overwhelmed by his own problems, tortured by the unrest abroad in the world. Life, black and ugly, offers him nothing but despair.

Before he goes, he must stage one big, dramatic play—something that will restore the long-lost respect of family and friends, raise him above the faceless mob, give him back some semblance of pride.

He has nothing to lose.

High in the sky, he pulls a gun and muscles his way into the cockpit of an airliner.

"Cuba!" he barks. "Cuba!" The loud voice masks his fear. His finger is nervous on the trigger.

The pilot obeys the command, swinging south for Havana. He can do nothing that might irritate or frighten the gunman and touch off a shooting that could lead to disaster.

For once in a miserable life, the skyjacker has found his moment of power. Now the world will take notice of him.

But the glory is short-lived. The plane touches down at Jose Marti Airport. Cuban militiamen surround it. The hijacker surrenders his gun. He is led away into oblivion. One again, he is a faceless nobody.

He is the phenomenon of his age, and he is one of many—the ne'er-do-well, the criminal fugitive, the military deserter, the exile devoured by his homesickness, the hopeless. Most are young men and all share one common agony—minds in turmoil.

Behind the guns, the knives and the grenades, the skyjackers are a varied lot, but they break down into definite types.

The fearful: A shaggy-haired youth of 19 told the stewardess of a National Airlines plane he was afraid he would be sent to Vietnam. "I don't want to go there!" he cried. "I don't want to kill!"

The ne'er-do-well: Willie Jessie, 25, was a U.S. Army deserter and a failure divorced by his wife. Cuba, he thought, might offer him "a future," so he hijacked a private plane, taking his two-year-old daughter, Patricia, with him. Five months later, he made his way back. "I know I will have to go to jail," he said, "but my only hope now is for a future for my daughter."

The mental case: Oran Richards, 33, told the crew of a Delta plane he was dying of cancer and babbled that, "the Masons are injecting me with light rays.' Sobbing, he dropped his gun, was captured by the crew and has since been committed to an institution.

The fugitive: Lawrence Rhodes, facing kidnapping and armed robbery charges in West Virginia, told a Delta stewardess: "I face the electric chair, anyway. Ive got nothing to lose."

The militant: the Negro wore the uniform of the Black Panther movement—black beret, black jacket and boots. "Black Power!" he shouted. "Black Power!

The subversive: Three gunmen took over a Colombian airliner and forced it to Cuba. They were Castro agents, said Bogota newspapers, going home after a mission to stir up trouble in Colombia. The hijacker of another plane said, "Fidel has ordered me back. This is the easiest way to go."

The homesick: Mario Velazquez Fonseca had fled Cuba on a home-made raft. Now, a year later, he was going back. Holding a gun on a stewardess, he told her, "the homesickness is eating me up."

Raises Question Locally

Federal Funds May Vanish from Renewal Schemes

Possible withdrawal of federal funds from urban renewal schemes has raised the question locally as to how Belleville's proposed urban renewal scheme might be effected.

Currently a Toronto firm of planning consultants, Procter, Redfern, Bousfield and Bacon is doing an urban renewal study for the city's downtown and Foster Ward areas with their report expected some time during the summer.

In the meantime city Alderman Gerald Joyce is wondering whether withdrawal of federal funds from urban renewal schemes would result in any change in the consultants' report and recommendations.

The alderman asked if there would be any merit in contacting the consultants to learn what change might be made in plans and recommendations.

City plainning director Bert Kenny expected there would be alternate courses of remedial action which the planning consultants might take in making their report.

He expected that any withdrawal of federal funds would have some effect on the report and said it might be a good idea to contact the consultants.

On approved urban renewal schemes, the federal and provincial governments now share 75 per cent of certain costs such as land acquisition, and demolition of buildings with the municipality paying the remaining 25 per cent.

However, the report of transport minister Paul Hellyer's task force on housing last week called for an end to large scale urban renewal and public housing projects.

In their place it recommended rent subsidies for the poor, the purchase of existing homes for low rental accommodation and rigid enforcement of municipal housing standards to eliminate slums.

The report called on the federal government to initiate a thorough research program into the economic, social and psychological issues of public housing.

Until such a study is completed and assessed, no new large scale projects should be undertaken, the report urged.

The new policy advocated would be designed to establish the principle that property owners be required to maintain their premises up to minimum standards. When such premises were worn out owners would be required to destroy them without compensation.

The existing system of buying up decrepit houses in areas designated for urban renewal projects, it was argued, was ready-made for exploitation, and benefitted only the slum landlord who ran his house into the ground and then collected from the government when it was expropriated for urban renewal.

Trenton Students To Work Free

TRENTON — If you need a secretary free of charge, a stenographer to work for nothing or any sort of office personnel at no cost, then Trenton High Shcool has the answer to your problems.

This month the 58 commercial course students of the graduating class at the school will begin to spend one week out of school to gain on the job experience.

This work experience program is in its fourth year and students participating are expected to do any tasks required of them by their "employers."

Miss Anne Johnson, commercial director at Trenton High School, said the program has always met with success in the past and this year more students than ever are out for a job.

"In many instances the week these students spend in gaining practical experience results in their getting a job," explained Miss Johnson.

This week will mark the first stage of the program for the students and upon completion the students will be making a report on just what they did during the week and what they learned while doing it.

In addition the employers are given a questionaire to answer. This will rate the performance of the pupil in areas of punctuality, working ability and appearance.

Letters informing employers of the program have been circulated in the area and label the program as one which would provide benefit "ultimately to the co-operating employers."

And the most "co-operating employer", according to Miss Johnson, has been Bata Engineering in Batawa.

"They have three students this week and will be taking two more next week," she said.

Fowl By-law Includes Rooster

PICTON (Staff) — According to town clerk A. N. Jarvis, the by-law prohibiting the keeping of domestic fowl in Picton is valid by definition.

He said that by his dictionary's definition for fowl is defined as "any winged vertebrate" and this he said includes a rooster.

The by-law was passed as the result of a petition from a ratepayer in the town who complained that a neighbor's rooster was disturbing his family's peace.

Council then passed a prohibiting resolution that no fowl could be kept within the town limits.

The new by-law will probably stand because according to the new American College Dictionary the definition of fowl is, "a domestic or barnyard hen or rooster.

Poor Weather Cuts Attendance

Icy roads and adverse weather conditions cut attendance at the Hastings County federation of agriculture annual meeting and banquet held Friday evening at the United Church in Madoc.

Only about one half of the people who had purchased tickets braved the elements and made it to the banquet.

But president Charles Fargey had a welcome for members who were able to get to the meeting and reviewed the county federation activities during the past year.

David Crone, director of research and marketing, OFA Toronto outlined the work of the federation at the provincial level and stressed the need of a single general farm organization and the part which farmers must take to attain it.

He referred to the import of British made tractors and the cost savings possible and said there were requests for many more of the imported machines.

Other speakers during the evening were Mr. Cayley, fieldman for the OFA and county agricultural representative Douglas Tipper who reported on the county farm service club, made up of the soil and crop improvement association, the plowmen's association and the farm safety council.

Banquet guests were entertained by the United Church Junior Choir under the direction of Mrs. Robert Devolin.

New officers elected are as follows: OFA member, Charles Fargey of Stirling, president, Donald Martin, Tweed, vice president, Donald Sills, Halloway, second vice president Alex McCurdy, Stirling.

Secretary is Wilfred Forestell of Madoc township, treasurer, Allan McDonell, Stirling, and press secretary, Mrs. W. Forestell.

Directors are Arthur Bates, Roslin, Russell Sills, West Huntingdon, James Thompson, Harold, Ralph Clement, Stirling, Robert Mallory, Frankford, Glen Bush, Stirling and Griffin Ketcheson, Foxboro.

Ontario Legislature Reopens Tuesday With Lively Debates

TORONTO (CP) — A lively question period marked the reopening Tuesday of the second session of the 28th Ontario legislature, sparking a series of debates which kept Speaker Fred Cass busy maintaining order.

Questions posed included those on the federal-provincial conference on the constitution in Ottawa next week, tax-sharing arrangements between the two governments and the provincial tax-rebate program.

Premier John Robarts also tabled correspondence with Prime Minister Trudeau on the agenda for the federal-provincial conference, and two reports—one by the Ontario telephone service commission and the other by the provincial auditor—were also tabled.

Mr. Robarts told Liberal Leader Robert Nixon that Ontario has approved the federal-provincial conference agenda but "approval does not necessarily constitute hard and fast agreement on the order of business."

Earlier in the session he denied he had supported the premiers of the Prairie provinces in their opposition to the federal government's proposed official languages act.

"It was not my intention in a press conference Monday to say I supported the position of the three premiers," Mr. Robarts said.

He said he told a news conference Ontario will be represented before the Supreme Court if the act is challenged, "but I did not say I supported the position of the three premiers."

Replying to a question by NDP Leader Donald MacDonald, who asked for details on new tax-sharing arrangements, Mr. Robarts said Ontario can increase its personal income tax rates twice a year, on Jan. 1 and July 1.

Under the Fiscal Arrangements Act, effective until 1972, the federal government now rebates to Ontario 28 per cent of income taxes.

In other legislature business Tuesday:

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said a tenant who refuses to pay his rent or part of his rent if his landlord refuses him his provincial tax rebate might find himself faced with an action for collection of rent.

However, it might be an unwise landlord who started such an action since he would likely be met by a requirement that the amount of the rebate be deducted from the rent, he said in reply to a question by James Bullbrook (L—Sarnia).

—Leslie Rowntree, minister of financial and commercial affairs, said the province is not considering setting up an arbitration board—similar to one operating in Manitoba—for hearing disputes over repair bills between motorists and garage operators.

—The telephone service commission said in its annual report that negotiations are under way or completed for sale within the next few years of 24 independent telephone systems operating in Ontario.

Cash Advances for West's Farmers Stalled by House Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — Western grain farmers will have to wait a bit longer for interest-free cash advances of up to $600 to help them dry their crop.

The Commons spent Tuesday re-plowing the familiar furrow of damp-grain problems on the Prairies and at 10 p.m. adjournment a Conservative MP was still lashing the government for its handling of the situation.

The proposed amendments to the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act reached the committee stage of study. The debate was adjourned indefinitely, but will likely resume in a few days.

Today the House is to consider Finance Minister Edgar Benson's proposed changes in estate-tax legislation.

On the grain-payments bill, opposition MPs called for appointment of a federal transport controller to unravel snags in the movement of grain to ports.

George Muir (PC—Lisgar) said such a controller would be useful even if he served for only a brief period.

John Burton (NDP—Regina East) supported the controller proposal. There was no excuse for the pileup of damp and tough grain in Vancouver elevators.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), an Alberta grain farmer, said there are reports that only half of the grain driers on the prairies are in use, although some 600,000,000 bushels still needed treatment.

However, grain movement was an even more urgent problem. About 120 boxcars of dry grain were sitting at a railway siding in his riding. "All they need is a train."

He said some farmers are resorting to selling their grain independently, which was illegal but understandable because of their lack of confidence in the government.

Along with other MPs, he welcomed greater advance payments to help meet drying costs but wondered whether the money would go toward that purpose. There was no practical way of checking grain moisture content on every farm.

Don Mazankowski (PC — Vegreville) said the government was guilty of "incredible mishandling" of the damp-grain problem.

Its policies had failed to get "the right grain to the right place at the right time." Japanese importers were demanding indemnities because of the low quality of some Canadian grain, and others were complaining of the delays their ships faced at Vancouver.

Otto Lang (Saskatoon-Humboldt), minister without portfolio, said drying operations are being delayed by adverse weather. He accused the opposition of using the grain problem for "petty political advantage."

On this and similar debates the opposition sought to "assess blame in the glory of hindsight two or three months later."

Gerald W. Baldwin (Peace River), Conservative House leader, said Mr. Lang would not expedite legislation by such criticism. The opposition had a right to seek to improve proposed legislation.

Jack McIntosh (PC — Swift Current-Maple Creek) was still storming at Mr. Lang and the government at the time of adjournment.

Dope Pushers Selling Drugs With Harmful Toxic Effects

MONTREAL (CP) — Dope pushers are selling addicts drugs mixed with impurities which can have extremely harmful toxic effects, says a leading member of the Quebec College of Pharmacists.

"Users of marijuana or LSD—a hallucinatory drug—think they're buying them in their pure or refined form," said Dr. J. Auguste Mockle in an interview. "Instead, pushers mix in all-kinds of impurities which together with the actual effect of the drug can be disastrous to the person taking them.

"If the addict finds it necessarv to change pushers he again is subjected to new impurities. He never really feels what he might if the drug had been administered by a medical researcher."

Dr. Mockle, a determined man in his early 40s, and the father of a 16-year-old son, has spent most of his life in pharmaceutical research.

He obtained his PhD in pharmacy in Paris and now lectures at the University of Montreal.

He is also directing an intensive province - wide education campaign to be launched in April by the Quebec College of Pharmacists and aimed at teaching teen-agers and adults "all the facts" about drugs and narcotics.

"We're not going to say, 'Don't use drugs' but we're going to tell them, through bilingual pamphlets made available at every pharmacy, through films, radio broadcasts and televised panel discussions, exactly what happens under the influence of various drugs and narcotics. Then it's their decision."

A note of alarm was sounded by the college when recent surveys showed about 10 per cent of Canada's young people—those between the ages of 14 and 25—were using some form of drug.

In Canada, the number of convictions for drug addiction doubled from 1967 to 1968. During the same period, prosecutions for offences involving the use of marijuana increased by 150 per cent while general violations of the Narcotics Act increased by 110 per cent.

RCMP say the illegal use of drugs has become the main target in the police fight against crime.

Within the last year police have uncovered 16 cases in Montreal alone where young people of less than 25 years had gradually passed from hallucinogenic drugs to the true narcotics.

"Heaven only knows how many more such cases we don't know about," said Dr. Mockle.

How can a parent tell if his son or daughter is using drugs or narcotics?

"Unfortunately it is very difficult," says the expert. "Communication barriers usually exist between parent and child and that's where the problem probably began. If children can't talk to their parents about everything—and I do mean absolutely everything—then their fears, tensions and anxieties in a changing world may lead them to experiment, to listen to a pusher who's a good salesman."

Should a parent find a small bag of marijuana in a boy's pockets while cleaning out jackets or trousers before sending them to the cleaner, don't remove the evidence, warns Dr. Mockle.

"Lumps of sugar found in coat pockets or drawers are also a warning tip to parents.

"Instead of confronting a son or daughter, begin to watch him closely. Try to establish where he is getting the supply from and where his money is coming from to obtain these drugs.

"Then, instead of making contact with the police, call the narcotics bureau, which may be able to find the source of the supply and take some constructive action.

"Students approached on college campuses by pushers should try to find out something about them and then inform the narcotics bureau immediately. Sometimes a clue can lead investigators to a pusher and perhaps save many young people from being led astray by a strong sales pitch."

Dr. Mockle says all drugs are dangerous.

"And that includes marijuana which some people say isn't harmful. Remember that a drug changes a person's behavior pattern. When he takes marijuana or hashish—which, incidentally, is marijuana under a different name—he modifies his behavior. Then he becomes curious to know just what his behavior would be like under the influence of a stronger dosage of that drug or of a stronger drug and that's how it all begins—the LSD, then morphine or heroin. . . ."

"The addict thinks he is developing his personality, ridding himself of inhibitions and discovering his 'real' self when in reality he is creating a new personality but only while on the drug.

"This temporary new personality has a completely new set of inhibitions, feelings and complexes.

"When the drug user returns to his normal state he isn't emancipated mentally. He's right back where he started from although some of the physical and mental damage done if the dosage has been too strong may ruin his mental health or even kill him."

CLUB 4-H NOTES

MELROSE NIFTY NEEDLERS

The first meeting of Melrose 1 Needlecraft was held on Jan. 27, at the home of Mrs. Betty Summers.

The election of officers was held and Connie Stratton is president with Gloria McFarlane as 1st vice ;the press reporter is Patsy Pascoe. The name decided on was Melrose Nifty Needlers. Next meeting will be held on Feb. 8 at Mrs. Bernice Stratton's home.

Mrs. Summers discussed "The History of Embroidery," and Mrs. Stratton discussed the "Color Scheme."

Home for Indian Girls Is Established

TORONTO (CP) — At a big comfortable house in the central area of Toronto, a co-operative home for Indian girls has been established to help them adapt to the city way of life and find employment.

The home, operated by the Young Women's Christian Association, was the idea of the local Council of Women and the Indian-Eskimo Association in Toronto. It can house 15 girls at a time.

Members of the council and association were concerned because Indian girls were coming to the city without money or job training and were quickly becoming lonely and unhappy. In some cases they were arrested for vagrancy.

Life for Indian girls like 19-year-old Linda Corbiere of Manitoulin Island has changed.

Linda, who would like to be a nursing assistant, has an attractively decorated bedroom, white-painted chests, bright bedspreads and drapes.

During the first two weeks she stayed at the home, she took part in an orientation program. She was shown around the city, acquainted with facilities and taught how to get from one place to another.

She met counsellors who assessed her interests and capabilities and was taken to a hospital to see the type of employment she likes.

After the first two weeks, the girls are ready to start school.

Many of them have dropped out of school at Grade 7 and will have to upgrade their academic work before they begin vocational training.

The Toronto board of education and Canada Manpower centres are assisting the girls in counselling as well as Indian people who have already adjusted to the city life.

The housemother is Josephine Beaucage, a motherly Indian woman who worked at the Elliot Lake centre for continuing education before coming to Toronto. House director is Glenna Graham, a young social worker.

Denise Akiwenzie, a Centennial College graduate who came from the Cape Croker reserve, is Mrs. Beaucage's assistant.

At the moment, three months has been set as the maximum time each girl may stay at the home. After that, counsellors help them find other accommodation.

The federal department of Indian affairs gives each girl $10 a week pocket money and for most of them it's all the money they'll have until they start working. The department also pays their room and board and education expenses.

Many of the girls become "big sisters" after they leave the home and work to help new girls who have come to see the lights of the city..

WEDDING

DUNHAM — RUPERT

Rev. Owen G. Barrow, Rector of the Church of the Nativity, Toronto officiated at the recent wedding ceremony when Patricia Marilyn Rupert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs John Rupert was united in marriage to Richard Gordon Dunham, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Dunham of Belleville.

Mrs. Paul Zakos of Belleville attended the bride, while Dr. Richard Kidd of Boston, brother-in-law of the bridegroom was best man.

Due to inclement weather conditions, the ceremony which was to have been performed in the Church of Nativity, Toronto was solemnized at the Ports of Call with the reception held in the Bali-Ili-Room.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Grace Merry, Shannonville, has returned home from spending a week with her sister, Mrs. Irene Cowles, RR 1, Prescott. While there she attended the funeral of her brother - in - law, Vernon Cowles who passed away on Jan. 29, 1969.

Churches Hold Congregational Meetings

(TABERNACLE UCW)

Past president Mrs. E. Cornish presided at the regular meeting of Tabernacle United Church Women held recently in the Sunday School auditorium. She expressed appreciation to all for their co-operation during her two-year term in office.

The new officers for 1969 were installed by minister of the church Rev. R. Crooks. Following the installation the new president Mrs. B. Stenson took over and first of all reminded the members of the World Day of Prayer to be held March 2, in the New Salvation Army Citadel.

Mrs. Burley, the new program convener called on Rev. Crooks who gave a most comprehensive talk on the meaning of the United Church of Canada crest. This crest adorns pulpits, legal documents, scarf worn by the moderator and is carved in stone at the entrance of the new headquarters of the United Church of Canada. He described in detail each of the symbols and what they represented.

The worship service was under the direction of Unit 3 with Mrs. Harrison reading the Scripture.

A social hour was held at the end of the meeting with Unit 6 in charge.

(CHRIST CHURCH)
Belleville

Christ Church Annual Meeting was held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening Jan. 27. The Rector opened the meeting with prayer and mentioned that he had given his report at the services on the Sunday.

The Vestry Clerk was Mrs. Mary Fletcher who presented the minutes of the past vestry meeting and moved their adoption. The Wardens report was given by the People's Warden Mr. Richard Beare, and showed a good response.

Canon Wright welcomed the opportunity to thank all those present for their support and especially the Rev. David Hawkins, who was appointed curate at Christ Church in October to take the place of the Reverend Allan Lauder.

An every member visitation by the laity of the parish will be undertaken shortly to assure support for the new and increased budget for 1969 which was accepted by the Vestry.

Those elected to office for 1969 were: Rectors Warden Richard Beare; People's Warden: Rodney Caverly, Deputy Warden: Kenneth Daley, Lay Delegates to Synod: B. Wright Jack Ellis, Mrs. Ronald Godden, Mrs. Phylis Cherry, Mr. B. A. Lewis, Mr. Douglas McLean. Various vestry council members were also elected at their time.

The Parish Guild served refreshments at the close of the meeting.

(Point Anne United)

The annual congregational meeting of the Point Anne United Church was held Jan. 29, with a reasonably good attendance. Rev. H. F. Swann opened the meeting with prayer.

The reports of the various organizations of the church were read and approved, followed by an election for the guiding officials of the congregation.

Gary Anderson and Eugene Derushie were elected to three year terms, on the board of session. T. Horwood was reelected as the Clerk of Sessions, and Sunday School Superintendent.

The appointments to the official board were: Mrs. C. Sedore; Mrs. R. Sedore; and Fred MacDonald; Douglas Doxtator; Graham Horwood; Don Akey; Ron Sedore and Keith Anderson.

The church treasurer for 1969 was Ralph Sedore. Fred MacDonald is chief usher, with E. R. Anderson in charge of the offering bearers. Gordon Crossfield's contract as assistant to Rev. H. F. Swann, was renewed by the Point Anne charge.

Rev .Swann closed the meeting with the bendiction, after which the women of the U.C.W. served a delicious lunch.

Premier's Wife Likes New Life

EDMONTON (CP) — Ruth Strom, the dark-eyed wife of Alberta's premier, says she would not turn back the clock to the more peaceful days when she was a rancher's wife.

"If you had asked me that when we first moved here six years ago I wouldn't have answered that way. But now Edmonton is home."

A member of the Alberta legislature for 13 years and a cabinet minister since 1962, Harry E. Strom was chosen to succeed Premier E. C. Manning at the Social Credit party's first leadership convention Dec. 6.

Of Swedish stock like her husband, whom she married 30 years ago, the former Ruth Johnson says she was a Social Crediter before they met.

She says she feels humble about her new role and is somewhat unsure what her new duties will be.

"It's so early yet. . . . I don't know whether I'll be expected to entertain a good deal. . . . I don't seem to have much time to relax these days."

The premier's wife is firm about one thing. She does not mix with politics.

"I'm interested in all the departments. It would be strange, as a family, if we were not. But I'm not a politician."

WIFE OF PREMIER — Although Ruth Strom, wife of Alberta's premier, refuses to mix with politics, she says also she would not prefer the more peaceful days as a rancher's wife. Premier Harold Strom was chosen to succeed Premier Manning at the Social Credit party's first leadership convention Dec. 6. (CP Photo)

She was secretary of the Social Credit women's auxiliary in her husband's Cypress constituency before they moved to Edmonton when he became minister of agriculture, and now is vice-president of the auxiliary in Strathcona West.

Mr. Strom, who became minister of municipal affairs two years ago, refused when he was first asked to run for the leadership. He changed his mind after talking it over with his family.

The six children are Howard, 28; Faith, 27, an instructor in pathology at the University of Alberta; Beverley, 25, now travelling in Australia; Brian, 21, a university student; Ron, 18, and Arlene, 9.

Mrs. Strom said it became evident early in the leadership campaign that her husband had an excellent chance to win.

She feels the lively convention stirred up interest in the party. Albertans had become somewhat uninvolved in politics during Mr. Manning's 25 years in office, trusting to the premier to take care of things.

Before Mr. Strom was elected to the legislature, Mrs. Strom played the piano at Cypress constituency meetings. She is a deaconess in the Evangelical Free Church.

How to REDUCE the SIZE of your HIPS
Relax-A-cizor carries the SEAL of the NATIONWIDE CONSUMER TESTING INSTITUTE, Inc.
■ NOW — reduce the size of hips, waistline, abdomen and thighs while you rest at home. No effort! No weight loss! Relax-A-cizor is different!
■ Here's how it works! Many adult women lack good muscle tone because they don't get enough exercise. Relax-A-cizor gives effortless, concentrated exercise to such figure areas as hips, waistline, abdomen and thighs. Regular use causes these areas to reduce in size measurably to the extent these muscles lack tone because of insufficient exercise. And the less the muscle tone the greater the degree of size reduction.

Halibut Steaks Make an Economical Dish

By MARY MOORE

"But it was so economical. I only paid 99 cents per pound for it and no waste!" My daughter-in-law Margaret was talking about the halibut steaks which we were eating. They were delicious and juicy. Their reasonable price was an appetizer too.

The little thin wheels of peeled lemon all over the tops of the halibut steaks were flavor and garnish plus factors. Do not skip this professional lemon topping.

BROILED HALIBUT STEAKS
(Serves 4)

(NOTE: You may use steaks or fillets of any kind of fish — salmon steaks and inexpensive fish fillets are equally good variations.)

1½ lbs. halibut steaks (two 12-oz. pkges. fresh frozen) or salmon steaks or fish fillets
About 2 lemons (see below)
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. MSG
⅛ tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. melted butter
¼ tsp. paprika

Cover the rack on your broiler pan with heavy duty foil and turn up the edges slightly. Butter it and place fish steaks or fillets on it. Peel one of the lemons with a sharp knife removing rind and white pith as you peel. Slice water thin and cover fish fillets with these little lemon wheels. Squeeze the juice from second lemon and mix it with the salt, MSG, pepper, melted butter and paprika and pour over fish. Preheat oven to 400 deg. Fahr. Place broiler pan five inches from broiler burner and broil fish until done — a ¾" thick steak requires about 20 min. Broil until fish and lemon are flecked with deep gold. Test thickest part of one to see if the fish will flake. Carefully transfer to preheated platter. Lift foil carefully and pour excess juice on it over fish. Garnish with parsley and lemon twists and serve.

Successful Living

Mother Tends to Alienate Her Two Daughters

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I'm married and in my early forties, and I have a sister six years my junior. From as far back as I can remember my mother has compared us, and has made me feel inadequate and inferior.

Being the eldest I have, in the past, helped my sister when she had twins and badly needed it, always available for babysitting, ironing, polishing and I never minded as I loved the kiddies. Whatever was done was never enough as far as my mother was concerned. The worst part was being picked to pieces behind my back so that eventually my sister and I have been alienated.

A few months ago I lost my patience and told my mother my thoughts on everything, which really shocked her.

Being bad friends with them upsets me but I feel I just can't crawl to them again to find favor. My husband (who is a wonderful person, as I've been told over and over again, as if I'm not worthy of him), says, "Let them alone, they have always managed to leave you in a state of nerves after their visit." — Still Shaky

Dear Shaky: A mother who would set one daughter against another needs her head read. Sisters are precious and ought to be warm, helpful friends all their lives.

Yet mothers aren't all motherly. They are people, with human foibles — some more than others. I'd need to know more background to find out what gives here.

You took your first constructive step when you opened up to the fault-finder. Next step is to make a point of talking with your sister, alone. You may be sure she worries about your estrangement, and needs help in seeing your side of all this.

Since you have no habit of speaking up for yourself, I am suggesting difficult things — but you have spunk and you need your sister. Start a new trend and claim her back.

Dear Doris: At work I consider myself to be very efficient, and yet if I stay later to do something for myself, I'm asked if I haven't anything better to do. (This is on my own time.) Others can stand around and talk for the length of time it takes to smoke a cigarette.

I was told because of my ability I am respected and I should be satisfied, but I'm not. It isn't because the other person gets away with it that irks me. It's because I feel it isn't justified. If I do confide in anyone it sounds like self-pity.

I have even thought of giving up my job. Would I be biting off my nose to spite my face?

I am a very strong person on the outside but inside my emotions suffer terribly. I am the mother of a grown family and I find myself in such a predicament! But they don't know about it. — Picked On.

Dear Picked On: You have an image of yourself which makes no allowances for human weakness. As mother of a family you have ruled the roost; many have looked to you for strength over the years.

Then self-doubts crop up in a business office, and self-assurance is gone with the wind. Or with the hot air from somebody who senses your uncertainty. Doubtless the talkative smoker would snap back at a criticism. You won't.

No, don't quit your job; you are doing fine. Do find someone to unload to; and don't expect perfection, either in yourself or the people you work with.

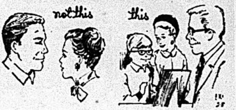
Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Father: "Maybe Jimmy has trouble reading because of poor eyesight. He seems to get a headache when he reads for any length of time."

Mother: "The school nurse said he passed the eyesight test they gave at school."

Eyesight tests at school may measure only a child's ability to read a set of letters at a 20-foot distance. He should have his eyes tested more thoroughly for other vision problems, especially if he is having difficulty with school work.

Poor vision, undetected an an early age, can produce poor reading and slow learning. Perhaps a child cannot focus and see clearly at near distances, or he may lack the facility of making eyes work together.

Belleville Presbyterial UCW Holds Annual Meet in Picton

The seventh annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial United Church Women was held at Picton United Church, Jan. 28 and 29 with the theme of the meeting "Is Your World too Small?" All sessions were presided over by the president, Mrs. Harry Pearson of Wellington.

Speaker at the evening session was Rev. Warren H. Brueigh, minister of program and leadership development of Woodruffe United Church in Ottawa.

As an introduction to his address those present were divided into groups where they briefly discussed the areas of concern or problems to them or the women they know. Among these were personal concerns, family concerns, community concerns, regional concerns, provincial and international concerns.

Music during the evening was supplied by the quartet from Picton United Church. Greetings were extended at this time by Rev. R. F. Sherwin of Picton.

On Wednesday morning greetings were extended by Mrs. Earl Welbanks, president of Picton UCW and by Miss Vina Neal, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Women. She announced that the conference annual meeting would be held March 3, at King Street United Church, Trenton. The Regional Conference for Women will be held this year at Queen's University, on June 20-22. This is arranged by the Bay of Quinte, Ottawa and Montreal Conference and this year will also include the Anglican Women of the same area. The school for leaders will be held at Albert College, Belleville Aug. 22-24.

Mrs. T. W. Spear, literature secretary spoke on the literature available. Mrs. V. Zutelt spoke on Camp Quin-Mo-Lac and presented their needs. At the present time there are three needs — more counsellors, more campers and more help financially.

The speakers for Wednesday were Rev. and Mrs. Russell Young, missionaries from Korea. Rev. Young works in rural evangelism and Mrs. Young is a nurse and also teaches English. Both said that in Korea today large cities are quite westernized but that the rural sections are still living 200 years behind the times. The people are full of superstitions and all life is full of spirits. They said that the need for education is great and most rural women over 40 cannot read or write, and while many are now receiving an education it is always the male who receives first chance.

The missionaries work with the church in Korea and their job is to encourage not push. Today they are trying to meet the needs of the total man. In medical work they help staff the hospital in the cities but the need is great in rural areas.

Lunch was served by the Picton UCW and the afternoon session opened with devotions conducted by the Napanee UCW. A solo was rendered by Mrs. Ronald Colliver of Picton. The afternoon presentation took the form of a skit and told about the new stewardship services department which will take effect in 1970.

Rev. R. T. Sherwin conducted the election of officers as follows: president, Mrs. Harry Pierson of Wellington; vice-president-elect Mrs. T. W. Spear, Trenton; recording secretary, Mrs. Henry Gray, Picton RR 5; corresponding secretary, Miss Helen Sexsmith, Napanee; treasurer, Mrs. Ernest Ward, Picton, and regional vice-presidents, for Hastings Centre, Mrs. George Williams, Stirling RR 1; Hastings South, Mrs. Norman Campey, Carrying Place RR 1; Prince Edward, East and West, Mrs. Eric Foster, Picton RR 2; and Lennox and Addington, Mrs. George Collings of Napanee RR 7.

Portfolio secretaries as well as chairmen of standing c[illegible] were also elected at this time.

Doctor Suggests Artificial Insemination

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been married 14 months. He is just now recovering from a serious illness and the doctor has told us he will never be able to father a child. The doctor suggested that I become pregnant by artificial insemination.

I am a Catholic and I do not know if artificial insemination is forbidden by the Church. I don't want to ask a priest because it would embarrass me. Also, the Church has been changing some of its rules and I am not sure our parish priest would be up on the latest.

This was a crushing blow to us, Ann, and we both feel that if I could have a child, even with a donor, it would be more like our very own than if we adopted.

Please check with your constultants and tell us what is the position of the Catholic Church on this matter. — ANXIOUS.

DEAR ANXIOUS: Monsignor John J. Paul of La Crosse, Wisconsin has provided me with the information. The Catholic Church forbids artificial insemination. Monsignor Paul suggests, however, that you explore this problem with a priest who has your confidence and also a competent gynecologist. There could be a solution to your problem which is acceptable to the Church — one of which you are not aware.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You're great when it comes to human problems, but your advice on diamonds — well, you're in the rough. Watch for hundreds of letters from retail jewelers. Then set the facts straight so you can again be a girl's best friend. And ours.

You didn't mention the cut of the diamond as being an important factor in determining the cost, along with the clarity, weight and color. And please, Ann, get the price right. Our phone hasn't stopped ringing since your column appeared in the Burlington Free Press. — WILLIAM PRESTON, JR. President Elect, Retail Jewelers of America.

DEAR W.P.: I refuse to fink to save myself, but my consultants were individuals who spoke for three fine Chicago jewelers. (I now fear they were Christmas help who had no authority to speak for the jeweler and I got bum information across the board.)

I've had bleats from Maine to California, but the wildest yelps came from Billings, Montana. (The sweetest letter came from the Executive Director of the American Gem Society.) In addition to my sins of omission, I was wrong about the price. So, I repeat, if you don't know your gems, know your jeweler. And my humble apologies to one and all.

* * *

Confidential to NOT GULLIBLE: I didn't ask you to believe it, but it seems odd that you doubt the validity of his story when your own life is pretty far out. Remember, to "the other fellow" you are "the other fellow."

Jean-Noel Tremblay Flays French-only Advocates in Quebec

QEBEC (CP) — Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay, one of Quebec's staunchest nationalists, lashed out Tuesday at "extremist" French-only solutions to the province's language problems.

His ire was provoked when a small group raised as a possible solution "the pure and simple confiscation of the property of the English."

This solution threatened the stability of Quebec, Mr. Tremblay said when he heard Monique Lanctot read the suggestion in a brief from the 600-member Mouvement pour l'unilingualism francais au Quebec.

Mrs. Lanctot, a Montreal free-lance writer, presented one of five nationalist briefs Tuesday to the legislature's education committee studying the government's language rights bill.

Next hearing is scheduled for Feb. 20.

The movement's suggestions "seemed to be the negation of all the rights and values we are seeking to defend," Mr. Tremblay said.

It called the language rights bill—aimed at ensuring parents the right to have their children educated in the language of their chaice—"the institutionalization of English racism in Quebec."

Provincial Secretary Remi Paul and Opposition Leader Jean Lesage joined forces in criticizing the brief, with Mr. Lesage saying: "I condemn it."

The movement claims that 10,000 people have signed a statement supporting its goals of French-language unilingualism in Quebec.

It said the province's English-speaking minority has practised "anglo-Saxon racist imperialism." Belgian-born Rene Bataille, another spokesman for the group, added that unilingualism is necessary "to prevent anarchy before it is too late."

Raymond Lemieux, leader of the Mouvement pour l'integration scolaire, suggested that any political party would be assured of a general election victory by adopting as a plank his group's French-only policy.

The MIS helped provoke the school crisis in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard where French-language unilingualism is being applied in elementary Roman Catholic schools.

Mr. Lemieux said bilingualism could lead only to greater predominance of English. For his movement's 6,000 members, language was "the very soul of our nation."

Mr. Lemieux said French should be the language of instruction in all Quebec's public schools with English taught as a second language in secondary schools.

Other groups here Tuesday were:

—The 225,000-member Federation des Societes St. Jean Baptiste du Quebec, which recommended unilingual schools for French-speaking Quebecers and bilingual schools, "perhaps only as a step" for English-speaking Quebecers.

—The 13,000-member Societe St. Jean Baptiste de Montreal which would make it obligatory for immigrants to send their children to French-language public schools, leaving English-language schools open only to Canadians with "acquired rights."

—The 23-member Lique d'action nationale, which denounced bilingualism and urged that the language problem in schools be sent for further study to the royal commission on the French language set up last December.

CRTC Will Study Air-of-Death Show

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission will open March 18 in Toronto its public hearing into the CBC's controversial Air-of-Death telecast, the broadcasting industry's regulatory board announced Tuesday.

The broadcast Oct. 22, 1967, on the CBC's English network dealt with various aspects of environmental pollution, particularly in the Dunnville area of southern Ontario.

Davey Wants Study of Communication Media

OTTAWA (CP) A "national accounting" for Canada's mass media was proposed in the Senate Tuesday night by Senator Keith Davey (L — Ontario).

He proposed formation of a special committee to consider ownership and control of the major means of mass public communication in Canada.

It would also report on their impact on the Canadian public.

Debate on his motion was adjourned after Senator Davey had outlined the scope of a possible committee study.

He said he was proposing an objective, detached and dispassionate study of the relationship of the media with the Canadian public, to determine their adequacy.

It would not infringe on freedom of the press, he said.

Canada had been blessed with a press that seldom abused its public trust. But a national accounting for the media, and especially for newspapers, was long overdue and would benefit the press itself as well as the Canadian people.

Senator Davey suggested the committee might look at group ownership, "mixed-media" ownership and monopoly situations. It might also examine foreign ownership of the media, although this aspect appeared to be well in hand.

At present, he said, 55 of 107 daily newspapers in Canada are owned by groups, particularly Thomson newspapers, FP Publications Ltd., and Southam newspapers.

Each of the groups had extensive broadcasting holdings, as did individual newspapers.

Some cities such as Edmonton and Hamilton had only one newspaper, and in New Brunswick the press was controlled by a single owner.

In London and Regina single owners had newspapers, television and radio stations.

This trend is accelerating, Senator Davey said, and he was personally inclined to think it is a dangerous thing.

News media owners contended that economic factors made concentration necessary, and that newspapers within a group retained the widest degree of editorial freedom.

Senator Davey suggested that the committee might examine production costs and the likely development of techniques that might reduce them and bring new labor problems.

As an aside, he said that senior reporters on strike at the Peterborough Examiner were paid $120 a week.

He wondered whether newspapers could "continue to attract bright young people with this kind of meagre pot at the end of the journalistic rainbow."

He also said that another strike had been on for five years at the three Toronto dailies.

"One cannot help wondering how many editorials would have appeared in the Toronto press had any other Toronto industry been similarly strikebound for such a long period of time."

Senator Davey said no industry in Canada has so managed to "obscure exactly who owns what" although there was no industry in which such knowledge was of more vital consequence to the consumer.

He noted that the Quebec national assembly also had set up a committee to study freedom of the press, and said he hoped the Senate committee, if established, would co-operate with the Quebec study.

The Senate committee might study the relationship of advertising to the media and the question of whether advertisers are able to exert undue influence. He said there might be exceptions, but he was inclined to think they could not.

It could also study what the functions of the media are, and what they should be.

Canada was fortunate in that it had no gutter press of consequence and little "yellow journalism."

"There is, of course, some sensation, some shock, some accent on the negative, but more often than not these are swallowed up in a sea of solid grey journalism."

The press of Canada was inclined to police itself, and did so with reasonable effectiveness.

But at times it was dull, provincial and even parochial in outlook. And there was a tremendous discrepancy in journalistic standards across the country.

Other topics for the committee might include postal rates, wire services, and the relation between press freedom and good taste.

Senator Davey said he would not argue for any kind of press control.

But there were at least two broadcasting criteria that might be unofficially applied to newspaper publishers: The criterion of whether they contributed to national unity and the 55-per-cent Canadian-content rule applied to television.

Concerning television, Senator Davey suggested the committee might consider whether TV newscasts change the nature of an event simply by covering it.

Another troublesome dilemma was the amount of violence on television. He wondered whether there could be some "terrible correlation" between murders and television programming.

Discontent inspired by poor people seeing false standards of affluence could also breed violence.

A central problem of television was the community antennae system, a "growing jungle" whose regulation had not been determined.

The committee might also examine the Canadian magazine industry, in trouble because of competition from the United States, the senator said.

U.S. Navy Has to Start Anew To Develop Carrier-based Jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Years behind and millions of dollars poorer, the U.S. Navy has started anew to develop a carrier-based jet fighter capable of intercepting enemy bombers attacking the fleet.

The navy has failed in an expensive previous effort to build a fleet defender from the old TFX warplane design expected by former defence secretary Robert S. McNamara to provide one basic plane that could be adopted by all services.

That was the F-111B aircraft, started in 1962 and cancelled last year when it proved unable to meet navy specifications for carrier operations.

Pentagon figures show the navy spent $216,500,000 on developing the F-111B.

With little fanfare, the navy announced Tuesday that Grumman Aircraft, builder of a few test models of the F-111B, is getting a four-year, $988,000,000 award for pre-production planning on a new job called the F-14.

Like the ill-fated F-111B, the F-14 will have a swing wing and a fancy new missile system for its intercept mission.

Once the F-14 research and development is completed, the navy plans to pick up an option to build 463 models at a cost estimated officially at $7,300,000 each—or more than $3,300,000,000 in all.

Hundreds more F-14s may be ordered after that initial run, expanding the overall program to perhaps $5,000,000,000 or more.

The F-111B failed to serve Navy purposes because, among other things, it weighed too much—more than 80,000 pounds —which made it cumbersome for movement around carriers and too sluggish for its interceptor role.

To avert the excess weight problems this time, a Grumman representative told a reporter, the company plans to keep the F-14 weight below 60,000 pounds, mainly through use of the lightweight but powerful titanium, the expensive new metal that McNamara refused to authorize for the F-111 series.

Like the F-111B, the F-14 will be equipped with a version of the Phoenix missile, an advanced weapon which will be the key to the defence of navy carriers in the 1970s.

With a highly sophisticated tracking system, the F-14 will be able to fire Phoenix missiles simultaneously at six attacking bombers before they are within striking reach of the carriers.

Township Council Hears Delegation

TWEED — At the recent meeting of the Township Council of Hungerford, a delegation of Council and the Fire Chief of the Village of Tweed, (Ross McNaught) met with Council in the matter of fire protection for the Township.

They asked Council to have terms of agreement adjusted as follows: standby fee: $800.00 per annum: fire truck and two men $50.00 per hour for the first two hours, all remaining hours $25.00 per hour; firemen's time $2.50 per hour.

The request was granted by Council with the understanding that a new truck was to be purchased for use in the Township.

It was also agreed that a new agreement would be prepared incorporating above noted amounts, which the Reeve and Clerk would sign by authority granted in a resolation passed.

At this time, the Township Council gave a grant of $25.00 to the Land O'Lakes Tourist Association to help in promoting the tourist industry in the region, in answer to a request from that association.

A resolution was passed to advertise for tenders for amounts of bridge covering and cedar posts required. Delivery to be made not later than May 31st, 1969.

It was also decided by Council that enquiries be made from the Department of Highways as to procedures to adopt repurchase of a mower to mount on David Brown tractor recently purchased, so that roadsides could be cut this year. Accounts were ordered paid, and the council adjourned.

An English professor at a small New England college finds his life shattered by two strokes independent of each other, yet remotely connected. How Gavin and his wife Cecily face these crises without compromising their beliefs is well worked out in this novel by one of America's favorite writers.

Burial Centre Found

White Man Brought Death To Eskimo Village in 1613

OTTAWA (CP) — A 12-man expedition from the Natonal Museum of Man has discovered a "large and significant" 350-year-old Eskimo burial centre on Hudson Bay, it was disclosed Tuesday night.

The museum said in a news release it is believed the 335 Eskimos died in 1613 when an empty longboat floated ashore carrying an unknown disease.

Natives of the area have a story about a strange, open-decked boat found on a beach long ago.

Historians believe a longboat broke loose from one of explorer Thomas Button's two ships in 1613 as he searched for the Northwest Passage.

It is thought Button had no direct contact with Eskimos in the region but that the boat floated ashore, carrying an epidemic that killed half the Eskimo community.

The expedition was led by anthropologist Charles F. Merbs of the University of Chicago and has worked for the last two years on the burial sites 300 miles north of Churchill, Man., on the west shore of Hudson Bay.

The museum said discovery of the three sites is expected to fill many gaps about the prehistoric Thule Eskimo culture. This was the best-known culture in the Canadian Arctic but material, such as skeletons, has been scarce.

The discovery should help answer biological questions about the Thule people and provide "new insights into Eskimo attitudes and behavior toward death."

Another feature may be the "correction of historical mistakes" about the Foxe expedition of 1631.

Capt. Luke Foxe, another European searching for the legendary passage to Cathay, recorded finding an "island of dead Eskimos." However, the location became a mystery when Foxe made a mistake in latitude in pinpointing it on his map.

The site was abandoned by the surviving Eskimos in 1613 and hasn't been occupied since.

Foxe noted that some of the weapons of the dead were tipped with iron nails, indicating contact with white people before 1613.

Corby Public Library Gains Stature As A Serious Public Art Gallery

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The auditorium in the Basement of Corby Public Library is gaining stature as a serious art gallery.

"We see it as a public service, bringing art to the people of the Quinte district in a quality gallery", said Miss Olive Delaney, chief librarian.

The new concept of a library as a repository of the arts as well as a distributor of information and entertainment in the form of books, has been boosted recently with the formation of an art gallery committee.

Three representatives from the library board and two from the Belleville Art Association will be in charge of the gallery.

"The aim is to have a collection on exhibit in the gallery at all times", said Miss Delaney.

A one-man show by Kingston artist Fred Schonberger was on display for two weeks, and will be followed by a show of paintings by Belleville artist Dawn Strathey. Her works have been greeted with enthusiasm at Toronto exhibits.

In addition, travelling shows from the Ontario Art Gallery have been booked for the coming year. The sponsoring organization pays a fee for the loan of the travelling show.

According to Mr. Schonberger, Belleville citizens are enthusiastic supporters of art shows. He calculates that about 800 people viewed his paintings in the two weeks they were on display a number that compares favorably with the turn-out at shows in large metropolitan centres.

The artist was surprised by notes and comments penned in the visitors' book.

"This has never happened to me before at any shows," he reported. "This keen personal interest shown by visitors is heartwarming to the artist."

Mr. Schonberger revealed that the market for paintings fluctuates with the seasons. Peak buying periods are spring and fall, coinciding with the housewife's flurry of cleaning and redecorating.

"Any gallery that will provide a means for the artist to sell his works through the presence of an attendant can attract top-rate artists from larger centres," he said.

The artist incurs heavy expenses in mounting a show, Mr. Schonberger explained. The cost of frames, insurance, crating and transportation makes assurance of the opportunity of sales necessary before the artist can afford to exhibit.

"The loss through damage is high," he added. Pictures sometimes come back from an exhibit with paint gouged and canvas ripped."

No such catastrophes occurred during the Belleville show, he was pleased to note.

Bellevillians' interest in owning paintings was confirmed by Charles Bristol of Wray's Home Furnishers C. M. Bowman of Elmira recently hung a collection of paintings at Wray's and sales were "extremely good" according to Mr. Bristol.

"People looked at the still life, but bought the landscapes," he said. "Most sales were in the $150 to $200 range." Interest in art has resulted in a demand for a loan service extended by the Belleville Art Association and the library. Now, anyone can hang an original piece of art on his walls for next to nothing.

Through the picture loan service at the library a borrower can rent a picture for a fee of $2 to $3 a month. A collection of about 50 paintings goes on exhibit the third Friday of every month from 1 to 8 p.m. in the library gallery. Twenty local artists regularly place their paintings on loan and about 15 to 20 a month are rented.

Success of the plan is evidenced by one borrower who rents three or four paintings a month for her walls and has purchased some she became too fond to part with.

Mr. Schonberger, who is frequently employed as an adjudicator with the community programs branch of the Ontario department of education, remarked on the calibre of the paintings available through the picture loan service.

"The paintings shown here are superior to any available through picture loans in other centres I have visited," he said of the January selection.

The artist claimed a great future for "this little gem of a gallery."

The broad basis of artistic involvement and appreciation you are building here, especially by bringing school children to see the shows, will result in the development of local artists of the first rank in another generation," he predicted.

Shape of Wave Changes

Those New Sonic Booms Will Have Less Impact on Ears

TORONTO (CP) — An aircraft flying faster than the speed of sound builds up a bow wave like that of a ship at sea.

Actually, there are two waves: one from the nose, the other from the tail.

Each is effectively an explosion — a sharp "crack." This double explosion is the sonic boom.

Depending upon the speed, height and size of the aircraft and upon atmospheric conditions, the sonic boom—like the wash of a ship—can cause annoyance and discomfort, but no bodily injury to humans on the ground. In extreme cases it can cause—and has caused—extensive property damage such as shaken buildings, shattered glass, rockslides.

Space age scientists call it the N-wave because that is the shape of the two shock waves—perhaps three airplane lengths apart for a supersonic transport—as they hit the ground obliquely and bounce. It's the plane's "pressure signature."

A military fighter plane, relatively short, spaces the two shocks much closer together. The sonic boom created at 2,000 miles an hour is fused by the ear into a single explosion.

Scientists at the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration and elsewhere feel there is hope of a partial answer to problems feared by some aviation experts when the supersonic passenger planes, familiarly called the SSTs, crowd the airways in their scores in the 1970s: Change the shape of the wave.

"Make it more rounded—something like an S on its side," says Prof. H. S. Ribner of the University of Toronto.

"The explosive force will not be lessened but the impact on the human ear will be much less."

He pointed out that a longer aircraft would increase the separation of the nose and tail waves; with special design this could yield a more rounded N-wave at the ground.

A group of scientists under contract to the U.S. space agency is considering this and other "way out" aircraft shapes that show promise of a partial alleviation of the sonic boom.

Dr. Ribner, while sympathizing with the aims of such groups as the Citizens League Against Sonic Boom, feels that fears of property damage expressed by some people are exaggerated, although the noise prospects remain serious.

For one thing, much of the widely publicized damage caused by military planes flying supersonically has been due to flights at extremely low levels. That type of carefree flying will be banned.

And if the N-wave is changed to an S on its side the shock-wave impact will be even less.

For another thing, active studies on design improvements may lead to airplane shapes with weaker or rounded N-waves.

A transport aircraft flying faster than sound at an altitude of 65,000 to 70,000 feet spearheads a gigantic shock cone in the atmosphere. The cone cuts a swath along the ground 50 to 75 miles wide. The intensity of the resulting N-wave is greatest along the middle of the swath.

The pressure when it hits the ground from this height is roughly two pounds a square inch—equal to the explosion of 1-10th gram of TNT at 150 feet.

That's not great: a pistol fired near a man's ear causes a greater pressure. But booms from lower heights can cause damage as well as noise. Plate-glass windows can be broken.

At the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo., in 1968 an F-105 Thunderchief flew low at supersonic speed over cadets drawn up in review. Damage to windows from the resulting boom was put at $22,000. Fifteen persons were injured by broken glass.

At Uplands Airport in Ottawa Aug. 5, 1959, a U.S. Air Force F-104 broke the sound barrier in a low-level sweep over the field. Hundreds of windows in the new terminal were smashed. Damage: $450,000. Opening of the terminal was delayed five months.

These are the exceptions. Military aircraft are the only planes now flying that can fly faster than sound—740 miles an hour at sea level.

As a result of the 1959 incident, Canada took a major step forward in flying procedure by amending the Aeronautics Act to read:

"No aircraft shall be flown in such a manner as to create a shock wave the effect of which is to create or is likely to create a hazard to other aircraft or to persons or property on the ground."

The maximum penalty is a year in jail and a $5,000 fine.

That means that no civilian aircraft—military planes are exempt—will be permitted to fly at supersonic speed over populated areas. Canada's military planes now crash the sound barrier only over the oceans or in the barren lands of the North. There, only the seal or the walrus are likely to hear the "crack" that rolls behind the aircraft continuously.

Dire things have been written about what may happen when the SSTs take to the air, such as a damage estimate of $2,000,000 a day if a fleet of the faster-than-sound planes were in regular operation across the North American continent.

Dr. Ribner doesn't say "nonsense" but makes it clear he thinks such estimates are out of line. On the other hand, he expects the noise nuisance, at least for the first generation of supersonic aircraft, to be severe.

Originally from Seattle, Wash., he was with the predecessor to the U.S. space agency for 14 years and for the last 14 years has been with the University of Toronto's Institute for Aerospace Studies. His specialty is the noise of aircraft. That includes sonic booms, and he is considered Canada's top authority on that subject.

Dr. Ribner says good flying procedure will lessen the effect on populated areas of sonic booms—or sonic "bangs" as they are called in Britain. The one sonic-boom-free location will be the airport.

A pilot will take off at subsonic speed, each of eight jet engines generating 40,000 pounds or more of thrust. Within minutes, perhaps 200 miles or more out and presumably well away from areas of population, he will "kick in" his afterburners and go supersonic, possibly at speeds approaching 1,800 miles an hour.

Three hours after takeoff from Toronto or Montreal he will land at London. The 400 to 500 passengers will not have heard a thing while supersonic. Persons on the ground will have heard a double explosion as the plane sped far overhead. Dr. Ribner says humans may or may not adjust to that.

In an interview, he cited results of a series of tests conducted in the St. Louis, Mo., area in 1961-62 by the United States government. Forty flights were made by B-58 bombers at supersonic speed in four months, 13 in a six-day period.

Metropolitan St. Louis has a population of about 2,600,000. Skilled interviewers picking subjects at random and avoiding, for psychological reasons, direct questions on the effect of the sonic booms, found that 38 per cent were annoyed by having their houses shaken; 22 per cent were startled to the point of annoyance and 16 per cent were annoyed by having their sleep interrupted.

Damage to buildings was largely plaster cracks, broken glass, wall and foundation cracks. There were a few cases of broken tile and mirrors.

Thirty-five per cent of damage incidents reported were found to be false. Forty-five per cent were due to faulty structure. Twenty per cent were valid.

In a 14-week test in England, with scientists employing paired explosions outdoors, it was found that the subjects indoors became somewhat accustomed to the bangs. It was found, however, that a "violent reaction" developed as the frequency of the test explosions was stepped up.

The stakes are high as the world's aeronautical leaders race to put the first faster-than-sound passenger aircraft into service. Manufacturers are spending billions of dollars on research and development.

World airlines are waiting to buy. Estimated cost: $35,000,000-$40,000,000 a plane. A modern seven-car streamlined train costs only about $2,000,000.

So far, only the Russian Tupolev-114 has been test-flown. The Anglo-French Concorde has not yet left the ground. American designs still are on the drawing boards.

Such aircraft are about 300 feet—the length of a football field — long. Doubling the length to reduce the effect of sonic booms would pose enormous structural and design problems, and increased cost might make the operation uneconomic.

Dr. Ribner feels that the problems of boom reduction are not insurmountable. But the designers may have to contemplate "way out" airplane shapes for the quiet SSTs he envisages.

Hundreds Register Machines

Snowmobile Business Booming Throughout the Quinte Area

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A snowball is restyling the face of the Quinte outdoors.

After the winter of '69 the open spaces never gain wil be the snowbound desolation of Canadian tradition.

Tradition has suddenly been ground to myth by the snow vehicle — a uniquely Canadian invention, sales of which have suddenly snowballed this year.

Less than a decade ago it was a mechanical eccentricity — combining skis, half-track and combustion drive, a novelty for a sporty minority.

But its popularity was as persistent as the performance of the ingenious little device itself. The fad became a phenomenon, building to a peak this year.

So much so that when the Ontario government recognized its importance with licence legislation, there weren't enough plates to meet demand.

"This has been the biggest year for the industry so far," enthused one Belleville dealer who recalled he sold two snowmobiles in 1960, the first year he offered them for sale. "And I think we'll find an even bigger demand next year."

In Belleville, where more than 500 snowmobiles were registered this winter, the local provincial licence bureau ran out of licence plates more than once.

Mobile Winter: Snow Vehicle Booms Echoes Around Countryside

In Madoc, with a population of 1,400 some 200 of the machines are registered.

This is the region — the north country — where the snow vehicle is having its greatest impact.

It is as much an instrument of social change as a mode of sport.

Suddenly, vast stretches of the Quinte countryside, weather-locked for a good three months of the year, are accessible to the most urbane city-dweller.

The wastes of wintry landscapes, once the domain of snowshoeing trappers, ice-fishermen and game wardens, are open to thousands.

And more than afternoon outings are involved.

Cottagers, who once deserted their lakeshore properties after a bare four-months' use, are slowly returning.

"Some people are winterizing their cottages, going up there for weekends," said one Belleville dealer. "There were owners who took their families in to spend Christmas or New Year's."

Such scattered examples will likely increase and prospects for a resort region that makes its living only in the balmy holiday months could be lively.

In the Marmora area, local snowmobile enthuisasts have launched a project to catch the current eagerness for the sport. They've plotted more than 200 miles of free trails through the North Hastings bush and furnish a map on request.

"There's no doubt about it," says a veteran department of lands and forests officer at Tweed, "the snowmobile is opening up the whole north country. For one thing, there will be a greater use of cottages."

Already the intrepid little carrier has proved invaluable to those who make their livelihood in the winter-bound northern townships.

Biggest benefits have been gained by district fur trappers and conservationists.

Skipping through the bush the mobilized trapper has dramatically pared travel time between trap lines transforming what once was an arduous chore into just another day's work.

Conservation work also has been correspondingly eased.

Areas once almost inaccessible to lands and forests game officers now are readily reached.

In populous areas, the vehicle has inspired an increasing number of sports events. It's the exciting key feature of winter carnivals; mass treks by fellow-enthusiasts now are a common feature of Quinte winter weekends.

In rural areas, at times the snowmobile replaces the family car for neighborly visits.

Opinions on its phenomenal sales appeal vary. One Madoc dealer believes the machine's attraction may now have peaked. Others differ, feeling the boom will continue into next year.

Prices range from about $700 to $1,500. After that come the options — a trailer, sled, special clothing, all adding more dollars, if desired.

But an inevitable future feature of the trade will likely make more and more madhines available at a variety of chines available at a variety of Like automobile owners, snowmobile operators will desire to keep their possessions.

As yet, the commerce in traded-in models is not booming, although one Belleville supplier reported a few on hand earlier this winter.

The number is bound to increase — and with it even wider use of the vehicle, he predicts.

National Team Needs NHL Sacrifices: Ahearne

OTTAWA (CP) — J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, European director of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Tuesday night that Canada would never rise to the top of international hockey competition with its present system.

In a no-holds barred speech to about 800 persons at the annual Associated Canadian Travellers sports banquet, Ahearne said Canada must establish 24 top-notch senior and junior teams, 12 in the East and 12 in the West.

The 480 players would be candidates for places on the national team.

The National Hockey League must be called upon to make sacrifices—to leave the players on these 24 clubs alone.

The teams would be under the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association which would have the responsibility for icing the international team.

Ahearne was booed several times during the speech. But it didn't jar him a bit.

He said Canada must learn that its former pupils in Europe now had something to teach it "about what used to be your national sport."

Canadians had allowed the Russian team to become "a nightmare." Yet Canada also had been whipped by Sweden, Czechoslovakia and "even Finland."

Ahearne said he stands ready to do what he can to help Canada back to its place in world hockey.

"You must stop bleating, stop braying and start building," he said.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

This is the age of jet travel, but we've had some great bus rides the last few seasons. Some that have given us a number of laughs.

Since New Year's Day the Detroit Red Wings have twice been forced to take bus trips because of weather, or in one case because of an airport strike. The first was a Detroit-Chicago trip, which resulted because of the strike, and the other was to Toronto. This one was forced because of fog and rain.

There's one advantage baseball clubs have over hockey teams. In baseball, you travel when the weather is fine. Not so in hockey. We are constantly at the mercy of the unpredictable winter weather.

Usually on a bus trip, a bridge game starts the minute the bus leaves the stadium and for every bridge player there are two coaches at his shoulder telling him his mistakes.

The "coaches," and I use the word loosely, only catch the mistakes, never the good plays.

However, the games are a lot of fun and they shorten the trips.

Two bus trips in recent years really stand out in my mind. One was from Chicago to Detroit and the other one was from Detroit to Erie in Pennsylvania. On the second one, I was driving the bus myself. But that's a story I'll deal with a little later in this column.

The trip from Chicago was an adventure from beginning to end. We had arrived at Chicago's O'Hare Field to catch our plane to Detroit, only to find that all planes had been grounded because of fog. That was 10 a.m.

Sid Abel, our manager, then ordered a bus. Back in Chicago we bought several dozen sandwiches and a few cans of pop and started off through the fog for home.

There were at least two wild bridge games in the rear of the bus and wild stories at the front. At Paw Paw, Michigan, we got off the main highway to buy more sandwiches and got lost trying to get back.

Finally Lefty Wilson, our trainer, had to go into a farm house to find directions back to the highway.

We eventually arrived in Detroit at 11 p.m. — 13 hours on the bus for a trip that normally, in good weather, would take five hours.

Now for the story about that trip to Erie. It was for a hockey tournament and my son, Marty, was playing in it. A friend of mine loaned me one of those small buses, similar to a camper but much larger.

To make more room in the back so the boys could stretch out, we piled all our luggage in the shower compartment. But before we left, my friend pointed out to me that to turn the water on inside, a valve on the outside had to be turned. He demonstrated how it was done.

On the way to Erie we mentioned several times we could hear water running. Finally somebody thought to check the shower compartment. Sure enough, you guessed it. The shower was running and our luggage was floating. We walked around for two days in damp clothes.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian junior alpine skiing championships, scheduled for Collingwood, Ont., March 17-20, have been cancelled for this year. Keith Nesbitt, general manager of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, said Tuesday the cancellation was due partly to a lack of funds.

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Billy Haughton drove a little-known three-year-old filly named Armbro Jill to victory Tuesday night to become the first harness racing driver in history to compile 3,000 victories. Haughton had set up the record-breaking victory with a win in the third race behind Vital Hanover, a three-year-old colt who finished first by a length and one-half to win over Shady Time.

Blues Have Bubble Burst By Kings

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The four Western Division teams in the National Hockey League should send Los Angeles Kings a congratulatory wire.

The Kings gained the gratitude of the four by proving Tuesday night that St. Louis Blues are a collection of mortals after all.

The Kings defeated the Blues 4-2 at Los Angeles, handing St. Louis its first loss in 20 games against other Western Division teams.

The Blues had compiled 15 wins and four ties in 19 games against Western Division opposition since losing 2-0 to Minnesota North Stars at St. Louis last Nov. 2.

In the only other NHL game Tuesday night, Detroit Red Wings moved into fourth place in the Eastern Division by blanking Philadelphia Flyers 2-0.

It looked for a while as though the 7,171 fans at Los Angeles would see the Blues win their 20th consecutive against expansion teams—St. Louis still leads its division by 20 points—as they jumped into a quick 2-0 lead.

Utilityman Jim Roberts scored at 3:59 of the opening period and forward Tim Ecclestone connected at 8:19. But Los Angeles rallied for a goal mid-way through the period, two more in the second and one in the third against veteran goaltender Jacques Plante.

JACQUES PLANTE
Finally Beaten

Scoring for the Kings, now one point back of second-place Oakland, were Gordon Labossiere, Ted Irvine, Real Lemieux and Lowell MacDonald.

An opening-period goal by Garry Unger and a last-second one into an empty net by Alex Develcchio carried Detroit to its triumph before 8,375 at Philadelphia.

Detroit moved one point ahead of fifth-place Chicago and two ahead of last-place Toronto with the win.

Maing 33 saves, goaltender Roy Edwards of Detroit picked up his second shutout of the season since being recalled from Fort Worth of the Central Hockey League.

Unger's goal, his 19th of the season, came on an unusual play at 16:08. Philadelphia goaltender Bernie Parent came well out of his net to clear a loose puck, but he merely nubbed it and Unger rifled a shot into the unguarded net.

Delveechio collected his 18th of the season with 12 seconds left in the game and with Parent again out of his net—this time in favor of an extra attacker.

Hefty Lawyer Surprise Pick As Baseball's New Commissioner

MIAMI (AP) — Bowie Kuhn, 42, is the new commissioner of baseball and although he has only a one-year contract he may last a good deal longer.

Kuhn, a six-foot, five-inch, 230-pound lawyer, was the surprise unanimous choice of 24 club owners who gave him a mandate to restructure the game in a year.

He takes office immediately and succeeds William D. Eckert who was fired in December.

Kuhn, a member of a New York law firm which has represented the National League since 1936, gained prominence in baseball for his role in the legal battle involving the move of the Milwaukee franchise to Atlanta three years ago.

He has represented the National League in negotiations with the players in a dispute that now threatens to result in a player strike over the pension plan. The new commissioner said he will dissociate himself as counsel for the player relations committee.

Francis Dale, president of Cincinnati Reds who announced Kuhn's election, said a planning committee of the majors will make a report within a year "which might say that we do not need the office of a commissioner."

Dale did not rule out the possibility that Kuhn, hired at $100,000 a year compared to Eckert's 65,000 salary, might remain on the job after one year.

"We have agreed unanimously," said Dale, "that the restructuring of the organization of baseball must be done as soon as possible."

The most important problem facing the new commissioner is the pension dispute with the players who have vowed not to sign contracts or report to spring training until the issue is resolved.

Before Kuhn was elected, Joe Cronin, president of the American League, reaffirmed the owners' unanimous support of their player relations committee in its insistance that there shall be no relationship between the radio and television revenue and the clubs' pension contributions.

The owners have offered an extra $1,000,000 for an annual total of $5,000,000 to the pension fund, but the players want $7,000,000. The key to the dispute is the players' demand that the owners recognize their right to some part of the television money in the new three-year $9,500,000 contract signed last year.

Stalemate With Knights Puts Hawks Alone in First

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines Black Hawks regained sole possession of first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Tuesday night while Hamilton Red Wings moved into fourth place to keep company with the idle Niagara Falls Flyers.

The Hawks managed a 3-3 tie on London Knights home ice to pick up a point—giving them a total of 57—and go one ahead of Montreal Junior Canadiens.

Toronto Marlboros outshot Hamilton 36-34 but the Wings, closer to the target, produced a 5-2 win. It gave them 46 points, the same number as the Flyers.

The Wings started scoring at the 13-second mark of the game when Tom Trevelyan took a pass from a Toronto defenceman and beat goaltender Paul Hoganson.

Buster Harvey, Tom Williams, Terry Newman and Gary Geldart got the other Hamilton goals.

Scoring for the eighth-place Marlboros were Gord Davies and Rick Jordan.

The Hawks had a comfortable 3-1 third-period lead going into the third period but it disappeared on late goals by Danny Maloney and John Gould of the Knights.

Hornets Encounter Surprise from Cellar

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Cellar-dwelling Woodstock A's upset league-leading Galt Hornets 5-4 Tuesday night in an Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game before 650 fans.

Marc Westgate scored twice for the winners and Gerry Harrigan, Dave Mel Papa and Garry Kyte added single goals as A's won their seventh game in 33 starts.

Fern Belanger scored his 25th and 26th goals of the season to pace the Hornets. Don Snider and Vance Millar each scored once.

Goaltender Brent Pennington was outstanding for the A's, stopping 50 shots.

Gurowka Rink Rated Favorites

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Joe Gurowka speaks and moves with deliberation.

Nothing appears to upset his businesslike mien and he carefully contemplates everything on a curling sheet before making the spectacular clutch shots that label him "cool Joe."

His temperament plus the fact that he has been here five times before and won in 1966, makes Gurowka the favorite to win the Ontario curling championship which gets under way today.

Eighteen rinks are entered in the double-elimination tournament which winds up Saturday night with the winner representing the Ontario Curling Association at the Canadian championship in Oshawa March 3-7.

A Northern Ontario representative will be decided at a separate bonspiel.

Gurowka, who has Ken Ingo at third, Ken Somerville playing second and Don Mackey at lead, was beaten by Ron Northcott of Regina in an extra game at the 1966 Canadian championship. Tom Howatt was his third at that time and Somerville, formerly of Vancouver, has been added to the rink.

The foursome has won two of the major bonspiels it has entered this season.

Rinks skipped by Eldon Coombe of Ottawa and Stu Daw of Toronto loom as top challengers to Gurowka this week, while two others, skipped by Alf Phillips Jr. and Ken Buchan of London, are the dark-horse entries.

Coombe lost in his bid to win the Ontario title in the final game of the championship last season, while Daw led his rink to victory in the OCA'S challenge round at Guelph last December when Phillips emerged as runner-up.

The OCA, which limited the championship to its 16 division winners for the last two years, added Daw and Phillips to the list of entries.

"We felt that we were not getting all the best rinks in the tournament," said Keith Jewett, chairman of the association's playing committee.

"Daw and Gurowka curl out of the same division and only one could have reached the championship if we stuck to the old format."

Buchan is an unknown factor although he is considered a threat after defeating defending Ontario champion Dr. Don Gilbert of St. Thomas, in playoffs for the Division 15 title.

Phillips is considered even more of a question mark. The 1967 Canadian champion has three new members on his rink and has been bothered for several weeks by a knee injury. The consensus is that he could be tough if the knee can support his 200 pounds during the delivery.

The championship gets under way at 1 p.m. EST today with Coombe playing Terry Begin, also of Ottawa, Bob McInnes of Trenton meeting Bruce Munro of Toronto, Jim Hewett of Exeter going against Jim Lehnen of Kitchener and Gurowka taking on Dick Vesey of Oshawa.

All 18 rinks will be in action at 8 p.m. tonight, with the winners of the afternoon round playing against each other. All four afternoon losers will need victories in the evening matches, since any two losses eliminate a rink from competition.

That's what Corporal Bob MacInnes and the other three members of his CFB Trenton rink are shooting for during today's opening draw of the Ontario curling championships in London, Ont. Other members of the MacInnes rink -- District 3 winners by virtue of defeating Kingston's Bob Mann — are Cpl. Earl Jesse (vice), W.O. George Peters (lead), and Cpl. Vince Gallipeau (second.)

Garrison Club Plays Host to Championships

STAFF — One hundred and fifty competitors will be watching the birdie Saturday at the Belleville Armories as the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club hosts its annual Central Ontario closed "B" badminton championships.

A record entry field will take part in the doubles tournament, which will start at 10 a.m. and include men's, ladies and mixed events. There are 60 mixed doubles teams entered, plus 37 men's doubles teams and 25 ladies' doubles teams.

Teams from Oshawa and Peterborough are expected to be the dominant force in the tournament, with Oshawa players being seeded first in the men's doubles event and third in the mixed doubles.

The top local doubles team of Mike Church and Gene Refausse is seeded second in the men's event, and appears to have the best chance of the local entries in the day long tournament.

The annual tournament will draw competitors from Oshawa, Peterborough, Trenton, Picton, Napanee, Cobourg, Bowmanville and the host Garrison Club.

Garrison Club president Gene Refausse said "There will be a lot of top talent here Saturday, and this will be the best chance local fans will have all year of seeing first class badminton."

The finals will start at 8 o'clock in the evening, and will be followed by a party, complete with orchestra, which will be held in the Hastings and Prince Edward Regt. Officers Mess

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts made the largest contribution to the Canadian Football League's gate-equalization program last season, but Winnipeg Blue Bombers were the chief recipients. The program was instituted for the first time last season to help put some of the less wealthy CFL teams on a more sound financial basis. The Argos donated $41,000 of the almost $86,000 paid into the equalization program. British Columbia Lions contributed $31,000, Calgary Stampeders $12,160, Edmonton Eskimos $1,872 and Hamilton Tiger-Cats $655. Winnipeg drew out $43,885, but still lost $135,000 on the season.

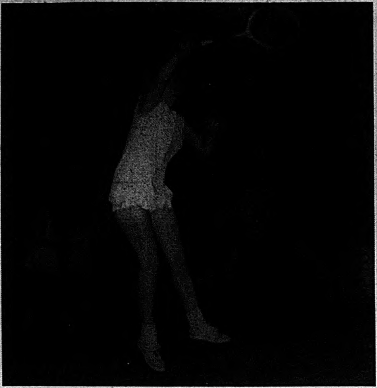
VANCOUVER (CP) — Directors of Oakland Seals have submitted a formal request that their National Hockey League franchise be transferred to Vancouver. Officials of the Oakland club have asked that the application be considered at a meeting of NHL governors in New York Feb. 8. However, the NHL owners announced during a meeting in Montreal Jan. 21 that it had been decided to retain the Oakland franchise in the San Francisco-Oakland area even if it meant subsidizing the club.



UP, UP, AND AWAY! — Billie Waldron leaps to make a forehand smash last night at the local Armories as the Belleville Garrison Club practises for Saturday's Central Ontario closed "B" badminton championships at the Belleville Armories. Some 150 competitors will take part in the day-long doubles tournament which will include men's, ladies' and mixed events.

With Third Period Rally

Lions Eliminate Midgets

The playoff trail was a short one for Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets, who dropped an 8-5 decision to the Trenton Lions' midgets last night, and lost the first round of the Ontario playdowns in two straight games.

On the other hand, the playoff trail may be a long one for the powerful Trenton club, who have only lost two games all year, and are seriously eyeing the provincial championship.

The Trenton club played like Ontario champions in the third period when they scored six consecutive goals to overcome a 4-2 second period deficit and take a commanding 8-4 lead in the rugged contest.

The Lions dominated the game, and outshot the Imperial midgets 43-28, while taking 18 of the 25 penalties handed out.

John Gravelle, Chris Long, George Ferguson, Jeff Howard, Bob Dailey and Pete Beecroft tallied the third period goals which turned the game around.

Trenton grabbed a 2-1 first period lead on goals by Jeff Howard and Bob Dailey, while Ricky Meagher replied for Belleville.

The Imperial midgets came back in the second period with goals by Terry Meagher, Allan Genereaux and Cliff Janitsch and appeared to be on the road to victory until the Trenton powerhouse came alive in the final period.

Trenton will now meet the winners of the Cobourg-Lindsay series in the second round of the Ontario playdowns, while Blake Kerr's Imperial midgets will play exhibition games until the Trenton midget hockey tournament in March.

Aces Nip Teachers, Take Over Top Spot

STAFF — The Belleville Aces overcame a six point half-time deficit last night to edge the Belleville Teachers 63-60 and break a first place tie with the Teachers in the first game of a Bay of Quinte Men's Basketball doubleheader at the Trenton Air Base.

CFB Trenton upset third place Cobourg 72-51 in the other game to strengthen their hold on the fourth and last playoff spot in the five team loop.

The Aces moved the Teachers out of first place for the first time this season as John Chalmers hooped 27 points and Tom Lornie threw in 20 points for the winners. Bruce Faulds netted 22 points for the Teachers in a losing cause.

Nine players contributed points to Trenton's well - balanced attack, with Don Brennan counting 18 points, Ned Rainboth 13, Paul Hargreaves and Joe Theriault eight.

Scott Young topped the Cobourg scorers with 14 points, while Bob Taylor contributed nine points and Walt Cook eight.

U.S. Secretary Views Damaged Well

Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel got this view of oil surging to the surface near a drilling rig off the coast of Santa Barbara, Calif., as he made a flying inspection tour of the area.

Six Inch Deep Ocean Oil Slick Bubbles Into California Harbor

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The bubbling oil slick in the Pacific suddenly spreading to an estimated 800 square miles under shifting winds, surged into Santa Barbara's harbor today.

Sixty persons were removed Tuesday night from boats coated by the heavy brown and green oil that darkened beaches four miles to the north.

From two work boats, crews sprayed chemicals over the six-inch-deep oil surrounding 700 anchored boats valued at an estimated $20,000,000.

The wind shifted toward the sea before dawn.

Portions of a log boom broke under the surging sea, allowing in oil from the vast slick which already had covered much of the ocean for 20 miles from Carpinteria to Goleta and 40 miles out.

Several miles of beaches were coated.

On Anacapa Island, which was surrounded by oil, a herd of 10 seals was trapped on three small outcroppings of rock, and conservationists feared the seals would die before they could swim free.

Oil workers six miles at sea worked to seal the well from which an estimated 150,000 gallons of oil have leaked since last Tuesday. A spokesman for Union Oil Co. said the leakage appeared to be lessening.

On Tuesday, drilling resumed in the Santa Barbara channel after oil companies operating the six wells in the area agreed to tighter regulations set down by an emergency board of the interior department.

The stricter rules call for more frequent tests of blow-out devices, more rigid drilling procedures and the installation of more casing where needed.

Witness Says He Saw Girl Choked

TORONTO (CP) — A Crown witness told an Ontario Supreme Court jury Tuesday that he watched horrified while Gwendolyn Pfaff was being strangled in her father's car about a year ago.

Kenneth Gloor, 19, testifying at the non-capital murder trial of Joseph Polzen, 34, told the jury that Polzen later threatened him unless he helped put Miss Pfaff's body in the trunk of the car and later in a water trough.

Polzen was charged following the death Feb. 9, 1968, of Miss Pfaff, 25, daughter of an Exeter-area farmer. Her body was found a month later.

Gloor testified that on the night of the strangling, Miss Pfaff was driving the car and Polzen told him he was "going to do away with Gwen."

He said they drove along Highway 83 to the Morrison dam where Polzen left, went behind a shed, and returned to the driver's side of the car.

He said Miss Pfaff moved over to the middle and he looked out of the window on the passenger's side. Later, he said, he felt Miss Pfaff kicking him on the shoulder.

"I looked around and Joe was strangling her, he testified. "Her kicks kept getting weaker. I sat there frozen."

Gloor testified that Polzen moved into the back seat and began strangling the woman again. He said after driving a little further, a tire went flat and they stopped at two farmhouses to ask for a jack, leaving Miss Pfaff lying on the back seat of the car.

"We put Gwen into the trunk and the spare tire on the back seat," Gloor testified.

He said they drove to an Exeter service station, changed the tire, and later dropped at a water trough where he helped place Miss Pfaff's body in it.

He said Polzen returned later to the water trough, showed him a knife "and told me to make sure she was dead."

"I didn't go," he testified "so he got out."

He said when Polzen returned and turned on the inside light of the car he saw blood on the knife.

Pathologist Dr. Frederick Jaffé said Miss Pfaff died of stab wounds.

The trial continues.

Grain Bottleneck Awaits Weatherman's Co-operation

VANCOUVER (CP) — If the weatherman co-operates, the grain bottleneck in the port of Vancouver can be cleared up in a few weeks, Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin said Tuesday.

He made the comment at a news conference after inspecting terminal facilities and conferring with train producers and Canadian wheat board officials.

"I have been assured by all concerned—the railways and the terminal companies—that with the co-operation of the weather the shortage of wheat at the port of Vancouver will be cleared up in a matter of weeks," he said.

Mr. Pepin admitted there had been judgment errors such as premature shipment of too much inferior damp grain to the coast for drying. Priority should have been given to better grades that became stalled on the Prairies due to bad weather.

"We must accept the fact that unusually severe weather in Alberta since early January has been a dominant factor in preventing an earlier correction in the shipping problem."

There were 21 deep-sea ships in port waiting to load grain Tuesday but only five were under the elevator spouts.

Mr. Pepin said both railways are taking steps to make up for delays but he added he could not state until noon today, when they were to report to him, what further shipping commitments they are prepared to accept.

William McNamara, chief commissioner for the Canadian wheat board, said that in the long run the reputation of the port of Vancouver would not be damaged and that losses in wheat commitments would be minimal.

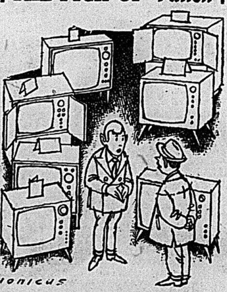
Airport Terminal To Proceed

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government indicated in its 1969-70 spending estimates Tuesday that it plans to proceed quickly with new terminal development at Toronto's Malton airport.

The estimates for the next fiscal year beginning April 1 show that the transport department plans to spend $11,586,000 on a new terminal building. Total cost of the project, which will be spread over several years, is estimated at $233,447,000.

Other items in the estimates, tabled in the Commons, include $3,500,000 for extension of one of the Malton runways and $300,000 to complete one of the aeroquays where planes berth to load or unload passengers.

THE PICK OF Punch



"Have you a left handed one?"

Strappings Are Not Recorded

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario department of education does not collect statistics on the number of strappings administered school children each year nor does it lay down specifications for the size and weight of straps used, the legislature was informed Tuesday.

The information was contained in answers to questions on educational matters submitted before the legislature adjourned Dec. 20 by Tim Reid (L—Scarborough East). The answers were tabled by Premier John Robarts on behalf of the cabinet.

But attention was drawn to a departmental policy statement recently circulated to educational officials which said "corporal punishment in any form is not appropriate in the schools of Ontario" and recommended teachers and principals refrain from using it.

Honoring Pledges to NATO in Emergency Would Be Difficult

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada would be hard pressed to honor its North Atlantic Treaty Oragnization military commitments in the event of a general European emergency, the Commons committee on defence and external affairs was told Tuesday.

Maj.-Gen. Michael Dare, deputy chief for operations and reserve at NATO defence headquarters, conceded under questioning before the committee that the country's capacity for airlifting men in a crisis situation is seriously deficient.

Gen. Dare, former commander of the 4th Canadian brigade group in Germany, said the present regular forces establishment is about 104,000 but because of financial problems the actual strength of the services is only about 98,000.

Equipment, he said, was a major problem. Some equipment purchases had had to be deferred. However, the Canadian mechanized brigade group in Germany was "fully operational equipment-wise."

Gen. Dare told Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) Canada has the airlift capacity to transport 3,000 men to Europe in the space of a few days should an emergency arise.

These would comprise enough troops to bring the brigade group up to strength and also provide reinforcements.

He said a "comprehensive examination" is under way to determine how military transport resources might be augmented in an emergency by chargered commercial airliners.

DEAR UNCLE ED:

I have a hair problem. Do you know of any process that will help grow new hair.

Yours Truly,
BALDY

DEAR BALDY:

There is a special hair cream I've heard about. It doesn't grow hair . . . it shrinks your head to the hair you've got.

Tenderly Yours

Magazine Format Popular

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television's newest competition in the United States is a once-a-month confrontation when NBC throws its new two-hour magazine format show against CBS's one-hour format.

CBS would seem to have some squatters' rights to the time period since it has established 10 p.m. to 11 p.m. EST as its time for a weekly news show. At any rate, since that type of show is likely to appeal to a special audience which would like to see both shows, the viewers are the losers.

It may prove that NBC, in spite of an hour's head start Tuesday night, lost a lot of its audience to CBS, which did some smart programming. While NBC was industriously exploring chemical and biological warfare, complete with motion pictures showing rabbits and mice dying from nerve gas experiments, CBS was preparing to take its viewers on a conducted tour of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor's country estate outside Paris. Few women viewers would have hesitated in making that choice.

The NBC program started with a long feature on Antioch College, which permits its students far more freedom than most. It followed with a short interview by Sander Vanocur, the show's host, of a former Barry Goldwater speech writer who explained a theory that today's students of the radical left are, in many ways, closely allied philosophically to what he called "the old right."

Then there was bit showing the whirling dervishes of Turkey in a public performance of their meditation dance, a religious rite. From there, it went into a big feature of the program, the report on germ and gas warfare.

The CBS visit to the Windsor property—for sale with an asking price of $1,200,000—opened its show. The Duke and Duchess conducted Harry Reasoner from the drawing room and the private apartment of the couple to the kitchen. The Duke strolled around his beloved gardens and then showed some of his mementoes.

It was followed by a report on plane hijacking, a subject which has been explored pretty thoroughly elsewhere recently. It moved on to a feature with some Houston police explaining why people commit murder—"women, money or whiskey" was one crisp answer. And it wound up with an amusing reflection by Reasoner on the mini-skirt and women's legs.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

NOTICE

NOTICE

TAKE NOTICE that the council of The Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes at its regular meeting on February the 17th, 1969, to pass a by-law to stop up and close that part of the highway known as St. Paul Street, in the City of Belleville, and being more particularly described as follows:

ALL AND SINGULAR that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the City of Belleville, and Province of Ontario, being composed of part of St. Paul Street, west of South Front Street, lying south of Lot 1, J. J. Haslett's plan, for said City of Belleville, containing by admeasurement 0.02 acres, be the same more or less, and which said parcel is more particularly described as follows: PREMISING that the bearings herein are astronomic and are derived from the northerly limit of St. Paul Street, as shown on a plan of survey by J. T. Ransom, O.L.S., dated November 24, 1947, and relating all bearings herein thereto;

COMMENCING at an iron bar planted marking the most easterly angle of Lot 1, west of South Front Street, J. J. Haslett's plan;

THENCE South 27 degrees, 09 minutes East, eleven and eighty-six hundredths feet (11.86') to an iron bar planted;

THENCE South 63 degrees, 34 minutes, 30 second West, thirty-two and ninety-eight hundredths feet (32.98') to an iron bar planted in the high water mark of the Bay of Quinte;

THENCE north-westerly along said high water mark to its intersection thereof with the northerly limit of St. Paul Street, distant thirty-six feet (36') more or less, measured on a course of South 72 degrees, 09 minutes West, along the northerly limit of said St. Paul Street, from the point of commencement;

THENCE North 72 degrees, 09 minutes, East, thirty-six feet (36') more or less, to the point of commencement.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that the said council proposes at the same time by the aforesaid By-law to authorize the sale and conveyance of the said part of the highway known as St. Paul Street, in the City of Belleville, to the abutting owners at a price to be fixed by it, or if the abutting owners do not exercise their right to purchase within 30 days of the passing of the said By-law, to any other person or persons at the same or a greater price.

The council will hear in person, or by his or her counsel, solicitor or agent, any person who claims his or her lands will be prejudically affected by the By-law and who applies to be heard.

The proposed By-law and the plan showing the lands to be affected may be examined at the office of the clerk of the City of Belleville at the City Hall.

DATED at Belleville, Ontario, this 20th day of January, 1969.

NOW OVERCROWDED

CALGARY (AP) — Since its construction in 1963, the Calgary Public Library has expanded its collection so rapidly that there is barely room for customers. A board spokesman says a $2,000,000 extension to the six-storey building is planned for 1970.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally off in mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Volume was moderately active.

The industrial index lost .05 to 192.35. Western oils also were slightly lower.

Bow Valley fell 1¼ to 29, Famous Players 1¼ to 82¾, Harding Carpets 1 to 22½ and Dominion Bridge ¼ to 21½.

Banks were weak. Toronto-Dominion dropped ⅛ to 21⅜, Canadian Imperial ¾ to 20½ and Royal ⅛ to 23⅜.

Among the most active industrials, Interprovincial Commercial Discount gained 20 cents to $4.85 and Jockey Club 10 cents to $4.90.

Burns Foods was up 3½ to 24½, Universal Sections 2 to 22 and CPR ¾ to 80.

Trading resumed in Great-West Life which was off 3½ to 133, after changing hands as low as 124. Trading had been suspended since Friday following a takeover bid from Great West Saddlery.

Great-West Life's management, which plans to fight the takeover bid, announced plans Tuesday which included a corporate reorganization and a dividend increase.

Great West Saddlery gained ¼ to 21¼.

Among mines, McIntyre Porcupine rose 5 to 116, Granduc ⅜ to 14⅜ and Consolidated Canadian Faraday 20 cents to $5.70. Wright-Hargreaves lost 20 cents to $4.10.

Newly-listed Ulster Petroleums Ltd. of Calgary traded at $6.40. The company has oil and gas interests in Western Canada and Alaska.

On index, western oils fell 1.20 to 255.74. Golds rose .48 to 248.72 and base metals .44 to 120.88. Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,346,000 shares compared with 1,379,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Industrials closed with a fractional gain on the Toronto exchange Tuesday, while shares listed in the western oil and base metal section were slightly higher.

The market's generally indecisive trend matched a similar mood in New York. Prices picked up in early trading but lost ground later in the day.

Volume was 6,566,000 shares compared with 6,576,000 Monday. Advances narrowly outnumbered declines by 306 to 289.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Time to Check Weight Gain Is When You're Still Young

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: How can I prevent my husband from getting a heart attack? We've been married less than a year and he's only 22. The reason I'm concerned is that there is a family history of heart disease in his background. Both his father and an uncle have had coronary attacks. My husband is a former football star who has put on at least 25 pounds since graduating. He has a voracious appetite and is getting to be tremendous. When I advise him to eat less he laughs it off. Calls me a nag. Am I? — Mrs. O.

Comment: A nag? They come in all sorts of classifcations. Much depends on how one tells the other "what's good for him (or her)." But Im on your side, Mrs. O.

Experience tells us that when men or women get into the actual coronary age bracket it is often too late to hope to help by special dieting. The damage has been done by slow accumulation of fat in the arteries over the years. So you are perfectly right in trying to keep your husband's appetite within bounds while he is still in his 20s. It isn't too soon; and tell him I said you're not a nag — just a sensible wife who wants her husband around for a good long while.

He doesn't have to take off those extra pounds in a few weeks. Just go about it gradually, undramatically. Cut down on desserts around the house. Ni second portions. Less of fats and starches.

Before you realize it, he will have lost 25 pounds (and more) over a period of a year or two. No hurry at his age. But the time to start the new habit of eating less is now. Especially, in view of his family history of coronary disease.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I've just been "retired" (another name for fired) at the age of 62. I'm still in excellent health. What I am afraid of is that the shock of retirement will undermine my health. Is this true? — Mr. U.

Comment: As the song goes, "It all depends on you." Have you prepared for this momentous occasion in your life? Or, like many others who haven't noticed the time slip quckly by, have you been content to do nothing about it?

It's true that some people die early of boredom. They wither on the vine prematurely. But those who prepare years before to do something else which interests them intensely, are not bothered by retirement at all.

I hope you fit into this latter category, Mr. U. If you do, believe me there will be no retirement shock. For many it is a period of relief and fulfillment.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I'm in my 40s. I'm a fatalist. I don't care if I die tomorrow. Why all the fuss about good health? — Mr. H.

Comment: The time to fuss is in the 40s (or earlier) so you will have a better chance of reaching the 60s, 70s and 80s. You may not believe it now — while in full flower of health — but it is true, as stated by Hamon y Cajal: "It is notorious that the desire to live increases as life itself shortens."

I recall visiting a cute, lively spirited 92-year-old. When I had finished with my examination and prescribed something for her cold I said jokingly, "You'll be well enough to go dancing tomorrow night."

She looked at me, smiling, and said, "I know you're joshing with me, doctor. But do you want to know something? I'm more anxious to stay alive now than I ever was. I'd love to live to be 100."

See what I mean, Mr. H.?

Trading Lively

Insurance Industry Faces Takeover Bids

TORONTO (CP) — A wave of takeover bids in the Canadian life insurance industry has stimulated lively trading in the shares of insurance companies during the last three weeks.

Prices of several companies have shot to record levels, with stocks soaring as much as $30 in a single day when news of takeover bids hit the stock market.

Great-West Life Assurance Co. of Winnipeg, the latest target for acquisition, traded as high as $149 following last week's offer from Great West Saddlery Co. of Toronto.

The stock was just below $80 at Christmas time and had a 1968 low of $45.50.

The surge of interest in life insurance companies is the first of its kind for more than five years. There have been few, if any, takeovers among Canadian firms since the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Analysts say the last federal budget's proposals to subject the life companies to corporation tax for the first time is compelling them to look around for outside help. Mergers can provide them with new sources of capital for growth.

Stock market activity in insurance shares, usually sluggish and frequently dead, first took off when two takeover bids were announced Jan. 16.

Teledyne Inc. of Los Angeles said it plans to make an offer for all the outstanding shares in Industrial Life Assurance Co. of Quebec, while Maritime Life Assurance Co. of Nova Scotia said a Boston company, John Hancock Mutual Life Assurance Co., is also negotiating a takeover.

As both these offers came from United States sources, there have been rumors that further American bids are in the wind.

The most recent merger plans, however, are entirely between Canadian interests.

E-L Financial Corp., the newly-created holding company controlling Empire Life Insurance Co. of Kingston, has made a share exchange offer to the shareholders of Dominion of Canada General Insurance Co. of Toronto.

If successful, the takeover will be Empire Life's first acquisition after its corporate reorganization announced last November. At that time, the firm said it would reconstitute itself under a holding company to allow for diversification into other fields.

A holding company can legally own and control a wide range of different enterprises, and analysts say the move may be copied by other life insurance companies.

The offer for Dominion of Canada was recommended by its directors, and has already been accepted by more than half the shareholders.

However, the outcome of Great West Saddlery's bids for Great-West Life, Canada's fourth largest insurance company, still is in the air.

The battle for control, in which Great West Saddlery is offering $30 in cash plus six treasury shares for each share in Great-West Life, is colored by the unusual stock market performance of Great West Saddlery's shares over the last year.

The stock has risen from a 1968 low of 46 cents to a recent peak of $24 as a result of the company being acquired by interests backed by the Bronfman whisky distilling family of Montreal.

Last May, Edward and Peter Bronfman and Edper Investments, a family trust, took over Great West Saddlery with a view to using it as a holding company in an active acquisition program.

Further takeovers in the life insurance business have already been hinted.

Famous Players Canadian Corp. said it is planning to make a bid, although details are not expected until after a shareholders meeting March 4.

Bernard Cornfeld, president of Investors Overseas Services Ltd., the mutual fund empire based in Switzerland, also said last week he would like to buy a Canadian insurance company.

Your boy and St. Andrew's:

At St. Andrew's a boy has the benefit of excellent academic instruction in small classes; furthermore, he enjoys rich participation in a very active extra-curricular programme of sports, music, dramatics, cadets and a dozen school clubs.

St. Andrew's is fortunate in having a strong, well-trained staff of twenty seven masters who have graduated from sixteen different top universities in Canada, the United States and Great Britain. The median teaching experience is twelve years.

The school's educational philosophy stresses leadership training, character development and intellectual growth based upon individual student effort motivated by stimulating encouragement from masters. An increasing use is made of new audio-visual aids to assist boys in achieving traditional aims by improved methods.

Examinations for entrance scholarships will be held March 14. Applications should be received by March 1, 1969. For Prospectus apply to Mr. J. R. Coulter, Headmaster, St. Andrew's College, Aurora, Ont.

Only One Bag Out of Dozen Of Pueblo Secrets Destroyed

CORONADO, Calif. (CP) — Only one of 12 bags of classified material aboard the U.S. spy ship Pueblo was destroyed before North Koreans captured the vessel, a naval court of inquiry was told Tuesday.

But the officer in charge of the Pueblo's security department said the 11 sacks seized by the North Koreans Jan. 23, 1968, contained less important information and documents than materials in the bag that was destroyed.

Lieut. Stephen Harris testified Tuesday night before the court adjourned until today, when Pueblo crew members will relate their version of events surrounding the capture of the ship.

Harris told the court there was not enough time to destroy all the bags of secret information before North Koreans boarded the ship.

"We threw one bag over the side and it sank but the crewman was shot as he approached the rail, so I didn't attempt to throw any more over the side because the passageway on the other side was blocked by a body," Harris said.

He described a scene of wild confusion, smoke and flames after North Korean gunboats and a submarine chaser opened fire on the Pueblo.

"We tried to tear up the publications," Harris said. "We reduced them to confetti. There was paper all over the place, we were feverish.

"We tried to keep it as orderly as possible, but it actually resulted in a great deal of confusion."

Harris didn't volunteer in open court Tuesday how much classified material fell into North Korean hands.

"Why were you using laundry bags?" Harris was asked, when the Pueblo had special weighted bags made at a cost of $50 apiece for jettisoning charts and publications.

Harris said there weren't enough bags to contain all of the papers and publications in an allotment given the Pueblo immediately before she left Japan.

"In my personal opinion the allowance of secret material on board was excessive," Harris said.

Harris said all of the most sensitive electronic equipment and code material was burned or chopped up with an axe.

He said it would have required nine to 12 hours to burn the reams of documents and code books carried by the Pueblo.

Harris said his men got off to a "slow and somewhat disorganized start" because the vessel's skipper, Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher, did not order general quarters immediately.

In addition, Harris said the ship provided poor communications between him and the captain, making him unaware first-hand when Bucher did call for general quarters.

At one point, Harris seemed to differ with testimony by Bucher, who had told the court: "I was not cleared for some of the materials they (the intelligence working areas) carried."

"The commanding officer and I held exactly the same clearances," Harris said. "I had no authority to deny him entrance to any area."

But Harris did say Bucher did not have intimate awareness of all the classified information given to Harris' intelligence detachment.

Before Harris took the stand Tuesday, Lieut. Edward Murphy Jr., the ship's executive officer, backed up virtually every decision made by Bucher during the capture a year ago. Murphy also denied—as had Bucher earlier—that the ship ever intruded into North Korean territorial waters.

Murphy conceded the ship's own log showed such intrusions. He blamed faulty equipment for the log entries.

He told the court of inquiry that 11 of the intrusions were based on recordings made by the ship's main navigational device, called a Loran system.

But Murphy said the device made consistent errors as much as five miles and that Pueblo navigators had to compensate for such errors in determining the ship's actual location.

Strictly Personal

Tell It Like It Should Be

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The most tiresome piece of cant in the last couple of years is the phrase, "Telling it like it is." Apart from being ungrammatical, it is unphilosophical as well.

The idea behind it is a good one. Before we can handle reality, we have to describe it accurately. We need to know the nature of the disease before we attempt a cure. And restructuring reality to fit our self-delusions is surely society's most prevalent error.

But, too often, "Telling it like it is" has come to mean merely replacing one half-truth with another half-truth.

It has come to mean substituting the slogans of revolt for the slogans of smugness. And then calling for changes — often badly needed changes — by shifting power from one group to another, rather than distributing the power - base more broadly and equitably.

Besides, "Telling it like it is" is not enough. It must be accompanied by telling as it should be. And this demands deep thought, mature value-judgments, and a sound knowledge of the historic consequences of revolution.

Man must have a vision, not just a gripe. Man must have a prescription that works to alleviate the ills of all, not just a grudge against the inequities of our present society. Otherwise, what begins as a noble and humanitarian movement ends as a change of masters more than a change of heart and spirit.

Telling it as it should be means understanding more than we do about the nature of man. It means going beyond slogans and grudges and actions based on bitterness and resentment. It means utilizing what our scholars and researchers have learned about social systems and psychology and the distribution of income and effective ways to learn and all the multiple disciplines that can help bring us into the light, so that our morality is as productive as our machinery.

It is not enough to be against. It never has been. We must know what we are for, what all people are for, what society is for, what the world is for. We may not agree on details, or on means, but if we develop a genuine sense of community our disagreements will not prevent us from moving toward a world we can all enjoy.

I agree with the modern dissenters that our society has not provided us with a sense of community; indeed, it has often impeded and frustrated that sense. We need radical change, but only within a philosophical framework that can create more than it can destroy.

COLLECTION DAY, TOMORROW

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For Feb 6th,

Your birthday today: You now come into a cycle of increased responsibility. You have more to do, more resources to work with, more cooperation from others. Your natural need for privacy, both in time and space, will be exaggerated. Today's natives do their best work in solitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): A definite break in the conditions around you. Your companions show different, perhaps disturbing attitudes. Circumspection on your part is essential from the outset to avert some inconvenience.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Variance predominates in working conditions. Stick with habits disregard the distractions. Faulty ventures run into difficulty. Your comments are more important if kept to a few words.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your real friends turn out to be more than human after all, while mere acquaintances disappoint or disappear from the scene.

CANCER (June 21—July 22): Speculative appeals collapse; group finances, pools tend to run into confusion, misunderstanding. Have your facts straight and ready for answers to hasty questions. Spend the evening alone, if possible.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A small but essential change in your views of life or base of operations may come today. Diplomatically give other people the benefit of any doubt and the time to readjust their lives around new facts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your faculties are alert; Pay attention to any intuitive notion on new people or information pertinent to your work. A flash of insight at the beginning may save time and effort.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Partners and competitors take turns springing surprises. Odd coincidences keep piling up. Personal relationships may flip into new directions — not necessarily for keeps.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): The unexpected may occur in regard to resources of other people, and funds. Your own feelings are, as usual, hidden, but those of other people may cause difficulty. Suspend action if it can be done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Problems involving children may come just when your attentions are fully occupied with routines. Patience with loved ones is essential all day and evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): A quirk can put your stock up or down sharply. Your recent efforts suddenly produce appropriate results, and you are not prepared for the impact.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The pattern you are involved in is apt to ride along with no great improvement for many weeks. So save your money, time and effort for an early summer change-over. Minimal attention will do for the moment.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Some flaw may upset you momentarily. It is likely based on misunderstanding the potentials of somebody you had thought to be firmly involved.

Kresge Co. Interested in Proposed Northend Belleville Plaza

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's northend plaza project has stirred the interest of at least one major store chain.

S. S. Kresge Co. has been in contact with developers of the controversial scheme — now in its third day of scrutiny before an Ontario Municipal Board hearing at city hall.

The name of the big retailer was dropped by Ronald Ellingwood, treasurer of Cambridge Leaseholds, as he revealed details of his company's plan for the North Front Street development.

Mr. Ellingwood was the first witness called today as the hearing entered a new phase — presentation of facts by the main antagonists: Cambridge opposed by Oshawa Wholesale (operator of the westend Towers Discount Department Stores) and the eastend Belleville Shopping Plaza merchants.

The Cambridge offical also claimed the new plaza could:

(1) Cost up to a maximum $3,100,000 to develop;

(2) Generate municipal realty and business taxes anywhere from $100,000 to $150,000 depending on eventual development;

(3) Be developed within a year of final zoning approval.

Basically, much will hinge on attracting a major discount or regular department store as a magnet for satellite retailers in the complex, Mr. Ellingwood indicated.

Robert Macaulay, lawyer for Oshawa Wholesale who is conducting the opposition to a city re-zoning request which would permit the new plaza, asked if one of the tenant prospects was K Mart, discount operation of Kresge's.

Mr. Ellingwood admitted Kresge Co. was "one of the people who have contacted us".

"I don't think anybody has the inside track", he added.

Mr. Macaulay then wanted to know if any prospective tenants had indicated a desire for changes in the city's early-closing bylaw.

"Kresge have made noises in that direction, that they would want longer store hours," admitted Mr. Ellingwood. "We don't support that."

(Present city ordinances permit night store openings Thursdays and Fridays.)

Queried by Cambridge lawyer R. B. Robinson on store hours, the developer's official said that among other prospective clients contacted, one has a national policy against opening more than two evenings a week. Others stay open where permitted.

Estimated local tax revenue from the new project was based on present city mill rates plus an increase of 10 per cent, he said.

Ontario Unveils Constitution Plans

Forty Points Raised

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario government propositions on constitutional reform tabled in the legislature Wednesday stress the maintenance of a Canadian federal entity, but adoption of a system in which provinces would be less dependent on Ottawa.

The 40 propositions which considered a wide range of subjects, including the repeal of 24 sections of the British North American Act, redrawing of provincial boundaries and adoption of provincial parliamentary systems to suit specific needs, will be discussed at the three-day federal-provincial constitutional conference starting Monday.

Premier John Robarts said the propositions are not intended to represent firm or final positions of his government, but are designed to open up areas of discussion at next week's conference, the second of its kind.

In their general approach, the propositions envisage a country in which one province could have a substantially different form of government than another one, yet all would recognize the primacy of the federal government in certain predetermined areas.

While the document said provinces should have internal leeway on how they want to govern themselves within a framework of responsible government, it supports Ottawa's position on relations with foreign states.

Enough Mortgage Money Coming Thinks Hellyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transport Minister Hellyer said Wednesday he is confident that private lending institutions will make enough money available for housing—at least for the next year.

He said that if they can't meet mortgage borrowers' needs, Canada should establish a central mortgage bank and a system of building societies and other agencies to channel funds to mortgages.

Mr. Hellyer told the National Home Builders' Association that he has had "most encouraging" answers to letters sent to heads of banks, insurance and trust companies asking about mortgage plans.

The minister, head of the federal housing inquiry, said that $20,000,000,000 will be needed over the next five years to reach the goal of 1,000,000 new housing units.

He said at least half of this sum must come from private lenders. He added that he is "confident sufficient money will be available for the next 12 months—not easily, but with persuasion."

Strike May Spread

MONTREAL (CP) — Rotating strikes by Quebec teachers affected 395 teachers in 19 schools Wednesday as the protest over the provincial government's refusal to mediate contract disputes threatened to snowball.

Since Monday, when the rotating or spot strikes began, 43 schools have been involved and more than 20,000 students have missed at least one-half day of classes.

Raymond Laiberte, president of the 60,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation, said the number of strikes will increase until the government offers to mediate.

Toronto Students Storm Stage

TORONTO (CP) — Student radicals Wednesday night turned a public lecture by Dr. Clark Kerr, former president of the University of California, into a shouting and shoving match.

About 25 students stormed the stage at the Royal Ontario Museum, shouted Dr. Kerr into silence and demanded, amid insults, that they be allowed to speak.

In the 20-minute fracas which followed, some women in the audience of about 500 cried as radicals and moderates screamed at each other.

Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto, became involved in a shoving match with one of the students and several uniformed museum guards leaped to his rescue.

The disturbance broke out when Andrew Wernick, a 23-year-old student, climbed onto the stage and walked toward the microphone. Dr. Bissell attempted to shake his hand, but Wernick brushed it aside, screaming at Dr. Kerr:

"We don't want you in this country. This country cannot stand conflict. . . ."

Dr. Kerr was allowed 15 minutes to finish his lecture when calm was restored and Mr. Wernick was given equal time.

Reagan Orders Police to Berkeley

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has declared an "extreme state of emergency" at University of California to provide for as much patrolling as necessary to keep the peace. The declaration was the first ever issued for a California university or college campus.

The dispute at Berkeley is similar to the one at San Francisco State College. Both are student strikes, with some faculty support, called to press demands for improvements in minority areas, particularly concerning studies.

Officials said the only previous times such power by a governor was inyoked was during the Watts riots in Los Angeles and two days of disturbances in the Hunters Point area of San Francisco. Both were racial incidents.

Reagan said he assigned the state highway patrol after Alameda County Sheriff Frank Madigan said he didn't have the necessary manpower. Patrolmen will be under Madigan's command, for duty as he sees fit, the governor said.

There were no direct confrontations Wednesday between police and striking students. But the governor, in his proclamation, referred to violent clashes between officers and demonstrators Tuesday, when 20 persons were injured.

U.S. Expert Testifies

War Threat Would Rise If Canada Left NATO

OTTAWA (CP) — If Canada withdrew from NATO it would increase the danger of a relatively small incident in Europe escalating into a nuclear war, suggests a former high official in the U.S. defence department.

Prof. Adam Yarmolinsky told the Commons committee on defence and external affairs Wednesday that a Canadian withdrawal would significantly weaken the whole Western defence system and its deterrence against non-nuclear aggression.

"It would make the whole international situation more unstable," said Prof. Yarmolinsky, professor of law at Harvard law school since 1966 and, before that, principal deputy assistant secretary of defence for international security affairs under Defence Secretary Robert McNamara.

Prof. Varmolinsky said "to suggest that the United States would not tolerate Canadian withdrawal from its NORAD defence commitments seems to me just unthinkable - inconceivable."

Prof. Yarmolinsky argued that any substantial diminution of Canada's contribution to NATO might have an adverse effect on the will of other non-nuclear members to maintain their role in the defensive alliance.

This could start a trend among these states, since some Europeans take the attitude that war can't happen and that in any case, "all we need is Big Brother, the U.S. Strategic Air Command."

Such a train of developments would increase "significantly" the danger of a small Soviet probing incursion into Western territory.

There would be a danger that such an incident might not be contained before it grows and escalates into nuclear war.

Asked by committee chairman Ian Wahn (L — Toronto St. Paul's) what exactly Canada gets out of NATO, Prof. Yarmolinsky replied: "A somewhat reduced likelihood that all of us in this room will be burned to a cinder."

Prof. Yarmolinsky agreed with Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) that more emphasis might be placed on mobile as opposed to static forces in NATO. Canada might "use its voice" in NATO to stress the importance of the Allied Command Europe mobile force.

Nixon Plans Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today that he will begin a five-country tour of Western Europe on Feb. 23.

Nixon told a news conference that he will see the head of government in each state and the Pope as well as leaders of the NATO community.

The cities on his itinerary are Brussels, Bonn, West Berlin, London, Paris and Rome.

He said the agenda for his meetings is wide open, that he wants the trip to help "strengthen and revitalize" the Western alliance.

"I want to make clear this is only a first step," Nixon said.

"Before we have meetings with Soviet leaders, it is vitally important that we have talks with allied leaders."

Warsaw Pact Parley Planned

MOSCOW (Reuters) — A Warsaw pact summit meeting on Czechoslovakia may be convened later this month, Eastern European sources said here today.

But they discounted reports that such a meeting would take place in Moscow within the next few days.

Communist sources here have described the expected summit as one that would give limited approval to Czechoslovakian efforts to restore normal conditions in the occupied country.

But it would also ask Czechoslovak party secretary Alexander Dubcek and other officials for more strenuous efforts against what the Kremlin regards as anti-socialist forces and internal reaction in their country.

City's Presentation Complete

Local Ratepayers and Labor Support Shopping Centre

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's shopping centre controversy today was returned to the experts after some of the people the feud is all about entered the issue briefly yesterday.

Spokesmen for local ratepayers groups and organized labor — representing hundreds of average consumers — went before the Ontario Municipal Board hearing at city hall in support of the city's case for rezoning of a north-end site optioned for the new plaza.

Representatives of the Belleville and District Labor Council and ratepayers' associations in Hillcrest and Parkdale — residential zones roughly flanking the proposed plaza site — spoke out for the project as the hearing ended its second day.

The ratepayers were called as final witnesses as city solicitor E. Guss Porter wound up his two-day presentation of Belleville's case for rezoning of 18 North Front Street acres to permit the shopping complex.

Labor council president Ray Bradshaw was granted permission to address the O M B panel after he volunteered a statement before the day's sessions ended.

Some opponents of the plaza he charged, were fighting it for personal reasons and not in the interests of the community.

He described them as people who "like to live in a small area" and are against development.

Others don't want the business competition threatened by a new shopping centre.

Shopping convenience and the likelihood of local development being stimulated by the plaza project were reasons cited for support by the ratepayers' spokesmen.

Both Eldon Ferch, vice-chairman of Parkdale Ratepayers Association and Gordon Harris, president of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association, were critical of downtown traffic congestion.

The east end Belleville Shopping Plaza was difficult to reach from their suburbs, both men testified, while the west end Towers Discount Department Store meant a "fair distance" to travel.

(Both the eastend plaza and Towers — through its parent, Oshawa Wholesale — are the main opponents of the new plaza plan now under O M B scrutiny.)

Robert Macaulay, lawyer for Oshawa Wholesale, asked Mr. Ferch if he would still support the plaza if experts proved the project would affect the downtown business area.

"I'd support the shopping centre regardless of what happened downtown," said Mr. Ferch, "because I believe there is too much congestion now."

However, the Parkdale spokesman told OMB hearing chairman W. H. J. Thompson, he had no idea of local tax revenues generated by the downtown business area, nor the potential taxes available from the new project.

Mr. Harris was similarly questioned by the chairman as he concluded his testimony.

Mr. Thompson wanted to know if there would be sufficient local business after a new plaza to ensure all outlets would survive.

"We assume it will," said Mr. Harris. "A shopping complex of this size will not only be serving the people of this community but the whole north end of the county."

It would draw consumers from the northern townships and villages who now normally do not shop in Belleville, he claimed.

Graham Bell New Chairman Of Conservation Authority

Graham Bell, Marmora and Lake township representative was named chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the inaugural meeting held yesterday at Thurlow township hall.

The new chairman succeeds Gerald O. Irvine, of Sidney township, who is retiring from the authority after 11 years service.

James Spry of Rawdon was re-elected vice-chairman. The 1969 authority executive committee consists of the chairman and vice chairman, along with advisory board chairman Leslie McLaren, reforestation, Mrs. R. Jeffrey, education-extension, Cecil B. Ketcheson, conservation areas, Guy Hughes, water control, and W. H. Armstrong, fish and wildlife.

The new authority chairman has been a member for about seven years serving most of the time as chairman of the water control advisory board.

The authority approved a local levy of $25,000 for 1969, up slightly more than $300 from last year. The city of Belleville with a levy of $14,945, pays more than 60 per cent of the total local levy, the balance being divided on an assessment basis between the other 16 member municipalities.

The over-all authority budget for 1969 is $354,137 of which $301,092 is expected to come from provincial and ARDA grants. The authority had a $16,845 surplus last year, resulting mainly from the fact that the planned Deerrock Lake reservoir dam did not go ahead as expected.

Again this year the big share of over-all authority expenses $304,000 — is slated for the Deerock project.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott expressed his appreciation to the authority for the work now being done in Belleville which he said was more in keeping with the city's 60 per cent levy assessment.

Earlier in the meeting it was noted by the retiring president that the authority had authorized a survey of the Moira River from the river mouth to Foxboro, which had been requested by the city.

Also last year the authority constructed a seasonal dam on the river opposite Fry Park, just inside the city limits.

Advisory board chairmen reviewed last year's authority activities and outlined programs to be completed this year.

Retiring chairman Gerald Irvine hoped that the Deerock Lake dam would go ahead this year. He said tenders for clearing the approximately 500 acres to be flooded were now being called.

Belleville this year has three representatives on the Moira Authority.

Mayor Scott and Alderman Jeffrey are city council appointees, while Dr. R. S. Morphy has been named as Ontario government appointee replacing Barton Haggerty.

Also Leslie Reid and Paul Fleming, and Frank Murray, are new appointees to the education - extension advisory board.

Cars and Dogs Killing Area Deer

Automobiles and domestic dogs are responsible for a big share of the deer killed outside the annual fall hunting season, members of the Moira River Conservation Authority were told yesterday.

Department of lands and forests official at Tweed, W. F. Cheshire, coupled the statement with an appeal for area farmers to keep their dogs tied up to avoid unnecessary slaughter of the deer population.

Mr. Cheshire said the threat of dogs running deer was an annual late winter occurrence as crust appeared on the snow.

But this year the threat has occurred earlier with heavy crust already having appeared.

When crust appears on the snow the movement of deer is hampered as the animals either break through or slip and dogs can easily haul them down or worry them to death.

Dogs pose a much greater threat to deer at this time of year than do wolves, according to Mr. Chesher. Last year's fawns are the greatest victims.

Fire yesterday evening gutted this three story home on Dundas Street. The loss was estimated at $15,000. The blaze occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moore about six o'clock last night.

Fire Guts Interior

Fire, believed to have started from an over-heated stove, gutted a three-storey, 12-roomed house on the western outskirts of the city last night, causing damage estimated at close to $20,000.

The house, on the north side of Dundas Street, West, opposite Westgate Plaza, was owned by Mrs. Alice Moore, whose husband Frank Moore, runs a nearby Shell service station and restaurant.

Loss to the house was estimated at $15,000. No one was injured.

City firemen received the call shortly after six p.m. but the fire had already reached the partitions and finally destroyed the entire interior of the house before it was completely extinguished. Firemen were on the scene almost until midnight.

An over-heated box heater in the kitchen is blamed for the fire.

Earl Hancock, a boarder with the Moore family, said he had stoked the box stove with wood a short time before the fire was noticed.

Firemen Are Hosts

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Fire Department were hosts last night to 65 members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association plus six guests of various councils.

The group was asked questions on fire fighting by Clyde Pope, fire service representative with the fire marshal's office.

The members felt this question and answer period was a benefit to them and decided that it should be continued at future meetings.

Norman Post, Ameliasburg Township, announced that the muscular dystrophy association was planning a variety show March 1 in hopes of raising funds for the cause. He said they will use local talent. Auditions will be held in the Stirling Theatre Feb. 9 at two p.m.

Showtime will be March 1 at 8.30 p.m. in the Stirling Theatre.

Freezing Weather Cools Would-be Crooks

Refrigeration for crime elimination . . . or freezing weather knocks the gumption out of prospective lawbreakers.

That's the newest crime-prevention theory coming out of Belleville and police chief Douglas Crosbie of the local police force backs it up with figures.

"Just take the last few days," he said this morning. "There have been hardly any occurrences requiring police action and the few accidents we had were all minor."

"Whenever the weather is cold it seems to keep some of the people off the streets and roads and knocks the bottom out of any ulterior ambitions a few of our citizens might have."

Over the past month, during the cold spells, reports of accidents, breakins and other occurrences coming from the police station have dropped substantially

"It's the weather," said the chief.

Monsignor Sullivan Man of the Year

Belleville's Man of the Year is Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, a clergyman who has been an active organizational figure in community affairs.

Msgr. Sullivan last night was chosen for the title—conferred annually by Belleville Jaycees — by a five-member panel representative of community activities.

Rector of St. Michael's church, Msgr. Sullivan last year headed up the highly-successful United Community Services drive which netted more than its $118,000 target.

His most sustained role in civic activities has been in education and hospital administration.

A member of Belleville General Hospital's board of governors, he has served as vice-chairman of that group and in its various committees.

A separate school trustee for a number of years, he now is one of the original members of the new Hastings, Prince Edward and Nipissing district separate school board. He also is on the board of Nicholson Catholic College.

Msgr. Sullivan will receive his award at the traditional Citizen of the Year testimonial banquet, slated this year for Club Canara, Feb. 12.

He was chosen from nominations filed during a public campaign that started in mid-January.

Members of the panel responsible for final choice were Mayor Russell Scott, Mrs. Dorothy Ellis, president, Business and Professional Women's Club, Rev. A. L. Sutherland, president Belleville Ministerial Association, Ronald Moon, Jaycee president and William Hurst, Hastings County registrar and first Citizen of the Year in 1963.

BIRTHS

IN MEMORIAM

RASHOTTE — In loving memory of a dear brother-n-law and uncle Mitch, who passed away six years ago today.

Years of striving, little of play,
Loving, giving the whole of the way,
A cherished smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest one the world could hold,
Happy memories, fond and true,
From us who thought the world of you.

—Always remembered by Ralph and family.

MARACLE — In memory of a dear mother Elizabeth Maracle, who passed away Feb. 6, 1966.

Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts,
A link in our family chain is broken,
She has gone from our home but not from our hearts.

—Lovingly remembered by Clifford and family.

MARACLE — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Elizabeth Ann, who passed away Feb. 6, 1966.

Beautiful memories are wonderful things,
They last till the longest day,
They never wear out, they never get lost,
And can never be given away.
To some you may be forgotten,
To others a part of the past,
But to us who loved you and lost you.

—Lovingly remembered by daughter Beatrice and son-in-law Walter and family.

Fear No Longer Base For Fighting Cancer

TRENTON — For the Canadian Cancer Society 1969 means the start of a new look campaign to fight cancer which will not use fear as a motivation to get people to go to a doctor.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Canadian Cancer Society and Victorian Order of Nurses here last night Maurice Grimes said that the Society's original campaign "delayed people from going to their doctor because of fear."

The executive director of the Ontario Cancer Society told a packed legion hall that this would all change in 1969.

"Fear is a poor motivation and you won't see it used any more," he said.

"We won't be talking about death rates or danger signals in the future."

Instead the accent will be on research and attempting to inform the public about the basics of the disease.

"We believe cancer can be prevented as well as cured," he said, "and beginning this year we will try to make people aware, more than ever, of just what can be done."

"Fear reacts against the normal inclination for a person to do something about his health."

Mr. Grimes stated that Canada has "a leading role in cancer control."

And Trenton will be making a major contribution to the new look campaign in a very attractive manner.

Ruth Anne Campbell, a Trenton native, was recently chosen as Miss Hope and she will play a large part in informing the public on the many aspects in the fight against cancer.

The 21-year-old miss defeated 13 contestants from across Ontario to take the prize.

Miss Hope '69 Addresses Society

TRENTON — The era of "helping cancer patients comfortably to their graves" can be pushed into the past if the nurse works hand in hand with the Cancer Society."

According to Miss Ruth Anne Campbell, who is Miss Hope for the Canadian Cancer Society, a nurse should "recognize her duty and work closely with the society to fight this disease."

In addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Cancer Society and Victorian Order of Nurses at the Trenton Legion last night she said the "nurse has relied too long and too heavily on the society."

"It is not enough to offer a pledge, we must offer compassion and care."

The Trenton born nurse said she was tired of hearing doctors saying, "it is too late to do anything for this patient."

"It is up to us the nurse to take an active part, to work with the society so it will not be too late," she stated.

"When I look at cancer I see desperation and despair but in the society I see life and hope."

And Miss Campbell believes it is only through co-operation that hope and life can be brought to the patient.

The society this year will begin a new campaign and with it Miss Campbell would like to see a new and more effective approach for co-operation between nurses and the society.

Carnival on the Campus

Belleville Collegiate students last night foraged campus for snow — needed for ice-sculptures for weekend winter carnival. Now a traditional feature of winter high school life, the event opens Friday night with big hootenanny at collegiate.

The Icemen Cometh

Despite its dreary drawbacks winter can be a ball — or at least a carnival.

That's the point hundreds of Belleville high school students hope to prove this week with another annual production in the chilly outdoors.

Now in the throes of preparation is another winter carnival featuring students from city high schools in a roster of events that last all weekend.

Now building on the campuses are the centrepieces of the festival — the ice sculptures which are entered in artistic competition each year.

The carnival gets under way tomorrow night with a hootenanny at Belleville Collegiate. Folksong groups from city and Picton secondary schools are scheduled to take part in an event scheduled for 8.30 p.m.

A splurge of activities are programmed for Saturday — tugs-o'-war, snowshoe racing, cake judging competitions.

Finalists in the athletic events will meet for final challenges Saturday afternoon at Zwick's Island.

The carnival rounds off Saturday night with a dance at Centennial Secondary School.

If construction started in summer, the project would be closed over for work to proceed during winter months and be ready for opening in 1970 — provided final approval for the city's rezoning proposal is achieved.

Mr. Ellingwood described relationships between his company and the city during negotiations as "very friendly and extremely trustful.

"And when I say that I mean it in a very complimentary fashion," he added.

Drawing of detailed plans of the project, an issue referred to by Mr. Macaulay, must await rezoning approval, he said.

It is not possible to negotiate with prospective tenants in good faith unless the project has been legally cleared, he indicated.

Questioned by Mr. Macaulay on a requirement to make detailed plans available before council's third reading of the rezoning bylaw. Mr. Ellingwood said his company agreed to make the plans available. but not before the measure's third reading.

The basic question is whether the planning decision was proper, not if it was properly processed, stated Mr. Robinson.

Public Speaking Winners Announced

Belleville branch No. 99 and Phay Wills branch 587 of the Royal Canadian Legion held their annual public speaking contests recently.

Winners for grades five and six were Lisa Vincent of Rednersville Public School and Suzanne Haggerty of Rednersville Public School who placed first and second respectively.

In the grades seven and eight classes, first place winner was Joanne Fahey of St. Michael's Academy. Second place went to Beverly Lewis of Harmony Public School.

Judges for the public school contest were K. G. M. Ross, QC, Kenneth Bird and Garry Thomas.

In the secondary school segment of the contest Keith Pearce of BCI placed first and Sandra LaChappelle of Centennial Secondary placed second. Both students are in grade nine.

In the higher grades class, Lana La Chappelle of Centennial Secondary school placed first and Jacqueline Whiting of BCI placed second.

All these winners will proceed to Stirling to compete in zone finals on Sunday, Feb. 16. The winners there will go on to Ajax on Mar. 2 for the area competition. The area winners will go to Thornhill Branch for the Provincial finals.

Ameliasburg Considers Department

PICTON (Staff) — Ameliasburg Township may be forced into setting up its own fire department by the rising cost of buying its fire protection.

Township members, Norman Post and Lyle Vanclief, attended the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Fire Aid Association meeting last night to get information on what was involved in supplying their own fire protection.

At present the Belleville Fire Department is protecting the township "and is doing a good job," said Mr. Vanclief.

The proposed cost of this protection for 1969 is $32,000.

They have been paying a $500 retaining fee with a set rate for each fire according to the number of men and the amount of equipment used.

Belleville Promoted On American TV

Most Bellevillians were sleeping early this morning while two of the city's retired citizens were appearing on television in Hollywood to promote the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Revell, 99 Dundas St. West, on holiday in California since just after Christmas, received special mention on the Joey Bishop hosted late night show watched by millions.

The Canadian visitors will remember the occasion a long time for the tribute paid guest star actress - comedien Martha Raye who was honored for outstanding service as an entertainer of American troops since World War II. She was also praised for her role as a full-fledged nurse on active duty in the battle areas in Vietnam.

The Revell's son Frank is a draftsman in the local hydro office and lives in Belleville with his family next door to his parents.

DRUG FISH

A plant called the barbasco yields a drug that the Colorado Indians put in streams to stupefy fish, making them easier to catch.

Rotating Hydro Strike Now in Eastern Ontario

The rotating strike of the Ontario Hydro has moved into the Eastern Region today as 1,100 members of the Ontario Hydro Employees Union in the region began to strike this morning.

According to Norman Manning, public relations officer for the Eastern Region, Hydro employees, involved in the walk-out were tradesmen, linemen, foresters, inspectors and clerks.

Personnel in the regional office are not affected by the strike and therefore there are no pickets in Belleville itself where the head office is.

Hydro staff such as chief and assistant operators also are not on strike.

This morning pickets formed in Kingston, Picton, Tweed, Frankford, Bancroft, Arnprior, Cobourg, Cobden, Perth, Peterborough and Winchester.

Workers in plants in Cornwall and on the Ottawa River have also walked out. There are picket lines in various areas in Ottawa.

Students Earn Honors in Tests

Further results from examinations by the Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto in Belleville have been announced.

In grade four harmony Esther Scott earned honors. Ann Watson received honors in grade four counterpoint.

In grade three history John Hutchinson and Elizabeth Dell earned first class honors and honors went to Sandra Guay and Debbie Johnson. Janith Stier, Kristin Jenkins and Janice Nelles all earned a pass.

High—Priced Administration

Hastings County board of education chairman James Clarke has been stung by Mayor Russell Scott's criticism of the high salaries being paid to executive and administrative officials of the board.

"We are shocked that Mayor Scott would choose this method of criticizing the school board," said Mr. Clarke in reference to the mayor's remarks in council the previous night.

It seems to us that Mayor's Scott's observations were perfectly in order. Council, as a democratically-elected body answerable to the public, is the vehicle for expressions of opinion of this nature. If the mayor had conveyed his opinion in any other way, say privately, then the public which shares his concern, might not have been properly informed.

Mr. Clarke has done well though to invite council "to discuss issues of mutual concern. . ." And, quite rightly, he suggests such a discussion should be open to the public.

Mayor Scott referred specifically to the $29,000 salary being received by the director of education for the county board. He said this was approaching the amount paid the premier of the province.

Hastings, however, is by no means unique in this regard. Similar concern is being expressed elsewhere. In Leeds and Grenville, where Lloyd Dennis (of Hall-Dennis report fame) has been appointed director at a salary of $30,000, reaction has been similar.

A Brockville Recorder and Times editorial wondered if eastern Ontario, as one of the poorest regions in the province, could afford Mr. Dennis at such a salary.

There has been criticism, too, of the fact that Mr. Dennis, because of other commitments, is not being required to take over his duties immediately. He is to report for full-time duty on June 16. Meanwhile, the Leeds and Grenville board has found it necessary to take on interim staff (a paymaster and bookkeeper) to assist business administrator J. S. Stratton of Prescott, himself acting in an interim capacity.

Hastings at least seems to be getting its new administrative system into action relatively smoothly. As for the salary schedules, whether they are beyond the point of no return is another matter. A meeting between council and the education board on this and other matters of mutual concern, as suggested by Mr. Clarke, should prove useful.

Education Board Meets

The new county board of education is getting down to work. There is an accommodation problem, as reports of the first two meetings of the board indicate. At the first meeting there was standing room only, and at the second only a shuttle system of admitting delegations and members of the public prevented a repeat performance.

Obviously something must be done about this situation, possibly by moving to the county building. There has also been a suggestion that the board meet at different venues throughout the county. Would this not cause administrative problems? Better to hold the meetings in Belleville permanently, and make the "get-acquainted" tours of the county schools (another suggestion of the recent meeting) at other times.

Before the board was a brief prepared by a committee of the former high school and public school boards. It suggested that instruction in human growth and development should be provided at all academic levels. This would cover the whole panorama of life from childhood through adolescence, maturity and aging, marriage and responsibilities of family life. Quite a handful in fact, but a program that should prove valuable. Complementing this additional academic work would be the field trips and excursions the board is contemplating for students. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and these and additional exposure to exercise and the outdoors should be promoted as well.

But trustee Everett Fairman's observation on this theme is startling. A retired elementary school principal, Mr. Fairman told the board: "During the last six or seven years a film was shown in my school on human development. I sent a note with each grade 8 pupil explaining the situation and not one mother refused to allow her child to attend — and the fathers don't count anyway."

Well now, just what does Mr. Fairman mean by that? The implication here is that only mothers take an interest in the child and in his education But a child does not belong only to the mother. Ideally, both the father and mother should take a keen interest in the child's upbringing. If this is not always the case it is unfortunate, but for a school trustee to say that fathers don't count in a school or educational situation calls for some explanation — if there is one.

Ottawa Offbeat

Opposition Members Get 'Overspending' Message Home

OTTAWA—Let's hear it from that most unusual of socialists — he wants to save money — New Democratic MP Ed Schreyer of Manitoba's Selkirk constituency.

And for those two devotees of the taxpayers' dollars, Conservatives Robert Coates of Nova Scotia's Cumberland and Wallace Nesbitt of Ontario's Oxford.

They've done what no other parliamentarians before have managed.

Miraculously, they have converted the previously impossible into the actually possible.

They've cried so loud and long about what they mourned was the free-handed spending of self-indulgent cabinet ministers on their personal comfort and convenience that their walls finally have penetrated beyond the sound-proofed doors of the luxury-loving ministry.

Out of the public works and the supply and services departments a rocket of warning has been fired.

Aimed at all departments — and this means the ministers and the mandarins — and at all federal boards, bureaus, commissions and assorted agencies, it counsels caution in spending on office accommodation, furniture and equipment.

In the soft-worder vocabulary of the bureaucracy, "caution" means something like "for Pete's sake, slow down."

And so, the word is out that regardless of increasing demands for office space and furniture and the rising price of accommodation and equipment, not a dime more may be spent this year than last.

It isn't going to be easy to hold the line, for just the other day, Public Works Minister Laing told sadly of what he called "tremendous pressure" at all levels of the government for "upgrading" of working conditions.

And as public works minister, Mr. Laing's concern with "working conditions" doesn't involve pay allowances, pensions, hours and such things, but desks, drapes, rugs, mini-refrigerators, and even bars.

(The 'fridges for beer, booze and mixers are camouflaged as water coolers, and the bars are just that, bars.)

Bob Coates, blowing the whistle on this kind of spending, cried in the Commons: "We are not maharajahs — they don't have those any more even in India — so why should we be posing as princes of privilege?

"To behave in this way is to tell the people of Canada how cynical we are, and how cynical they ought to be about us."

The "us" he was talking about were the members of the cabinet and the mandarinate.

Then by unhappy (for the government) coincidence, in answer to questions in the Commons, Works Minister Laing reported nearly $60,000 had been spent prettying up the offices of the ministers.

Now in the multi-billion-dollar industry of government, $60,000 isn't much — except when it is spent on such things as leather padding of doors, and rugs, drapes, chairs and phones all in matching decorator colors for a finicky few.

That kind of spending — especially the budget conscious housewife and her overtaxed husband — the taxpayers understand and don't particularly appreciate.

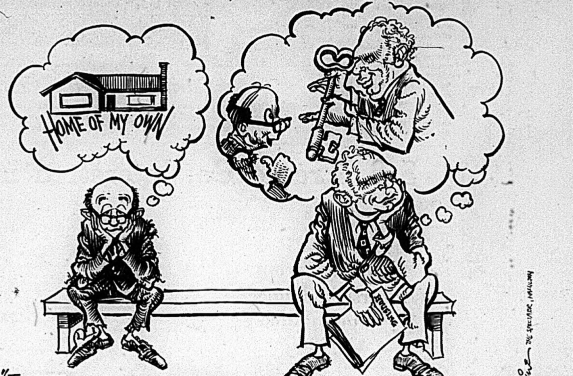
But what really set the government's public relations nerve-ends tingling was the blast about Senate self-indulgence.

It came from either parliamentary or public works officials who, in self-defence, wisely remained unnamed but made the front pages of the Capital's press with their howl of protest.

A senate office had just been re-done, as they say in the world of interior decorating.

It used to be, confided the official who blabbed, that a Senator had to make do with a plain rug, desk, blinds, an old leather sofa and a phone often all shared by a fellow member of the Senate.

Now they get, he said sorrowfully, probably thinking of his taxes, just whatever they might want.



"TILL THEIR OWN DREAMS AT LENGTH DECEIVE 'EM, AND OFT REPEATING, THEY BELIEVE 'EM."

Letter to the Editor

Jetport Would Benefit Quinte Area Economy

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

During the past few years a large number of area residents have complained that nothing was being done to encourage new industries to locate here. Efforts were made to have this area designated as "depressed," in order to qualify for government assistance in obtaining new enterprise, and thus provide a much-needed shot in the arm to local economy.

Now after much hard work and many long hours of discussion, persuasion, and sales-talk, the Quinte district is coming slowly to life as a transfusion of new industrial blood has speeded up the sluggish circulation of what has been our long-dormant economy.

It is a sad fact that the instant we begin to evolve from the stagnant era to the active, industrious era, we encounter self-appointed critics who predict dire consequences and cast a pall of gloom over every logical venture proposed, from a new arena to a north end shopping plaza to a jet port.

Mr. Snowdon's criticism of the new jetport is typical of the negative thinking that has retarded progress and development in the Quinte area for too many wasted years. May I direct my comments to him, and answer the questions he asked.

Do we want it — yes.

Do we want the noise? — Not really—but would it be much worse than when RCAF Training Command was located at Trenton and the FIS conducted night flying from May to October and day flights year round? Or now that Transport Command accommodates huge aircraft? Who really notices the noise?

Do we want the pollution? Of course not! But shouldn't we be pressing for legislation to control all pollution, past, present and future?

Does the area need the money? Yes!

Decreased value of residential property? As a Prince Edward county resident, property owner and taxpayer, let me assure you there are far worse things than a decrease in residential property value! (We could not sell our property at its present assessed value. Mr. Snowdon, we tried and were offered less by three different prospective buyers!) Quite obviously any increase in commercial assessment would result in a decrease in residential tax. Have you any idea how much shore-line property owners are assessed in Prince Edward county? We will not complain about a decrease, believe me!

Are there no private homes within a five mile radius of other airports? Why not — Is it due to noise, safety or government restrictions?

How many schools and hospitals would need to be sound-proofed? One, five, ten?

Tourist centre? Recreation centre, Place of beauty? I concede this to be true — in fact so true many county residents holiday at cottages and summer dwellings in more remote areas, where they can relax away from the bustle of our local parks.

I feel the proposed jetport idea has merit — our economy needs it and the resulting advantages would seem to make it worthwhile.

We should welcome such progress instead of opposing it, although personally I feel no enthusiasm for the gambling casino proposal.

Let us stop the nit-picking and fault-finding and direct our energies to making this area a place where our children can grow up, find employment and raise their families. We have lost too many young people to other centres already, by offering them only unemployment and welfare or the prospect of being a lower than average wage-earner as long as they remain here.

VIRGO

Dream—or Reality

The Globe and Mail

To get anywhere these days, you have to think big. In this respect, the Prince Edward-Hastings Liberal Association has not failed us; its plan for a combined airport and gambling casino in a sparsely populated area 12 miles south of Picton will boggle minds that are not easily boggled.

Alertly noting that both Toronto and Montreal were having airport problems, the good people of Picton Place plan to petition the federal Government to build a $150-million airport serving both communities. Turbo trains would rush the air passengers to their destinations. Income from the casino, it is suggested, would help pay for the airport.

Since we are talking in terms of $150-million, this couldn't be a little two-bit gambling joint. This would have to be the world's biggest flying crap game. One's thoughts turn, for comparison purposes, to Las Vegas (as they inevitably do when Picton is mentioned) and this is in fact the scale on which the Liberal Association has pitched its thinking.

There is a certain logical association between airports and casinos. It sound like just the place for the jet set. Travellers could gamble on which flight would make it to Miami without unscheduled stops. We have nothing to lose (residents would not be allowed to play anyway), so why not? The world is our roulette wheel; let's give it a whirl.

Climate of Extremism

Election in Ulster Likely to Bring More Turmoil

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — The snap election, called for Feb. 24 in Northern Ireland, contains all the explosive elements that could turn the campaign from a debate into a bloody melee.

At the heart is a deep emotional crisis as feuding Protestant forces struggle over Prime Minister Terence O'Neill's determined plan to end political and social discrimination against the Roman Catholic minority.

Adding fuel to the crisis is the rabble-rousing operations of anti-Catholic extremist Rev. Ian Paisley who has decided to fight O'Neill in his own riding of Bannside, County Antrim, the northeastern corner of the six counties.

Some of Paisley's men have shown in street demonstrations that they tend to use axe-handles, chair legs and stones to emphasize their views.

A political moderate, the 54-year-old O'Neill was forced to dissolve Parliament and call an election mainly because of a leadership threat from a dozen of the 37 Unionist members in the house.

Led by William Craig, ousted from O'Neill's cabinet last December, the dissidents had planned to hold a parliamentary meeting Wednesday to attempt to topple O'Neill, who has been prime minister since 1963.

There was the possibility that this manoeuvre might have succeeded with some backbenchers who have not joined the dissidents wondering whether O'Neill isn't going too fast in his one-man, one-vote policy and his drive against discrimination in housing and jobs.

Now O'Neill will let the country decide. Northern Ireland has 942,000 registered voters. The House standing after the 1965 election was: Unionists 37 seats; Nationalists 9; Labor 2; Republican Labor 1; Liberal 1; Independent 1; National Democrats 1.

Protestants usually vote for the Unionists. Some Catholics tend to vote for the Nationalist party whose policy is to break away from Britain and unite with the Irish Republic to the south.

O'Neill personally has both Protestant and Catholic supporters. A measure of his popularity is that he never had to fight for his seat. He has always won by acclamation.

All residents over 21 can vote in the six-county election. The alleged voting discrimination in favor of Protestants and against Catholics is in the fight for local council seats. Many Catholics are low-paid lodgers rather than fully-recognized tenants or house owners who are the only ones able to cast a ballot. Company owners, again mainly Protestant, are able to cast six votes. This was to have been eliminated through legislation before the dissolved House.

The Feb. 24 election is likely to signify a major split in the ruling Unionist party, with those opposing O'Neill likely to stand as unofficial Unionists against O'Neill's own men. The result may add strength to splinter groups. Even if O'Neill wins with another majority, there is likely to be more turmoil on the streets because of the religious issues involved and the operations of the extremists.

Request to Lower Assessment 25 Per Cent Will Be Answered

TRENTON — Residents of Pine Acres will be receiving a written answer by mail no later than the beginning of next week telling them if they were successful in their request to have their assessment values lowered by 25 per cent.

No less than 17 residents of the subdivision appeared before a court of revision approximately one month ago and stated that the detrimental effect of Riverview Speedway was lowering the value of their property.

As a result the residents believed that their assessments should be lowered and a reduction of 25 per cent was requested by William Ellis, president of the Pine Acres Association.

Today Read Budge, a court of revision official, stated that he had completed his report on the matter and those concerned would be informed "late this week or early next week."

"I was down twice to study the property," said Mr. Budge, "and I have just finished my report."

He said replies are now being typed out to those who had requested the cut in assessment.

But just how high a reduction they will be getting, if they get any reduction at all, Mr. Budge is not prepared to say.

"No, I can't divulge any of the contents of my report — that wouldn't be fair to those concerned," he said.

The speedway has been the centre of a storm of controversy for some time and residents complain of what they label "constant noise to all hours and dust so bad you can't breathe."

At the time of the court of revision hearing Mr. Budge said that any solution he came up with would only be a temporary one and that the problem would have to be studied again before a permanent solution could be arrived at.

But there should be provision for provincial participation in external relations affecting matters which come under provincial jurisdiction.

Touching on bilingualism, the document says that parents should have the right to have their children educated in either English or French, no matter where they live in Canada. It urges that government services be provided in both languages in any area where 10 per cent of the population speaks one of them.

School Board Fixes Date For Regular Meeting

Hastings County Board of Education has decided to hold its regular public meetings on the fourth Monday of each month.

But for the next few months it will also hold an "on-call" meeting, at the discretion of the chairman, on the second Monday of each month.

Trustees took no action on the suggestion of trustee Robertson Collins, Belleville, that the mid-month meeting preceding the regular meeting be held on a regular basis as a caucus session closed to the public.

"I hope we reach the stage eventually when only one meeting a month will be necessary," said Macdonald Smith, Belleville.

Board chairman James Clarke agreed, and suggested the mid-month meeting be left on a flexible basis. The type of business to be dealt with will determine whether the meeting is open to the public.

In the past year, meetings of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board were closed to the public only when property transactions, personalities and salary negotiations were under discussion.

Officers Elected

John O'Niell has been elected president of the Belleville Barbers Association.

Other executive members are Ross Duffie, vice president, Sid Moss, treasurer, June Clarke, recording secretary, Rick Adams, Alvin Smith and Graham Gale, entertainment committee.

Snowmobiles Banned At Outlet, Banks

As the result of serious damage being caused to animal shelters, small trees and shrub plantings, provincial parks in some areas have been put off limits to snowmobile users.

According to this week's Ontario department of lands and forests newsletter snowmobiles are not allowed in eight provincial parks — including the Sandbanks and Outlet Parks in Prince Edward county.

In Algonquin Park the use of snowmobiles is restricted to lakes adjacent to No. 60 highway — Canoe Cache, Bonita, South Tea, and Smoke.

Public Not Interested Enough In Politics Says City Manager

Taking an interest in municipal politics and affairs was one of the recommendations city manager James Reynolds made to an audience at the Belleville YMCA last night.

"Since it is quite evident that municipal politics are important to our well being I suggest all citizens of this municipality take an active part in charting the course of your local government," he said.

According to Mr. Reynolds, there is no excuse for not taking an interest and voting.

However, he pointed out to the group that although citizens have a responsibility there is also a responsibility with the elected and appointed members of local government.

Mr. Reynolds also told the group that he felt the general public was not well informed with municipal goings - on and that very few understand the role of municipal politicians.

Ironically there were only seven people present last night.

The second in the three-part series dealing with muncipal government is scheduled for the YMCA Feb. 12 at 8 p.m., when Tweed reeve Barbara Allen discusses the "lack-of-interest syndrome of civic elections." Former Belleville mayor Jack Ellis will be moderator.

The third evening in the series will be Feb. 27 at Corby Public Library, and will be devoted to a discussion of the pros and cons of regional government. A panel of three city aldermen will discuss the issue with Hastings County clerk Carl Bateman.

Regional Government Trend Questioned

How watershed conservation authority groups will be affected by the advent of regional government is a question being pondered by members of the Moira River Conservation Authority.

The question was raised at the authority inaugural meeting at Cannifton yesterday but no one had a specific answer.

Tony Jennings, former authority field officer in the local area and now a field officer's supervisor with the department of energy and resources in Toronto, felt that conservation authorities should have some say as to how they would be affected under regional government but he said there were still no definite answers.

He said that Hon. Darcy McKeough, municipal affairs minister, has said that authorities would continue to exist in some form.

Madoc township representative Earl Sager questioned the trend toward regional government which in his opinion appeared to be an effort to "kill everything small."

He said there should be one more royal commission to study what democracy really means.

Many, he said, apparently did not know what the term meant.

The trend to expect governments to do everything would eventually destroy democracy he said.

"It's all right to have dreamers, but we also have to have realists."

In order to get some answers as to how conservation authorities will be affected by regional government, it was decided to send a delegation to the public meeting arranged by Quinte riding member Dr. R. T. Potter at the Club Canara on Feb. 19. At the meeting municipal affairs minister Darcy McKeough will answer questions on regional government.

Three Members Appointed

Three new members have been appointed this year to the Moira River Conservation Authority. Two of the new members are municipal representatives from Sidney and Hungerford and the third — Dr. R. S. Morphy of Belleville as one of three provincial government representatives— has been named to succeed Barton Haggerty.

This year's membership is as follows: Belleville, Dr. J. Russell Scott and Alderman Robin Jeffrey; Deloro, Charles Gordanier; Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, John Thompson; Hungerford, Harold Varty; Huntingdon, Harold Thompson; Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham, Mrs. Lela Casey; Madoc township, Earl Sager; Madoc village, W. H. Armstrong; Marmora and Lake, Graham Bell; Rawdon, James Spry; Richmond, Carl Richmond; Sheffield, Paul Burns; Sidney, Ernest Kells; Thurlow, Cecil Ketcheson; Tudor and Cashel, James H. Sprackett; Tweed, Guy Hughes, Tyendinaga, Leslie McLaren.

Ontario government representatives are Dr. R. S. Morphy, Belleville, Harry Coulter R. R. 2, Tweed and Carl Thompson, Corbyville.

Benson Says Many Foes of New Estate Tax Want No Levy

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons Wednesday agreed to give a cash advance to western farmers but kept talking on a bill to revise inheritance taxes.

A bill to provide interest-free cash advances of up to $600 to help farmers dry wet grain was given third and final reading.

It must still gain Senate approval and go through the formality of royal assent before becoming law. The bill is an emergency reaction to the huge volume of damp grain from the fall harvest.

The Commons also debated legislation to shift tax burdens — but not increase total revenues — in inheritance tax law and returns today to the controversial subject.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson, target of fierce attacks for his proposed changes in the Estate Taxes Act, said much of the opposition comes from those who favor complete abolition of inheritance taxes.

He rejected the idea, suggesting death duties are a sensible, progressive tax in the same league as income tax. Both taxed the well-to-do in greater depth than lower income groups.

Mr. Benson invited the abolitionists to present alternatives to inheritance taxes as a revenue-producer. Increases in income tax would only curb incentive and increase the brain drain for Canada.

The Conservative financial critic, Marcel Lambert (Edmonton West) labelled the estate tax act the greatest killer of economic incentive extant. He said the government believes there should be a penalty on financial success.

Max Saltsman (NDP — Waterloo), his party's financial critic, said he was incensed at the government for trying to pass off the legislation as a major reform. He proposed an amendment — to be voted on later — that the bill not be given second reading. Instead the government should consider a review of the entire estate tax field to make it truly progressive and equitable.

On the cash advance bill, the government rejected opposition demands to pay demurrage charges on ships awaiting grain cargos at Vancouver.

Otto Lang, minister without portfolio with special responsibility for grain, said it would be "out of step" for the government to pay.

He also agreed with Trade Minister Pepin, under fire for grain congestion at Vancouver, that a specially-appointed controller was not needed now to look after the movement of grain for export.

Earlier, Prime Minister Trudeau said the Quebec and federal governments were still discussing the composition of the Canadian delegation to the international culture conference of French-speaking countries in Niger later this month. However, federal cabinet ministers will go, he said.

Quebec Senator Suggests CBC Should Be Sold

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator L. P. Beaubien (PC—Quebec) said Wednesday he is concerned about the cost of the CBC to Canadian taxpayers and told the Senate that because of waste, something should be done about the Crown corporation.

He wondered whether the government shouldn't "carve up this corporation and sell it off."

Senator Beaubien was speaking in support of a motion by Senator Keith Davey (L—Ontario) "that a special committee of the Senate be appointed to consider and report upon the ownership and control of the major means of mass public communication in Canada. . . ."

Senator Beaubien said the Senate should be able to study CBC operations at "some length" of the committee proposed by Senator Davey is established.

In private hands, the CBC would "pay handsomely" and provide tax revenues, Senator Beaubien said, asking why an attempt shouldn't be made to try and "carve up this corporation and sell it off."

In making his point, Senator Beaubien scored Canada's present economic situation.

"I am not preaching doom or ruin," he said, expressing his "tremendous faith in this country" and his certainty it would progress.

However, the federal government proposed to spent $13,600,000,000 in the 1969-70 fiscal year. Canada's per-capita tax burden, including levies at all levels, had become the highest in the world.

Senator Beaubien said he is not trying to make a case for saving money to reduce taxes on big incomes. But after Canadians had worked hard enough to produce enormous tax revenues, the Economic Council told them that 4,000,000 people in Canada lived in poverty.

Canada Makes It Easier For Deserters to Enter

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has made it slightly easier for deserters from the United States armed forces to enter this country legally, officials said Wednesday.

Immigration officers at Canada-U.S. border points have been given wide latitude to decide whether deserters can be admitted or turned back.

Previously, a considerable number of these deserters who presented themselves at the border for admittance to Canada were turned back although there is nothing in Canadian immigration laws which makes desertion in itself cause for ineligibility.

Immigration officials said there are no accurate figures on the number of American deserters or draft-dodgers who have settled in Canada. Unofficial figures put the number in the thousands.

Owner Charged

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A landlord accused by an Ontario Human Rights Commission inquiry of discriminating against a Negro will appear in court April 28 to answer charges of not obeying an order made by the Ontario department of labor.

The trial date was announced Wednesday after Louis Lougheed, of Windsor, was arraigned before a justice of the peace and charged with disregarding an order by the labor department to pay $153.05 compensation to Allan Walls.

Opening lead Ace of Diamonds.

The Kingston Duplicate Bridge Club is usually well represented at Tuesday night's duplicate sessions at the Belleville Armory. And they often go home with a lion's share of the prizes. This deal, taken from a Pairs contest played recently in Kingston, shows why.

After reaching the optimistic contract of six Spades, and receiving the Ace of Diamonds as the opening lead, South looked over dummy hopefully. Hearts might be split four three, or West might not switch to a trump.

However, as the ten of Spades was quickly led, the latter hope vanished, South began play for the four three Heart split. He won the Spade King, cashed the Ace of Hearts pitching a Club, and ruffed a Heart, the Queen appearing from East. A Diamond was ruffed with dummy's last trump, and now another Heart from the board disclosed the bad news.

Without enough entries to get back to the sixth Heart if he were to establish it, South paused for a few moments. Then, South turned to East and asked, as was his right, "What does your convention call for you to lead from Ace King?" When East answered "The King," South gave a faint smile, (realizing East must have the King of Diamonds), and claimed the rest of the tricks. Naturally, East and West protested, so South played trumps reaching this position.

South led his last trump and explained that West couldn't throw the King of Hearts, as the Jack in dummy would be good. So he had to throw a Club, after which dummy would release the useless Heart Jack. But East couldn't throw the King of Diamonds, or the twelfth trick would be South's Diamond Queen — so East also had to throw a Club. And South took the last three tricks with the Clubs in dummy.

Differences Are Narrowed

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union representatives have narrowed their differences with the post office department over implementation of the five-day delivery week Monday, Feb. 17, but not resolved them.

A news release from the Council of Postal Unions—which represents almost 25,000 employees—Wednesday said "we are again forced to a position of questioning the employer's sincerity."

Council Sets Sewer Rates

DESERONTO — The Deseronto householder with a 66-foot lot will pay approximately $175 per annum for use of the town sewer or just under $15 per month. This will be added to his monthly water bill. No payments will be necessary until 1970, and then only if the sewers are in use.

One by-law set the connecting cost for each home at $321, which can be paid all at once, or at the rate of $44.78 per year. The sewer service rate is set at $2 per foot per year. There are modifications in this rate for corner lots or those with an irregular frontage.

All sorts of conditions will bring changes in the approximate $15 per month. Householders with half lots must each pay for sewer connection. Those with vacant lots will pay none, but must pay the actual sewer rate.

Council met last week as a committee of the whole and studied the various plans for setting rates submitted by its auditor, and members were unanimous in selection of the one to be used. Mayor James Sharpe was in hospital at the time, but stated Monday evening that he was happy at the agreement, as it was the plan which he, also, considered the best.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission will study the plan, and, once approved, it must then obtain the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board. This is the last hurdle to be overcome in the long, hard contest Deseronto has been engaged in for close to ten years to install a sewer system, and make its town a desirable location for industry or for residence.

Resignation Rumor Denied By Hellyer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Transport Minister Paul Hellyer Wednesday dismissed reports that he had resigned his portfolio as ridiculous.

"There is nothing to it—it's ridiculous," he said as he prepared to attend an afternoon session of the Canadian House-Builders convention where he was to outline the work conducted by his housing inquiry.

The resignation report came at question time in the House of Commons at Ottawa when Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) asked Prime Minister Trudeau whether he had received Mr. Hellyer's resignation as transport minister.

Mr. Trudeau said he would check his office after the daily Commons question period.

There are those that remember lyrics like:

> Down in the meadow
> In a itty-bitty pool
> Swam three little fishes
> And the mummy fish too.

The audience that applauded these lyrics is a generation removed from that which admires the lyrics of today's contemporary music. And the older generation scorns the songs of today.

Of course the scorn is not completely unfounded, according to some critics of modern lyrics. Didn't Tommy James and the Shondells do a song that began with the line,

> My baby does the hanky-panky.

All lyrics are a reflection of the times in which they are written. For example, the pre- and post-Second World War periods have characteristic identities.

The trend today appears towards philosophic and psychological thought and protest against society, war poverty and racism. Still, the traditional songs — songs of love — are still with us.

Within the last few years, songs of protest have come into their own. Modern groups found the Vietnam war a source of lyrical potential.

In 1965 the Buffalo Springfield did a song composed by one of its members, Steve Stills:

> Something' s happening here
> What it is ain't exactly clear
> There's a man with a gun over there
> Tellin' me I got to beware —

The Quicksilver Messenger Service has a song entitled Pride of Man with a refrain that goes.

> Oh, God, Pride of man
> Broken in the dust again —

Lately not only war, but other aspects of man's living with man have fallen under the critical eye of the songwriters. Frank Zappa, leader and composer for the Mothers of Invention, wrote a song entitled Trouble Every Day, which covers war, poverty and racism as well as the news media. The refrain says.

> There's no way to delay
> That trouble coming every day.

And there are the poets, Donovan, Bob Dylan and Leonard Cohen. Their contributions, though often obscure, are frighteningly frank.

In Cohen's Suzanne

> Now Jesus was a sailor
> And He walked upon the waters
> And He spent a long time watching
> From His lonely wooden tower
> But when he knew for certain
> Only drowning men could see him
> He said all men will be sailors then
> Until the sea shall free them
> And then He himself was broken
> Long before the sky would open
> Forsaken, almost human
> He sank beneath your wisdom
> Like a stone —

Religious overtones pervade the song When the Music's Over by the Doors,

> Cancel my subscription to the resurrection
> Send my credentials to the house of detention
> I've got some friends inside
> What have they done to the Earth
> What have they done to our fair sister
> Ravaged and plundered and ripped her and bit her
> Stuck her with knives in the side of the dawn
> Tied her with fences and dragged her down
> Save us
> Jesus
> Save us.

But for those with an eye to hearing a song for relaxation, with standard lyrics about love and lack of love, there is still hope. The Bee Gees are helping to make the love song survive as part of contemporary musical culture.

Blues, although electrified in the last few years, still retains its original style of lyric, that of sadness in love and situation.

Contemporary lyrics have trouble gaining general acceptance because they are associated in the popular mind with long hair and hippies.

"You can't ignore us. Even if you don't like the ideas behind our music you have to listen to it because it's everywhere," says Frank Zappa of the Mothers of Invention."

He could be right.

Schools Plan Winter Carnival

By RON CHAPLIN

Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School kept up one of its proud traditions last week by beginning its annual collections for UNICEF.

Another tradition, the winter carnival, enlarged to cover the entire city, will be held this weekend. The main event, to be staged at BCI, will be the hootenany. For only 25 cents, Belleville students may hear the best singing talent of the Belleville region on Friday night in the auditorium.

BCI's students' council has been a victim of apathy. In light of this situation, a committee of students has been formed to discuss the organization of the student government and to suggest reforms. Students have been invited to submit briefs and let their views on the council be known. Following the meetings, it is hoped a reformed constitution will be published and put into effect to make the council a more vital forum for student opinion.

Beauty Game Pays Off

By

REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

It's Your Move

How well you play the beauty game is really up to you. Be sure you're moving in the right direction. For instance, are your hands ready for close-up inspection, or do ragged cuticles, split nails and rough skin tattle on your lackluster program? Here are some handy tips practiced by cover girls and airline stewardesses. Shape nails on neat ovals, filing in one direction to keep from exposing tissue layers. Avoid hangnails by not filing too close at the corners. Soften a new emery board by rubbing an old one across its sharp edges; then you'll file your nails, not your skin.

Rough hands, puffy veins and tense fingers look more drudge than dresden.

Actress Malila St. Duval refuses to be checkmated by hand care problems. She displays well-groomed hands resulting from regular attention.

Drama Club Scores Triumph

By JUDY SCHRIEDER

"Nicholson has talent. Nicholson has class."

These statements are taken from a poster which greeted the students as they entered the school Monday morning. What prompted the realization that talent and class exist at NCC? The overwhelming success of the drama club's production of Arsenic and Old Lace certainly gave Nicholson students something to be proud of.

The plot of the play centred around the lives of two kindly spinsters, played by Denise Rainbow and Joanne McAlpine, whose "charity" was to poison their lonely lodgers in order to rid them of their miseries. Their nephew Mortimer, played by Paul Black, nearly went mad when he discovered that his sweet aunties were living in a house with 12 bodies in the basement.

Tom Shannon, as Teddy Brewster, was certainly one of the funniest characters that has ever appeared in a Nicholson production. In his insanity, Teddy believed himself to be President Roosevelt, dredging the Panama Canal in order to provide graves for his sisters' "yellow fever victims".

Pat Wall played the villain, Jonathan Brewster, a criminal who returned to the "home of his youth". Having undergone an operation at the hands of Dr. Einstein, played by Milt McCrystal, Jonathan's face bore a striking resemblance to that of Boris Karloff. Molly Doyle, as the minister's daughter, played her part perfectly.

Saturday night, the adjudicators awarded the trophies for best actor and best supporting actor to Paul Black and Pat Wall. All members of the cast deserve a lot of credit for helping to make this year's drama production one of the best yet.

Michael Reed and Grace Hicks did a beautiful job of serenading the audience with memory-filled songs from the 1940s.

To Sister Mary Fleurette, director of the drama club, all Nicholson extends thanks and congratulations.

TAKE SERIOUSLY

The department of national health and welfare at Ottawa says that while everybody gets colds sometime or other, they are not to be taken too casually in small babies.

A boy in business for himself doesn't worry about summer jobs

Or fall jobs, or winter jobs, for that matter. Because the boy with a newspaper route—a junior independent merchant—has a year 'round income. The few hours he puts in each week not only provide monetary returns but the even more significant dividends of learning how free enterprise operates.

The business of learning the value of money, of keeping books, collecting, buying at wholesale and selling at retail is important. But not even money can buy the other skills acquired from route experience—learning to deal pleasantly with people, for instance, or the value of punctuality.

Your newspaperboy is learning all the time. His route experience helps him acquire the intangible skills so necessary for success both socially and professionally. He makes money at it, too.

Only about one boy in ten gets the opportunity to have a newspaper route. If you think your son or some other youngster might profit by newspaperboy route experience, why not suggest that he come in and talk to us.

THE INDUSTRIAL MANAGEMENT CLUBS OF CANADA
(Quinte Chapter)

Announce Three Management Seminars:

Communications Management
February 20
Effective communication is a basic necessity in management. This seminar of 10 sessions includes practice in both methods and use of management communication techniques.

Effective Supervision
February 18
Industrial supervision, its role in increasing productivity through attitudes and employment of technology, as they are encountered by supervisors and foremen provides the main purpose of this course. Other features are identification of the supervisor's function, improving motivation of staff and reduction of costs through loss of waste and material.

Human Relations
February 19
Dealing with case methods involving a cross section of personnel relationships as they are encountered in everyday industrial and commercial management is the basis of this seminar. The maximum achievement of results through everyone associated with an enterprise working as a team is the basic theme.

Mr., Mrs. Frank Leaver Wed for 50 Years

NAPANEE — When Frank Leaver was a young soldier with the Canadian forces during World War I, he met Louise Gough who was doing volunteer war work. They were married in Shanklin, on the Isle of Wight, on Feb. 2, 1919.

Fifty years later, they celebrated the anniversary with most of their family around them. They have five children of their own, two foster children and an adopted son. Altogether there are 13 grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

When he was discharged from the army, Mr. Leaver, a blacksmith, was employed first on the Hemlock Park Farms outside Kingston, and then worked for awhile in Deseronto before setting up his own shop in Forest Hills in 1933. About 20 years ago. Mr. Leaver suffered a heart attack and went into semi - retirement, retiring finally about eight years ago.

The anniversary on Sunday was filled with activities. Relatives from Oakville, Hamilton, London and Stratford joined members of the family from this area for a special family communion service in St. Jude's Anglican Church in Kingsford, by Rev. A. F. Dowdell, rector of the Deseronto - Kingsford parish, of which the youngest son, Ernest of Napanee is a lay reader.

Mr. and Mrs. Leaver were "at home" during the afternoon to a host of friends of this area, estimated at close to 200. Gifts of every description showed the esteem in which they are held. Flowers were everywhere, six of the arrangements from relatives in England. There were many cards and letters, and greetings from many notables

In the evening the children informed the parents that all were going out for dinner, but it was not until they arrived at the Legion Hall in Napanee that the parents found out that this was a reception and dinner for close to 100 guests. Arrangements were spearheaded by "Ernie" Leaver, Napanee's popular deputy clerk-treasurer, who was the master of ceremonies for the occasion.

At the head table were the 'bride and groom' of 50 years, together with the immediate members of their family. They were piped in by a member of the Napanee Pipe Band.

Among the distinguished guests were Douglas Alkenbrack, M.P., with Mrs. Alkenbrack; Mayor Lorne A. Smart and Mrs. Smart, and Donald Holmes, deputy-reeve, and Mrs. Holmes; and several members of the clergy: especially the rectors of early days: Rev. Allan Pepper and Mrs. Pepper, now of Brockville :Rev. Charles Heaven and Mrs. Heaven of Belleville: Canon Kenneth Blachford and Mrs. Blachford of Trenton; and the present rector and his wife, Rev. A. F. Dowdell and Mrs. Dowdell of Deseronto.

MELROSE W.I.

Mrs. Ken McMechan opened her home for the W.I. meeting on the evening of Jan. 30. In the absence of the president, first vice-president, Mrs. Roy McLaren chaired the meeting.

Secretary-treasurer Mrs. R. Clarke presented the correspondence received during the month. A letter from the adopted child, Kim Young Ju, was read, and her Christmas card was passed around for each to observe.

Since pamphlets on "food facts" are available free of charge, the secretary will request copies come to her for distribution.

The Melrose W.I. are again supporting the 75th anniversary fund, by donating $25 to it. They expressed the hope that sufficient interest would be felt by the W.I.'s of Ontario to reach the $50,000 objective in the allotted time.

The Officers' Conference is coming up in the last of April and an application form with the admittance fee will be mailed to the conference secretary, Mrs. I. Holder.

The membership fee to the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary will be paid and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman will represent the W.I. again this year.

This week's euchre will be held Thursday evening with Mrs. Mac Lazier and Mrs. V. Pascoe as hostesses. A report of the last euchre was given. Eleven tables were in play. The winners were: Mrs. L. McGuinness, Mrs. C. Hagerman, Mrs. R. Fox, Orval Stratton, William McLaren, Mrs. Vincent Pascoe.

Mrs. Arthur Long, convener of resolutions, gave a paper on this subject. Several readings were given and a piano solo by Miss Elaine Walsh was enjoyed. An interesting contest concluded the program.

Refreshments were served while the women enjoyed a pleasant social time.

Next Year's Concert Program Planned

Talking It Over . . .

Mrs. L. D. Read (left), president of the Belleville Branch of the Community Concert Association; Robert Ord, second vice-president; and Mrs. Gertrude Silver, New York representative, discuss various concert artists available for next season.

By LINDA GELDART

The Community Concert Association — responsible for giving Bellevillians more than 26 years of continuous live concert performances — is launching plans for another year of high calibre entertainment.

Mrs. Gertrude Silver, a representative of the Association's office in New York, was in Belleville to discuss next year's concert performers with the local board of directors.

During the year, the Belleville Association has already presented two concerts, of a total of four. The two remaining performances are scheduled for March 15, and April 19.

Admissions at the door for single concerts are unavailable, but can be bought on a seasonal membership basis. Anyone may become a member, and, in the Quinte area alone, there are more than 1,000 members.

The 40-year-old Association is non-profit, and essentially an organized audience plan for presenting concerts. It has 800 branches in the United States and Canada, and is affiliated with Columbia Artists Management Inc.

In Belleville the Concert Association, which first located here in 1942, has sponsored over 100 musical events.

The group endeavors to give young artists opportunities, as well as "creating" an audience for them.

"The community derives unique value and benefits from these concert attractions," said Mrs. Silver, "for no medium to date has been able to replace such fine performances."

Mrs. Silver continued, "the Association has brought a vast array of musical talent to communities which were previously unable to enjoy concerts live."

Each centre has a board of directors responsible for keeping things on an even keel. Their work is completely voluntary, and their goal is the cultural betterment of their community.

Mrs. Silver's "prepatory work" consists of advising local directorates of the artists available to their association or concerts. It is then up to the board to choose performers to please the majority of their membership.

Anyone interested in obtaining membership must do so during the week of March 10 to 15. Membership dues are $8 for adults and $3 for students.

President of the local association, Mrs. L. D. Read, stressed that all prospective members should try to join as soon as possible.

Australian Teacher's First Love Is Travelling

HICKSON, Ont. (CP) — Teaching is Jenny Abbott-Smith's profession. Travelling is her hobby. And she has worked out an ingenious method of using the former to finance the latter.

The 28-year-old Australian is currently teaching at Hickson public school. In July she will be off again to Mexico and eventually to South America.

In 1964, she left Australia for Britain where she spent 3¼ years. Between jobs she hitchhiked through Europe.

Teaching she considers a labor of love, and feels the remuneration is "fantastic."

In her philosophy, persons who are in jobs they enjoy shouldn't make as much money as those who do jobs in an undesirable category, or are engaged in "dull routine" work.

At Hickson she is involved in a program to help children with learning difficulties. Many of the pupils have an average or above-average I.Q., but experience difficulties in class work.

Miss Abbott-Smith rates Ontario's county school system high above that in Australia which operates on a state level. She finds the localized government and central schools more efficient, in meeting the specific needs of children.

U.C.W. Meeting

HOLLOWAY ST. UCW

A skit "St. Peter Look at Me" presented a challenge to all members at the January meeting of Holloway St. UCW.

The skit was introduced by Mrs A. Campbell and those taking part were Mrs. M. White, Mrs. A. Hitchon, Mrs. C. Bird and Mrs. A. Mitchell, members of Holloway St. UCW.

Mrs. K. Parks, president conducted the meeting and Mrs. M. White was pianist. Mrs. G. Coulter conducted the devotional period as suggested in the study book "Toward Understanding China," with Mrs. J. Bush and Mrs. M. Richardson assisting.

During the business period, a donation of $1,000. was made to the Holloway St. Church building fund; the membership to Hastings County Manor Auxiliary was renewed and letters of thanks were read from recipients of Christmas boxes and treats.

Mrs. F. Henderson reported for the Christian Education Committee.

A memorial service was conducted by the president for the late Mrs. A. Wilkes, a valued member and worker of the church.

Mrs. D. Kellar showed pictures of church activities taken during the past year which were enjoyed by all.

Appreciation to those assisting with the program was expressed by Mrs. J. Bush, after which a social half hour was enjoyed.

Members of the executive served refreshments.

Points for Parents

Newest Styles Look Sadly Old-fashioned

LONDON (AP) — London's fashion season wound up Wednesday with one show that puts the ladies into trouser suits, and another that sets dressmaking back 25 years, to about the place where the "New Look" came in.

While Michael went all out for the trousers that are still banned in top restaurants here, Lachasse went back to the 1940s with hems that nearly cover the knee and sheath-fitting clothes that bring back hips and bosoms. In this season of the see-through and the nudie look, Lachasse seemed downright prudish.

Michael's long - jacketed suits were belted, with pleated skirts ending an inch or so above the knee. Two yard long scarves went with everything. Yoked, tab-fronted shirtwaisters were queen of the show.

Michael favors pale grey, clear red, yellow, beige, navy, black and white, with some big bold checks.

It's hard to tell whether Lacrasse is ahead of his time or behind it, but he's certainly out of step. His mid-knee hemline, wide rounded shoulders, draped bosoms and gathered-on skirts looked sadly old-fashioned.

Dyed-in-wool Pessimists Always Look for Trouble

By DORIS CLARK

Epitaph on a pessimist's headstone: "I expected this, and here I am."

Nothing is so bad that a dyed-in-the-wool pessimist can not make it worse. And there are those who take pride in solemn, sad head-shaking, and in couching dire predictions in so-called realistic, intellectual phrases like, "Let's face it, so-and-so is going to happen."

Next time I hear that let's face-it dirge, I'm going to say "Let's not!"

What have we got to lose by keeping our sunny side up?

• • •

Dear Doris: My father died and my mother remarried again. My new Dad treats me wonderful.

Dad's nephew is now my cousin and at the first we were just friends. Then later on he started to phone me practically every night. I am 14 and he is 16. He never acts smart or gets fresh.

At school he always seems to be where I am, and if I look at him he's always watching me and smiling. Every time I see him I get this funny feeling in my chest and my breath stops for a moment. Yesterday I was playing volleyball and doing fine until he came. Then I started shaking all over and couldn't play half as good.

What gives anyway? I've had other boy friends, but I have never felt like this before. — Funny Feeling

Dear Funny Feeling: It's that delicious, delectable, unreliable Cloud Nine sensation commonly known as infatuation — one of the ecstasies — or agonies — or growing up, based on normal boy-girl attraction and only distantly related to mature love.

A boy cousin may get the edge on other friends by seeming one of the family. Obviously you click with him. Enjoy your friendship, but don't give it more importance than it deserves.

• • •

Dear Doris: A year ago my Dad lost a leg due to hardening of the arteries. Before this he was an active man who did a lot of community work. After the amputation and receipt of the artificial leg my folk decided to move to a place about 400 miles from where he farmed.

Since moving he has lost virtually all interest in life. Everything seems to bore him. As he is living on a limited pension he hasn't much money to spend but don't you think there are some things he could take an interest in even with these limited funds?

I would appreciate any information or names of booklets that would put back meaning into his life. — Anxious About Him.

Dear Anxious: Heaps of things; but he has to want to.

He is in the same spot as many others who face retirement from a lifetime of industry, with or without all their limbs.

He misses his farm, his friends, the urgency and importance of being a going concern. Yet a notable proportion of us are living to ripe old ages, doing things completely unthinkable half a century ago and doing them well and happily.

In seeking a hobby or part-time job for him, work on the idea that he has to feel his contribution is needed. Consider his strong points and relate them to a new career. The list I am sending you suggests books and leaflets to steer your thinking.

• • •

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.

Ann Landers

Prayers for Courage, Compassion Answered

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am still stunned by the letter from the woman who stumbled over her husband and her sister in the backyard at 5:00 a.m. It was so much like my problem 13 years ago. Only it wasn't my sister, it was my mother. Your advice was excellent and I hope the woman who wrote to you takes it.

My mother was twice divorced. When I caught her with my husband she was "between husbands," drinking heavily and very mixed up. I was shocked and brokenhearted. The two people I loved most in the world had betrayed me. How could they?

I prayed for courage and compassion and my prayers were answered. I vowed never to mention the ugly incident again and I kept my word. My husband has kept his word, too. He has devoted his life to making me happy. He is a loyal and loving mate. Our marriage is a good one.

My mother is now married to Number Three and we are on friendly terms. I am glad now that I closed no doors. For had I done so, I would have been on the outside. — BEEN THERE TOO.

DEAR B.T.: Your courage and unselfishness paid off. Heartiest congratulations.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Did you know that God is a Negro, a Catholic and a Democrat? Well, neither did we until tonight. Our neighbors just left — but not before they spelled it all out. We expressed some surprise at this allegation and were told, "It's all there in the Bible." When we asked, "Where in the Bible?" we were advised to "read between the lines."

Please check with your authorities, Ann, and let us know if they can produce any evidence to substantiate this astonishing statement. Thank you. — WILLING TO LEARN.

DEAR WILLING: I'm willing too. Ask your neighbors between which lines — and I'll look there, too.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our 19-year old son is in the service, stationed 700 miles away. Every Sunday he telephones and I live for those calls. Our phone bill is pretty high, of course, because he calls collect.

My husband raises a fuss every time the phone bill comes. I've told him I can't think of a way I'd rather spend the money. He says, "The boy should be just as glad to hear our voices as we are to hear his."

Soon our son will be leaving for Vietnam. I get sick thinking about it. Am I the only "foolish" parent in the world who thinks it is all right to "throw out money on nonsense?" Please tell me. — "SPENDTHRIFT" MOTHER.

DEAR MOTHER: There are approximately 30,000 sets of parents in this country who would give everything they own to hear their son's voice again, but they never will. Please hand this column to your husband.

Loses Weight

NORTH VANCOUVER B.C. CP — One of half a dozen female letter carriers in the Vancouver area recommends the job to anyone who wants to lose weight. A Crunchy Banana Muffin

By MARY MOORE

It is something like a new song. How do you discover the quality that makes it zoom to the top of the best seller list?

I'm referring to Banana Cake with Crunchy Topping. We repeated it here on November 1st (after its first printing in July 65). Subsequently we received so many requests for copies we had to make a rerun.

Borrowing from its crunchy topping idea I made Crunchy Banana Muffins. You see this was back on Dec. 19 and I was leaving for Victoria and had two ripe bananas and no bread. My Yugoslavian cleaning woman, Clara, was working overtime and I was preparing our dinner. She loves to watch me cook. I made Crunchy Banana Muffins. "Miz Moore you a good cook". The supreme accolade from Clara.

You will get comparable compliments when you serve CRUNCHY BANANA MUFFINS (twelve large)

2 overripe medium-size bananas
½ cup dark brown sugar
one-third cup soft shortenning
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
¼ cup water
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
½ cup granulated sugar (for topping)
1 teaspoon cinnamon (for topping)

In your beater bowl mash the bananas a little then add the brown sugar, soft shortening, egg and vanilla and beat until mixed. Add flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and barely mix in. Add water and nuts and stir just enough to blend. Do not overstir.

Spoon into twelve 2½" buttered muffin tins, filling nearly to brim. (As you know I use teflon-lined because muffins turn out to perfection.) Mix granulated sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle all of it evenly over top of the 12 muffins. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes. Serve from napkin-lined bun basket while hot.

NOTE: These freeze, well when freezer wrapped and reheat beautifully.

Types of Insurance

Life insurance is a complex but essential, element in a families financial plan. Its main purposes are to provide an income for the family should the breadwinner die, or in some cases, to provide a form of savings for education or retirement.

Life insurance should be well planned and designed to fit a families needs. A later article will discuss how you should compute the amount of insurance for your family. But first, a basic understanding of the types of insurance available is essential.

There are three main types of life insurance; term, whole life often called permanent life and endowment. Every insurance policy is one of these three types. But there are many modifications and combinations available. The difference between the three types of insurance is the condition under which the insurance, the face amount of the policy, is paid.

Term insurance gives limited protection for a certain period of time, usually five, 10 or 20 years. Should you die within this time your beneficiary will receive the face amount of insurance. After the term is up, your insurance expires.

This type of insurance has low cost but does not have a savings feature. That is, it does not build a cash value. It is usually taken out by persons who need good protection at low cost for a temporary period of time. It may be used to pay off a house mortgage or any other loan should the breadwinner die. Or it may be used by single persons or newly married couples to clear funeral expenses should they die.

To illustrate term insurance, suppose at age 30 you take out a 20 year term insurance policy for $10,000. Should you die before 50 years of age, your beneficiary receives $10,000. If you do not die, your protection ends at age 50.

Most term insurance is renewable. That is, after your policy has expired you can take out another policy without having a medical examination. Term insurance may also be convertible to other types of policies, should you wish to change. Be certain your term insurance has both features.

Permanent life insurance provides protection for your entire life, regardless of what age you die. Premiums are usually paid regularly until death but other methods of payment are available. For example, you may pay one lump sum, (single pay life) or regular payments for a specific length of time, such as 20 years (20 pay life). At any rate, the face amount of the policy is paid to the beneficiary regardless of what age the insured person dies.

This insurance builds up a cash surrender value which will be paid to you should you decide to cancel the policy. It also has a loan value, that is, you may borrow a certain amount of money from the life insurance company at a specific interest rate. The face amount of the policy is reduced by the amount borrowed until the loan is repaid.

The final form of insurance, the endowment policy, is really a savings plan which also provides life insurance. Under the endowment policy, you pay high regular premiums. After a specific period of time, such as 20 years, or when you reach a certain age such as 65, you receive in cash the face value of the insurance. This is provided, of course you do not die before the policy matures in which case your beneficiary receives the face amount of the insurance. The cash value may be paid to you in a lump sum or in regular monthly payments.

To illustrate endowment insurance, suppose at age 30 you buy a 20 year endowment of $10,000. If you live to 50 years of age, the $10,000 is paid to you in a lump sum or in regular monthly payments. Should you die, the $10,000 is paid to your beneficiary.

This gives a brief description of the three basic types of life insurance. The next article will discuss certain combinations, options and riders available. These features are valuable but low in cost and help to increase the value of the dollars you must invest in insurance.

Are Brownies Really Spacemen?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

If the "flying saucers" are indeed visitors from other worlds in our galaxy — and this cannot be ruled out — then possibly such visits have been taking place surreptitiously for thousands of years; whole mythology of "elves" and "brownies" and "the little people" as rooted in some extra-terrestrial reality rather than mere fanciful folklore or figments of the unconscious mind.

No computer in existence, or practicable for the discernible future, has a capacity that is more than a small fraction of man's brain — and we must understand, in order to prevent a mass inferiority complex, that the computer's forte is speed, not sensibility.

• • •

One important aspect of the word "power" that is usually forgotten is that true power implies many options and alternatives; a paranoiac with a machine gun has the "power" to murder a dozen people in a city street, but he lacks the greater power to gratify his aims by other means. Thus, a nation that must go to war to get its way is weak, not strong, and violence is never a sign of strength, but always of frustration.

The most misunderstood and misused line in the Bible is "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," which urges mercy, not revenge.

• • •

The "importance" of political leaders is the posible harm they can do us, not the possible good they can do us; as Buckminster Fuller tartly put it: "Take away the energy-distributing networks and the industrial machinery from America, Russia and all the world's industrialized countries, and within six months more than two billion swiftly and painfully deteriorating people will starve to death. Take away all the world's politicians, all the ideologies and their professional protagonists from those same countries and send them off on a rocket trip around the sun and leave all the countries their present energy networks, industrial machinery, routine production and no more humans will starve or be afflicted in health than at present.

U.S. Commission Wants to Ban All TV, Radio Cigarette Ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission's plan to sweep all cigarette advertising off radio and television—if it gets the authority—has drawn strong criticism from the tobacco and broadcasting industries in the United States, but was welcomed by the American Cancer Society.

Chairman Rosel H Hyde of the FCC announced Wednesday the agency's 6-to-1 decision to issue a "notice of proposed rule-making" as the first step toward the ban.

The FCC, however, can take no action before June 30, when a 1965 law forbidding new regulations is scheduled to expire.

The Tobacco Institute, the National Association of Broadcasters, tobacco-state congressmen and the one dissenting commissioner, James J. Wadsworth, criticized the action. The broadcast networks declined immediate comment.

In New York, the cancer society—a long-time crusader against cigarette smoking—issued a statement welcoming the proposal and expressing hope broadcasters would accept the recommendation.

The Tobacco Institute called the announcement "an obvious threat to usurp the congressional function," and said a ban would be arbitrary and extreme.

Hyde told a news conference there would be only two things that might cause him to reconsider a complete ban: The broadcasters could omit the advertisements voluntarily, or the FCC might approve advertising of low-tar, low-nicotine cigarettes.

He made clear, however, the emphasis of the commission's thinking is on a complete ban.

But the commission can take no final action until after June 30, when the law requires health warnings on individual cigarette packages—while at the same time banning further regulations—expires.

Congress could block the FCC's aim by renewing the law or passing another one.

All cigarette packages now sold in the U.S. carry the warning: Caution, cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health.

The FCC has given interested parties until May 6 to comment, and until July 7 to reply to others' comments. It promised it would not act before considering all comment.

Beaches Blackened by Oil

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The penetrating smell of crude oil seems to be everywhere. Beautiful beaches are blackened for miles. The once sparkling blue harbor of this scenic resort city is covered with thick, gummy slime. A wildlife expert calls it the worst disaster ever to hit California bird life.

That was a capsule picture today as a runaway undersea well six miles off the Southern California coast continued to spurt oil at 21,000 gallons a day.

The slick of crude petroleum extends 40 miles seaward, encircling several islands, and covers an estimated 800 square miles of the Pacific Ocean.

Crews trying to check the flow had to abandon the drilling platform for a time Wednesday after natural gas fumes bubbled to the surface along with the oil. About 60 persons living on some of the 70 boats in the harbor here were evacuated because of noxious fumes and the danger of fire.

Easterly winds had held the slick away from shore for days. But a change in wind, plus the action of the tide, began pushing it against beaches, breakwaters and boats in massive concentrations.

The well began leaking uncontrollably 10 days ago. Union Oil Co., the driller, said it is hoped that continued injections of mud into the well and adjoining undersea strata would check the flow in another day or so.

Santa Barbara, with its many Spanish-style buildings and palm trees, long has been regarded as one of California's most beautiful communities. It is 90 miles northwest of Los Angeles, framed by purple mountains and overlooking a crescent strand of beaches.

Efforts to clean up the mess ranged from scattering straw on beaches, hoping it would soak up the oil, to using giant vacuum machines to skim the ooze from the water and load it into barges.

Despite fish and game department efforts to save them, sea birds died by the hundreds. Their plumage black with oil, they tried vainly to clean one another with their beaks. They succeeded only in clogging their beaks and eyes. They staggered toward what they thought was the safety of the sea only to find a seething black trap.

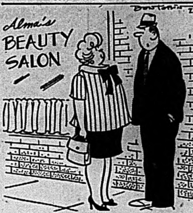
Skipper Praised

CORONADO, Calif. (AP) — Junior officers from the U.S. spy ship Pueblo facing five admirals on a court of inquiry have declared support for their skipper. One said: "I'd follow him anywhere."

The statement came with determination from Lieut. Timothy Harris, 21, one of three officers who testified Wednesday. He called Cmdr. Lloyd Bucher "an outstanding leader."

"I personally think Cmdr. Bucher is one of the finest officers I know—an outstanding skipper before and during the capture and certainly during detention," said Lieut. Frederick Schumacher Jr.

THE LITTLE WOMAN



"Certainly I can see the difference. You look $30 poorer"

Stock Promoter Is Found Guilty

TORONTO (CP) — Stock promoter Myer Rush was found guilty Wednesday night by an 11-man Ontario Supreme Court jury of possessing cheques obtained by fraud.

The jury, one of whose members was dismissed early in the trial because of illness, deliberated two hours and 26 minutes.

Chief Justice Dalton Wells postponed sentencing until next Wednesday.

Rush was charged with possessing five cheques totalling $5,640 by fraud from four U.S. citizens.

The Crown alleged that he acquired the lists of shareholders of four dormant Ontario mining companies and then notified the shareholders that the shares had become valuable. They were told they could exchange their holdings for shares of Darien Exploration Co. by paying only a transfer fee through British Overseas Mutual Fund, the transfer agent.

The chief justice, in his charge to the jury, said there was evidence to convict Rush.

Young PCs Hear Judy

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Judy LaMarsh said Wednesday night that former prime minister John Diefenbaker is a "shaky old man."

The former Liberal secretary of state addressed a Young Progressive Conservative meeting.

Referring to Mr. Diefenbaker, she said he "was a great man — but he isn't any more."

Added Miss LaMarsh: "You should remember that even he doesn't believe that his opinion represents that of the people or even his own party."

Bruins Threaten Gallop to Pennant

By SCOTT BUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins are chuckling at cynics who insist it is impossible to build a championship hockey team through trades.

The Bruins are threatening to run away with first place in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League this season, and much of their success can be traced back to a trade made May 15, 1967.

Centre Phil Esposito and wingers Ken Hodge and Fred Stanfield came to Boston in that trade from Chicago Black Hawks for centre Pit Martin, defenceman Gilles Marotte and minor-league goaltender Jack Norris.

Martin and Marotte have enjoyed limited success with Chicago, but Esposito and Hodge have turned into super stars with the Bruins.

The two one-time Black Hawks turned on their former team-mates Wednesday night to propel the Bruins to a 7-2 victory against Chicago. As a result, the Bruins moved eight points ahead of the second-place Montreal Canadiens and still have a game in hand.

Esposito scored two goals and assisted on two others to take a comfortable lead in individual NHL scoring and help Boston stretch its unbeaten streak to 18 games. The four points gave Esposito 82 for the season, 13 more than runner-up Bobby Hull of Chicago.

Other Boston goals went to Hodge, his 29th, Derek Sanderson, Johnny Bucyk, Wayne Cashman and Ed Westfall.

Dennis Hull and Howie Young connected for the Black Hawks in front of 16,666 at Chicago.

In other NHL action, Oakland Seals upset Montreal Canadiens 5-1, Pittsburgh Penguins nipped New York Rangers 3-2 and Minnesota North Stars rallied to tie Toronto Maple Leafs 5-5.

Boston's victory was accomplished without all-star defenceman Bobby Orr, and forwards Johnny McKenzie, Ron Murphy, Eddie Shack and Tom Williams. All are injured.

With the exception of the ailing Orr and Sanderson, most of Boston's front-line players this season have been acquired in trades.

A couple of unpublicized young players, Mike Laughton and Brian Perry, led the Oakland attack against Montreal.

Perry and Laughton collected two goals and two assists each for Oakland while Bob Dillabough added one goal. Bobby Rousseau scored his 21st of the season for the Canadiens.

A crowd of 5,649 at Oakland saw the Seals emerge from the first period with a 2-1 lead, but Perry scored twice in the second period to increase the margin to 4-1.

Two power-play goals early in the final period carried Pittsburgh to its triumph, the first ever for the Penguins against the Rangers.

Has 13-Point Edge

Scoring two goals for Pittsburgh was veteran Ken Schinkel, a former Ranger. The other Penguin goal went to rookie Jean Pronovost while Vic Hadfield and Rod Gilbert scored for New York.

The two power-play goals came with New York defenceman Jim Neilson serving a five-minute penalty for slashing Bryan Watson and drawing blood.

Danny Grant scored on a power play at 15:36 of the third period to give Minnesota its tie before 16,364 at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Right winger Bill Goldsworthy slipped past Toronto defenceman Mike Pelyk and set up the goal with a perfect pass to Grant, who fired home his 21st tally of the season.

Ray Cullen scored two goals and assisted on another for Minnesota. Other North Star goals went to Jean-Paul Parise and Bill Collins.

The Toronto offensive was led by Ron Ellis, with three goals. Other goals came from Dave Keon and Floyd Smith.

The tie moved the fifth-place North Stars to within four points of fourth-place Philadelphia and a playoff spot in the Western Division. The Maple Leafs remained winless in their last five games and are tied with Chicago Black Hawks for last in the Eastern Division, one point back of Detroit Red Wings.

In activity off the ice, Oakland announced goaltender Charlie Hodge was being assigned to Vancouver of the Western Hockey League for at least two weeks.

General manager Frank Selke Jr. said the move was to get Hodge in shape for possible playoff action. The younger Gary Smith and Chris Worthy are looking after most of Oakland's goaltending chores.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Harry Ornest, former director of British Columbia Lions, has made a formal offer to buy the Canadian Football League club and has backed it with a $25,000 deposit. The amount of the offer was not disclosed, but Lions' president Allan McEachern said Tuesday it was substantial. Ornest said he does not want to disclose the figure offered because he expects at least two other bids, possibly involving Lions' directors, would be made.

CHICAGO (AP) — Major league baseball's Umpires Association has signed a 1969 salary contract, but still unsettled is the dispute over the American League's firing of umpires Al Salerno and Bill Valentine. John Reynolds Jr. of Chicago, counsel for the association, said Wednesday the case of Salerno, 37, and Valentine, 35, fired by American League president Joe Cronin last September, is being investigated by the national labor relations board.

MacInnes' Trenton Rink Scores Double First Day Out

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Skip Bob MacInnes of Canadian Forces Base, Trenton was one of the surprises Wednesday in the Ontario Consols playdown at the Ivanhoe Curling Club here, winning both his games and pulling an upset in the second round.

MacInnes pulled the second upset of the opening two rounds when he counted four in the sixth end and three in the tenth to down Eldon Coombe, last year's finalist, 11-7.

MacInnes made his last rock stand up for a 10-7 win over Dick Munro's youthful Toronto Terrace rink yesterday in the first round.

Munro made a great gambling double takeout on his final rock to lie three, which would have been good enough for a 10-9 win. But MacInnes had last rock and he made a fine draw, biting on the four-foot to take the match.

Meanwhile Ken Buchan and his London sharpshooters Wednesday were producing the major upset of the Ontario curling championship.

TRENTON SKIP MacINNES

Buchan, virtually unknown in Ontario curling circles, defeated Joe Gurowka, who won the title two years ago, was without his third, Ken Ingo, an accountant who could not leave the ledgers for the first two rounds.

Ingo, expected to join the rink for today's three rounds, was replaced in the first two by George Sava.

Gurowka was to meet Jim Lehnen of Kitchener in the third round at 9 a.m. today, while Bill Creber of Toronto played Ross Munro of Toronto, Stu Daw of Toronto took on Bob Scott of Peterborough, Buchan met Eldon Coombe of Ottawa, Lou Turner of Elmvale took on Alf Phillips Jr. of Toronto, Horace Greenfield of Simcoe met Bob MacInnis of Trenton, Don MCGonigal of Toronto played Doug Palmer of St. Catharines and Dick Kemp of Hamilton went against Terry Begin of Ottawa.

Meanwhile, 1967 champion Phillips, playing with three new members on his rink, defeated Dick Vesey of Oshawa 10-7, while Daw, who qualified by winning an open bonspiel last December, downed Jim Hewitt of Exeter 6-3.

In other second-round matches, Turner defeated McGonigal 12-4, Kemp beat Greenfield 8-6, Creber downed Scott 16-6 and Palmer defeated Lehnen 9-8.

The losses eliminated Hewitt and Vesey, who both lost in the eight-rink opening round Wednesday afternoon.

Gurowka defeated Vesey 7-3 by stealing three on the 12th and final end of the opening round, while Coombe defeated Begin 12-5 in 10 ends, Lehnen beat Hewitt 10-7, and MacInnes' CFB Trenton rink downed Munro 10-7.

Munro and Begin both drew second-round byes.

Palmer had the most exciting comeback of the first day by counting four in the final end of the second round for his 9-8 victory.

The Kitchener skip's last rock went between two Palmer stones, leaving the St. Catharines rink with three in the house and the skip drew to the eight-foot circle with his final shot to count four.

SKIER TO WED — Nancy Greene, of Rossland, B.C., former World Cup ski champion and Olympic gold medallist, shared a toast in Montreal Wednesday with Al Raine, her fiance and coach of Canada's national alpine ski team.

Nancy to Tie Knot

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada's former ski queen, Nancy Greene, is to married this spring or early summer to Al Raine, rookie head coach of Canada's national ski team.

Miss Greene, 25, of Rossland, B.C., who retired last year, and Raine, 27, of Burnaby, B.C., who took over the national team this year, were engaged in Montreal Tuesday.

A formal announcement was to have been made today but word of the engagement leaked out Wednesday.

Miss Greene is in Montreal to fulfill commercial commitments. Raine is here for a meeting with officials of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association.

They have known each other for about five years.

"How did you know?" a surprised Miss Greene asked when questioned by a reporter on the engagement Wednesday.

She said no secrecy was involved except that her parents had planned to announce the engagement from their home in Rossland today.

"We haven't set the date, but it will be sometime after the end of the ski season in April. It will be in Rossland, at home, and we'd like a small wedding. We are not sure of details. I'm really very happy and it's very exciting."

Now Newspapers Suggest Solutions To Nats' Dilemma

TORONTO (CP) Publisher John Bassett, in a sports page editorial, Wednesday suggested a system of National Hockey League assistance to help Canada regain the world amateur hockey crown.

In the second of two articles in The Telegram, Bassett said it was neither practical nor fair for either Toronto Maple Leafs or Montreal Canadiens to "opt out of the NHL for a season, or part of a season, to represent Canada in world hockey competition. . . ."

"But it is possible for each of the 12 teams to designate two players or give up two players or demand, for a period of four weeks. This would be ample time to train together and then play for a week of international competition."

Bassett, chairman of Maple Leaf Gardens, said the proposal has "never even been discussed" with Leafs' president Stafford Smythe or Harold Ballard, executive vice-president of the Gardens, "much less any officer or official of any other team of the National Hockey League."

His suggestion, however, was disputed by J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, European director of the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Visiting in Ottawa, Ahearne said:

"The Canadian amateur Hockey Association is the governing body and no one else can enter a team in international competition.

"It is not for me to interfere domestically in Canada's hockey affairs but it must be the CAHA who handles the international team because they are the controlling body.'

Ahearne said it was permissible for the Leafs or the Canadiens to play exhibition games and practise with the national team but called the Bassett formula "impossible.'

"They can only use re-instated professionals and I must have a list of their names before Sept. 1. Of course, that means they can't play professional hockey that year."

Bassett's alternative proposal was for Russia "to enter a team, even two, in the NHL."

"With jet travel a daily occurrence, a schedule could be worked out to allow NHL teams to travel to Russia for games and for the Russians to come to this continent," he said.

Blair Says Stars' Season 'Just One of Those Years'

TORONTO (CP) — Wren Blair, coach and general manager of Minnesota North Stars of the Western Division of the National Hockey League, isn't worried about getting his fifth-place team into the playoffs.

"I told Walter Bush, (president of the North Stars) that we're going to be in the league for 100 years," Blair said Wednesday night following the North Stars' 5-5 tie with Toronto Maple Leafs.

"There will be years we don't make the playoffs, so what difference does it make if it's year two or year 12?"

Minnesota had gone 14 games without a win when Bush asked Blair to replace John Muckler as coach and on his first game back, the North Stars beat Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 on the road.

"It wasn't John's fault, but Walter felt we needed to make a change," Blair said.

"I didn't expect to replace the man I had named as coach, but attendance was dropping off to around 10,000 at home from 14,000-plus. We had to do something to get the club moving again."

Muckler, who has just returned from a Caribbean holiday, is expected to go back to Memphis, Minnesota's Central Hockey League farm club, as general manager.

Blair coached the team to the semi-finals of the Stanley Cup last year.

Blair says if he can make a deal for a left winger, Parker MacDonald will return to Memphis as coach.

"There were no promises of making the playoffs," he said, "but we're within four points of the problem (fourth-place Philadelphia Flyers), so we'll have to think about it."

Blair believes poor performances by players who had good seasons last year have hurt the club.

"(Wayne) Connelly had 35 goals last season, but only 14 so far this year," he said. "And Goldie (Bill Goldsworthy) only started to play after I sent him down to Memphis for two weeks in December.

"I can't believe the guys come to the rink to play badly. They're just not psychologically fit for the games.

"The Howes and the Hulls come to play with their heads screwed on right.

"I think some of our guys spent the summer taking bows in their hometowns, saying: 'Gee, I'm an NHLer' and forgetting that they have to prove they can play in this league everytime they step on the ice.

"The North Stars aren't going to be a true NHL club until we replace 10 players we have now."

New Commissioner May Find Desk Moved Before Taking Seat

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowie Kuhn, baseball's new commissioner, hasn't had time to get the feel of his new desk and already there is talk of moving it out of town.

Phil Wrigley, owner of Chicago Cubs, suggested Wednesday that his city become headquarters for all of baseball.

"The first thing that has to be done," said Wrigley, "is to put the offices of both major leagues as well as the minor leagues under one roof."

Wrigley said that he and Walter O'Malley, owner of Los Angeles Dodgers, have favored a shift to Chicago for eight years. "Somehow, it always was sidetracked."

Wrigley missed the Miami meeting which elected Kuhn.

Arthur Allyn, owner of Chicago White Sox, was surprised at sudden agreement to elect Kuhn.

"The two leagues have been feuding so long," said Allyn. "I didn't think we could even agree on the sun rising in the east."

Kuhn hopes that under his leadership, the hatchet can be buried by the National and American Leagues.

"We have to see if we can confine the competition to the World Series, signing of players and publicity, and not carry it over into matters in which the two leagues have a common interest," said Kuhn.

The Wall Street lawyer who was tapped to succeed William D. Eckert is a virtual unknown outside of baseball's inner circles, but he is not concerned about his anonymity.

"It is far more important that Dennis McLain and Bob Gibson be household words than Bowie Kuhn. The players and the way the game is played are the most important things," said Kuhn.

Kuhn's first and most pressing problem seems to be not how, but if the game will be played this spring in the face of a threatened player strike over pension funds.

"Left to their own devices, I believe they will work out a pension solution," Kuhn said. "I firmly believe the place to settle such problems is at the bargaining table."

Kuhn said he favored experiments with changes in the playing rules dealing with pinch hitters and pinch runners.

Education Now Mixes With Pro Hockey

By LORNE BRUCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Thirty years ago, a graduate of McMaster University was picked as a first-team all-star in the National Hockey League.

Syl Apps won the honor in 1939, and again three years later, as the centre for Gordie Drillon and Bob Davidson on the line that made Toronto Maple Leafs a Stanley Cup contender. His academic background seemed barely worth mentioning.

As it happened, Apps was the only college-bred player ever to achieve all-star ranking.

Professional hockey's attitude toward the halls of learning in subsequent years was illustrated in 1956, when the Leafs peddled Eric Nesterenko to Chicago Black Hawks. One of their complaints was that the young right winger insisted on studying part-time—at McMaster University.

Ed Zemrau, director of athletics at the University of Alberta, says the swing today is in the other direction and predicts that a "far, far greater number" of players with university degrees will make the NHL.

A 34-year-old Denver University graduate who played a bit of minor pro hockey in the Chicago organization, Zemrau says a growing number of youngsters feel they can provide for their future by combining education with an NHL career.

Among current examples are Red Berenson, a 20-goal man two years running with St. Louis Blues, from the University of Michigan, and Tony Esposito, Montreal Canadiens' agile rookie goaltender from Michigan Tech.

More than 30 others from campuses in the United States and Canada attended NHL training camps last summer. Most are sprinkled through the minors or back at school. Many will be back.

Zemrau, whose Alberta Golden Bears won the Canadian intercollegiate title last spring, says the majority of Edmonton-area players accepting United States athletic scholarships either couldn't make his team or lacked the academic standing to attend a Canadian university.

He would like to see a scholarship program in Canada, but not on the American scale. Apart from financial considerations, Canadian universities would not be interested in all-out recruiting of athletes.

"We don't want them to get into the position where athletics overshadows education, which is the prime reason for their being here."

Green Bay Directorate in Accord That Lombardi Be Released from Pact

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Green Bay Packers sent Vince Lombardi to Washington Redskins Wednesday night, with regret, but without animosity.

By unanimous vote, the 45-member board of directors of the National Football League team voted to accept Lombardi's resignation as general manager, releasing him from a contract that had five years to run.

Lombardi joins the Redskins as head coach, executive vice-president and part owner. The Packers said they decided against demanding compensation from Washington for the loss of the man who had built their small-town team into a profitable terror of the gridiron.

Green Bay's executive committee advised Wednesday's emergency session of directors that, after Lombardi's decade of contribution, it would seem unfair to block his desire for ownership in a pro club, something Lombardi couldn't achieve under Green Bay's non-profit stock system.

The directors' meeting was their first emergency session since they met a decade ago to hire Lombardi.

Lombardi, who had led Green Bay to five NFL titles in his nine years as coach and 10 as general manager, often expressed a hope of gaining ownership in a club.

In Washington, there were reports he was offered $1,000,000 in Redskins' stock at half price. Redskins officials declined Wednesday to confirm Lombardi also would be paid up to $110,000 annually under a pact running five or more years.

Gordie Howe's HOCKEY

Some of the problems in constantly travelling wear you down. In fact, I find travelling just as tiring as playing hockey. Maybe even more so.

Recently we talked about some of the fun we've had in switching to buses because of the weather. That was the fun part. However, in this jet age travelling isn't the fun it was when we used trains.

For a while when I was getting tired from travel, I thought it was my age, but when I found young guys like Garry Unger and Bruce MacGregor complaining, I realized it wasn't me.

Let's explain it this way. With air travel, the National Hockey League has expanded coast to coast and increased the schedule. You can play in one city Thursday, go some place else for Saturday and then on to another city for Sunday. This is rough.

Recently we played four games in five nights with three of the games on the road. It went like this: Montreal, Detroit, Toronto and Philadelphia. You'd better believe we were tired after that.

On the Detroit-Toronto leg of the trip we were forced to swing to a bus because of fog and rain.

We had to sweat out the Toronto-Philadelphia leg of the trip, too. For a while it appeared that we might not be able to take our air charter out of Toronto after the Saturday night game. It was a close thing. Had the plane been grounded because of the weather, we would have been forced to take a bus to Buffalo and catch a train from there to New York, then another bus from New York to Philadelphia. We would have arrived just a few hours ahead of game time.

Fortunately we were able to take the plane. However, while the weather was clear when we left Toronto, the fog had closed in by the time we reached Philadelphia. We were the last plane allowed in before the airport closed up shop.

It was about 3 a.m. before we got to bed.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal health department will likely end up paying about $50,000 toward the cost of sending the Canadian team to the 1968 Summer Olympics at Mexico City. The department was originally prepared to grant $73,485 to the Canadian Olympic Association towards the cost of sending 144 athletes and officials to the Games. However, the agreement was that the department share would be 50 per cent and the total cost, although not fully established, appears to be slightly over $100,000.

Quebec City Prepares For Invasion by Peewees

QUEBEC (CP) — An army of 12-year-old youngsters will invade the provincial capital today for the biggest clash in peewee hockey.

The peewees take over Quebec City for the next 10 days for what promises to be the biggest year in the 10-year history of the international peewee hockey tournament.

A record 107 teams from various parts of Canada and the United States will participate in this year's tournament, 12 more than last year's entry.

Apart from Quebec, six other provinces will be represented in the 1969 tournament — Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Manitoba and Ontario.

There are four division in the tournament, based on the size of a team's home community. The divisions are AA, A, B and C. There are 38 teams in the AA category this year, 16 A teams, 24 B and 29 C category squads.

The AA division is for teams who come from an area where the population is 5,0000 or more; the A division is for those whose area population is 20,000 to 50,000; the B category for areas with a population between 7,000 and 20,000 and the C group under 7,000 population.

Only seven of the 28 teams that took part in the first tournament 10 years ago will be back this year. They are Scarborough Lions, Charny, Donnacona, Montmorency, Ste. Foy, Tiffard and Boston.

Each team plays sudden death matches—which means one loss and it's all over for the losing team—until a winner is decided. On the final day, the divisional winners compete until a grand champion is declared.

This year's final will be televised nationally in English and French by the CBC.

'Fergy' Big Help to Mo-Hawks' Playoff Drive

By MAURICE SWITZER
Sports Editor

On skates, he might be compared to one of those ambling bears in a Russian circus, and his back-checking would scarcely place him in the Keon category.

But in the wake of the last couple of Belleville Mo-Hawk senior hockey sorties, no-one is about to pick any holes in Al Ferguson's playing style.

"Everything just went in" is the burly Trenton rookie's simple explanation of a weekend scoring binge that saw "Fergy" account for all the Mo-Hawk scoring in a Friday night 4-3 home win over Barrie, and add a hat trick two days later in a 6-5 road win against Collingwood.

And for his fellow Mo-Hawks—embroiled with Kingston Aces in a down-to-the-wire battle for the eight-team OHA Senior A loop's sixth-spot playoff cutoff, Ferguson's seven-goal spree couldn't have been more timely.

The Trenton native came to the Mo-Hawks highly touted as a fellow who could put the puck in the net. After all, hadn't he set the Central Junior League on fire last year with 95 points, including 46 goals, as a member of the Brockville Braves?

"I got six goals in one game last year," Al says, recalling the efforts that carried him to the junior circuit's scoring title.

But after joining the Mo-Hawks in the second month of this season's schedule, the chunky 6 foot-one, 21-year-old found himself with a rather disappointing output of four goals in his first 22 games . . . until last Friday.

In that game, Ferguson showed to the tune of four goals how even a 195-pounder could finesse the puck around the rink. His ability to flick the puck over a goalie's shoulder almost vertically, and a booming, unpredictable slapshot are the Ferguson trademarks.

AL FERGUSON

And so is a plodding skating style that makes an observer wonder how "Fergy" would make out in a race with goalie Larry Holmes.

But nobody's knocking the results, least of all Mo-Hawk playing-coach Davey Jones, who attributes the current Ferguson bout of goal-mouth success to his assignment three games ago to play right wing on a line with nifty centreman George Godson and left-side digger Lorne O'Donnell.

"Al is getting the puck more playing with George, and not only that, he's been working harder and gaining confidence" says Jones.

The new forward combination paid its biggest dividend of its short history when Godson, O'Donnell, and Ferguson accounted for 13 scoring points in last Sunday's win in Collingwood.

What promises to be the biggest local crowd since the early weeks of the senior hockey season will be on hand in the Belleville arena Friday night to see if the Ferguson touch can dent goalie Gerry McNamara's armor, as the third-place Orillia Terriers come to town.

Whatever the outcome, next week's home-and-home set with Kingston Aces with whom the Mo-Hawks are currently tied for the last playoff berth—is attracting attention as a dramatic capper to the Mo-Hawks stretch drive.

A bus will be running to Kingston Tuesday night from the arena at 7 o'clock with $2.75 covering transportation and game admission. Plans are also afoot for a bus trip to the Mo-Hawks' final regular-schedule game in Woodstock Sunday Feb. 16.

Details are available at 962-2605 or 962-1350.

Juniors Hold Hoop Meet

STAFF — There will be many a scramble around the hoop Saturday at Napanee as the Napanee District Secondary School holds its second annual Blue and Gold junior boys' basketball tournament.

The top three junior teams in the Bay of Quinte District, Moira, Quinte and BCI, who together have lost only three games all year, will face stiff competition from five other teams.

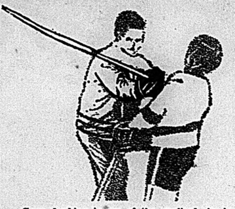
Cobourg West, the only team to defeat Moira this year, and last year's winner, Athens District High School, will both be in the running for the championship as will last year's consolation winner, Pembroke Collegiate.

The host Napanee team and a squad from Cloyne round out the field of teams who will compete for the Students' Trophy, which is awarded each year to the championship team. In addition the winning team and the consolation champions will receive crests.

The tournament gets under way at 8.30 a.m. with Moira playing Napanee. Quinte plays Cloyne at 9.30, Athens meets BCI at 10.30 and Cobourg West tangles with Pembroke at 11.30.

The consolation final will start at 6 p.m., and the championship final will follow at 7.30. First round winners will advance into the championship round, while the first round losers enter the consolation round. A loss in the championship round eliminates a team from the tournament.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY TIPS



Cross checking is one of the cardinal sins in hockey. It may cause serious injury but always causes a team to suffer a penalty.

No player deliberately sets out to injure another. Cross checking is usually caused by over-excitement or poor timing but occasionally, anger.

Remember, keep your stick down around the ice, where the action is: You can't score goals with your stick held high.

Referees don't miss much; they've played a lot of hockey themselves and will jump on rules infractions as soon as they occur.

Top Midgets at Tweed

A brand of minor hockey seldom seen in this neck of the province will be displayed at the Tweed Community Centre, Friday night at 8 p.m. when two of the top midget hockey teams in the province tangle in an exhibition game.

The game, a highlight of the fifth annual Tweed Winter Carnival, will pit the Ottawa 67's against the Toronto Marlboro minor midgets, and will follow a 7.30 p.m. torchlight parade, which will kick off the weekend's activities.

The Carnival runs throughout the weekend, and will feature snowmobiling, hockey, skiing, curling, figure skating, ice fishing and other winter sports activities.

Hastings County's first annual sky-diving competition will be held at Stoco Lake one o'clock Saturday afternoon, weather permitting, and Saturday night the Silver Blades Skating Club of Toronto will put on a figure skating exhibition at the Community Centre. An old timers' hockey game will follow the figure skating exhibition.

Sunday's program features a Bedtime Bonspiel, with curling from midnight to 8 a.m., a Kiwanis Pancake Breakfast and snowmobile races at Stoco Lake in the afternoon.

The Tweed Chamber of Commerce is organizing the Winter Carnival, and everyone is invited to attend and take part in the activities.

Picton Rally Pays Off; Napanee Wins at Foul Line

STAFF — Guard Rick Walmsley of the Picton senior basketball squad led his team to a 46-38 win over the Trenton Tigers last night in an unusual way.

Walmsley went scoreless in the first quarter, then broke loose in the second quarter to score a team high 11 points and spark the Picton club to a 21 point outburst which wiped out Trenton's six point first quarter lead.

Picton lost further benefit of Walmsley's hot hand when he fouled out near the end of the second quarter, but the second place Picton squad edged ahead to stay in the third quarter.

Les Nicholson of Trenton swished a 40 foot baseball pass as the buzzer sounded to end the first half, and the two points pulled the Tigers to within one of Picton at the half.

Picton pulled ahead by five in the third quarter and won by eight as Wayne Coward hooped 21 points, nine on foul shots, and Pete Rigby contributed nine points.

Picton midgets upset previously unbeaten Trenton 40-36, and Trenton juniors dumped Picton 49-38 in the night's other Class "AA" games.

Trenton's junior win was only their second of the year, and came at the expense of the winless Picton squad.

Jim Ransom notched 11 points for the winners, while Danny Dow and Kendal Piche netted ten points each. Bill Barrett threw in 16 points for Picton, Dennis Bond netted ten and Steve Carroll added five.

STAFF — Foul shooting appears to be a simple skill, but it is skill which few high school basketball players master. An exception to the rule is guard Jim Stewart of the Napanee Golden Hawks senior basketball squad.

Stewart, who practices foul shooting regularly, hit on nine of 11 foul shots in the second half last night, and 11 of 13 in the game, while scoring 21 points to lead the Napanee seniors to a 59-48 win over the Centennial Chargers last night.

The other Napanee players did not disgrace themselves at the foul line either as the Golden Hawks made 19 of 32 free throw attempts in the game. The team as a whole is shooting a respectable 58% from the foul line in eight games to date.

Napanee varied between a 1-3-1 zone and combination defence, and used a potent fast break to advantage. Bob Cook hooped 14 points for the winners, Henry Dornekemp netted 11 and Dave Cunningham added eight.

Centennial juniors and midgets both evened their records at four wins and four losses, the juniors winning 44-21 and the midgets 45-28.

The junior Chargers played a man-to-man defence and beat Napanee's 1-3-1 defence with a fast break.

Frank Johnston tallied 11 points for the winners, Randy Derry contributed eight points, Glen Mallory six, and Mike Semark five.

Centre Rob Madden hooped 14 points for the losers, while Dave Finlay netted nine points and Don Smith and Brian Babcock added four points apiece.

The Chargers' scoring was evenly distributed as Wes Chow threw in ten points, while John Koch, Paul Penney, Dennis Neron and Larry Fell contributed eight points each.

Cable TV Companies Start Scramble to Divide Toronto Area

OTTAWA (CP) — A scramble to slice Toronto and its fast-growing environs into exclusive districts for a half-dozen cable television companies began to unfold Wednesday at a public hearing of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Protestors suggested the CRTC ought to adopt regulations limiting rates and hook-up charges to cable subscribers and regulate the quality of cable transmissions.

There was one suggestion, from the mayor of North York municipality, that the CRTC should open the way for municipalities to collect a fee amounting to three per cent of gross revenues from any cable system operating in the municipality.

Specifically, the only application before the CRTC was one by Maclean-Hunter Cable TV Ltd. for a licence to serve parts of Toronto, including North York, eastern suburbs in the Pickering area and western suburbs in the Mississauga area.

But the single application served to open up a series of claims and counter-claims for cable territory.

It also revealed that major cable operators have carved the Toronto area up into sections to be divided among themselves.

Such firms as Coaxial Colourview Ltd., Rogers Cable TV Ltd. and Terra Communications Ltd. were listed as opposing the Maclean-Hunter application.

But Maclean-Hunter presented a map to the hearing delineating new proposed areas for its operations which were satisfactory to these previous opponents. They withdrew their opposition.

The map showed different colored areas of proposed operations for Maclean-Hunter, Coaxial, Rogers, Terra, Metro Cable TV Ltd. and York Cablevision Ltd. It thus outlined a territorial settlement among these major bidders for cable licences.

However, a number of other cable companies are seeking to carve niches for themselves in the Metropolitan area. They come up when the hearing resumes today.

Four big apartment owners in Toronto banded together to oppose the Maclean-Hunter application and all others for the Metro area.

This brief, on behalf of Greenwin Construction Co., Belmont Construction Ltd., Meridian Property Management Ltd. and Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd., sparked a head-on clash with Maclean-Hunter over cable system rates.

Lawyer J. S. Grafstein said cable operators charge perhaps $4.50 a month for service to a private home. Charging the same amount to every tenant in a 200-suite apartment building was unfair.

Package Ad Deal Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission was invited Wednesday to look into some advertising package deals in the broadcasting industry.

Robert Redmond, president of radio station CHSC, St. Catharines, issued the invitation during an application for renewal of the broadcasting licence for CKTB, his competition in the Niagara Peninsula city.

CHSC objected to an advertising agreement between CKTB and CJRN Niagara Falls, Ont.

Mr. Redmond described it as a "must-buy" proposition for national advertisers. They could not buy national advertising time on either the St. Catharines or Niagara Falls stations individually. They had to buy both as a package and the two stations then divided the payment.

The net effect was to siphon away from St. Catharines some national advertising dollars that might otherwise be spent on his station, Mr. Redmond claimed.

CHSC held the agreement was the sort of restrictive trade practice that would be illegal under the Combines Investigation Act if this legislation applied to advertising. Advertising is not covered by the act.

Lawyer Sharman Learie, appearing for CKTB, was asked whether the situation was as described by Mr. Redmond.

Harry Boyle, CRTC vice-chairman, asked whether it really was a "must-buy' situation.

"It's as simple as that," Mr. Learie, replied, but there were other factors.

His company felt CHSC had only raised the question to obtain "something that would be useful" to CHSC in its advertising sales campaign.

Mr. Learie said he understood that in "other 'must-buy' deals in Canada" there were "rare exceptions" to the stipulation. The "same practice is followed by us."

Mr. Redmond told the commission CHSC believes the CRTC has the power to look into the agreement set up by CKTB and CJRN.

CHSC said there was no such agreement between CKTB and CJRN until after CHSC applied for a licence to compete with CKTV in St. Catharines. The package amounted to "abuse of the right to free competition."

Mr. Redmond said his station is operating at a loss. But this was to be expected since it only got on the air in 1967.

Mr. Learie said 80 per cent of the national advertising dollars spent in Canada go to 13 metropolitan areas and the Niagara Peninsula is not one of these. The agreement with CJRN had been reached to try to win a fair share of these dollars for the St. Catharines-Niagara Falls region.

The CRTC will announce a decision on the licence renewal later.

Cable TV Bylaw Illegal

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Alexander Stark ruled Wednesday that a 1968 bylaw adopted by Whitby exceeds powers entrusted to municipalities by the provincial legislature.

In a Supreme Court of Ontario decision, Mr. Justice Stark said the bylaw by Whitby, about 30 miles east of here, attempted to regulate the installation of cable television in the town.

He said the bylaw, challenged in court by Oshawa Cable TV Ltd., was invalid because it appears that no permit would be granted unless the company provided a generous share of the firm's annual gross revenue to the town.

The judge called this illegal indirect taxation.

Beah Richards

Academy Award Nomination Doesn't Help

HOLLYWOOD (AP) Don't talk to Beah Richards about the therapeutic benefits to careers of honors by the Motion Picture Academy.

Last year Miss Richards received an Oscar nomination for her sensitive portrayal of Sidney Poitier's mother in Guess Who's Coming to Dinner. With film and television producers more aware of the need to portray the Negro in today's America, you might think that the actress would have reaped a number of roles.

"Not so," she says with a wry smile. "My first job in the industry since Guess Who's Coming to Dinner was a role last week in the television series Hawaii Five-O. And that was a one-day job!

Miss Richards made the observation with no apparent bitterness. Her life has necessarily been a series of adjustments; the lack of response to her portrayal in a highly successful film is just one of them.

How does she explain it?

"I don't really know what the reason is, except that Hollywood has always been image-minded. Whatever the initial image, it becomes permanent."

Her image, she believes, was established as matriarchal, even though she was married in the film to a strong-minded husband"A postman; that's almost middle-class!' 'The black community, she contends, rebels against being classed as a matriarchal society. Hence she is caught in a dilemma.

Beah Richards is not the kind to sit around and fret about lack of acting jobs. Born and reared in Mississippi, she has learned some lessons in survival. Her early life in the south inclined her toward acting. She explained:

"Actually I had to lead two lives: I could be myself among black people, but I would have to present a different personality to the rest of the community. It was this duality that made acting come easy to me. Also, my father was a preacher, and therefore dealt a great deal in verbal imagery. I learned the usefulness of words in communicating feeling."

She moved on to Broadway and Hollywood, appearing in the stage and film versions of The Miracle Worker, in Hurry, Sundown on the screen and The Little Foxes at Lincoln Centre in New York. But often there were stretches of inactivity in between. For five years she taught classes at a charm school in New York. Lately she has used her time to write a play and a book of poems.

"I'd keep myself busy, taking part in the activities of my community," she said. "Right now I am living in a part of West Los Angeles that is a ghetto area, populated by Orientals and Mexicans as well as blacks. I do what I can to help."

Beah Richards is by no means matriarchal in person, looking more the age of Sidney Poitier's sister than his mother.

REFLEX SAVED HIM

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — The first time Ross Davies, 26, saw a cougar close up was nearly his last. A six-foot, nine-inch cougar attacked him during a deer hunt. He credits the cougar's blood-curdling cry and a reflex rifle shot from the hip for saving his life.

Smash Hit Musical 'Mame' To Play O'Keefe Centre

The national company of the smash hit musical, "Mame" with stage and screen star Janet Blair starring in the title role, and Elaine Stritch also starring and playing the part of her best friend, Vera Charles, will be presented by producers Lee Guber and Shelly Gross at O'Keefe Centre for a two-week engagement starting Feb. 10.

When the award-winning musical premiered on Broadway it received the highest critical acclaim. Life magazine, as well as Time, hailed "Mame" as "Broadway's best musical". The Saturday Review pronounced it "The season's funniest musical". And the New York Times called it "A splendidly splashy production — filled with lively songs and dance. Plenty of effective theatrical sentiment, laughs and vitality".

Music and lyrics of the popular score of "Mame," which contains some of the season's top hits, was written by Jerry Herman, whose other Broadway successes include "Hello Dolly" and "Milk and Honey". The show album received a Gold Records Award after selling more than a million copies, and the single recording of the title song, Mame, by such popular artists as Herb Alpert, Louis Armstrong, Al Hirt and Robert Goulet, among others, has contributed much to the success of the song.

The musical "Mame" was written by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, based on the best-selling Patrick Dennis novel, "Auntie Mame," and the hilarious play by Lawrence and Lee. Its story deals with the zany adventures of Mame Dennis, who finding herself the guardian of a young nephew, decides to bring him up according to her own slightly unconventional methods.

"Mame" will be presented each evening (except Sunday) at 8.30 p.m. with matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays at 2 p.m.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT GAME

of golf, so called because it was played by the English royal family in the 16th century, was probably invented in Scotland. The best golf courses in the world are still there where the Scots call them links.

Maybe the king in your family no longer uses his old clubs because he received new ones for Christmas. Sell those perfectly good woods and irons with a Intelligencer Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9171 today!

Unrecognized Birth Injury May Make Child Difficult

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Is your child a problem? Is he nervous? Does he already wear the label "neurotic"? Many an innocent child wears it through no fault of his own. Sometimes an obstreperous, argumentative, difficult child is the victim of an urecognized birth injury. I believe that no child should be called a neurotic unless he has had a complete examination by a neurologist. And even if that is negative, I dislike the promiscuous use of the label "neurotic."

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: As parents of an 8-year-old, only child, we have just learned that our boy is "bad" only because he has been suffering from a minor birth injury we didn't suspect. An electroencephalogram taken recently disclosed the trouble.

It makes my husband and myself actually sick when we think how we used to punish him physically and call him stupid and a troublemaker right in front of his friends.

I wonder how many thousands of other "troublemakers and neurotics" are physically sick and misunderstood? — Mrs. B.

Comment: Subliminal birth injury is being less overlooked as a possible reason for childhood neurosis and emotional imbalance. Nevertheless, neurosis in most children is probably not organic in origin, but due to anxieties which first developed early in life.

Sometimes it is nurtured in the home, where parents are often absent; and where there is little stability and discipline — or, too much. Overlooked is the possibility that neurosis begins, or is aggravated, in the public school classroom. If it is true that neurosis is often due to anxiety, and reactions to anxiety, think how some sensitive youngsters suffer in school: ridiculed, feeling inferior and struggling against overemphasis put on exam marks.

Some children — even college students — are terrified by tests and exams because in the offing are stern teachers and parents who will be "disappointed" in them. Youngsters are vulnerable to anxiety.

We grownups should take a good look at ourselves whenever we are confronted with the problem of a troublesome child — young or teenager. His self-esteem is low as it is. When we add disdain and misunderstanding, we are apt to crush what little is left of his ego.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Eating the same food over a long period of time can cause disadvantages of various kinds. I ate pears for a couple of years, especially during the winter, and raised a craterlike growth on my forehead. I quit pears and it went away in a week. It has never returned. Interesting? — Mr. Z.

Comment: As the man says on TV: Very interesting. However, Mr. Z., I think what you present is circumstantial evidence. I'd hate to convict innocent pears on the strength of only one case history.

For Miss P. (Phoenix, Ariz.): At 18 acne is common. You say your face clears in the summer when you are out in the sun a lot; and that there is no change in diet: you stay away from fried foods, chocolate, salty foods, etc. You break out again in the winter.

I suggest you ask your doctor about using an ultraviolet lamp under his direction. Often those helped by sun in summer are helped by artificial sunlight during the winter.

ARTIFICIAL MEAT

TOKYO (AP) — Food producers report westernizing influences on Japanese dietary habits have encouraged manufacture of "artificial meats" from soybeans and wheat. They said 20 companies are producing substitutes for beef and poultry that look like and contain as much protein as meat but cost less.

Vietnam Peace Talks Facing Possible Months of Deadlock

PARIS (AP) — The Vietnam peace talks face the prospect of a sterile deadlock that some delegates believe could continue for months.

Chief U.S. negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge warned against "false optimism" after Thursday's fruitless third session which lasted more than six hours.

"Although we do our best to achieve progress," Lodge told reporters, "the going is hard.

"Therefore, there must be no false optimism, but we must not be discouraged."

In the meeting, Lodge again asked North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front to drop polemics and propaganda statements and get down to specific de-escalation measures beginning with restoration of the demilitarized zone.

The Hanoi and NLF delegates repeated their rejection of any de-escalation measures not linked with a political settlement.

It was a day of charges and countercharges, what one Asian diplomat described as "a dialogue of deaf mutes."

Spokesmen of all four delegations agreed that, once again, progress was nil. The only decision was to meet again next Thursday.

The National Liberation Front's chief negotiator, Tran Buu Kiem, and his spokesman, Ly Van Sao, appeared to harden their conditions for a settlement.

Kiem told the conference there could be no progress until the present Saigon government has been ousted and the United States has agreed to negotiate directly with the NLF.

Sao went even further, telling reporters: "The United States must first formally recognize that it has committed aggression in South Vietnam, and then agree to put an end to that aggression."

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 8

Your birthday today: Re-evaluation begins at once. Everything is considered afresh in terms of what it is worth. Practical applications come to the attention readily. The temptation is to seek material improvement while neglecting important personal relationships. Today's natives often possess latent talents for research.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your optimism may carry the day, but try to be a little more careful with facts. The middle ground seems best especially later in the day.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Emotional concerns can lead you into extra-budget expenditures now. Co-operation in partnership and marital ventures is never to be taken for granted; if you have done so, you may have to begin rebuilding.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Today it is easy for you to talk of spending, and a lot of fun as well. If anybody is taking you seriously, you are in for a squabble.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your possessions tend to weigh upon your spirits. Bickering with in-laws or steady friends is all too easily started. Be prepared to be a good host this evening.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your heartstrings pull in more than one direction. You haven't much leisure time available for activities beyond essential maintenance of your home and position. You are more receptive to medical advice than usual and may benefit from asking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Tidy up the loose ends. Decisions are harder to arrive at against pressures. New activities seem out of the question at the moment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): The tendency is to be swept along on tides of coincidence not of your own planning. Go along, but keep your indulgences very simple. Your adroitness at handling people becomes essential.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Nobody wants to hear the hard lines of your week's work, so find something cheerful. Any travel should begin earlier than normal to allow for delays and special conditions. Sports, physical work deserve particular care.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Begin the day with a full list of things to do written out nicely. Everybody talks about things you'd rather they didn't notice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Emotionally slanted advice is abundant and just as hard as ever to cope with. Stay with your earlier decisions on financial arrangements. The evening is simple but significant.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Lifelong habits begin to redevelop. Your attentions are directed to the deeper lessons of your experience, perhaps to distant, exotic places. You may be setting forth on a philosophic safari.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Your time-table becomes a touchstone of reality as every arrangement tends to confusion. Intuition leads you into some knowledge of your friends that had escaped your attention until now.

Sunday School Lesson

Right Use of Power

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

No one can read about Thomas Edison's life without asking, "How did one person ever come to possess so much genius?" The same question can be asked about every great genius. How could Mozart compose such masterful music? What muse inspired Beethoven to compose his great symphonies? How could George Frederick Handel compose such a monumental work as the oratorio "Messiah" in 24 days? How did Steinmetz, Newton, Faraday, Einstein, and Oppenheimer come to have such giant intellects in the realm of science? How can you explain a writer like Shakespeare, a musician like Bach, or an artist like Michelangelo?

Many studies have been made to discover the causes of genius. No completely satisfying explanation has ever been found, and perhaps never will. The real secret of genius is locked in the mind of the Creator.

> The Uniform Sunday School lesson for February 9: "The Mighty Power of Jesus", Mark 4:35 through 6:6.

As we ask about great composers, inventors, writers, artists, etc., the people of Jesus' day asked about His amazing insights, and power to heal. "Where did this man get all this?" they asked. "What is the wisdom given to Him? What mighty works are wrought by His hands!" (Mark 6:2 RSV)

The answers to these questions depend on what a person believes about Jesus. E. Stanley Jones, for example, says that Jesus' life was such a miracle. It would be a miracle if He had not performed miracles.

Whatever beliefs a person holds about Jesus, it seems evident that He had power to do amazing things. There are many accounts that represent Him as having miraculous powers.

Mark combines several of these accounts into a cluster of miracle stories. In Mark 4:35 through 6:6, Jesus is represented as having power over nature, demons, death, and disease.

Each story carries its own message. Jesus stilled a storm, and for millions who trust Him, He still stills the storms of life. Many a person who has been struck by a storm of bereavement and grief has turned to Him, and He has stilled the storm of their resentment and brought hope and peace to their hearts.

Jesus healed a man who was demented. The man was convinced that the evil spirits that had been tormenting him entered into some nearby swine. The people, however, were more concerned for their property than for the man who was healed. Mark says that when they saw him "in his right mind . . . they were afraid" (Mark 5:15 RSV)

Afraid of sanity! This is still the world's problem. It would seem the peak of sanity for nations to reduce armaments, and to replace hate and antagonism with co-operation and bortherhood. But nations are afraid of that kind of sanity. Many still put a higher premium on property than on people. The result is exploitation in the slums the rise of violence, etc. When will concern for people come first?

Jesus' assurance stands out in sharp contrast to the people's despair in the case of a girl's death. He healed a woman of sickness when every other source of help had failed. No wonder people asked where He got His wisdom and power.

It is important to note how Jesus used His power. He never used it to hurt, but to heal, never to further His own desires, but to help others.

Many of the things Jesus did by the power of His tremendous faith, we do today by science. We bring healing, through medicine. People have even been brought back from death by massaging the heart.

Men have achieved amazing mastery over the powers of nature. They can split the atom, and soar into outer space. They can send messages and pictures through the air. The question is, how will they use this power — for exploitation or for man's betterment?

Someone once said. "It is excellent to have a giant's strength but it is tyrannous to use it like a giant." This is the problem. Science has provided men with a giant's strength. Will they use it like a ruthless giant?

But there is another side to the problem. To be helped, people must want to be helped. Even Jesus could not help where people did not respond in faith (Mark 6:5-6) His faith was like a dynamo sending out its electric power. But their faith was needed to complete the circuit. To bring peace and healing to the world, men must not only offer the power of love. Those to whom it is offered must be willing to receive it.

Nuclear Power Workers Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's first full-scale nuclear power plant, the Douglas Point station near Kincardine, was hit today by a strike of 200 Ontario Hydro workers.

The walkout is part of a series of rotating strikes designed to harrass management and to support wage demands of Hydro's 9,740 workers. The strikes began Monday, but there have been no power disruptions.

Hydro spokesmen said the plant at Kincardine, 40 miles southwest of Owen Sound on Lake Huron, which can be operated by six persons monitoring equipment in the control room, will be manned by supervisory personnel.

Stanfield Wants Provinces Consulted on Estate Tax Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield Thursday described the federal government's proposed changes in estate taxes as "a slap in the face" to the provinces.

"This in itself would be sufficient to throw this bill out," the Conservative chief said as the Commons continued second-reading debate of the measure to amend the Estate Tax and the Income Tax Act.

..Today the Commons resumes debate on a bill to establish a freshwater fish marketing corporation.

Mr. Stanfield argued that Ottawa should put the tax bill "in cold storage" until the provinces are consulted on it.

He said the changes should be included in a promised government policy paper to drastically reform taxes. The government had promised to consult the provinces on these changes but its manner of proceeding with the estate tax changes left him with serious doubts about these intentions.

But aside from the lack of consultation, Mr. Stanfield found fault with its taxing aspects.

The bill would eliminate death duties on estates passing between husbands and wives. And estates of less than $50,000 would remain free of death duties.

Rates on higher estates would be increased with the general exemption limited to the first $20,000 rather than the first $40,000.

Mr. Stanfield said that because the taxation rates reach their maximum in estates of $300,000 or more instead of $2,000,000, it was probably the Western Canada farmer and the small businessman who would be hit the hardest.

"Let us not confuse the issue with a lot of pretence that the fate of millionaires is at stake," said Mr. Stanfield.

Conservatives believed that drive and energy were important to the maintenance of private enterprise.

"We have to exercise some care in the degree to which we impose these taxes."

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot) said the tax changes shift some of the burden from the very rich to the middle-class farmer.

The farmer, said Mr. Horner, had to sweat for his money. This was in contrast to those who, like Prime Minister Trudeau, inherited their wealth.

Steve Otto (L—York East) said he agreed with Mr. Stanfield that the estate tax changes might have been part of the tax-reform package.

But he disagreed that the changes would stifle incentive to build up wealth.

"It is not the prospect of leaving our wealth after death that pleases us; it is the prospect of controlling that wealth during our lifetime that drives us," he said.

Ed Schreyer (NDP — Selkirk) said his party could support the bill if the minister "got rid of those aberrations which have the effect of making the smallest estate hit the harder by tax with the very large ones in some instances paying reduced taxation."

A commendable feature was that no tax would be imposed on estates passing to a spouse, he said.

Father Found Daughter Foaming in Locked Car

TORONTO (CP) — The father of Theresa McIntosh told a preliminary hearing Thursday he found the three-year-old youngster foaming at the mouth and locked in the car of his wife's boy friend.

Ian McIntosh testified at the preliminary hearing of his wife, Dianne McIntosh, 20, and Michael Manellis, 38, both charged with abandoning Theresa in a manner likely to endanger her life and with conspiring together to abandon her.

Charges were laid last year midway through an inquest into the death of Theresa in October.

Mr. McIntosh, 24, said that last September, after his wife left him, he discovered Theresa locked in Manellis' car in a parking lot near the restaurant Manellis ran in west-end Toronto. He said she was dirty and began screaming for him to get her out of the car.

"She was covered in sweat and her hair was matted. She was screaming to get out of the car. She said 'daddy, daddy, get me out.' "

When he tried to call police, they told him not to cause any more trouble and ordered him out of the area.

Mrs. McIntosh and Manellis have elected to be tried by a judge and jury.

The hearing was adjourned until Feb. 13.

Peking Demands U.S. Turn Over Defector

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Peking has demanded that the United States and The Netherlands return Chinese defector Liao Ho-shu to China, Radio Peking said today.

The radio said a Chinese foreign ministry spokesman Thursday accused the U.S. of manipulating the defection of Liao in collusion with the Dutch government.

The charge was the first official Chinese government reaction to the defection to the U.S. of 46-year-old Liao, the highest-ranking Peking diplomat to seek asylum in the West.

Canada Has Not Got National Science Policy

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has no over-all national science policy, a Senate inquiry into the subject has been informed.

In effect, national policy amounts to an accidental arrangement of individual policy decisions on programs such as nuclear energy or pollution.

The information was placed before the committee by S. Simon Reisman, secretary of treasury board, the panel of cabinet ministers responsible for financial management of spending programs.

"National science policy really comprises a series of policies with respect to nuclear energy or pollution, etc.," Mr. Reisman told the committee.

"In the end, we get a national policy by accident," remarked Senator Maurice Lamontagne, committee chairman and former Libéral cabinet minister.

"I think that's true, sir," replied Mr. Reisman in a rare instance of a senior public servants commenting on government policy, which is the sole responsibility of the prime minister and the cabinet.

The exchange pointed up the absence of any public indication whether the cabinet accepts the Science Council's recommendations of last October about the basic ingredients of a national science policy.

The council, set up in July, 1966, to advise the cabinet in national science policy, proposed that Canada direct research and development effort into six major areas—space, computers, water resources, transportation, urban development and foreign aid.

Mr. Reisman's chief inquisitors, Senator Donald Cameron (Ind-L—Alberta) and Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario), were critical of the piecemeal approach to formulation of national science policy.

Senator Cameron said that in months of hearings the committee gets the impression that it results in duplication of effort, lack of co-ordination and failure to achieve goals.

Senator Grosart said it illustrates why Canada has a "serious imbalance" in research and development, with industrial activity only a fraction of the research and development effort of government and universities.

Mr. Reisman maintained that Canada's ability to make decisions on allocation of resources among a variety of programs has greatly improved with establishment of the Science Council, the cabinet's science secretariat and a new system of planning, programming and budgeting by government departments and treasury board.

Federal support for research and development had doubled in five years to $520,000,000 in the fiscal year that ends March 31—half the nation's total spending in this area and representing about 1.2 per cent of the gross national product.

(In the 1969-70 fiscal year, the figure is expected to rise to about $540,000,000, remaining at about half the national total.)

"While the federal government has been actively supporting Canadian scientific effort, we do not know whether the total help has been enough," Mr. Reisman said.

"Nor do we know how much more effective the expenditures might have been had we had a better means of relating the application of research and development effort to nationally-defined goals and priorities."

Mr. Reisman was challenged on his contention that treasury board, in riding herd on departmental spending plans, performs a management rather than a policy-making function.

He argued that the new planning, programming and budgeting system aims at three things—a clear statement of program objectives, cost-benefit analysis of proposed programs and examination of alternative means of accomplishing the objectives defined.

The decision whether to go ahead on a program remained in cabinet's hands, he maintained.

Senator Cameron disagreed. In theory, he said, the Reisman view was correct but in the exercise of its "management" function the board really acted as a policy-making body.

He based this contention partly on evidence to the committee that treasury board killed the $155,000,000 proposal to build an intense neutron generator, scrapped last September in an action much-criticized by the scientific community.

Mr. Reisman denied that treasury board wielded the axe. The decision, he said, was made "at the very highest level" by the cabinet, not by the public service advisers to treasury board.

But Senator Cameron questioned whether the cabinet had the time to consider all the long-range policy implications of the intense neutron generator decision.

World Needs Common Foe

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the persistent strains running through this column over the years has been the world's pressing need for a common enemy to unite us. Only if we are threatened with attack from little green men on Mars will we give up our idiotic and suicidal system of rival nations.

It pleases me, therefore, that a recent issue of the journal "Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists," lends its pages to the same wishful fantasy, in an article by Dr. Ernst Hass, a district medical superintendent in West Germany.

If our Earth feared an extraterrestrial invasion, he says, "I am certain that the quarreling nations of all five continents would very soon have at their disposal a common staff of generals, perhaps even a 'world government,' which would be responsive for all global problems, obviously, nothing at all could foster an improvement in the relationships of the big powers as much as an aggressive, common opponent."

Dr. Hass goes on to say what I have pointed out in the past: "We would place in the hands of a sovereign world organization the handling of world peace, nutrition, population, questions of training or even education; pressing socio-anthropological as well as economic-technical tasks of the most varied sorts."

Above all, he concludes, such dangerous "pressure from the outside" would quickly put an end to the mutual ambition of destruction which today poisons the atmosphere of international relations. Only a common danger can inspire us to a common effort — as we have seen in all crises, from floods and fires to shipwrecks and mine disasters.

But it may not be necessary to look for the little green men. Edward Teller, the scientist, suggests that in the next 20 years we may be able to produce, artificially by technical means, the weather conditions on which our harvests depend. This means that any nation could affect the climate of any other nation, which would be an intolerable situation. Teller estimates that within a decade of this accomplishment, a governing body with worldwide authority would have to be constituted, in order to stabilize climate and crop conditions.

It is also possible, Dr. Hass points out, that a new Ice Age is in the making. The antarctic ice cap is unstable, and a huge antarctic ice slide is being discussed seriously by many geophysicists. Such a slide could create tidal waves destroying the greater part of life on earth — and no one knows when it might happen.

This is the kind of common enemy that mankind needs, to deploy our resources, our energy, our imagination, and our passions. If we think the world may end by freezing, we just might halt our efforts to end it by burning.

Constitutional Reform Showdown Seems Likely

Trudeau Faces Prairie Revolt

OTTAWA (CP) — Provincial premiers headed for Ottawa this weekend for what promised to be a showdown conference on Canada's approach to constitutional reform.

The three-day meeting was expected to open Monday with an immediate Prairie challenge to Ottawa's emphasis on discussing basic constitutional principles — including entrenchment of language rights in the constitution.

The Prairie premiers, with support elsewhere in the country, are demanding immediate attention to fiscal problems.

In Regina, Saskatchewan's Deputy Premier D. G. Steuart said Friday it is time for the Prairies to be heard. Prairie grain is as important to the country as the official languages bill or bilingual judges, he said.

Mr. Steuart will be subbing at the conference for ailing Premier Ross Thatcher, the only provincial leader not expected to attend.

While several federal ministers campaigned Friday in support of the proposed charter of human rights, Alberta's Harry Strom was visiting British Columbia's W. A. C. Bennett in Victoria.

Mr. Strom spoke of a possible united western front before leaving for British Columbia, but he apparently got little encouragement from Mr. Bennett.

The B.C. premier said Mr. Strom's visit was not connected with the Ottawa conference.

"No western bloc, no western separatism, one united Canada," he said.

Mr. Strom also denied that he was trying to form a western bloc.

Manitoba's Walter Weir, who wants priority given to "urgent financial questions" facing the provinces, has already served notice that he wants to speak before the conference deals with the agenda.

Ontario's John Robarts has said it is "absolutely vital" to give top priority to federal-provincial fiscal arrangements.

The prime minister Friday tabled correspondence with the provinces on the agenda, showing that opening statements will be followed by discussion of conference objectives and "objectives of Confederation and basic principles of the constitution."

This will be followed by specific constitutional questions—official languages, fundamental rights, distribution of powers including constitutional aspects of taxation and spending powers, reform of institutions linked with federalism, regional disparities, amending procedure and provisional arrangements and mechanisms of federal-provincial relations.

In Regina, Mr. Steuart told the Saskatchewan legislature that Ottawa has made "no change whatsoever" in its approach to the conference.

"We are not prepared to sit back and allow the problems of the Prairies to be swept aside, or pushed into dark corners indefinitely," he said.

France Backs Spanish Plan To Bar U.S. and Soviet Fleets

MADRID (AP) — Foreign Minister Michel Debre of France announced his support today for a Spanish proposal to bar foreign fleets from Mediterranean ports.

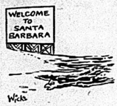
Debre flew back to Paris after a two-day official visit to Spain.

"It is desirable that the Mediterranean not welcome fleets of countries which don't border on the Mediterranean," he told reporters.

The statement was aimed at the United States and the Soviet Union which maintain fleets in what the Spanish call "our sea."

Debre said a proposal by Foreign Minister Fernando Maria Castiella of Spain to neutralize the sea is "excellent in principal."

"But," he added, "the current crisis of the Middle East makes difficult putting it into practice immediately" because nations in the Middle East have requested U.S. and Soviet aid.



Czechs Plan Liberty Laws

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Premier Oldrich Cernik Friday said his Czech government will introduce far-reaching legal changes aimed at ensuring democratic rights and freedom.

He told a news conference the preservation of these rights is one of the main tasks of the government, the Czechoslovak news agency CTK reported.

The government plans to submit bills to the Federal Assembly to amend the right of Assembly, association and freedom of expression and ensure independence of judges, he said.

Cernik repeated earlier government pledges that no one in Czechoslovakia would be persecuted for holding views different from those of the government or the Communist party.

Cernik also said Czechoslovakia will need credits of $200,000,000 to $300,000,000 over the next two years to modernize industry and continue economic planning.

Michigan Suggests Pollution Laws Be Enforced by International Body

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The International Joint Commission on pollution should be given powers to enforce pollution legislation, the assistant attorney-general for Michigan, said Friday.

Nicholas Olds spoke during a panel discussion on water pollution laws at the Canadian Bar Association's Ontario convention.

J. L. MacCallum of Ottawa, legal adviser to the IJC, explained that the recommendation might be useful to U.S. members of the commission. But, he added, the Ontario Water Resources Commission already had authority to enforce IJC proposals in Canadian waters.

The suggestion by Mr. Olds was made during a discussion on OWRC regulations enforcing the use of holding tanks for sewage in pleasure boats on the Great Lakes. The panel was cross-examined extensively by six pleasure boat owners in the audience who asked panel members to explain the OWRC regulations.

Half-hour Blackouts Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro plans to cut power for half-hour periods across the province if it is forced to shut down generating stations, Hydro's director of operations said Friday.

Robert Hillery said in an interview a shutdown at a large generating station might set off a massive power blackout similar to the one in 1965.

Hydro supervisors who have been filling in for missing workers in the series of rotating strikes may only be able to operate a larger station at half-normal capacity, Mr. Hillery said.

The lost power would draw too much from other power companies through the sprawling electrical grid system that connects the northeastern United States and Eastern Canada. A draw that large could black out the whole system, he said.

To protect the system, Hydro would be forced to cut down on the use of power in Ontario.

Meanwhile, about 2,500 Hydro employees were to return to their jobs today in the northeastern and northwestern sections of the province, but technicians and linemen at the publicly-owned utility's construction sites walked out in the latest of the rotating strikes.

Car Warranties Are Assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A member of the Federal Trade Commission said Friday that auto warranties protect the manufacturer and not the buyer.

"Contrary to what a lot of people believe, the warranty takes away from the car owner," said commissioner Philip Elman. "It doesn't give him a thing."

Elman commented during a hearing at which Howard E. Crawford, a vice-president of General Motors Corp., protested an FTC report that accused most manufacturers of failing to live up to their warranties.

Elman and three other commissioners lectured Crawford for calling the FTC report factually deficient. They said GM had failed to recognize that there was a problem.

Another witness, William W. Winpisinger, general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, blamed the auto industry for consumer complaints.

He said many of the 117,000 auto and truck mechanics his union represents are demoralized because they have to take the blame for poor repair service. Because manufacturers can pay less to dealers for warranty work than the dealer charges retail repair customers, Winpisinger said, some dealers make up the difference by charging customers more or skimping on warranty jobs.

Boys Were Going to Light 'Candles' Father Recognized Them as Dynamite

MONTREAL (CP) — A home made time bomb, considered to be "the most powerful yet dismantled" since the current wave of bombings began in the city, was discovered Friday night in front of a downtown provincial government office.

Experts estimated the bomb had a potential force equivalent to 48 normal-sized sticks of dynamite.

Earlier Friday two 11-year-old boys found a box containing 150 75-proof sticks of dynamite — "enough to level a city block" — in a vacant lot in suburban Pointe aux Trembles.

The boys took what they thought were candles home and intended to light them when Wilfred Filion, father of one of the boys, spotted the explosives and called the police.

Provincial Police and RCMP are investigating the two incidents.

Beavis Won't Testify Before Plaza Hearing

The Ontario Municipal Board has set aside four days next week to conclude its hearing on Belleville's request for rezoning of North Front street.

The inquiry on the controversial request—which seeks to open the way for location of a northend shopping centre—recessed for the weekend early yesterday afternoon after four days of testimony supporting the plaza project.

Before the adjournment it was learned that one man, whose presence had loaned added expectancy to the proceedings, will not to called to testify.

P. J. Beavis, former city planner whose resignation late last year after he levelled criticism at local planning procedures, had been subpoenaed to appear by both sides in the dispute.

He was not called to testify during presentation of the city's case earlier this week.

Yesterday, Robert Macaulay, lawyer opposing the rezoning for Oshawa Wholesale and the eastend Belleville shopping plaza, requested that Mr. Beavis, now city planner for Brantford, be released.

Mr. Macaulay noted that assistant planner Frank Stokmans had already testified on planning procedures involved in the proposed northend development.

He therefore had no reason to examine Mr. Beavis and he understood neither city solicitor E. Guss Porter nor R. B. Robinson, counsel for plaza developer Cambridge Leaseholds, scheduled testimony from the planner.

"You may be released as counsel has no wish to call you", OMB hearing chairman W. H. J. Thompson told Mr. Beavis.

Mr. Thompson said OMB officials originally had set aside Monday and Tuesday of next week for the hearing.

However, due to the importance of the issue and desirability of concluding evidence and arguments at one sitting, next Wednesday and Thursday also would be made available by the OMB.

The hearing will resume Monday at 11 a.m.

Meeting Planned On Fire Protection

According to Ameliasburg councillor Norman Post, Belleville's prospective 1,000 per cent increase in the annual fire protection budget is "absolutely ridiculous".

And if the increase ever goes through Ameliasburg at least is even considering the formation of their own fire department.

Other townships involved would be Tyendinaga, Thurlow and Sidney.

All four of the townships were notified by Belleville that the city was considering charging on a percentage basis as per equalization of assessment for fire protection under the mutual aid system.

Under the new system, if instituted, Ameliasburg could be charged as much as six per cent of the annual cost of running Belleville's fire department.

That would amount to $32,000 annually for that township. Other charges are Tyendinaga, two per cent, Thurlow, 11 per cent and Sidney eight per cent.

In 1968 the fee to Ameliasburg from Belleville was only $2,495 based on an annual stand-by fee of $1,040 and an hourly rental rate of $32 an hour — $65 if the fire is more than seven miles from the Belleville department.

To talk over the situation which township officials term as "an emergency" a general meeting has been called for next Friday night in the Ameliasburg township hall at eight p.m.

Mr. Post said that he felt the city of Belleville was being fair from their standpoint. "I'd do the same thing if I were sitting in Mayor Scott's shoes but the fact of the matter is the municipality simply cannot afford a bill of $32,000."

All of the townships have sent representatives to meet with city officials privately since the tentative rate increase was announced.

Carnival Under Way

TWEED — The biggest event of the winter season in Hastings County opened its program by torchlight here last night.

Villagers and visitors from surrounding communities thronged the main business area here as Tweed winter carnival was launched with a traditional evening — the opening torchlight procession.

Floats, bands and majorettes, led by carnival snow queen 17-year-old Janice Alexander, paraded through the village in suitably crisp winter weather to open a busy weekend of events.

The parade led spectators to the local arena and a midget hockey game between Toronto Marlboros and Ottawa 67s.

Highlight of the weekend was slated for this afternoon with a sky-diving contest.

Other events include an ice show tonight and pancake breakfast starting at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

Did you know a funeral service serves the living?

There are still some people who believe that the only important function of a funeral director is to bury the dead. That's like saying the prime function of a doctor is to write prescriptions.

Actually, the main concern of the modern funeral director is for the living — to help lift the sudden, heavy burden from the shoulders of the bereaved.

Once the technical work is completed, all that can be done for the deceased has been done. But just as a competent physician inspires trust and confidence in time of illness, so too does the funeral director devote himself to bringing comfort and peace of mind to sufferers.

The public comes to him at a time of grief and mental unpreparedness. Often they look to him to fill the gap in their lives which death has created.

Many other psychological needs of the family — to face reality, to express themselves — must be met with a professional care which friends alone cannot always tender. The funeral director and his staff, experienced in dealing with people from all walks of life, are trained in tact, patience and courtesy necessary to meet these many needs.

There is also a great need for physical comfort to ease the fatigue of emotional strain. This need is met by the funeral home, tastefully equipped to provide conveniences and facilities available nowhere else.

The evidence of consideration for the living can even be seen in the technical processes involved in preparing the body. One of the main reasons for the embalming process is to prevent the possible spread of contagion. Derma-surgey, which restores features which may have been disfigured, is performed solely to allow family and friends a comforting last look.

Physical and mental comfort, inspiration for leading a moral life with renewed fervor, evidence of our high standard of civilization — these are the things a funeral director creates in his service for the living.

Rescue Their Business

TRENTON — Forty - nine persons lived to see the new year thanks to the rescue coordination centre at CFB Trenton.

That is the number of lives that was saved by the combined work of 424 Transport and Rescue Squadron at the base, the Canadian Coast Guard and the OPP. All these organizations form the co-operative rescue team.

This is an increase of 25 over the total lives saved in the previous year.

As well as the saving of lives the rescue personnel investigated 417 cases of distress as opposed to 394 in 1967.

The Eastern search and rescue area covers approximately 275,000 square miles going from as far south as the Canadian — United States border to as far north as Hudson Strait.

Beginning at the west, it stretches from the lakehead to its eastern boundary at Quebec city. This area also includes the Canadian portions of the great lakes.

To cover this enormous area the rescue centre has only four aircraft from 424 squadron — two Dakotas and two Labrador helicopters — along with 10 search and rescue cutters from the Canadian Coast Guard.

The rescue centre is manned 24 hours a day by a Canadian Forces officer. As well, air and ground crews of 424 squadron are always on alert.

Mrs. Nettie May Elliott passed away last night in Belleville General Hospital after a short illness. She was born 63 years ago in Roslin to the late Mr. and Mrs. Willard Delyea and lived most of her life in Roslin.

Mrs. Elliott moved to RR5, Belleville two years ago.

Her husband James Alfred (Fred) Elliott, predeceased her and she had no children.

Mrs. Elliott is survived by two sisters, Mrs. (Rev.) J. W. (Clara) Flatt of Belleville and Mrs. W. H. (Helen) Chisholm.

She was a member of the United Church and spent her life as a housewife.

The funeral will be held on Monday from the chapel of the John R. Bush Funeral Home to interment in Belleville Cemetery. Rev. John Bunner will officiate.

MRS. AMY ELIZABETH BELSEY

Ill for several years, Mrs. Amy Elizabeth Belsey, 101 Front Street, died at the Sheppard Nursing Home today. She was in her 94th year.

Mrs. Belsey was born in Woolwich, England, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ennos and had lived in Belleville since 1915. Before that she had lived for a few years in Brockville.

Her husband, Herbert Belsey, died in 1950.

She was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

She is immediately survived by a son, William C. Belsey, of Belleville and two grandchildren, Frank Belsey, of Belleville and Mrs. Irene Kirby, of Peterborough.

She was predeceased by two sons, Herbert and Ernest and a brother, William Emmoss, who was killed in France during World War I.

Resting at the Pinkston and Luscombe Funeral Home, service will take place Monday at 2.30 p.m. with interment in Belleville Cemetery.

RETA M. HARRINGTON

The funeral for Miss Reta M. Harrington was held from the Weaver Funeral Home in Trenton on Feb. 7. to Mount Evergreen Cemetery for interment. Rev. Frederick Love of the north Trenton United Church officiated at the ceremony.

The bearers were Harold Schriver, Edward Peck, Manley Way, James Broatch, Hugh Demille and Graeme Brundage.

Miss Harrington, of RR5, Trenton, passed away Feb. 4 in hospital in her 43rd year.

She was born in Murray township to the late Mr. and Mrs. Steve Harrington and never married.

She is survived by her brothers, John and Archie of RR3 Trenton and her sisters Mrs. Clarence (Ida) Sleep of Whitby, Mrs. Robert (Geraldine) Gilpin of Kingston, Mrs. Kenneth (Madeline) Ellis of London and Mrs. John (Doreen) Bendsten of Pittsburg, Pa.

Miss Harrington had lived in the Trenton area all of her life and was educated at the Mount Zion school. She was a former employee of Downs and Coulter Textile in Trenton and a member of the Stockdale United Church.

Odor Alarms Residents

An odor first feared to be escaping natural gas, caused alarm among several Belleville area residents last night.

At Corbyville, one man said he and his family briefly vacated their home after calling Belleville fire department.

Provincial police later explained the true case: Natural gas has no odor, and pipeline workers had injected an odor into the pipeline serving the city area last evening.

What residents smelled, say police, was the chemical filtering along the lines — not gas.

Bonarlaw

BONARLAW — Sympathy is extended to the wife and family of Albert Holland of Havelock who passed away in the Civic Hospital in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Don McKeown of Foxboro are enjoying a trip through the United States. They plan to return by Vancouver, where they will visit his brother, Carl, his wife and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bristol are spending some time with friends at Simcoe.

BIRTHS

CARLETON — Lorne and Laura Anne Carleton, Campbellford, Ont., are pleased to announce the birth of their daughter, Tammy Marie, on Thursday, February 7th, 1969, at the Belleville General Hospital. Weight 7 lbs. 11 ozs. A sister for Cheryl, Terry and Dawn.

IN MEMORIAM

ALEXANDER — In loving memory of my dear wife Carrie Margaret who passed away Feb. 9, 1963.

Six years have passed since that sad day.
The one I loved was called away.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in my heart she liveth still.
—Always remembered by husband Norman.

CULBERTSON, George Albert Jr. —In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away suddenly Feb. 8, 1966 in Toronto.

They say time heals all sorrow,
And helps us to forget,
But time so far has only proved,
How much we miss you yet.
—Ever remembered by sister Lavina and family of Cleveland, Ohio.

CULBERTSON — In memory of a dear dad, George Albert Culbertson, Jr. who passed away Feb. 8, 1966.

Please God forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our dad was here,
There are others, yes we know,
But he was ours, we loved him so.
Dear God, take a message,
To our dad in heaven above,
Tell him how much we miss him,
And give him our love.
—Sadly missed by son and daughters, Russell, Ellen, Ann and Marlene.

CULBERTSON, George Albert Jr. — In loving memory of a dear son who passed away suddenly, Feb. 8, 1966 in Toronto.

We do not need a special day,
To bring you to our mind,
The days we do not think of you,
Are very hard to find.
—Ever remembered by Mom.

HARRIS, Agnes — In loving memory of a wonderful mother and mother-in-law, who passed away Feb. 8, 1964.

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.
—Remembered by son and daughter-in-law Robert and Katherine.

TERRY, Mable — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away Feb. 8, 1968.

What would I not give to clasp her hand,
Her dear sweet face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That meant so much to me.
—Never forgotten by daughter Fern and son-in-law Archie and children.

Eighty Pupils Attend Belleville District Christian School

To 41 families in the Belleville district, education is a personal concern.

And so strong is their conviction they have built, and school. now maintain their own

Eighty pupils attend Belleville District Christian School on the Foxboro Road opposite Sunningdale Drive. An independent public school, it is open to Christians of any faith.

"Through our type of Bible-oriented education, we give young people a constructive set of ideals to live by," said Albert Van Reewyk, a past president of the society that administers the school. "Many people from Europe have seen the results of misdirected youth in the past."

Throughout Ontario, over 8,000 pupils attend the 41 elementary and four secondary schools affiliated with the Ontario Alliance of Christian Schools. All are supported by the parents of pupils, and none receives public funds.

The $25,000 budget of the Belleville school comes from the $500 yearly fee charged each family with children in the school and from another 60 to 70 people in the community who donate regularly or contribute to fund drives.

The school was started in 1964 by a group of parents from the Christian Reform Church, who sent 20 children. Since then enrolment has increased to the present 80, taught by principal James Wilms, Miss A. S. Vander Ploeg and Miss Irene Hoogland.

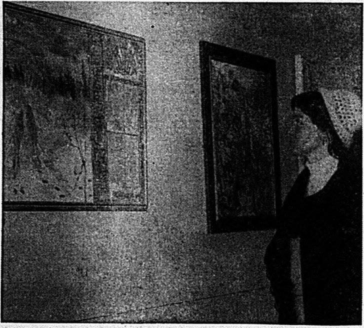
All grades from 1 to 8 are taught in the three classrooms. A fourth, partially finished, room is used as a general purpose area.

Supporters point with pride to their low construction costs — about $12,000 a room.

The course of study follows the guidelines set by the Ontario departmett of education and the three teachers give all religious instruction.

Except for Roman Catholic Separate schools, independent schools organized along denominational lines receive no tax support in Ontario. Provincial aid is extended to Christian schools in Newfoundland and Saskatchewan, and Alberta gives a $100 a pupil a year grant to denominational schools that have operated for three years or more.

"By providing education at the parents' expense to more than 8,000 Ontario children, the Alliance of Christian Schools saves the provincial government close to $3 million in yearly grants and about $10 million in capital expenditures," said Mr. Wilms.



Artist With Her Work

Dawn McRae Strathy stands before one of her paintings at her exhibition in the Corby Public Library. It is her first showing in Belleville.

Artist Exhibits Paintings at Library

Dawn McRae Strathy, at present exhibiting her paintings at the Corby Public Library, is an example of the top-notch artist that the Quinte Arts Council is seeking for exhibitions in Belleville.

Mrs. Strathy's exhibition began Feb. 2 and will continue until Feb. 15 at the library's downstairs gallery.

She brings with her to Belleville and the library a history of art accomplishment.

Born in Lachine, Quebec, she studied at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts, the Valentine School of Commercial Art and Sir George Williams College in Montreal.

Mrs. Strathy has exhibited in the Pollock Gallery in Toronto and at MacDonald College in Montreal.

But, probably in her own mind, her proudest moments to date were a show at the Galerie du Colisee in Paris in 1964 and a showing of two of her oils chosen for exhibitions of Societe des Artistes Independants in the Salon des Independants in Paris in the years 1965 and 1966.

Awards have not been scarce for Mrs. Strathy who had a selected oil work chosen for the international competition Prix Utrillo Exhibition at the Galerie Gaveau in Paris. She has membership in the Lucie-Valore-Maurice Utrillo Foundation.

In 1963 she was awarded first prize in water color at the Autumn Festival of the Arts in Toronto. In 1964 she received first prize for a water color in the Fifth Annual Toronto Outdoor Art Show.

She also took first prize for a water color at the Guelph Painter's Show in 1965.

In 1968 she was awarded the Fairview Purchase Award for water color awarded by David Carter, director of the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts.

Mrs. Strathy has lived in Belleville for three years, but this is her first exhibition in the city.

She was asked by the Quinte Arts Council to exhibit in the Corby Library as the result of a series of exhibitions in three libraries in North York which lasted from Oct. 1 to Dec. 7.

This library exhibition series also offers painting competitions, the winners of which are chosen by art teachers and the like. The idea of the exhibitions is to help further fine art.

Mrs. Strathy feels the only problem with showing in Belleville is the fact that prices seem a little high to prospective Belleville buyers.

"You have to keep with market prices," she says. "It's just like anything else."

"They are coming alive in Belleville. The Quinte Arts Council is trying to promote cultural interest."

Mrs. Strathy teaches art in Belleville. She used to teach adult classes at Moira Secondary, but now teaches at home.

Her next exhibition will be in Bancroft and in the spring there is another one coming up in Montreal.

Sight Precious Possession

Sight is one of man's most precious possessions, the frequently-traded automobile among the most transient.

Ironically, most people take better care of their cars than their eyes, says Clarence Morris, Belleville Club of the Blind president.

The club is among a national network of local organizations now marking White Cane Week, the annual event sponsored by the Canadian Council of the Blind and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

This year, Mr. Morris is hopeful of impressing upon parents the need to teach their children eyesight precautions.

"Everyday objects can become lethal weapons in the hands of youngsters," he warns.

"Not every accident leads to blindness," says Mr. Morris. "But it's foolish to suffer an eye injury needlessly when simple precautions can save the day."

Other disabilities are more easily rectified, but blindness poses serious implocations.

"Through research, a screening at birth may one day head off a heart attack at the age of 40, and reduce retardation and diabetes," says Mr. Morris.

CBC Under Fire

Senator L. P. Beaubien's suggestion that the CBC be "carved up" and sold to private interests, as a means of putting it on a paying basis, is unlikely to be heeded by Ottawa.

The CBC, after all, is the voice of Canada on the airwaves and for better or worse the country is stuck with it. That is not to say its economics and program content cannot be improved. For instance, Parliament was told recently that it cost six times more for the CBC to cover the Olympics in Mexico City than to finance the Canadian team at the games. The cost of the 178-member Canadian team was $160,000, while the 106-member CBC Olympic staff cost no less than $930,000.

Again, if the CBC is to reflect more adequately and accurately the image of this nation and the attitudes of its people, it must rid itself of the dangerous political bias it oftentimes exhibits. In this regard, Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson recently cited some findings of Ontario Judge John Matheson, from his earlier days as parliamentary secretary to former Prime Minister Pearson.

Mr. Matheson spent some 39 weeks monitoring the controversial program "This Hour Has Seven Days," and among his findings were these: On the United States — Of 80 items, 62 were anti-American; On communism — On 14 different programs Red China and Russia were "idealized;" On the federal government: — Forty-eight of 69 items were "destructive, undercutting all political parties and many of their personalities. The "Seven Days" program of course has long since been taken off, but the suggestion of political bias in CBC programming remains.

Senator Beaubien, who said he thought the CBC in private hands would "pay handsomely" and provide tax revenues, put in perspective how such costly operations as the CBC affect the average taxpayer, particularly those in lower income brackets. He said after Canadians had worked hard enough to produce enormous tax revenues, the Economic Council told them that 4,000,000 people lived in poverty.

Remember that it was 930,000 of those tax dollars that financed the CBC's Olympic Games operation. And it is tax dollars which will finance the country's overall $13,600,000,000 expenditure in the 1969-70 fiscal year. Canada's per-capita tax burden, according to the Quebec senator, including levies at all levels, has become the highest in the world.

A Reprieve?

The word from Montreal is that Man and His World, successor to Expo, may win a reprieve. Subject to financial arrangements being worked out that would enable the province to delay repayment of its full Expo debt to the federal government, the show could go on this year after all.

Recent letters to Montreal newspapers have been eloquent of the great disappointment felt by many at the prospect of the exhibition being closed down. Some have come from Americans, expressing the view that Expo was one of Montreal's — and Canada's — "best drawing cards."

"The fair adds interest, beauty, liveliness and relaxation to hum-drum living . . . Like many Montrealers, who were not able to leave the city during the hot months I have found there relaxation, growth of knowledge and interests and understanding of the other person . . . Happiness, a graduating high school class was once told, is a by-product. Expo, in that sense, was a by-product of the spirit of challenge and the muscle of effort united by our dynamic mayor . . . It was not an end-product but a flowering. . ."

That is how the letters ran. Few, it seems, want to see an end to Man and His World. It may not have the sparkle that was Expo, but it is the same location, the buildings are still there, and there is always the prospect of interesting new exhibits. Clearly, at least some of the spirit that was Expo remains.

In Jest

Hastings county education trustee Everett Fairman has informed us that his "fathers don't count anyway" remark to the board at its recent meeting was spoken in jest. Mr. Fairman had been speaking about a film on human development shown at the school of which he was principal. "I sent a note with each grade 8 pupil explaining the situation and not one mother refused to allow her child to attend (the film program) . . ." When a board member said, "what about the fathers?' Mr. Fairman, in humorous vein, made the remark quoted above. Editorial comment in Thursday's edition placed a more serious interpretation on the remark which, as we have pointed out here, was not the purpose or intent of Mr. Fairman's words.

Backbenchers Unable to Penetrate PM's Ivory Tower

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA A new and increasingly powerful "Fourth Force" more and more is confronting the ordinary parliamentarians.

The "ordinary" parliamentarian is the backbencher on both sides of the Commons.

Liberal, Conservative, New Democrat, Creditiste or Independent, he is what is known in these corridors of power as the "private" MP.

He worries, works and wangles as best he can in the interest of his taxpayers back home. Not just those whose votes sent him to Parliament but those, too, who marked their ballots for somebody else.

He unquestionably is in the majority in Parliament, but of all the forces of government, he has the least clout.

It used to be that he had only to contend with three forces: the prime minister, the cabinet and the mandarins of the federal senior civil service.

They could give him their attention or ignore him, often at the whim of the moment. And on their favor, individually or collectively, his success as an MP representing a constituency could largely depend.

A constituent has a pension problem? One of the mandarins could solve it — quickly, or with agonizing delay.

He wants a new post office, or an unemployment insurance office or some other federal building or agency for one of the centres in his riding? Sell it to the cabinet minister or ministers who have the decision.

It is something much bigger, like perhaps the help of the government with tax incentives or other inducements to coax a new industry into his area? A helping hand, even nothing more than encouragement and moral support from the prime minister could be a key factor.

So there, until recently, was your MP — up against the prime minister, the cabinet and the mandarins.

Now he has to contend with this "Fourth Force."

It is the prime minister's private praetorian guard, a super-elite of young intellectuals who plan and, as they say, "program" the Trudeau day.

This is a tight circle of power, personally hand-picked egg heads of the prime minister's own think-tank, with a direct hot line to the Trudeau ear.

They do his research, provide much of his information, come up with cool answers to hot questions, shoot his trouble.

But, complain the "ordinary" parliamentarians and the mandarins — and this is one of the few times these two often opposing forces have closed ranks — they hive him off and isolate him in their own ivory tower.

Even Liberal MPs, so many of whom rode his coattails to Parliament, are complaining that it is becoming more difficult by the day to get to him.

Their best and often only chance is when he comes out of the Commons into the Liberal lobby before going to his office. But so often they find him cut off by members of his own cabinet who, so goes the rumor, do not always find it that easy to reach him themselves.

A prime minister's personal staff is not exactly a new political animal in the Parliament Hill zoo.

But Trudeau's is a new breed of cat. Young, sharp, multi-degreed, cool, calculating, with that air of superiority carrying just a whiff of contempt for lesser intellects.

And it is big, numbering 36, with a payroll topping $400,000.

Mackenzie King had Walter Turnbull and Jack Pickersgill.

Louis St. Laurent had a palace guard of 10, not all of them deep-thinkers.

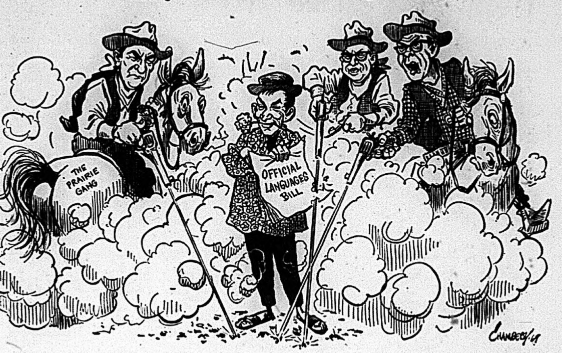
John Diefenbaker, studying Uncle Louie's staff chart, never as a matter of principle, had more than 10, few of them intellectuals, even self-styled.

Lester Pearson had some 15. But they were a casual, take-it-easy, chummy bunch, like their boss, no organizational fireballs.

Trudeau's team is coolly remote, talented, tough, uncaringly independent of everyone but you-know-who, and with terrifying determination to achieve a computerized efficiency.

The poor parliamentarians have discovered that the rarified atmosphere of the prime ministerial ivory tower radiates all the warmth of human understanding of a business machine.

"You've gotta hand it to the tenderfoot — he's got nerve."



Housing—A Quebec View

Montreal Le Devoir—The report on housing submitted by the Hellyer task force once again points to the housing crisis which has existed in Canada for a long time and proposes solutions whose effectiveness are questionable. As was to be expected, the study—launched by the federal government and headed by one of its ministers—offers a rather superficial program of action since the central government's authority is limited in the field of housing, which comes under provincial jurisdiction. . . .

The main recommendation contained in the report is that of increasing mortgage credit. Now, the National Housing Act has used this method for the last 20 years and it has only benefitted those persons with relatively high incomes.

Lowering the initial down payment on a home as is suggested in the report would remove a great obstacle indeed, but it would only increase the mortgage. . . .

Extending monthly payments over a period of 40 instead of 25 years will lower each monthly payment, but the interest charges carried on the total mortgage will be substantially increased. Only the house purchaser who is under the age of 25 can hope to finish paying for his home during his lifetime.

Bilingualism Takes Back Seat

Prairies Are Concerned Mainly With Economics

Montreal La Presse—Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan, through their premiers, have squarely aligned themselves against the Eastern bloc, that is Ontario and Quebec.

Mr. Thatcher of Saskatchewan is proud, happy. He shouts about success and summarizes the objectives of the Western bloc in three points: (1) The economic problem should have complete priority; (2) no changes should be made in the system of taxation without "consulting us;" (3) bilingualism . . . there is no hurry and there is reason to question the constitutionality of the bill on two official languages. . . .

The federal-provincial conference which is to open in the capital Monday will get under way in as unhealthy a climate as possible. Messrs. Weir, Strom and Thatcher intend to take "tough" stands. Do not be at all surprised if discussions turn into quarrels, and so much the worse for la bonne entente.

We are not particularly surprised. Contestation is in the air and the hardening of the situation on the Prairies is only the start of the phenomenon. Concerned about economic problems—others do not overly excite them—our friends on the Prairies feel that the dollar is more important than a generous and lucid re-examination of the constitution. Strange logic.

The Prairies have received everything from Canada, and we can recall that the East dipped into its pockets many times to support the price of wheat or to help thousands of farmers who were on the verge of bankruptcy because of major droughts. Undoubtedly all that has been forgotten.

The first of the home and home hockey games between the Belleville team and the Frontenac team of Kingston was played here last night before a large and enthusiastic audience. It was a fast, interesting game, and the final score was 5 to 3 in favor of Belleville. Each member of the Belleville team played well. Pat Boland, Belleville's goal-keeper, stopped a lot of hot shots; he is certainly the right man in the right place. Tom Arnott, the clever centre player for Belleville, is due the credit for securing the majority of goals, but he was ably assisted by the other members of the team, who passed the puck unselfishly.

Canada's Debt to The United States

The Printed Word

It is easy to follow a negative approach towards the United States of America, and in Canada that is apt to be the popular attitude. At any rate, it is the one that makes the most noise, in print and through the spoken word. Advertising for a book now on the best-seller lists is based largely on the reasons why Canadians dislike the USA. Daily, speeches and interviews decry the Vietnam war, the U.S. electoral system and civil rights problems, the preponderance of U.S. capital invested in Canada, et cetera, et cetera.

This non-stop criticism represents the carping mental processes of some of Canada's more vocal citizens. Forgotten by them is an elementary principle of international relationships; Canada would probably not exist today as a free and independent state were it not for the U.S.A. Without that country, Canada and the whole free world might very well be living the communist way of life. To the countries of the Far East and the Southern Hemisphere, it is a self-evident proposition that the might of the United States is their bulwark, particularly now that Britain has reduced so drastically her commitments overseas.

Canadians are proud of status and they do not hesitate to say so. This should not prevent their facing the fact that Canada owes its independence since the last Great War mainly to the strength of its neighbor.

Most U.S. citizens are the first to admit that all is not well in their country. All is not well in Canada either.

Russia Could Become Involved in Any Mid-East War

By STEPHEN SCOTT

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—If Israel and Egypt entered another round of the Middle East conflict could the Soviet Union keep herself out, even if she wanted to?

The question is said to worry United States President Nixon who warned last week that another outbreak could bring about a confrontation of nuclear powers.

Reports since the 1967 outbreak in the Middle East have told of Soviet advisers being used in most of the Egyptian armed forces. There was one report that said that there is even an adviser on each Egyptian naval vessel that sails.

If there was a new outbreak it is doubtful that these personnel could keep themselves above the fray—no more so than the U.S. advisers of many years ago could keep themselves above the battle in South Vietnam.

Thus if these advisers were involved, it is possible that the Soviet Union would become involved.

Nixon now is reported to be willing to join the Soviet Union, Britain and France in Big Four meetings in an effort to give a boost to the efforts of Gunnar Jarring, Swedish diplomat who is United Nations Middle East representative.

He seems to be going along with the call of UN Secretary-General U Thant that the Big Four apply some pressure on the Middle East disputants.

Jarring, Swedish ambassador to Moscow who almost gave up his Middle East task last year in frustration has a tough job that needs help.

He is not a mediator in the accepted sense of the word. His mandate is to assist the parties in the dispute to reach a settlement.

If he were to suggest a settlement that reluctantly was agreed to by one or both parties it would be open to criticism and possible violation in the years to come.

The New York Times quotes one knowledgeable source as describing Jarring operations as "Jarring advancing his own ideas to the Big Four, getting their support if possible and then presenting proposals to the Arabs and Israelis supported by the prestige of the four permanent members of the Security Council."

Even if the Big Four finally do agree to meet at the UN, nothing can be expected in the way of a settlement for a long time.

The United States, for one, is not going to agree to anything that smacks of an imposed settlement. All that can happen is for the Big Four to agree to support some proposal. And the U.S. and the Soviet Union now are far apart on what that proposal could be.

Nuns of Sisters of Service Were Radicals 40 Years Ago

TORONTO (CP) — The Sisters of Service nuns were radicals within the Roman Catholic Church when the order was founded in 1922, and on New Year's Day this year they again proposed a radical form of religious life.

In 1922 the nuns discarded the traditional floor-length habit and head apparel for skirts that showed their ankles and grey hats that revealed their hair.

In the 1969 revolution the order has abolished the nun's uniform completely except for those who prefer to keep it.

Traditionally the Sisters of Service sought to help the sick in their own homes as would health nurses, or travelled the slums as social workers, or roamed the Prairies to train teachers, parents and priests in the teaching of religion.

When they taught it was usually in the public schools and they dressed in civilian clothes.

Under the new changes some nuns will live alone. For those who live together in one house, experiments with different forms of authority will be tried.

In some houses nuns will elect their own superior, in others they will rotate the office of superior and in still others they will do away with the office altogether.

Instead of the three vows of poverty, chastity and obedience the sisters will take a single vow of service to God and their fellow man.

Today there are 113 Sisters of Service in Canada, a drop of about 10 from their all-time high in 1960. After the second Vatican council, the sisters suffered a drop in the number of recruits and some established members left the order.

To encourage new membership a new form of participation called associate membership was created. An associate member who lives and pays rent in one of the houses acquires her professional training before becoming a novice, and if she chooses can continue dating.

The associate membership is open to "women, who after bringing up a family, want to devote themselves for a period to the order," Sister Frances Coffee said.

"We had come to be considered quite respectable and this alarmed us," said Sister Margaret Denis.

"Now we feel we will be radicals again."

Church of England Vote On Union Inconclusive

LONDON (AP) — Grass-roots voting in the Church of England shows no clear mandate for a union with the Methodist Church in Britain, but the Archbishop of Canterbury said Thursday he still is encouraged.

Voting in 43 diocesan conferences has shown that more than 70 per cent of the laymen and 60 per cent of the clergy favor union. The figures fell short, however, of the 75 per cent yes vote which the Church of England ruled it needs to go ahead.

The archbishop confirmed that there would be no changes in the timetable agreed by the two churches.

The Methodist Conference also makes its final decision July 8.

Lionettes View Film On Korea

CAMPBELLFORD — The Feb. meeting of the Campbellford Lionettes was held at Barb's Restaurant with 18 members present.

After the regular opening a new slate of officers was presented by the nominating committee. Those coming into office will be: president Dorothy Machnesney; 1st vice-president, Judy Davey; 2nd vice-president, Mary Hughes; secretary, Mildred Baker; treasurer, Marilyn Pollock.

Two-year directors are Shirley Druif and Aileen Ingram and one year directors will be Pat Irwin and Laura Horsman.

The lucky prize draw was won by Mary Hughes and the dinner draw by Una Perry.

Lionette Marion Sharpe brought many articles that been sent from Korea by Rev. and Mrs. Walt Beecham, a brother-in-law and missionary to Korea. Shown were handicrafts, finely hand worked linens and hand carved wooden toys and ornaments.

A film was shown depicting the life in this still troubled land of 22 million people.

President Joan Donelly thanked Lionette Sharpe and the meeting adjourned until March 5.

Club Activities

SENIOR CITIZENS

MARMORA — In the absence of the president, business at the Feb. meeting of Marmora Senior Citizens organization on Wednesday was conducted by Mrs. Harold Gunter. Seventeen members were present

Volunteering to decorate the club rooms for the pot-luck anniversary dinner on Feb. 12, were Mrs. Frank Sweet, and convener of the banquet, Mrs. John Hebner.

Members were invited to use the club rooms on the days available. Attending on Feb. 19 will be Mrs. Ellen Bedore, and on the 26, Mrs. Frank Sweet. Eighteen women spent an enjoyable afternoon together on Jan. 22 when rooms were opened by Mrs. James Auckland.

A vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Percy Gordon and assistants for convening a successful card party in Jan. Prize winners were Mrs. Bert Gray, Mrs. Bill McDonald, Mrs. Harold Gunter and Mrs. Ray Scott, the latter also winning the door prize.

An art exhibition contest was won by Mrs. Hebner before lunch was served by Mrs. Luta Lawrence, Mrs. George Gazley and Mrs. Don Bailey.

Engagement Notice

Miss Diana Mae Aronson Lieut. R. Forrest Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Rudulph Aronson, Edmonton, Alberta, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diana Mae, to Lieut. Robert Forrest Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Smith, Belleville. The wedding will take place in the chapel on the Canadian Forces Base in Gagetown, New Brunswick, on April 5, 1969.

CLUB 4-H NOTES

"STITCH 'N TYME"

The second meeting of the Wallbridge III was held at the home of Mrs. Omar Chisholm on Feb. 4 at 7 p.m. There were seven members present.

During the business of the meeting, Evelyn Knight suggested name for the club as "Stitch 'N Tyme" and it was voted on unanimously. Book covers out of the same material used for the free choice project, was used with name embroidered on it.

Mrs. Chisholm led the discussion based on "How to Create a Design" while the members followed along in their members pamphlets.

Mrs. McCurdy briefly went over the color scheme that she presented last week, and gave a test on it.

Mrs. Chisholm also demonstrated how to cut out the learning stitch article and both leaders helped members start first learning stitch — the blanket stitch.

WALLBRIDGE I

The first embroidery meeting of Wallbridge I was held on Feb. 5 at the home of Mrs. L. De Bruin. The leaders were: Mrs. De Bruin and Mrs. C. Vandervelde.

Officers elected were: president, Susan Evans; vice-president, Irene De Bruin; secretary, floating; treasurer, Chris Bedard and press reporter, Trudy Fisher.

Discussion was about the color schemes of embroidery, and the different patterns. The first stitches will be taught next week.

Miss Linda Ketcheson, Roslin R. R. 2, a graduate of the Kingston General Hospital School of X-ray Technology, was among the graduates to receive a diploma at the 11th annual graduation exercises of the Ontario Society of radiological technicians (eastern division) held in Kingston recently.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. William Andrew of Cannifton will mark the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary when an "At Home" for friends, relatives and neighbors will be held at the home of their niece, Mrs. Ernest Morton and Mr. Morton in Thomasburg, on Sunday, Feb. 16, from 2 to 4 in the afternoon and 7 to 9 in the evening.

Day of Prayer Service Planned By Churches

MARMORA — Representatives from each of the five churches in Marmora attended a meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Hull to plan for the World Day of Prayer service being held this year in the Pentecostal Church on March 7.

Program was divided into sections for participation by members of each church. Sermon on the theme "Growing Together in Christ" will be delivered by Mrs. Douglas Miller.

Those present at the meeting were: Mrs. Miller and Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn of St. Andrew's United Church, Mrs. W. A. McMillan and Mrs. Ritchie Wells of the Free Methodist Church, Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Don Derry of the host church, Mrs. S. B. Cheeseman and Mrs. C. E. Francis of St. Paul's Anglican Church, and Mrs Bill Monk of Sacred Heart Church.

BGH Nurses' Alumnae Enjoys Tour

For the Feb. meeting of the Belleville General Hospital Nurses' Alumnae, a tour through the new hospital which is to be officially opened in the near future, was enjoyed.

The tour was planned by Mrs. Dorothy Howes and arranged through the assistance of assistant administrator John Kunetsky. Over 50 nurses viewed this beautiful addition with the most modern equipment and which is considered the finest in the Province of Ontario.

It was expressed by all members of the alumnae that a vote of thanks be extended to all who planned and organized this interesting tour. Also that further thanks be conveyed to the doctors and nursing staff and personnel who explained the various departments and levels (floors). Previously they had conducted tours for various organizations almost daily over the past few weeks.

The short business meeting which followed the tour was conducted by Mrs. Marguerite Lucas in the nurses' dining room. Following a number of reports a discussion took place on a sale to be held in April and the graduation dinner in June.

Mrs. Lucas expressed thanks for the most enjoyable tour.

THE SUREST PLEDGE

"The surest pledge of a deathless name is the silent homage of thoughts unspoken." — Longfellow.

* * *

Woman's influence performs wonders!

And we rejoice because of it, upon reading this paragraph in The Intelligencer concerning the famous poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

But first let us explain:

His very name sends pictures flashing through our mind of a recent New England motor trip. Of Bowdoin College, flanked by its tall pine grove, seen as we passed through Brunswick, Maine, where Henry not only attended as a student, but spent, after three preparatory years abroad, (1826-29), six years of his youth as a professor. During which time he married Mary Potter in 1831. Later Henry, with Mary, left for another year in Europe before accepting a professorship at Harvard.

Then in the mind's eye whirl by pictures of a lovely old mansion midst extensive lawns which we passed slowly by while in Cambridge, Massachusettes, where Henry established his one and only home, in 1839, as a lodger of the needy widow of Andrew Craigie. For Henry came to fill his post at Harvard alone. His wife, Mary, had died abroad.

Here it was he brought his second wife, Fanny Appleton, whose father bought the Craigie house, now for sale, and gave it as a wedding gift to the newlywed couple, in 1843. Here six children were born. Henry gave up his teaching at Harvard to devote more and more time to his writing, (1854), which was bringing him fame. In 1861, tragedy struck, shattering a blissful marriage, by the death of Fanny through fire. He became both father and mother to his children, while he continued to write until his death in 1882, aged 75. He was universally mourned as being the first and most famous American poet, and his passing marked the beginning of an end of an era.

His fame was that of the human heart itself: "Surely no poet was ever so fully recognized in his life-time as you," wrote one. Tributes came from all walks of life, American or European: the servants at Windsor Castle hid in the corridors to see him pass by on his way to see Queen Victoria, which they seldom did for numerous celebrities that did so daily. A prisoner requested Longfellow's poems instead of a new pair of trousers, for lack of which he had to receive visitors in bed. The King of Belgium had a seal with a name from Evangeline cut upon it.

The recitation of one of his poems brought tears to President Lincoln's eyes. Famed English poets declared he had taught them what poetry meant. Honored in Prussia, Germany, Italy, France and Spain, he was made an honorary member of the Russian Academy. He was loved at home; while stepping into a horse-car, all passengers rose of one accord, heads bared, to offer him a seat. He took a little boy's seat, whom he held on his knees. And perhaps Henry knew to be true then, the line he had once written in tribute to a brother-poet and is quoted above "the surest pledge."

Perhaps he did — as did we, when in Portland, Maine, we came upon his birthplace (born in 1807, where he spent a happy childhood as a second child and second son of eight with good parents), and then, farther along the street, came with stunning surprise upon a magnificent statue of him, whose Evangeline, Hiawatha, The Courtship of Miles Standish(who was an ancestor), The Children's Hour, was read as a schoolgirl with remembered pleasure and hushed mute memory rushed over one's being as the throat and heart tightened, while his words from his Machael Angelo took on deeper meaning:

"Sculpture is more than painting. It is greater to raise the dead to life than to create phantoms that seem to live."

The pictures fade away. We pick up the Intelligencer and read the paragraph again:

"A women's group in Portland, Maine, protested city plans to move the statue of poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, to make room for street widening. The city quickly denied the move."

This is why we say, woman's influence performs wonders.

Button Collecting Unique Hobby

BUTTON COLLECTING MA
TAKE 1, 2, indent en

"Button, Button, who's got the button?"

That was the name of a one time popular parlor game and the idea was to find the hidden button. But as far as members of the Pioneer Button Club are concerned everyone has the buttons—and they don't hide them.

The Pioneer Button Club with close to 40 members in the Kingston to Toronto area is one of two such clubs in Canada and is affiliated with the National Button Society of the United States.

It seems that collecting pioneer buttons has developed into a big time hobby with members trading in buttons much the same as stamp and coin collectors trade in the items of their interest.

On Thursday members of the women's division Central Ontario Fairs Association got an insight into the fast developing button collection hobby as they listened to Mrs. F. C. Grosjean of Codrington tell about the activities of the Pioneer Button Club. Club president is Mrs. M. Tuck of Oshawa.

At the meeting club members had a display of 50 or more of card mounted button exhibits, some of the buttons dating back to the 17th century.

One display featured military and police uniform buttons dating back to the middle of the last century. Another display contained only jumbo buttons, some of them measuring two or more inches in diameter.

Other displays saw buttons mounted in distinct patterns, such as the Union Jack, the Centennial Emblem. One member had buttons mounted to picture the fabled calico cat.

"It's lots of fun," said Mrs. Grosjean. "It gives women something to do and makes for conversation.

Buttons from all nations are in demand. For instance Mrs. Grosjean trades Canadian postage stamps with an Australian woman for "down under" buttons.

Bermersyde Chapter IODE Meets for Annual Dinner

CAMPBELLFORD — The Bermersyde Chapter, the Imperial Order, Daughters of the Empire, held their annual dinner in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. A large number of members and guests were present.

The Regent, Mrs. Pearl Rutherford welcomed the guests and spoke briefly on the general work of the Order and of the Bermersyde Chapter in particular.

Following the dinner, the program presented was one of local talent.

A comedy skit was given by Mrs. D. Bennett and Mrs. Sylvia East, while a humorous reading was given by Mrs. G. Vice and a skit, by six members of the Chapter.

Mrs. William McBride delighted the audience with two piano selections and the sing song was conducted by Mrs. J. M. Benor, with Mrs. Don Bennett at the piano.

GIRL GUIDE, BROWNIE NEWS

MARMORA BROWNIES

MARMORA — The following 15 Tweenies, 7-8 years of age, were sworn in as Brownies at their meeting on Monday afternoon: Kathy Walton, Anne Marie Doyle, Anne McGibbon, Katie Mumby, Kathy Cook, Maureen O'Connor, Laura Beare, Jill McTaggart, Cheryle Brady, Cindy Campbell, Susan Rhines, Cindy Fox, Janice Potter, Vicki Lynch, and Cindy Smith. An excellent turnout of mothers, as well as a few fathers, were present for the ceremony.

The Tweenies sat beside a realistic pool, which was surounded by an artificial grass area. In a river beside, were stepping stones named Cheerfulness, Obedience, Neatness, Smiles and Good Turns. The Tweenies went through an arch formed by the 18 regular Brownies who sang a song to them pertaining to the characteristics marked on the stones, formed a circle around the toadstool, and then were sworn in by Mrs. Douglas Vilneff.

Mrs. Don Walton, the new Brown Owl taking over the leadership of the Brownies on Jan. 6 from Mrs. Vic Provost, thanked the parents of the children who showed their interest by attending the initiation ceremony.

FELLOWSHIP MEET

On Feb. 3 the Belleville Committee of Child Evangelism Fellowship held a successful and interesting meeting at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church.

The meeting took the form of a dessert party held at 7 p.m. then followed by interesting and instructive workshops on discipline, memory work and an illustrated Bible lesson. Rev. S. Tilley brought an interesting and challenging message and Earl Naismith was chairman for the evening.

Ann Landers

Affection in Public Not in Good Taste

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please say something about kids who walk down the street with their arms wrapped around one another's wrists, paw each other in public and kiss in the school corridors. Yesterday two couples were necking up a storm on the back steps and a teacher almost broke her neck when she tripped over them.

ANN LANDERS

My closest girl friend told me her steady threatened to drop her unless she allowed him to caress her publicly. He said it was his way of advertising their relationship so the other guys would lay off.

Do you have an opinion? — HANDS OFF.

DEAR OFF: Yes, and I've expressed it many times. Public displays of affection cheapen a girl and they don't do much for a fellow either. The smart girl insists that her boyfriend keep his hands off when others are present — if he doesn't know better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Jim and I are being married in four weeks.

Last night I asked Jim to promise that there would be no reading of newspapers at the breakfast table. He insisted that he has always read the newspaper at breakfast, that it was a ritual with him and I was asking too much.

Jim also made the point that he is not in a very good humor in the morning and we would both be better off if he stayed behind the newspaper.

In my view he is being selfish and obstinate. Please comment. — T.T.

DEAR T.T.: Jim has told you two important facts about himself. (1) He has become accustomed to reading the paper in the morning. (2) He is not much of a morning communicator and would appreciate it if you'd leave him alone with his paper. So lay off, Lady.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the past five years my 35-year-old brother has worked only one third of the time. He has never paid room or board. Mother says we should forgive him — "like good Christians."

I am 31, unmarried, pay the rent and grocery bills. My brother eats and sleeps, criticizes, complains and keeps me in a constant state of turmoil. I have never been able to buy decent clothes or take a trip although I make an excellent salary. I have passed up some good opportunities to date because my mother says my first obligation is to her. This means, "Come home after work and keep me company."

I don't mind supporting my mother but I resent supporting my brother. My friends say I am crazy. Any advice? — TIRED.

DEAR TIRED: Your friends are right. I'd substitute "guilt-ridden" for "crazy" but it adds up to the same thing. Your mother has done a splendid job of crippling you so you'd never leave her. Now you need professional help to break the chains that bind you. I hope you get it soon and clear out of that squirrel cage.

Pincushioned Plans Produce Good Results

By DORIS CLARK

"Mother keeps a piece of paper impaled on her pincushion. When a little fiddling job crops up, she makes a dive for the piece of paper and adds the new item to those already there:

"Write note to Sally about weekend, 15 min.; sew button on D's grey coat, 10 min.; separate and re-pot African violets, 45 min.; and Rinse white gloves, 8 min."

When Dorothy shouts from the bathroom "I'l be ready in 10 minutes," mother picks out a 20-minute job; usually manages to finish it and pick up a magazine before Dorothy shows up. As each spare moment appears, another job is ticked off.

With this system Mother gets through all the nagging small tasks and has time left over for fun. — Modern Maturity, October 1968

Dear Doris: What would be the proper thing to serve for wedding toasts when we know there is an ex-alcoholic who will be there and we certainly wouldn't want to do the wrong thing? — First Things First

Dear First: Either: offer a non-alcoholic alternative, or serve no liquor at all.

A delicious fruit punch can be made by combining citrus fruit juices, grape juice, gingerale and ice. I'll send you the recipe for one I like.

Doris Clark

If you serve no alcohol, make no explanation. Many bride's counsellors advise against intoxicating beverages at a wedding.

At the same time, if your guest is truly an "ex" he has developed the moral strength to resist the drink which could mean his downfall; just make it clear which glass contains which.

Dear Doris: I'm 14 and in desperate need of advice. I have a sister who is 21 and working in another city.

My sister is going with a boy who is 20 and they like each other a lot. May parents, however, do not like him because he is a different nationality and not Canadian.

My sister does not want to give him up because he is the only one she ever liked and he feels the same. My father says if they get married he will leave and go somewhere else because he says it is shameful if she marries him. He has also threatened to make my mother and I leave and live somewhere else. What do I do? — Helpless.

P.S. Another reason my parents don't like him is because his skin is dark.

Dear Helpless: Right now all you can do is let your sister know you love her, whatever happens. And stay with your parents until you are all grown up.

Sometimes parents with strong feelings about these things fail to realize just how strongly younger sisters and brothers are feeling. If he were to show interest in your ideas and talk things over with you, it would help, wouldn't it?

Without knowing more my opinion wouldn't be worth much. But when you grow up, this situation may persuade you to carry a torch for tolerance, later.

Don't just muddle along. Do something about what's troubling you. A letter to Doris can put you on the way to more Successful Living.

YOUR ANTIQUES

by Jack Jamieson

Two Early Sewing Machines Were Never Patented

Between 1832 and 1834, Walter Hunt developed two sewing machines in the United States but neglected to patent them. Elias Howe Jr. patented his machine in 1846 and successfully prevented Hunt from patenting his in 1853.

Howe began work on his machine in 1843 and by 1845 was giving public demonstrations — without success. His machine featured an eye-pointed needle, a shuttle, and an intermittent feed, basic features of present-day machines.

Howe left the United States for England and entered into an agreement with William Thomas whereby the latter was to pay a £250 fee and a royalty on each machine. This arrangement failed and Thomas never did pay.

Howe was left without money and even pawned his patent rights. He managed to return to the U.S.A. in the early 1850's, found that interest had improved and other patents had been issued. He made an effort to reclaim his pawned patent and began litigation to protect it.

On Aug. 12, 1852, two sewing-machine patents were issued, one to Issac Merritt Singer and one to Allen B. Wilson. Singer's incorporated the presser foot and adjustable feed, producing the type of machine used today. Wilson's patent and those of a William O. Grover were intended for commercial use, mainly shoemaking, although Wilson's "Four-Motion Feed" is the one now commonly used.

All these developments took place before 1854. In that year Howe was granted judgments in his legal battles and was able to collect $25 for every machine manufactured by his competitors. He tried to improve his own invention and found himself back in court for infringing on the patents of others.

Litigation proved a stalemate and the problem was solved by creating a patent pool. Each manufacturer paid $15 a machine of which Howe received $5. In 1867 Howe's patent expired and in 1877 the patent pool broke up. Sewing-machine manufacturers started up on every hand. By 1889 the first electric machine was manufactured.

The first Canadian machines were made by Richard Mott Wanzer, under Singer patents. Wanzer came to Hamilton, Ontario in 1859 and shortly thereafter was well established in business. He became very wealthy, expanding into the coal-oil lamp business and establishing plants in Philadelphia and Niagara Falls, New York. He expanded further into the electric light business but over-extended his credit and in 1890 was forced into liquidation. Senator W. E. Sandford bought his lamp rights and gave them back to Wanzer who continued to manufacture in a modest way until his death 10 years later.

Raymond, Windsor, Wheeler and Wilson, Williams, Wanzer, are some of the trade names used in Canada. The machine illustrated was the property of Mrs. John Hewins, of Mountsberg, Ontario and seems to date about the time of the American Civil War. It is a table model of decorated cast iron, made in a Georgian tradition of treating machinery as furniture. It probably came with a small table with a graceful cast iron trellis-like frame, later evolved into the foot-treadle machine.

Old sewing machines are worth about $5 to $10 as trade-ins. Some are beautifully inlaid with mother-of-pearl and most of them work. They are due to rise spectacularly in price as they are added to collections of early tools. The best type of trellis-leg machine, without cast trade-name, is worth about $25.

ST. MARK'S A.C.W.

DESERONTO — Miss Sadie Hetherington was the hostess last Friday for the annual meeting of the afternoon branch of the A.C.W. of St. Mark's church. Following the usual business meeting, all officers made their reports, showing that all obligations had been made in full.

Bales had been sent to missions, and donations to Indian residential schools. The Junior Auxiliary and the Girls' Auxiliary have both been active, carrying to completion their various projects. Mrs. Robert Tucker, the president, thanked all for their cooperation in making the year a successful one.

Officers for 1969 were elected: honorary president, Mrs. John Lyons; Mrs. Robert Tucker again president, and secretary pro temps is Mrs. A. F. Dowdell and Mrs. Harold Topping, treasurer.

The social service committee consists of Mrs. John Lyon and Mrs. Charles Gray, and the family life secretary is Mrs. Eleanor Lindsay.

Parts of the new diocesan constitution were read and discussed.

The meeting closed with prayer, and the group enjoyed a social hour, with the hostess serving refreshments.

ST. ANDREW'S PRESBYTERIAN

CAMPBELLFORD — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held their annual meeting in the church, at which time an election of officers was held.

The following were elected: secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Jack Clark, who replaces Mrs. Herb Hendy. Auditors re-appointed were: Ralph Locke and Thomas Mein. Three retiring members of the Board of Managers were replaced by: Garland Irwin, Bruce Hay and Mrs. Jack Clark.

Other officers remained as in the previous year.

Mrs. H. Fraser was extended thanks for her work in preparing the weekly calendars. The session reported 283 members on the roll.

Rev. W. McBride presided over the meeting. He expressed his appreciation on behalf of himself and his wife for the warm reception given them. Rev. McBride has been minister only since Oct.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipe Using Fondue Pot

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I received a fondue pot for Christmas and do not know how to go about using it but remember you had some fondue recipes in your column after Christmas last year. — Robyn MacL.

ANSWER: Your request is the most common in the mail we are receiving currently and I am pleased to repeat the following.

BOEUF FONDUE BOURGUIGONNE (serves 6 — do not crowd more around table)

Three pounds beef tenderloin, cut into ¾" cubes

At centre of table (preferably round) have hot oil (or butter) in deep fondue pot over flame. When oil is hot tell guests to pitch in. Each one impales a cube of beef on tines of fondue skewer or fork, dips it into the oil to cook to his liking — rare, medium or well done. He dips it into one of the sauces spooned onto his plate and eats it sizzling hot. Warn your guests not to burn their lips! This is time-consuming but great entertainment. Serve with sauce and crusty French bread and tossed salad.

SCALLOP (OR FISH) FONDUE (serves 6 — do not crowd more around table)

NOTE: A round table is idea for this.

2 pounds fresh or fresh frozen scallops (not breaded) or ½ pound each raw scallops, shrimp, halibut (cubed), salmon (cubed) about 2 cups salad oil

All fondue equipment and food should be on a large tray at centre of table. Heat oil in fondue pot over ronson or sterno or alcohol burner (not candle) until bubbling. (Note: You may preheat oil on stove for a faster start.) Each guest spears fish of his choice on wooden-handled fondue skewer or fork and cooks it in bubbling oil. When it turns whitish with gold-tinged edges it is done. Dip in sauce and eat without burning lips.

Mustard Custard for Boeuf Fondue Bourguignonne. Also good on hot or cold corned beef, tongue, ham, headcheese or wieners.

One-half cup brown sugar, 1 (or 2) tablespoons dry mustard, ½ teaspoon flour, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 beef bouillon cube ¼ cup hot water, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 egg (1 tablespoon capers, optional). In heavy saucepan mix together the sugar, mustard, flour and salt. Dissolve the bouillon cube in the hot water and add them and the vinegar and slightly beaten egg and cook, stirring, until thickened and consistency of soft custard. Cool.

Richelieu Sauce for Scallop of Fish Fondue.

Mix together 1 cup mayonnaise, ¼ cup dairy sour cream, 4 teaspoons lemon juice, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce and ¼ teaspoon salt.

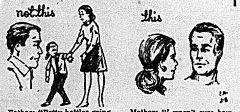
SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Pot Roast of Beef with Rich Brown Gravy; Mashed Turnip; Brussels Sprouts; Gary's Whole Wheat Bread (see Tues.); Speeded-Up Rice Pudding (see Fri.); Tea.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON



Father: "Betty battles going to bed every night. Other 5-year-olds go to sleep at 7. What's wrong with her?

Mother: "She says she can't go to sleep, but I think it's time for her to be in bed. She wakes up so early in the morning."

Mother: "I wasn't sure how much sleep Betty really needs so I talked to the doctor about it. He says most children under 6 years need 12 hours sleep, but Betty may not be able to sleep that much. He suggests a little later bedtime hour."

If a child constantly resists sleep at night, question her bedtime hour. Children's sleep needs vary. If she wakens by herself in the morning and seems refreshed, she is almost surely getting enough sleep.

U.C.W. Meeting

ST. ANDREW'S UCW

MARMORA — Presiding at the monthly meeting of the UCW of St. Andrew's United Church held Tuesday, was president, Mrs. Borden Bell.

The devotional, which included prayer, and facts about China and the Chinese people, was led by Mrs. Vaughn Glover and Mrs. Luta Lawrence.

Programs for UCW meetings for the coming year were outlined by Mrs. G. J. Meiklejohn. These will be distributed to all members. Mrs Douglas Miller and Mrs. Meiklejohn offered to represent St. Andrew's Church at a meeting this week to plan the World Day of Prayer service on March 7 in the Pentecostal Church.

Members were asked to remember Mrs. John Davidson, who is a patient in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto.

Final catering plans were made for the following Feb. events: Ministers' Presbyterial Dinner on Feb. 11, lunch after the Franklin Smith travelogue on Feb. 15 and Masonic banquet on Feb. 17.

A discussion, with questions and answers, followed Bible excerpts read by Rev. Douglas Miller.

Poisoning In Slums

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Lead paint poisoning affects at least five per cent of all children between the ages of one and five who live in slums, says a University of Rochester pediatrician. "Poisoning from ingestion of lead-containing paint is almost exclusively a disease of children under school age who live in dilapidated housing," Dr. Evan Charney said at a meeting of scientists here.

Drapeau Has Question

Why Invest in Japan Expo But Not in Man and His World?

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Jean Drapeau questioned the judgment of the federal government Friday for investing more than $10,000,000 in Expo 70 at Osaka, Japan, while refusing to help Man and His World.

The investment in Osaka was "a good" one, but he wondered why Ottawa would not "consider an investment" in the Montreal exhibition, which the city has announced will not reopen for 1969 because of certain financial risks involved.

Mr. Drapeau made his remarks in the second of three television addresses planned to explain a statement last week that he is reconsidering his role as mayor because of austerity conditions that are hampering his hopes for Montreal.

The third appearance, on both French and English television as were the first two, is scheduled Monday night. Mr. Drapeau started the series Thursday.

The 52-year-old mayor suggested that "a few of those dollars" from the federal government's $102,000,000 increase in defence spending could have been diverted to the Montreal exhibition, successor to Expo 67.

The general theme in his two talks was sharply critical of federal fiscal policies, and in his speech Thursday he expressed concern about the future of Canadian cities.

Man and His World "is the greatest demonstration of the application of humanity," he said Friday.

"On the social and cultural level," it is not "a luxury."

"It is indispensable for those people who can't afford to travel all over the world to discover beauty and peace.

"Some people who should know better think Expo cost too much."

The Crown corporation set up to administer Expo ended with a "book deficit of about $295,000,000." But this did not take into account Expo's influence on tourism and job-creating.

When the British pound was devaluated, Mr. Drapeau said, it set off a financial crisis that easily could have affected the Canadian dollar.

"There could have been devaluation in Canada if it had not been for the $1,000,000,000 that Expo circulated."

Man and His World provided another $100,000,000 to the Canadian economy in 1968, its first season, he said.

While Montreal was in a difficult financial position, the city still enjoyed "one of the highest credit ratings in the world."

However, the only source to meet any 1969 exhibition deficit—already projected to go as high as $8,000,000—was current revenues. But that meant more taxes and Montreal already was "taxed enough."

Dief Favors Federal Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — John Diefenbaker suggested Friday that the federal government allow Quebec to postpone paying some of its debt for Expo 67 so it can concentrate on the survival of Man and His World.

The former prime minister told a news conference on his arrival at Montreal International Airport that it was "commendable of Mayor Jean Drapeau to keep the fair open and there should be some "reasonable solution for its successor.

The issue may be discouraged at the federal-provincial conference in Ottawa next week, he said.

'The Minister Is Drunk'

Shulman Makes Accusation Against Rowntree

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP—High Park) Friday accused Finance Minister Leslie Rowntree of being drunk in the legislature during a debate on a private members bill.

The outburst came as Mr. Rowntree rose, presumably to end the debate on Dr. Shulmans bill which would increase the powers of the Ontario Water Resources Commission in dealing with sources of pollution.

Mr. Rowntree had risen to speak after Fred Young (NDP—Yorkview) finished speaking on the bill.

"It is not my normal practice to comment on the speech, but I do not think I have heard a "

As Mr. Rowntree tried to continue, Speaker Fred Cass ruled him out of order. Then Dr. Shulman yelled from his seat:

"The minister is drunk. The minister is drunk.

Mr. Rowntree continued to speak, but was called to order by Mr. Cass.

"Order, Mr. Cass shouted. "The honorable minister wil adjourn the house. We will be done for the week.

Mr. Young said earier that the Ontario government lacked the courage to tackle the job eliminating pollution of the provinces water resources.

Dr. Shulmans bill also won support from Richard Smith (L—Nipissing) who said the OWRC spent only one-fifth of its alloted budget for installing purification plants during 1967-68.

But it was opposed by John Root (PC—Wellington-Dufferin), vice-chairman of the OWRC, who said the commission will ask for increased powers when the time comes, but is reluctant to spend public funds until further studies have been conducted into methods of pollution control.

Speaking on his bill, Dr. Shulman said the OWRC should be given power to impose fines on soap manufacturers who include phosphate in their products.

He said phosphate contained in detergents is not eliminated from waste water by present purification processes but passes into Ontario lakes where it becomes a major factor in the pollution "which is killing our water resources rapidly.

Phosphates speed up the growth of weeds and algae, he said, and Lake Erie, in particular, is in the process of being destroyed by phosphate pollution.

Rene Levesque Calls Confederation 'Mad House'

TORONTO (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec separatist advocate, told students Friday that English-Canadian newspapers exaggerate the importance of Quebec's "international ambitions."

On a speaking tour of Ontario universities, he spoke Friday to students at York University's Winters College and the university's bilingual Glendon College.

Mr. Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, said Quebec's Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal was the subject of alarmist views in the English-language press, having become "suddenly suspect because he sees General de Gaulle from time to time."

Le Parti Quebecois wants an independent Quebec within a Canadian economic union.

Mr. Levesque said Canadian Confederation is a "mad house" which engenders only sterile wrangling and quarrels for Quebec and always leads Quebec into the same dead-end street.

After students at York University applauded Mr. Levesques 80-minute speech, Barry Job, 27-year-old graduate student, angrily denounced the separatist leader as "just another bloody politician mouthing off.

"Hes selling us down the river as a country, the bearded student shouted at the packed house of 500 students. "Ive never seen such a disgusting response.

"You're just another bloody politician mouthing off, Rene Levesque, and it's just as well that you've got a Quebec or you'l be repairing TV sets for a living," said Mr. Job his voice rising.

In a calm voice, Mr. Levesque replied that he comes to "English Canada . . . because I think we in the Parti Quebecois are going to win in Quebec, and I think its important for me to give you as honest a picture as I can before that happens."

On the Ottawa-Quebec controversy concerning international education conferences, he said "each is searching for the best way to obtain the right to go separately" to such conferences as the one held in The Congo last month.

At The Congo meeting, Quebec took the view that the Canadian group was composed of two delegations—a Quebec delegation and a delegation from other Canadian provinces.

Federal officials described the Canadian representation as a single "Canadian delegation" with provincial representation.

Mr. Levesque said his party considers that the only solution to such federal-provincial disputes is a sovereign Quebec.

Why, he was asked, had he come to Ontario to explain his position to the youth of this province?

"I don't think I will win many votes here," he replied jokingly.

"But, supposing Quebec separates in two to five years, I hope to find in you—who tomorrow will hold the leading positions in English Canada—the free-spirited go-betweens in a co-operation with the new neighboring state."

Mr. Levesque spoke Thursday to students at Torontos Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and to students at Trent University in Peterborough.

Today and Sunday he is to go to Assumption University in Windsor, Ont., where he will participate in a discussion with Laurier LaPierre, a McGill University professor, Paul Gerin-Lajoie, Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly and former provincial education minister, and Jean-Pierre Goyer, also a Liberal member of the Quebec national assembly.

Wooler

WOOLER — Peter Logan of Toronto spent the weekend with his mother, Mrs. Allan Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. McColl spent the weekend with their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. A. Leighton and children in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ruttan of St. Catharines spent the weekend with her sister, Mrs. N. N. Haggarty. The couple also visited several others in the area.

Mrs. Vera Teal and Mrs. Gladys Herrington attended the Ice Follies in Toronto over the weekend.

A sleigh riding party was held at Mrs. P. Smith's, for the C.G.I.T. girls.

Lawyers Reject No-blame System In Car Accidents

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A resolution to remove the blame basis of automobile accident compensation was rejected Friday at a panel discussion of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Bar Association.

Prof. Terence G. Ison of Queen's University in Kingston and Prof. Donald R. Harris of Oxford University, visiting professor at the University of Western Ontario, presented the suggestion.

Prof. Ison said there is a need for a comprehensive social insurance system to compensate all accident victims, including victims of automobile accidents.

Such a system should be "quick, comprehensive, automatic and have a reasonably-low cost of administration."

Captain Is Demoted Though Charts Incorrect

LONDON (Reuters) — The Cunard Line Friday demoted the captain of the ill-fated cruise ship, Carmania which grounded in the Bahamas last month, but blamed incorrect admiralty charts for the accident.

Cunard disclosed the findings of a secret inquiry into circumstances which left the 22,000-ton luxury liner stranded on a sand-topped reef off San Salvador for five days.

He said the British admiralty chart of the area was inaccurate and showed between 20 and 100 fathoms of water at the accident spot.

PC Whip Says Rand's Plan For Labor Control Too Broad

TORONTO (CP) — Leonard Reilly, chief whip of the Conservative government, said Friday the recommendation of the late Ivan C. Rand for a powerful authority to inquire into any labor dispute in Ontario and to terminate any strike was too broad and final.

"I do not think that the proposed tribunal should be the final authority on all issues, Mr. Reilly said during the legislatures throne speech debate.

"Unquestionably there must be provision for right of appeal from decisions of the tribunal on questions of law or jurisdiction.

Mr. Reillys comments were the first reaction from any responsible government source to the Rand report on labor disputes in Ontario.

The Rand report has been bitterly criticized by many provincial labor leaders, and there have been threats of a general strike if the government attempts to implement many of its recommendations.

Ontario PCs Would Cut Voting Age

TORONTO (CP) — The executive of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Association voted Friday in favor of lowering the voting age in the province.

R. Alan Eagleson, president of the association, told a news conference no age to which the voting age should be lowered from 21 was recommended by the executive members, but "about 80 per cent would favor 18.

The executive also voted to prepare a brief for the legislatures select committee on election law, to review the association constitution and examine structure of the 11 district associations.

Brazil's President Closes Legislatures

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — President Arthur da Costa e Silva has tightened his grip on Brazil, recessing legislatures of five states indefinitely and purging 33 legislators.

Da Costa e Silva also announced Friday the creation of a national committee to investigate "subversion or counter-revolutionary activities." This apparently paved the way for an expanded hunt to root out opposition and alleged corruption.

Brazil's government said widespread corruption in the state assemblies of Sao Paulo, Pernambuco, Guanabara, Sergipe and Rio de Janeiro justified their closing. The federal congress has been closed since Dec. 13 when Da Costa e Silva assumed dictatorial powers.

Thirty of the 33 purged legislators were suspended of their political rights for 10 years. This means they cannot vote, engage in politics or make political statements. Most of them belonged to the opposition Brazilian Democratic Movement, but some were members of the government's own National Renewal Alliance party.

Da Costa e Silva acted after a three-hour meeting with the National Security Council at his summer palace. It was the council's third meeting since Dec. 13, and the president told its members to be prepared to meet again to consider new purges.

The action raised to 81 the number of congressmen removed since December. Of these 71 also have lost their political rights.

The act that gave Da Costa e Silva sweeping powers stipulates that suspended legislators will not be replaced when congress is permitted to reconvene. No date for this has been set, and it is unlikely to happen before the government completes its cleanup of opposition and alleged subversives.

It's a pathetic sight to watch any athlete try and bask in the limelight of professionalism when his time has obviously come and gone, but in boxing, it's not just a question of it being convenient to quit when you're ahead — it's downright compulsory.

Go out in a blaze of glory, if you're good enough — like a Ted Williams or a Sandy Koufax. Don't cling to the apron-strings of past achievements until you're the laughing stock of the locker-room.

In baseball, Warren Spahn outstayed his welcome by throwing a few seasons well past his magic left arm's prime; Toronto's George Armstrong should have left his blades in the attic to avoid having his past Maple Leaf exploits overshadowed by his latter days as a member of Imlach's arthritic squad.

Archie Moore's decades of ring prowess could have been tainted had Ole Arch not packed in the mitts when his age started working for his opponents.

. And Rocky Marciano wisely decided against heeding the urgings to abandon the overweight comfort of retirement and jeopardize an undefeated championship career by challenging the inheritors of his heavyweight throne.

Which brings us to the case of George Chuvalo, the Toronto scrapper who Monday night had Buster Mathis play meat-grinder with his already-cauliflowered features.

The Madison Square Garden fight — and we use the term loosely — marked the climax to Chuvalo's umpteenth unsuccessful attempt to head his career into the upper echelons of the heavyweight ranks.

The outcome even prompted World Boxing Association Commissioner Abe Greene to recommend that all over-the-hill fighters be encouraged to enter a more peaceful occupation — like gardening.

"There comes a time when a manager or commission should step in and counsel a fighter that his title aspirations are faded and he should step down," said Greene. "Chuvalo's time is now"

Chuvalo countered with his intention for a rematch with Mathis.

Prolonged ring activity is, of course, a much more acute problem than an athlete in another sport outstaying his welcome, or pressing his luck.

For another athlete, it might mean nothing more than embarrassment at not being able to stretch for those quick infield hops, or keep up with his linemates as well as it seemed he could just a few seasons back.

But for the man whose profession involves the never-ending attempt to knock his opponent senseless, while avoiding the same fate, not knowing when to quit is a health risk, pure and simple.

Therein lies the hallmark and shame of professional boxing. Virtually all participants are fighters because they found their fists the only way to rise above meagre circumstances to a higher standard of living.

But once there, they're trapped within the turnbuckles.

Knee Injuries Hit Young NHL Stars

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Knee injuries will keep two of the National Hockey League's outstanding young players from taking part in the busy weekend schedule.

Defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and left winger Dennis Hull of Chicago Black Hawks will miss important games.

The Bruins announced Friday that Orr will travel to his home in Parry Sound, Ont., to rest his knee. The 20-year-old defenceman suffered what the team called "a slight strain" in the left knee in Los Angeles Jan. 30.

Originally, Orr was expected to miss only one game, but he has missed three already and there is no indication when he will return.

The Bruins are keeping quiet about the injury, but there is reason to believe they are concerned. Orr underwent surgery on the same knee last June.

The Black Hawks announced Hull will be out for at least 10 days because of a strained left knee ligament suffered during a 6-1 loss to Detroit Red Wings Thursday night.

Because of the injury to Hull and the team's slump, coach Billy Reay plans some lineup changes for the Hawks.

Reay said Friday that Chico Maki will replace Hull on a line with Pit Martin and Jim Pappin. Doug Mohns will be shifted from left wing to defence and Bobby Hull will play on a line with Stan Mikita and Ken Wharram.

Mohn's switch is a move to tighten up the Black Hawk defence which has allowed 13 goals in the last two games.

The Bruins still have three other players in addition to Orr on the sidelines. They are forwards Johnny McKenzie, Ron Murphy and Tom Williams.

With the return of winger Eddie Shack, however, Boston Friday assigned rookie Jim Harrison to Oklahoma City of the Central Hockey League.

Punch Imlach, manager-coach of the Maple Leafs, said Friday that his team will start to use chartered planes instead of travelling by train to many cities.

"I want to give them all the edge possible for the next month," said Imlach.

But Imlach said that unless the Maple Leafs, fighting with Detroit and Chicago for the final playoff spot in the Eastern Division, start to play better he might have them travelling on bicycles.

In games tonight, Montreal Canadiens visit Minnesota North Stars, Oakland Seals are at Toronto, New York Rangers welcome St. Louis Blues, Philadelphia Flyers are at Boston and Pittsburgh Penguins play host to Los Angeles Kings.

Sunday, Montreal is at St. Louis, Toronto visits Chicago, Philadelphia journeys to New York, Oakland is at Boston, Detroit welcomes Los Angeles and Minnesota plays host to Pittsburgh.

Aces Edge Hornets 5-4; Barrie Closes in on Galt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kingston Aces used four unanswered second period goals to beat Galt Hornets 5-4 Friday to take over the sixth and final playoff spot in the eight-team Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

Kingston's victory over the league leaders also boosted Barrie's chances of claiming first place as the Flyers shelled the slumping Collingwood Kings 9-4 at Barrie to edge within three points of the Hornets.

Third-place Orillia Terriers overcame Belleville Mo-Hawks 6-4 and dropped the Mo-Hawks two points behind Kingston in the playoff struggle. In one other Friday game, at Woodstock, Oakville Oaks bagged five straight goals in the third period to trim the last-place A's 8-5 and strengthen their grip on fourth place, three points ahead of Collingwood.

Before a crowd of 1,362 at Kingston, Charlie Convery, Rod Graham, John Mercer and Rick Smith scored for the Aces in the second period to offset a first-period goal by Galt's Howie Dietrich.

Mercer scored the winner for the Aces in the third period before the Hornets rallied on scores by Dietrich, Bob Ertel and Pete Brennan. Dietrich's second goal came with 25 seconds remaining in the game and Galt netminder Errol McKibbon removed in favor of an extra attacker.

At Barrie, the Flyers had a 5-0 lead before the game was 12 minutes old. Wayne Weller, Dave Ferguson and Pete Panagabko scored two goals each for the winners before 1,215 fans.

Dave Luciuk added a single goal along with defencemen Wayne Cheesman and Brad Houston. Barrie centre Corby Adams, the league leading scorer, collected four assists.

Fern St. Onge, with two goals, Glen Barr and Ron Vermette, a former Barrie player, replied for the Kings.

Panagabko, a former professional, missed a chance at a third goal late in the third period on a penalty shot.

Defenceman Howie Forbes of the Kings was thrown out of the game in the first period for striking a linesman during a scrap involving Ferguson and Collingwood's Mickey Kay.

At Woodstock, Jim (Obie) O'Brien and Bob Pole led Oakville with two goals each. Bob Hawkins, Marcel Labelle, Jack Price and Paul Jackson all scored once. Jerry Harrigan, with two goals, Dave Del Papa, Chuck Harmer and Dan Mahony replied for the A's.

Janet Lynn Tops Ladies

U.S. Aims for Figure Skating Sweep

OAKLAND, Calif. (CP-AP) — With two titles tucked away—by tiny Janet Lynn in the ladies' singles and Ronald and Cindy Kauffman in the pairs—the United States tries for a sweep over Canada tonight in the North American figure skating championships.

Miss Lynn, trailing Karen Magnussen of Vancouver going into Friday night's competition, pulled ahead of her in the free skating to win the singles by the razor-thin margin of 1.4 points.

Janet won four first-place votes from the seven judges, while the other three went to Miss Magnussen.

After Thursday's compulsory figures, Karen led Miss Lynn by 1,029.1 points to 1,015.5.

Both Miss Lynn and Miss Magnussen faltered on the double loop Friday night.

"I was just too cautious, Karen said later. "I've skated better and I was too close to the boards when I faltered.

She admitted before the free skating competition she was worried she might not be able to hold onto her lead.

"I fear everyone, she said. ". . . We never go in expecting to win. . . . The only place for me to go is down.

Linda Carbonetto, 19, of Toronto, who defeated Miss Magnussen Jan. 27 for the Canadian singles title, pulled up from fifth to third Friday night and Tina Noyes of Colorado Springs, Colo., slipped to fourth from third.

The Kauffmans received a standing ovation Friday night after their clockwork performance won them the pairs championship.

The four-time U.S. pairs champions from Seattle received 5.9 points out of a possible six from two of the judges for technical merit and 5.9 from three judges for artistic expression. They finished with 325.0 points.

JoJo Starbuck and Kenneth Shelly of Los Angeles were second with 309.6 points.

Mary Petrie and Robert McAvoy of Toronto, sixth in the standings going into Friday night's competition, finished in third place with 295.4 points. The Canadian pairs champions, Rick Stephens and Anna Forder of Port Perry, Ont., finished fifth with 289.1 points.

The U.S. hopes for a sweep in tonight's finish were bolstered as Tim Wood of Detroit took a 70-point lead over Jay Humphry of Toronto in the men's compulsory figures.

Wood had 1,985.2 points to Humphrey's 1,014.6. John Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., was third with 983.7. David McGillivray of Toronto was fifth with 929.3 points and Toller Cranston of Montreal sixth with 897.5.

But the U.S. team of Judy Schomeyer and James Sladky held on a 4.4-point edge over Donna Taylor of Toronto and Bruce Lennie of Weston, Ont., in the free dance.

Sladky, of Rochester, and Miss Schomeyer, from Indianapolis, had 148.9 points heading into tonight's final, while Miss Taylor and Lennie were close behind with 144.5.

Mary Church of Toronto and Tom Falls of St. Catharines, Ont., were fourth with 139.8 points and Hazel Pike of Toronto and Phillip Boskill of St. Catharines sixth with 132.4.

Gurowka Eliminates Bob MacInnes

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The CFB Trenton rink skipped by Bob MacInnes finally ran out of gas, and was eliminated by Joe Gurowka in Friday night's seventh round at the Ontario curling championships.

Gurowka, the 1966 Ontario champion, counted three in each of the fifth, seventh and eighth ends on his way to an 11-3 nine end victory which qualified him for today's semi-final.

Meanwhile Ken Buchan, a London high school teacher rated a darkhorse at the outset of the Ontario curling championship, is proving he is the best skip in the province.

Buchan is only two victories away from the provincial championship and a trip to the Canadian playoff March 3-7 in Oshawa.

The London skip, with Gary Weisz playing third, Mitch Czaja second and Ross Guest lead, won his sixth straight game of the double-elimination tournament Friday night, defeating Bill Creber of Toronto 6-4.

It was the first loss for Creber, who faced Buchan again at 9 a.m. today.

Buchan also faces Joe Gurowka and his 1966 championships from Toronto in the semi-final at 2 p.m. today.

Buchan could win the championship by defeating Creber and Gurowka. If Creber defeats Buchan in the morning round, he will meet the winner of the Gurowka-Buchan match.

And if Buchan defeats Creber and loses to Gurowka, the 1966 champion would have to meet the London rink again at 7 p.m. today, because both would have only one loss after the afternoon match.

Buchan's fifth win Friday afternoon was over Stu Daw of Toronto 10-5 in 11 ends, while Creber won his fifth consecutive game with an 8-7 victory over Alf Phillips Jr., the 1967 Canadian champion from Toronto.

Creber, who has played straight knockout throughout the tournament, engaged Buchan in the most interesting game to date.

The rinks were deadlocked 2-2 after five ends, Buchan blanked the next two and Creber took one on the eighth when his hit-and-roll-out attempt stayed in the rings.

Creber leading 4-3 after 11 ends, ran into trouble when his third, Jim Sharples, missed his last shot and left the London rink with shot rock and No. 2 in the house.

Weisz then threw his last shot in for No. 3. Creber's attempted freeze to the shot rock was almost two feet short and Buchan chipped it out with his first stone. Creber attempted another freeze and finished up as No. 2 when the shot was heavy.

Buchan then chipped it out of the rings to count three and win the game.

Coaches Predict Australian Swimming Revival

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) — The golden age of Australian swimming, which reached its peak in 1954-55—just before the 1956 Melbourne Olympic Games —may be in for a revival.

Several top coaches and swimming officials here believe that a new generation of Australian swimming stars can improve enough to offer a serious challenge to the United States at the 1972 Munich Olympic Games.

Syd Grange, secretary of the Australian Swimming Union, noted, after the recent New South Wales state swimming championships:

"At the moment we are a clear-cut second behind the United States in world swimming, but there is a crop of youngsters, especially girls, in their early teens who will be at their swimming prime in four years time.

One of the reasons for Granges optimism was the New South Wales championships, in which more than 60 records were broken and many others equalled.

Among the stars were Mexico Olympic competitor Diane Rickard, 15, and her nine-year-old sister, Virginia, along with 15-year-old Helen Pannowitz and Wayne Farthing, 13.

Diane Rickard won 10 individual titles and Virginia set 11 records in the under-10 years category.

Wayne Farthing, at 13, became the first Australian swimmer to break one of Olympic champion Michael Wendens junior records.

Farthing clocked 58.5 seconds for the 100 metres freestyle, trimming Wendens time of 58.6 seconds. The talented youngster also won seven individual titles.

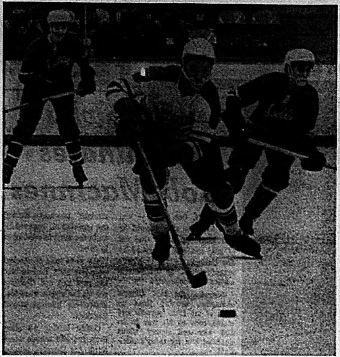
Olympic coach Forbes Carlile said the present situation appeared encouraging for the clash at Munich.

"If we are to hold our place in world swimming, it is vital that we have a crop of juniors coming along. This I think we have —they'll make, or should make, top-class open swimmers.

During the golden age of Australian swimming in the 1950s, consistently impressive numbers of world records were held by Australians.

Among them were three youngsters who, as still active swimmers during the early 1960s, established themselves as all-time greats. They were Dawn Fraser and Jon and Ilsa Konrads.

Australian swimming supremacy reached its peak at the Melbourne Olympics when Australians won every individual freestyle event and nine gold medals.



CHARGE! — Defenceman John Mulvihill of the defending Ontario champion Belleville Kinsmen bantams breaks up the ice to lead a rush during the recent Silver Stick hockey tournament in Port Huron, Michigan. Belleville dropped a 4-1 decision to Brantford in this game and was eliminated in the first round of the 63 team tournament.

Mo-Hawk Rally Falls Short

Five Game Unbeaten Streak Snapped

STAFF — An empty-net goal by Orillia's Moe Galand with 16 seconds remaining in the game sank the good ship Mo-Hawk last night, and snapped Belleville's five game unbeaten streak in the eight team OHA Senior "A" hockey league.

Galand's clincher came after the Mo-Hawks rallied from a 5-2 deficit, with a pair of goals in a span of one minute and 11 seconds, forcing playing-coach Davey Jones to pull netminder Larry Holmes in a desperate attempt to tie the score and send the game into sudden-death overtime.

The Mo-Hawk loss places crucial importance on next week's home and away series with the Kingston Aces, who scored a 5-4 home ice win over the league-leading Galt Hornets last night.

Belleville now trails Kingston by two points in the race for the sixth and last playoff spot in the Senior "A" league, and Kingston travels to Galt tonight to complete a back-to-back series with the powerful Hornets, and make up the game they have in hand over Belleville.

A pair of wins over Kingston, in Tuesday's encounter in the Limestone City, and Friday's return match on the banks of the Moira, would give the Mo-Hawks a two point lead over the Aces if Kingston loses in Galt tonight, but if Kingston beats Galt tonight, the Mo-Hawks would need two wins to pull even with the Aces.

Right winger Al Ferguson scored his second goal of the night, and ninth in the last three games, on a powerplay at 17.02 of the final period to start the Mo-Hawks late comeback drive.

Ferguson tucked the puck in the short side of the net, from the edge of the crease, after taking a pass from centre George Godson.

Ferguson's goal gave the Mo-Hawks a lift, and Davey Jones narrowed the Orillia margin to one goal just over a minute later with a low drive from 15 feet out.

The Mo-Hawks pressed to no avail, and Jones was forced to pull Holmes from the net, setting the stage for Moe Galand to break down the right side and score his third goal of the night on the empty Mo-Hawk net.

Wayne McConnell opened the scoring for Belleville at 2.45 of the first period when he cashed in a hard forehand drive from 15 feet out just as he was being knocked to the ice by Orillia defenceman John Chasczewski.

Grant Moore tallied the first of his two goals at 15.33 to knot the count at 1-1 apiece at the end of the opening period.

George Vail and Moe Galand scored just over two minutes apart just past the mid-way mark of the second period to send the Terriers into a 3-1 lead, but Belleville made it 3-2 at 17.02 when George Godson's slapshot from 20 feet out deflected in off Al Ferguson's curved stick.

Grant Moore and Moe Galand each notched their second goal of the night just before the midway points of the period of the middle period to give the Terriers a three goal margin, which the Mo-Hawks could not make up, despite their rally in the waning minutes of the game.

Belleville will be waiting for the result of the Kingston-Galt encounter tonight with great interest, but the Mo-Hawks will have to wait until Tuesday to resume their march towards the final playoff spot.

Oshawa's Simpson Scores Three

Trenton Ties League Leaders 4-4

STAFF — The Trenton Golden Hawks parlayed three second period goals into a 4-4 tie with the league leading Oshawa Crushmen in an Eastern Ontario Junior "B" game played last night at the Trenton Community Gardens.

The three goal outburst gave Trenton a 3-1 lead and offset a three goal third period by the powerful Crushmen.

The tie enabled Trenton to pull two points ahead of Cobourg, and strengthen their grip on the fourth and last playoff spot in the six team Junior "B" league.

Oshawa's Tom Simpson opened the scoring at 18.05 of the first period, with the first of his three goals, to give the visitors a 1-0 first period lead.

Second period goals by Jim Steenburg, Don Potts and Pete Hammel gave Trenton a 3-1 lead, and Gary Lisle potted Trenton's final goal at 2.33 of the third stanza after Wayne Blanchard had narrowed the count to 3-2 with a goal at the 36 second mark of the third period.

Simpson's final two goals came at 4.17 and 19.13 and gave the visitors the tie, which enabled them to increase their lead over second place Peterborough to two points.

Chargers Score Initial Senior Hoop Win

STAFF — A 28 point performance by forward Dennis Neron sparked Centennial senior Chargers to the school's first senior basketball victory in its short history.

The 59-54 win over second place Picton was the initial victory for the Chargers in their first year of senior competition in the seven team Class "AA" basketball league.

John Koch hooped 14 points for the Chargers, and Wes Chow added eight as Centennial grabbed an 11-9 first quarter lead and was never headed thereafter.

Steve Ward threw in 19 points for Picton, while Rick Walmsley contributed 13 points and Wayne Coward eight.

Centennial juniors moved into a three-way tie for second spot with a convincing 63-43 win over winless Picton, while Picton midgets dumped Centennial 39-18 to join BCI at the top of the midget division.

Mike Semark notched 20 points for the junior Chargers, while Frank Johnston hooped 15 and Keith Wilson added nine.

Bill Barrett stood out in defeat for Picton, scoring 25 points, but the closest support he got was six points each from Brian Rutter and Dennis Bond.

Zone Press Helps

Napanee Win Grabs Second

STAFF — A zone press and some hot hands from the foul line carried the Napanee Golden Hawks senior basketball squad to a 56-44 victory over Trenton last night, and undisputed possession of second place in the seven team Class "AA" league.

Napanee switched to the zone press in the second quarter after Trenton took a 16-15 first quarter lead, and the result was a flurry of Trenton miscues and travelling violations which enabled the Golden Hawks to take a 29-19 lead at half time.

The Golden Hawks continued their consistent performance from the foul line, hitting on 21 of 27 free throws during the game.

Bob Cook, who hit on nine of ten attempts from the foul line, hooped 17 points to top the Napanee scorers, while Dave Cunningham contributed 16 points and Dave Cechetto nine.

Les Nicholson netted 16 points for Trenton, while Bob Hush added 11 points and Wayne Miller six.

Trenton juniors evened their record at three wins and three losses with a narrow 33-32 win over Napanee, while Napanee midgets scored their first win of the season, upsetting third place Trenton 20-18.

Rob Madden had 18 points for the Napanee juniors, and Dave Finlay contributed six, while Bob Hush counted 11 points for Trenton and Kendall Biche netted eight for the winners.

Sport Briefs

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Fortunato, former linebacking star, resigned as defensive coach of Chicago Bears Friday in the wake of a revision of head coach Jim Dooley's staff. In the past week, the National Football League club signed as new coaching assistants Fred Carr, defensive aide of Minnestoa Vikings, Jim Ringo, veteran NFT centre with Green Bay Packers and Philadelphia Eagles.

CFL Faces Network Demands

CALGARY (CP) — The Canadian Football League has received unrealistic proposals from the CBC and CTV networks in negotiations for a new television contract, Pat Mahoney said Friday.

Among the conditions submitted, the retiring president of Calgary Stampeders said, is one that the lighting in all nine CFL stadiums be upgraded to permit color television at night.

With the exception of Calgary and Ottawa, he told the Western Conference club's annual meeting, this would require substantial capital expenditures.

"That in itself would be fine if there were any indication that either network was prepared to pay enough more for the rights to permit recovery of the cost, but there is no such indication," Mahoney said.

He said both networks also stipulated conditions of schedule and blackout relaxation which would, in the opinion of the clubs, have an adverse effect on attendance.

Mahoney said the networks' position indicates a distorted view of the relative financial significance of television revenue and gate receipts.

Two Disciplined For Part in 1968 Derby Scandal

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky state racing commission disciplined veterinarian Dr. Alex Harthill and horse trainer Douglas M. Davis Jr. Friday in connection with the uproar over the 1968 Kentucky Derby.

A unanimous order by the commission gave Harthill and Davis a choice between 30-day suspensions or fines of $500 each fo rtheir part in salting the feed of Dancer's Image, the Derby winner, with aspirin two days after the race.

Harthill said he ground up aspirin tablets and put it in Dancer's Image's feed box on the Monday after the Derby after he learned that traces of the banned medication phenylbutazone had been found in the colt's urine immediately after the race.

Harthill contended he had done so in order to test the honesty of Louis C. Calavaris of Toronto, trainer of Dancer's Image.

Davis said both Cavalaris and Barnard saw the veterinarian place the material in the feed but neither reported the incident to the Churchill Downs' stewards.

"If Cavalaris was above reproach," said Davis, "he should have told the stewards about the feed-salting incident immediately."

Okker Makes Pro Debut

Tom Okker of The Netherlands, making his professional debut, swept into the semi-finals of the world's first indoor open tennis tournament Friday night with a shot at the top prize of $7,000.

He did it with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia.

Earlier in the tournament he defeated Sweden's Ove Bengtson and England's Roger Taylor.

Joining Okker in the semi-final round are Australians Rod Laver, Tony Roche and Ken Rosewall.

Okker meets Roche in one semi-final while Laver takes on Rosewall in tonight's other match.

Pretty Blonde Becomes First Female Jockey in U.S.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Pretty Diane Crump became the first woman Friday to ride in a pari-mutual horse race in the United States, jockeying the 50-to-1 Bridle 'N Bit to 10th place in a field of 12 in the seventh race at Hialeah.

The blonde 19-year-old exercise girl got red in the cheeks when she came from the special dressing room in the administration building and met an estimated 5,000 race fans cheering and applauding.

Diane broke second but began dropping back by the first turn. The crowd seemed not to mind and cheered her all the way around.

Tom Calumet, owner-trainer of the horse, said: "My wife was the one responsible. She owns the horse. She said 'Put the girl on or I'll get another trainer."

Miss Crump was issued a temporary jockey licence after proving she could break a horse competitively from the starting gate. The state racing commission requires an apprentice jockey to prove ability in a race before issuing the permanent license.

Ottawa Surges; Canadiens, Hawks Tied for Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa 67s continue to battle heavy odds in their struggle to gain a playoff berth in the 10-team Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

They beat one of the odds Friday night, handing the third-place Peterborough Petes a 7-4 trouncing before 5,629 Ottawa fans.

The 67s are in ninth place with 32 points, four points behind Toronto Marlboros. The top eight teams are eligible for the playoffs.

In the league's other Friday night action, Niagara Falls Flyers clipped London Knights 6-3, Montreal Junior Canadiens edged Kitchener Rangers 4-3 and St. Catharines Black Hawks and Toronto played to a 4-4 tie.

At Ottawa, Bryan McSheffrey scored twice on second-period breakaways to pace the 67s. Denis Potvin, Pete Laframboise, Murray Wilson, Gord McCormick and Pierre Jarry were the other Ottawa scorers.

Peterborough, outshot 28-23, got goals from Rick MacLeish, Ron Stackhouse, Craig Ramsay and Paul Perras.

At Niagara Falls, the Flyers got two-goal performances from linemates Don Tannahill and Ross Webley, plus single markers from Doug Brindley and Don Makey.

Tannahill's goals gave him 41 for the season.

John Gould, Bert Wilson and Neil Nicholson replied for the seventh-place Knights, outshot 36-24. The win gave Flyers 48 points and a share of fourth place with Hamilton Red Wings.

At Kitchener, the Canadiens struck for two goals 68 seconds apart late in the third period to pull out their slim victory before a crown of 4,687 fans.

Richard Martin tied the game for Montreal and linemate Norman Gratton scored the winner seconds later. Arthur Quoquochi got Montreal's other two goals.

Scoring for the last-place Rangers were Brian Glenwright, with two, and Bob Whitlock.

Rejean Houle, Montreal's high-scoring right winger, was cut for 20 stitches on the mouth in a first-period accident. Henry Lehvonen of Kitchener received a five-stich forehead cut in the same period.

At Toronto, the Marlboros scored two goals in the third period 35 seconds apart to salvage their tie before 6,670 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Linemates John French, Mike Murphy and Tom Johnston each scored once and added two assists for Toronto.

Doug Acomb got the other Toronto goal.

Dennis Giannini, Al McDonough, Allan Young and Rick Dudley replied for the Black Hawks.

The tie enabled the Hawks to salvage a first-place tie with Montreal, each with 58 points.

Quebec to Hire Track Director

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec Amateur Track and Field Association is hiring a full-time technical director, Louis Chantigny, Quebec sports commissioner, announced Friday.

He told a news conference the director will be paid by the Quebec government and may be selected from among four candidates in France.

Chantigny and Pierre Charbonneau, president of the association, will go to France in two weeks to interview the four candidates.

"His job will be to improve track and field in the province and to organize coaches and athletes' clinics," said association secretary Gilles Blain.

Robert Bobin, coach of France's national track team, told reporters he could not accept the association's offer to become director because of family commitments. He was the original choice.

Blain pointed out that track and field interest is increasing every year—"1,700 athletes registered with us last year compared with 475 in 1962."

Quebec had no representatives in the 1964 Olympics, but had two in 1968 and hoped to have 10 in 1972.

Funseth Leads by A Stroke

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The 10th annual Bob Hope desert golf classic reaches the 72-hole point today with Rod Funseth on top for the second straight round.

Funseth's 206 on rounds of 69-66—71 gave him a one-stroke lead over National Open champion Lee Trevino.

Tied at 209 were Frank Beard and Art Wall, who were one under par with 71s Friday, and Gene Littler and Orville Moody who had 68s.

Bill Casper and Bob Charles were tied with 210. One stroke behind and five strokes off the pace was George Knudson of Toronto with a 72-71-68—211.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer, with a third-round 69, was alone at 214. Jack Nicklaus' 74 left him in a big group at 217.

Al Balding of Toronto had 77-71-74—222.

The field will be cut after the fourth round to the low 70 scoring pros for Sunday's final 18-hole round in the 90-hole tournament, the world's longest. The pros will drop their three amateur partners Sunday.

Williams Signs; Needs Quarterback

CALGARY (CP) — Coach Jerry Williams signed a new contract with Calgary Stampeders Friday, and then said the Western Football Conference club's major problem in 1969 will be finding a replacement for quarterback Peter Liske.

The signing was announced at the club's annual meeting, but no details were released.

Williams said he believes Jerry Keeling can move from the defensive backfield to capably fill the signal-calling position vacated by Liske's departure for the National or American football leagues.

An alternate choice is Ron Vander Kelen, formerly with Minnesota Vikings of the NFL.

SURPRISE! THE BIRDIE IS WATCHING YOU

What was the world really like in the early centuries? We have to depend upon the artists of long ago for pictures of what life in general and people were like. The first cameras became popular in the 19th century, and people have been saying "Cheese" by the millions ever since.

If someone just gifted you with a new camera, don't throw your old one in the closet. — Someone is reading The Intelligencer Want Ads today with a good used camera in mind. Help him and you.

THE ROYAL AND

of golf, so called because it was played by the English royal family in the 16th century, was probably invented in Scotland. The best golf courses in the world are still there where the Scots call them links.

Maybe the king in your family no longer uses his old clubs because he received new ones for Christmas. Sell those perfectly good woods and irons with a Intelligencer Ad ... just by dialing 962-9171 today!

Employment News

By: J. R. STAVELEY
Manpower Counsellor

In recent weeks, there has been considerable publicity with regard to promising prospects of an expanded local economy in the Belleville area.

The prospect of increased economic activity is not confined solely to the southern portion of our district. Possibly not so well known is the fact that there is every indication that uranium mining will be resumed in the Bancroft area in the years immediately ahead.

These developments would result in additional employment opportunities and probably in some cases occupational requirements new to this area.

This situation would be of particular interest to students entering the labor force whose number is increasing each year.

Although there are so many more occupational categories in the modern world of work, it is still difficult for many students to choose a suitable employment field. For some years, responsible persons from education, industry, government and other interested public organizations have endeavoured to reduce the haphazard choice of a trade or a profession or other field of work.

One such organization, — The United Community Services of Belleville and District have sponsored a planning committee under the Chairmanship of Mr. Robert Icely and Mrs. Norma Grant to consider the feasibility of a large and unique "Careers Expo" to be held in the early autumn of this year. This Careers Exposition would be held for the benefit of the students of the Hastings, Belleville and the Township of Ameliasburg. The objective of this Careers Expo '69 would be to further assist the community's students in their selection of their life work.

The following opportunities are now available at the Canada Manpower Centre:

In the female division, a capable chambermaid is urgently required for a hotel in Maynooth. Positions are unfilled for experienced short order cooks. A regular part time sales woman who possesses some knowledge of music and records is required. Another vacancy calls for a cashier who would be willing to work six evenings per week. There is also a requirement for an administrative secretary, who in addition to the secretarial requirements, must have the ability to meet and deal with the public.

In the male division locally, still in demand are qualified accountants. Industrial plants are still seeking professional or mechanical engineers, as well as qualified technologists in addition to an experienced milling machine operator, a lathe operator and floor moulders. Someone who would be interested in being trained as a short order cook is urgently required by a local business. There are unfilled positions for licensed class "A" automobile repair mechanics, an automobile body painter and a painting estimator who is able to travel. Professionally qualified persons are in demand for employment in the personnel field. One of these positions calls for a woman who has these qualifications.

If interested in any of these positions, contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville.

Council Discusses Paving of Roads

MARMORA — Attending the meeting of Marmora Village Council on Monday were A. Leach, Urban Projects Supervisor, of Toronto, R. J. Sim, District Municipal Engineer, of Kingston, Peter Anderson, County Engineer, of Belleville and George L. Totten, Consulting Engineer of Totten, Sims, Hubicki and Associates, Ltd., of Cobourg.

The paving, curbing and installation of storm sewers in the Village were discussed, as well as paving of the business section of Forsyth Street and Main Street, north to the Village limits.

The Village proposals will be presented to the Department of Highways by Mr. Totten, in co-operation with Mr. Leach.

Members of Council will attend the Ontario Good Roads Convention in Toronto on Feb. 24-25. While there they will meet with the Ontario Water Resources Commission, and with a representative of Canadian Mitchell Associates to discuss development of park area in the recently acquired property north of No. 7 highway, on Crowe River.

Applications were reviewed for position of manager for Booster Park for 1969, and this to be further considered at a joint meeting with the Township Council on Feb. 7.

Council appreciates the manner in which snowmobilers have co-operated in operating their machines within the Village limits, with not one complaint having been received.

Eldorado

ELDORADO — Mrs. George Patiner is a patient in the Peterborough Hospital.

A number from the district attended the funeral of George Fox, formerly of Madoc.

Mrs. Evans is visiting friends in Oshawa.

Mrs. Mel Johnson is a patient in the Belleville General Hospital; Harley Blackburn is also a patient.

Canadian Stocks Marking Time As Prices Sag Slightly Friday

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian share prices marked time around record levels this week, although most groups were sagging slightly when markets closed Friday.

The Toronto industrial index slipped .23 to 192.24 and the composite index on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges lost .97 to 187.54.

The market's indecisive behavior matched a similar situation in New York where the major indexes have been fluctuating in a narrow range for about three weeks.

Analysts still are wondering whether prices will take off in another positive thrust to new high ground, or whether the next big move will be downwards towards the lower levels of early January.

Canadian markets, however, continue to be firmer than New York, and there are no signs at Toronto or Montreal suggesting the bull trend has reached a peak.

A Toronto analyst says that from a technical point of view the basic trend, which dates back to last April, is still pointing upwards.

He believes the minimum expectation for the Toronto industrial index, broadest indicator of share prices, is a rise to about 210 from its current level at 192.

This would add another nine per cent to the market value of industrial stocks.

He says this is a minimum projection only, "and clearly there is nothing to prevent the market from going above the 210-220 level."

Brokers say, however, that what happens in New York could have a big impact on the immediate outlook in Canada.

The Wall Street Journal said the market is "at a crossroads, and investors are foot-tapping nervously waiting to see which direction it takes."

According to a U.S. analyst, there are three main sources of news which could move share prices in the near future:

—The U.S. Federal Reserve Board and the banks which could tighten credit and raise interest rates on loans.

—The Vietnam peace talks.

—Events in the Middle East where Arab-Israeli tension has been blamed with creating uncertainty in the market.

"If there are favorable developments in all those areas, then the market certainly would experience a new advance because a seemingly substantial amount of funds are available for investment in stocks." the spokesman said.

"But if one or more of these situations deteriorate, prices will probably be depressed by further liquidations."

Although the Toronto and Montreal indexes declined slightly over the week, the biggest price changes were mostly gains.

Erie Diversified was up 14 to 56, McIntyre Porcupine 7¼ to 117, Ford of Canada 7 to 315, B.C. Sugar 6 to 52, Koffler Stores 6 to 49 and Leigh Instruments 5¼ to 53⅝.

Western oils, a volatile group where speculation creates erratic price movements, declined from their recent all-time high.

Canadian Superior lost 8½ to 63½, Scurry-Rainbow 3½ to 36 and Asamera 2½ to 29⅝.

Junior industrial stocks were firm and their average price edged up to another 1968-69 high. J. H. Crang and Co.'s index of 79 junior industrials rose to a record at 227.5 from 224.5 last week.

Chartered banks were one of the weakest groups, declining by nearly three per cent.

The trouble started Tuesday when the Bank of Montreal announced plans to raise about $45,500,000 in cash by means of a rights issue.

Analysts immediately predicted that other banks would follow suit, leading to some appreciable dilution of bank stocks in general.

A rights issue, which involves selling additional common stock to the public, means the bank's profits and dividends have to be spread out over a greater number of shares.

Brokers also said bank shares have been hit by profit taking after their sharp rise to record prices last year. The shares have been slightly below their best since Dec. 13.

On index at Toronto, golds fell 2.50 to 241.47, base metals .53 to 120.61 and western oils 8.89 to 249.70.

Volume was 30,794,000 shares compared with 33,005,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 424 to 384.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, combined volume was 10,152,000 shares compared with 9,216,000 last week. Gains outnumbered losses 198 to 174.

Governments' Spending Blamed for Inflation

LONDON (CP) — G. Arnold Hart, board chairman of the Bank of Montreal, has charged Canadian governments at all levels with generating inflation by over-expenditure.

"I accuse the governments of being the major cause of inflation in Canada by higher spending, and the only way to cure it will be for them to take the lead in cutting spending." Hart told a news conference Friday.

Hart, ending a two-week visit to England, suggested the federal government might start pruning on its outlay for medicare and higher education.

"I am not against medical care where it is needed," he said, "but it seems rather ridiculous for the federal government to launch a universal plan when many of the provincial governments say they cannot afford to join it."

As for the "tremendous expense" of education, he said so much public money is being laid out on university students that it is time for "a second look at it."

The bank chief suggested that the central government, instead of "dissipating" money in fields like medicare, should get more interested in areas such as reduction of water pollution and relieving some of the burden of municipalities, which could not raise enough taxes for roads.

Similar Phrases Noted at Parley

PARIS (AP) — Although the Vietnam peace conference has been largely limited to invective, diplomats note similarities of language that might provide a starting point toward an eventual settlement.

Most significantly, North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front no longer insist on immediate reunification of the two Vietnams. Both say they expect South Vietnams "capitalist social system to continue almost indefinitely.

Each side still accuses the other of being the aggressor. Each side accuses the other of seeking to impose a foreign domination on South Vietnam. Each side claims to recognize the demilitarized zone and accuses the other of violating it.

But Vietnamese on both sides insist that the 17th parallel is not a permanent border, but a "provisional demarkation line" pending reunification. Both sides claim reunification is their ultimate objective, though they remain violently opposed in their concepts of how it can be brought about.

All parties in the war claim they accept the essential provisions of the 1954 Geneva agreements which ended the French Indochina war. The agreements partitioned Vietnam and set up an International Control Commission to supervise the armistice.

Both sides seem to agree there should be some international controlling body, though not necessarily with the same Canadian, Polish and Indian members. There has been talk between the United States and Saigon of a possible peace force composed of three Asian neutrals.

The Geneva accords called for free elections to be held in both North and South Vietnam in 1956. But the late President Ngo Dinh Diem of South Vietnam refused to hold the 1956 elections, claiming his country was not fully pacified.

Hanoi and the NLF claim Diem's refusal to hold elections was the starting point of the "liberation struggle" in the South.

South Vietnamese spokesmen say Saigon recognizes the agreements—but not the final declaration calling for elections. They say the declaration was merely adopted by the conference but not signed, and therefore it is not legally binding.

If Hanoi and the NLF demand a return to the "free election" provision of the final declaration, it would touch on another point where the two sides seem to be in agreement—that the population of South Vietnam must be allowed to determine its future without outside interference.

This is part of the peace programs of both Hanoi and the NLF, and is part of the American position. But each side has a different concept of how democratic processes should be applied.

Police Chief Addresses Kiwanians

TWEED — Tweed's Chief of Police Robert Roy, was the guest speaker at the recent evening meeting of the Tweed Kiwanis Club, which was held at the Hotel Tweedsmuir.

Mr. Roy outlined the duties of a chief constable in a small community such as Tweed, and went on to explain some of the problems encountered in carrying out his responsibilities.

The laws are made by other people, it is the duty of the police to see that these laws are observed, he told the members. The Kiwanis members completed plans for the annual pancake breakfast sponsored by the club in conjunction with the Tweed Winter Carnival, on Sunday morning, Feb. 9.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Fat Face Is Small Price To Pay for Asthma Relief

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What do you think about long-term corticosteroid therapy? Due to intractable asthma I have been taking a cortisone-type medicine for almost three years. The dosage varies depending upon the severity and frequency of my asthma attacks — all under the supervision of my allergist.

During a severe attack he also administers injections of cortisone or ACTH, as well as the other usual medications.

Naturally, the doctor's chief concern is with the medical side-effects. What I want to know is if there is anything that I can do to minimize my "moon face."

While I am thankful to be able to breathe normally, I do get very depressed with my fat slob appearance. Since getting out of the hospital over two years ago, I have gained over 25 pounds. More than I ever put on during my pregnancies. All this despite the fact I have been on a high protein, low carbohydrate, low sodium diet. By staying with my diet the weight has remained constant for the last eight months or so, but I cannot lose any of it.

In addition to this I am not permitted to do any exercise which will make me start coughing, or get short of breath. I cannot do too much housework or even work in the garden because of my allergies.

Surely there must be something I can do to improve my appearance and boost my morale. I have never been fat before. In fact, my face used to be rather hollow-cheeked.

Now I think I would even welcome back some of my old wrinkles. I am 58, weigh a horrible 140 and am 5 feet, 1½ inches tall. Mrs. K.

Comment: So often we have to make a choice the lesser of two evils. Although I think you will admit that cortisone is far from being evil. I think you have answered your question yourself when you wrote: "While I am thankful to be able to breathe normally.' '

I believe that is the choice anyone would make rather than be completely disheartened by appearance.

You say that you are under constant supervision by your allergist. Then it is likely that he has checked to see if you have diabetes, hypertension, stomach ulcer — which are three of several side effects that must be guarded against.

Chances are that he cuts down on the cortisone dosage whenever he can. Moon-face and fluid retention, of course, often go hand in hand with continued, high cortisone therapy.

Although 140 pounds at your height is overweight, I would not agree that it deserves your own description of "fat slob appearance." The fact that your weight has remained constant for eight months is certainly a good sign.

I suggest that you continue on your diet and medication. If you have any doubts that you are perhaps getting too much cortisone, I am sure that your allergist would be willing for you to get another medical opinion in consultation. Once you have that, you will feel better about continuing on your present course.

For Mr. Y. (Indianapolis): "Basal cell tumor" is a common skin cancer, usually about one-half inch or less in diameter, curable by surgery or X-ray treatment. Frequently it is located on the side of the nose or beneath the eyes. Be thankful you haven't procrastinated. The outlook is excellent for complete cure.

Legal Aid Changes Requested To Prevent Abuse of Program

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Law Society of Upper Canada has requested amendments to prevent abuses to the Ontario Legal Aid Plan, society members were told today.

Treasurer W. G. C. Howland told the society's annual meeting the proposed amendments will save taxpayers "thousands of dollars."

In his annual report, Mr. Howland said the proposals do not change the basic philosophy of the plan, which was established in April, 1967, to provide legal aid for persons unable to afford it.

Text of his remarks was released in advance.

One proposal would require applicants for legal aid to make a statutory declaration of their financial assets. Misinformation could lead to prosecution.

Another would be aimed as making certain a Legal Aid client "pays back to the fund a proper amount" if he is awarded money or property as a result of court action.

The proposals were submitted to Attorney-General Wishart in December. They have not yet been introduced in the legislature.

The report also says the society is re-considering a recommendation that it control the re-admission of former judges to the bar.

A 1954 court ruled that when a judge was appointed to the Supreme Court of Ontario he ceased to be a member of the provincial bar.

Mr. Howland said it was necessary to make some provision for the re-admission of judges when they ceased to hold office.

Romania May Buy Canadian A-plant

OTTAWA (CP) — Crucial negotiations begin later this month in Romania on Canada's bid to supply a $100,000,000 nuclear plant for generating electric power, it was learned Friday.

Dr. A. M. Akin, general manager, nuclear power marketing for Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., heads a team leaving this weekend for final talks with Romanian authorities.

Canadian officials believe there is an excellent chance of making a deal which would involve about $60,000,000 worth of purchases in Canada.

If financing and other arrangements can be completed, Romania would buy a 300,000 kilowatt nuclear generating plant of the type built at Douglas Point, Ont., for Ontario Hydro.

The deal is one of several being worked on by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd.

Discussions were held in Italy a week ago to determine whether Canada will submit bids for a plant there. Czechoslovakia also has been in close touch with Atomic Energy of Canada about a possible purchase.

After the Romanian talks, Dr. Akin and his AECL team will visit Greece, which has announced it will buy a plant this year.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 9

Your birthday today: Service and dedication increasingly fill your daily living in the coming year. Opportunity for personal progress is ever present in small ways which add up. No great windfall is indicated. Social and emotional contacts become intense. Today's natives usually have great energy, indulgence or abstinence. Friendships are readily developed by them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Your energy exceeds the channels for its expression, so concentrate on economy rather than volubility. Physical activities likewise gain from restraint.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): The rest of the world is easier to cope with today than family, friends. Squabbles start easily. Your duties to older people become very important now and are not to be shirked.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Your own neighborhood is the most enjoyable today. Turn out early with your family and friends to do your share of the community expression of faith. Patience: your most constructive virtue.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): At a moment when you have the least freedom to show response, stress arrives from the least expected direction. Carry your normal responsibilities. You will have time later for personal matters.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Look about your home, family and friends for today's rewards. Much challenge is met there, and much to gain in meeting it well. Group programs are favored.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): This day is best begun with an expression of your personal faith. Review your recent progress, and take counsel from associates who have your interests at heart. Details are important.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Personal relationships and financial points of vantage are indicated to be within reach of improvement. Don't take sides in any disputes or squabbles in your community even at the expense of being away from your accustomed rounds.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): You thrive better outdoors today, other factors permitting. If you can't go very far, enjoy your local area. Some emotional bid is at hand for your long and careful thought.

SAGITTARIS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your past efforts produce belated results now. Partners or old friends come in to help you cope with external pressures you had not expected.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Return to those who have stuck with you through adversity and who understand you well enough to accept your personal qualities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Today you begin a long series of growth-changes. It is a time in your life when subtle catalytic stimuli are at work. Every few months you will realize you have come to hold a different viewpoint.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): This is one of the rare moments when hidden truth is near the surface. Find satisfaction with projects you haven't had the time to follow lately.

For February 10

Your birthday today: The year is one of initial discovery. Every day you can find some new feature of life and the opportunity for meaningful experience. In such a year, every circumstance has its own minor set pattern. Today's natives tend to be impulsive, with a knack for publicity, showmanship. The mind is usually quick, active.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Self-improvement activities are strongly indicated. The atmosphere of today seems to have even more religious qualities than yesterday's. The evening is best for reflection.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Your work involves many readjustments to encompass recent changes. Pinpoint the spot which needs your coverage, especially in neglected correspondence.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): If people near you do not have the information you need, begin a search for answers. Negotiations over deals or purchases are not apt to be to your advantage.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your work develops a passing note of urgency get right with whatever the rush job is and settle the problem before it expands and involves more people. Outright settlement of bills due or refinancing may be very helpful moves to make.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Use all your social graces today to the best advantage. Offer and expect in turn similar courtesy and assistance from others. If feasible entertain business prospects this evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Diligent pursuit of your obligations is likely to bring some windfall. Also, you can reasonably expect enthusiastic help with your pet home projects, maintenance, repairs, hobby expansions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Get ready for serious competition today. A happy celebration tonight may require change of schedules. Large schemes hit the news today and this evening, so you'll have much to discuss.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): The million-to-one-shot comes true today if you can only obtain the calm required for your intuition to function clearly. A rare and valuable asset may be uncovered. Correspondence promises interesting news.

SAGITTARIS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your path twists into unexpected detours at the whim of associates who simply do not have your grasp of the whole story. Your ability to endure is priceless. Instead of becoming petulant, do some exploring.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Careful questions and good listening can provide you with a gold mine of helpful informatoin. Details of the progress and welfare of your family and relatives later turn out to be very good to know.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): The harder you study now, the greater will be the reward in the summer months. Learn new skills, add tasks which will challenge your mind. The pattern you are following is certain to change soon.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Seek, make use of introductions and recommendations. After you've tackled career matters, attend to local needs. Shop for supplies, personal items — short-term bargains are handy.

Toronto Schools Like Jails

TORONTO (CP) — A British Columbia principal said Friday that Toronto high schools are run like jails, with the students treated as prisoners.

John Young, 46, principal of Campbell River secondary school on Vancouver Island, said most schools in Canada have retained 19th century rules and are seriously out of step with "jet-age kids.'

Mr. Campbell told a Toronto meeting of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation that at most schools "the bell rings and doors clang shut, just like Cell No. 3.

"The students are inmates, the teachers are guards and the principal is the warden. It's a maximum - security institution.

Mr. Young said that at his school, which has been described as the most progressive tax-supported school in Canada, the formal rules have been abolished.

Students are free to stay away from the school and leave classes when they wish. They can pick the subjects they want to study and are permitted to smoke in the student lounge.

Mr. Young said that there are no compulsory assignments, no detentions, and only a few examinations required for university entrance.

Will It Be Built in Canada?

PC MP Wants to Know About Satellite Program

OTTAWA (CP) — It is time the Canadian people knew just what the government intends to do in the field of space satellites, Heath Macquarrie (PC — Hillsborough) said Friday.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans announced some time ago that Canada will put a domestic telecommunications satellite into orbit, possibly by 1971, but Mr. Macquarrie said in the Commons the flow of information about this project is too thin.

The Prince Edward Island MP said he would like to know whether Canada's first telecommunications satellite will be designed and built in this country or the United States.

He spoke during consideration of a government bill making minor changes in the act governing the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation. The legislation was back in the Commons from committee and the way now is clear for third and final reading.

In debate on freshwater fish marketing legislation, the government yielded some ground to the opposition and agreed to allow fishermen, or their representatives, to sit on a committee that will advise the marketing board.

The bill to establish the board has reached the stage of third and final reading.

Lloyd R. Crouse (PC—South Shore) led the battle to get fishermen's voices on the advisory committee, moving an amendment that one-third of the members be people actively engaged in freshwater fishing.

The government accepted the amendment when the opposition agreed to an alteration proposed by David Anderson (L—Esquimalt-Saanich), making it "persons or representatives of persons" engaged in freshwater fishing.

Mr. Anderson said this would permit the appointment of persons formerly engaged in freshwater fishing but no longer active in it.

Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons that the Canadian and U.S. governments have been discussing a visit to this country by President Richard Nixon.

But no date had been set and there was nothing precise to report on the talks.

Mr. Macquarrie said he believes a Canadian-built satellite can be justified, "but I believe the people responsible should do a more sustained job of informing the Canadian people."

It was obvious that no Canadian domestic satellite would be put into orbit by Canadian efforts alone.

"Someone else will have to do the launching for us, and to that extent it will not be exclusively one of our own operations."

Mr. Macquarrie said it has been estimated that a Canadian-built satellite may cost $160,000,000, while a U.S.-built satellite might be provided for a fraction of that amount.

Even if it costs $200,000,000 to build the satellite in Canada, this might not be too high a price to pay for "our scientific nationalism," but the government would have to explain its decision fully.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans, who will be responsible for development of the satellite program, reiterated previous statements that he hopes it will be feasible to build the satellite in Canada.

Mr. Macquarrie criticized the government for not developing "a pattern of consultation" with Quebec on the question of satellites.

It had been known for a long time that Quebec was interested in the use of satellites for educational and cultural purposes, particularly in co-operation with France.

It was undeniable that Quebec has full jurisdiction over education, and undeniable that only the federal government can negotiate satellite agreements with other countries.

Apparently Canada and France were talking. External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and Foreign Minister Michel Debre met at the United Nations. Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Maurice Couve de Murville met in Quebec City.

But, Mr. Macquarrie asked: "when do Quebec and Canada get together? When do Ottawa and Quebec City engage in a dialogue?"

He said Mr. Kierans had said Nov. 26 he was going to talk to Quebec about international satellite ventures "right away."

Constitutional Parley to Be Covered By TV Cameras for Full Three Days

OTTAWA (CP) — With its widely billed promise of conflict, next week's federal-provincial constitutional conference is likely to become the greatest television spectacular since the last political leadership convention.

From the country's most expensive studio—the ornate Confederation Room of the Parliamentary West Block—television cameras will focus on the C-shaped conference table for the full three days, catching every speech, smile and sneer.

Besides it's national television coverage, the CBC will cover the entire Monday to Wednesday meeting on radio. The Canadian Television Network, while not carrying the conference live, will devote several secials to the meeting.

Every word uttered by every politician will be put before the nation—an experiment tried with acclaimed success at last year's constitutional conference when all the delegates seemed to reach a consensus on language rights.

But more than one federal official shuddered at the thought of what the TV coverage would have done if the conference—Prime Minister Pearson's last major function in office—had ended in antagonism.

The same fears are there now, as carpenters work to prepare the 80-foot-long room for one of the most important events of its existence.

The most closely-watched performer during the three-day TV production probably will be Prime Minister Trudeau.

Sitting in the middle of the "C", and at various times surrounded by several of the nine other cabinet ministers attending, he will, in effect, be on centre stage. Fanning out on both sides of him will be the provincial delegations.

Behind the delegations, in the semi-circular seating arrangement, will be wedges of federal and provincial delegates, advisers and observers.

About 175 persons will be seated in the room.

Unlike last year's conference, which was expected to start amiably regardless of what developed later, this one seems to be facing a more unpredictable beginning.

For instance, the three Prairie premiers have told Mr. Trudeau they will challenge the agenda. Premier Walter Weir has said he intends to speak on this before the conference begins dealing with the agenda.

From the provincial briefs so far published, it's obvious that TV viewers are going to witness some sharply-divided opinions on the question of language rights. While Mr. Trudeau has given top priority to having these rights entrenched in the constitution, the Alberta brief has termed this "objectionable and unacceptable."

This would appear to represent a sharp shift from last year when Mr. Pearson guided the conference to a consensus stating that French-speaking Canadians outside Quebec should have the same rights as English-speaking Canadians in Quebec.

For this conference, Mr. Pearson has been accredited as an observer.

Others in the room in that capacity will include Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield, former prime minister John Diefenbaker, Parliamentary Leader David Lewis of the New Democratic Party, and Real Caouette, leader of the Creditiste party.

And there will be many other observers from the provinces.

The only provincial premier not attending will be Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan, recovering from a bout of double pneumonia. Saskatchewan's five-man delegation will be headed by provincial Treasurer D. G. Steuart.

Ontario's six-man delegation will be headed by Premier John Robarts; Quebec's seven-member delegation by Premier Jean - Jacques Bertrand; Manitoba's six-member delegation by Premier Walter Weir, Newfoundland's five-member delegation by Premier Joseph R. Smallwood; Alberta's four-member delegation by Premier Harry Strom, Nova Scotia's three-man delegation by Premier G. I. Smith. New Brunswick's three-member delegation by Premier Louis Robichaud, Prince Edward Islands' three-member delegation by Premier Alex Campbell, and British Columbia's two-member delegation by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

In adidtion to the delegates—all members of cabinet—will be groups of advisers and observers.

They will meet mornings and afternoons, starting with the presentation of provincial and federal briefs and then moivng down the agenda of business. If the present agenda is allowed to stand, it means they will first discuss the objectives of the conferences, then the objectives and basic principles of the constitution, and then they'll tackle the specific issues.

The first of these is official languages—the one causing the most pre-convention controversy. After this they'll discuss fundamental rights, distribution of powers, reforms of existing institutions, regional disparities, constitutional amending procedures and the mechanisms of federal-provincial questions.

The last item is "other questions"—and briefs from the provinces have indicated this could mean anything from provincial boundaries to redefined duties for the Senate.

Even if they work at break-neck speed, there is certain to be a massive carry-over of items to future conferences.

Nixon Wants Parleys Held on Regular Basis

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Federal-provincial conferences should be put on a regular and frequent basis, perhaps meeting quarterly, Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Friday.

Speaking to a dinner before a London meeting of the Liberal caucus, Mr. Nixon said procedural difficulties will hamper federal-provincial talks as long as the conferences are held so infrequently and with such formality.

This sort of "superficial problem" had already arisen around next week's conference in Ottawa because the federal government has given top priority in its agenda to certain items while some provinces have different priorities.

"It seems as if foreign governments were meeting to make a treaty instead of men with common goals working out the continuing business of Canada."

Quebec Teachers Request Mediation

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec teachers have indicated they may be willing to resume deadlocked contract negotiations Wednesday if the government and school boards are willing to grant "special mediation" of the dispute.

The teachers' stand, outlined in a letter to the governments chief negotiator, was announced Friday as the first week of a series of province-wide teachers' rotating strikes ended.

Since the rotating or spot strikes began Monday about 3,000 teachers in 132 schools have stayed away from classes either for a full day or a half day. An estimated 50,000 students have been affected by the walkouts.

Joseph Leblanc, chief negotiator for three teachers' unions involved, said in the letter to Jean Cournoyer, negotiator for the school boards and the government, that talks could reopen if both parties would:

1. Agree on contract clauses to be discussed at the start of negotiations next Wednesday.
2. Be "helped in their negotiations by a special mediator or a mediation committee."

His letter was in reply to one sent earlier by the government representative in which teachers were asked to return to the negotiation table by Wednesday.

Talks broke down in mid-December when the government refused a teacher request for mediation of the lingering dispute over a new contract which has lasted for 18 months.

Two of the three teachers' unions—the 60,000-member Quebec Teachers' Corporation and the 3,500-member Provincial Association of Catholic Teachers—decided on the rotating strikes as a means of protesting the government's refusal to mediate.

The third union, the 8,500-member Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers, has decided against taking part in the strikes.

Mediation was refused on grounds that most issues still unresolved would require amendments to legislation or to the education department budget. Settlement of the issues would therefore require action by the national assembly, not simply by a mediation committee.

The rotating strikes began Monday and gained momentum as the week progressed. Friday's strikes involved the largest number of teachers to date—1,219 teachers in 60 schools who walked out of classes either for the full day or for a half day.

There were 362 teachers on strike Monday, 192 Thursday, 395 Wednesday and 874 Thursday.

Shopping Centre Inquiry in Second Week

Traffic Planning Expert Testifies at OMB Hearing on Plaza

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

An expert on traffic planning today was called by developers of a northend shopping plaza scheme as the Ontario Municipal Board resumed hearings on the controversial project today.

Robert W. Smith, president of Damas and Smith, engineering consultants retained by Belleville on several traffic projects in recent years, was brought before the OMB inquiry at city hall by Cambridge Leaseholds.

Studies undertaken for the city in recent years by the firm include the Dundas Street bridge and North Front Street CN overpass projects.

Mr. Smith was the first new witness called as the hearing entered its second week on the city's application for rezoning of an 18-acre bloc on North Front Street.

Approval of the request by the OMB would open the way for location of the Cambridge project — a $3,000,000 shopping centre.

Still on the stand when the inquiry resumed at 11 a.m. after a weekend adjournment, was market analyst V. P. Boname. For Mr. Boname, first witness called by Cambridge's counsel R. B. Robinson, it was his third day under questioning before the OMB panel.

The consultant's testimony has been the subject of painstaking scrutiny by the Cambridge lawyer and Robert Macaulay, counsel for Oshawa Wholesale and the eastend Belleville Shopping Plaza Merchants' Association, who are opposing the proposed new centre.

The complicated mathematics of Mr. Boname's survey supporting the new centre has led the inquiry through a labyrinth of statistical analysis.

Mr. Boname was on the stand for about an hour this morning as counsel for both sides in the dispute argued the veracity of population statistics in the expert's survey.

Mr. Smith was called to testify immediately after and began his evidence before the lunch-hour recess.

Earlier last week it was reported that today and tomorrow had been set aside by OMB officials for further testimony.

At the weekend adjournment Friday, however, W. H. J. Thompson, chairman of the OMB panel, said Wednesday and Thursday would also be made available.

Mr Macaulay still has to present the case for Oshawa Wholesale and the eastend plaza merchants.

After that the hearing will take any depositions from the general public.

FOR THE SECOND TIME in a month, fire struck the Carl Stapley family Saturday, night, this time taking the life of a two-year-old boy. Firemen, detectives and first aid workers cluster on lawn of Haig Road home of Mrs. Cora Stapley, grandmother of the young victim, where he was visiting with parents when fatal fire erupted.

Boy, 2, Dies in Flash Fire Believed Due Glue Fumes

How long can it go on? I don't know what we've done to deserve it all."

Carl Stapley had grim reasons yesterday for such bleak musing.

In little more than a month fire has moved his family from heartbreak to tragedy.

Saturday night, his two-year-old son, Craig, died when fire swept a Haig Road house. His wife, three other children and his mother received minor burns as they fled the scene.

Early New Year's Day the Stapleys lost all their possessions when fire gutted their home on Highway 2, four miles west of Belleville.

Now moved into a new home on the highway, Carl took his family into Belleville Saturday to visit his mother, Mrs. Cora Stapley.

He was building cupboards for her in the kitchen of her Haig Street home.

Also in the house at the time were his brothers — Reginald, Carman and Dorland and Dorland's two young children.

Mr. Stapley said he had spread contact cement on the cupboards, ready for an arborite top.

After supper, a dishpan of water was placed on the kitchen stove, fueled by propane gas.

As the stove was lit, he believes it ignited the glue fumes from the adjacent stand of cupboards.

Flames swept up the walls and along the adhesive-spread cupboard tops.

"It was just 'snap' — and the whole house was on fire," said Mr. Stapley. "I don't think it was five seconds."

Language Rights Unity Key--PM

Taxes May Be First

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Trudeau took some of the steam out of a threatened opening row at the constitutional conference today by agreeing in advance to discuss taxes before bilingualism if the provinces want it that way.

The conference was expected to open at 10 a.m. with a demand from Manitoba's Premier Walter Weir, backed by other Prairie premiers, to give first priority on the agenda to financial problems of the provinces.

The agenda put forward by Ottawa has official languages and "fundamental rights" ahead of the distribution of taxation and spending powers.

But Mr. Trudeau, interviewed on the CBC television program The Way It Is Sunday night, said agreement could easily be made to spend perhaps half a day on one and half a day on the other.

If the provinces wanted to discuss the fiscal issue first, "that's fine with us if we have a guarantee to discuss both."

Mr. Trudeau has said, however, that Ottawa is prepared to discuss financial matters only in the context of the distribution of powers between the federal and provincial governments under the constitution.

PIERRE TRUDEAU

Who Talks For French?

OTTAWA (CP) — Political leadership in French Canada is at issue in the constitutional conference opening today.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand of Quebec, interim leader of the Union Nationale party, is virtually going on trial within both his party and his province.

The Union Nationale, which is to decide next month whether to hold a leadership convention, is counting on the televised conference for some guidance.

Who will French-speaking viewers see as their leader—Pierre Elliott Trudeau fighting to extend French-language rights across the land or Jean-Jacques Bertrand battling to fortify Quebec with greater powers as "homeland of the French-Canadian nation?"

Trudeau Opens Ottawa Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau opened the federal-provincial constitutional conference today with a firm restatement of his belief that language rights are essential to Canadian unity.

"Our policy of bilingualism has been widely misunderstood," the prime minister said in his opening statement.

"It does not mean that every English-speaking Canadian must learn to speak French any more than it means that every French-speaking Canadian must learn to speak English.

"It means that every Canadian will have access to public education in either official language, and will be free to use either language in dealing with the federal government and other public bodies, in all areas of the country where the size of the minority justifies it.

"Only when this has been achieved will all Canadians, of both languages, feel that the whole of Canada is their country."

Mr. Trudeau said both French-speaking and English-speaking Canadians must enjoy the fullest rights of citizenship. "Wherever they live, they must feel at home."

The federal government had come to recognize language rights as fundamental in Canada. There could be no retreat from that position.

Either language rights would be recognized throughout the country, or mutual suspicion and mistrust would push the country to the point of disintegration. "That is Canada's challenge, and together we must answer it," the prime minister said.

He acknowledged that extension of language rights across Canada could cause technical and financial problems. However, "we are ready to discuss these problems with the provinces, and to consider any proposals for assistance in solving them."

Before Parliament now is the federal government's official languages bill, which would establish bilingual districts where

Robarts Lists 9 Points

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario Premier John Robarts today spelled out a nine-point program for what he called "functional federalism' in Canada.

But before solutions can be found to long-range problems facing the country, he told the federal-provincial constitutional conference, government leaders must create "an atmosphere of political and fiscal stability."

He turned to Prime Minister Trudeau to say:

"If we cannot get a more reasonable division of resources with which to meet our responsibilities, Ontario will have to reduce some of its programs. . . .

"If that happens, you will change the face of this nation far more than you ever will by changes in the constitution."

Mr. Robarts said the tasks of government leaders in what he called "the exciting endeavor" of changing the constitution include:

—The start of co-operation "in a way never done before.' '

Mohawks Chase Blockade-runners

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — An unidentified Canadian couple found their world turned into a motorized Western when they ran a bridge blockade of about 300 Mohawk Indians near here.

The Indians, continuing their protest over Canadian customs duties, blocked the Seaway International bridge Sunday.

The couple drove their automobile through the Mohawks' lines. Three carloads of Indians jumped into cars and gave chase. New York state police were waiting on the American side.

Police confronted the Indians for a tense few minutes while the Canadians went through customs. Then more Indians blocked the couple on the other side of the toll booth.

Police forced that group back and the Canadians took off. The Indians sped behind them. Policemen pursued the pursuers.

Then, when the couple got a clear stretch of highway, they accelerated, leaving the Indians behind in the snow.

NEW YORK (AP) — A coastal storm left up to 16 inches of wind-whipped snow in the Middle Atlantic states and sections of New England today, playing havoc with air and ground transportation. New York City declared a snow emergency.

More than 30 overseas jets headed for New York were diverted to Montreal Sunday.

The Long Island Rail Road was halted Sunday, with a spokesman voicing doubts that any trains might run today.

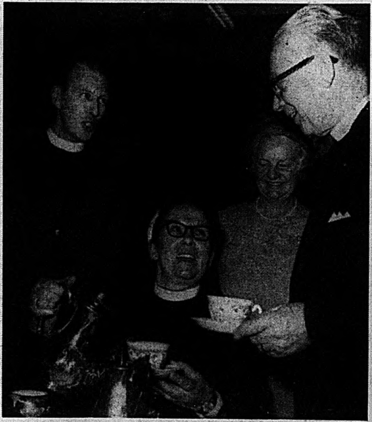
Onions Key To Preventing Thrombosis

NEWCASTLE, England (Reuters) — The common onion may become a dramatic new weapon to fight one of the biggest killer diseases, coronary thrombosis, doctors here report.

A team of doctors at Newcastle University discovered that boiled or fried onions raised the blood's capacity to dissolve away deadly internal clots.

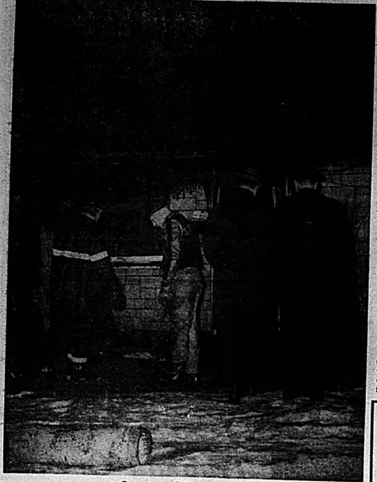
They began research after a chance remark by a patient that in France horses suffering from blood clots in the leg were treated with garlic and onions.

Tests on humans produced what appeared to be a previously unsuspected medical property of the onion. Doctors and drug firms are working to isolate the chemical responsible.



Ecumenical Teatime!

Ecumenism apparently was one of the themes as St. Thomas' Anglican Church opened celebrations of its 150th anniversary Saturday. Helping with parish hall reception, Sister Mary Fleurette, St. Michael's Convent, pours tea for Rev. A. L. Sutherland (left) of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and Belleville Ministerial Association president, and Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, St. Thomas' rector. (See Page 3.)



Scene of Tragic Fire

Boy, 2, Dies in Fire Here

The dozen adults and children were in various parts of the six-room house when the threat erupted.

Mr. Stapley said his mother and eight-year-old daughter Connie grabbed Craig and made for the back door. The elder Mrs. Stapley stumbled and in the confusion the boy apparently got away from them.

The flames apparently spread rapidly through the small insul-brick structure.

A police officer who had driven by the house minutes before and was still in the area said it "went up like a bomb."

Firemen answering the first alarm from the nearby West Dundas Street Station spotted the fire while still en-route and radioed for reinforcements.

As firefighters fought the blaze, the injured were taken to hospital by ambulance and police cruiser.

Treated for first degree burns, mostly to arms and legs, were Mrs. Margaret Stapley, her three children Connie, 8, Charlene, 6 and Tina, 11, and Mrs. Cora Stapley.

Reginald Stapley also was treated for arm cuts, suffered when he smashed a window to allow one of the family to escape.

The fire was rapidly brought under control and shortly after the dead boy's body was found near the front door of the burnt-out building.

Yesterday, inspector Paul McKerracher, of the Ontario Fire Marshal's office was probing the shambles with city fire department investigators.

At home yesterday, Carl Stapley recalled the fire as part of a period of problems which has beset his family since the New Year's Day blaze.

There have been a number of illnesses and he has not worked in his Highway 2 auto shop since that first fire, he said.

Craig was just getting over a recent bout of tonsillitis, he said.

Funeral service was held at 11.30 a.m .today at the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Meantime, Mrs. Cora Stapley, her three sons, a daughter and two grandchildren are homeless and staying with relatives.

Mrs. Effie McCabe, chairman of the district Red Cross disaster committee, today said she was still seeking to house the family.

She said the Red Cross already had provided them with new clothing.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said official investigations into the cause of the blaze were still continuing today.

St. Thomas' Church

Anniversary Celebration Starts

One of the Quinte district's oldest church communities has launched celebrations of its 150th anniversary.

Parishioners of St. Thomas Anglican Church participated in a program of special events Saturday and Sunday marking their congregation's sesquicentennial.

The anniversary was formally opened Saturday afternoon with about 200 parishioners and members of the city clergy and other city churchgoers participating in ceremonies at the parish hall.

Conducted tours of the church and parish memorabilia on display in the hall followed the ceremonies.

The sermon at the Sunday morning service was preached by Ven. W. J. Robinson, rector of St. Thomas in 1953-55.

Next Sunday the parish will be visited by Bishop Kenneth Evans of Kingston.

Keynote for the month-long celebrations was struck Saturday by rector Archdeacon A. S. McConnell.

The sesquicentennial, he told the parishioners at the opening ceremonies, will "implant within us a reasonable assurance that the church will continue.

"And at the same time it will say a word of thanks to the pioneers who built St. Thomas church."

Burkitt Heads Milk Committee

Robert Burkitt of Frankford is the new chairman of the 1969 Hastings County Milk Committee. He replaces George Wood of Ivanhoe who stepped down from the chairmanship but still remains as a county director.

Milk committee vice chairman is George Sutherland of Stirling, while Douglas Harry, RR Sidney township remains as secretary treasurer.

The 200 members attending the annual meeting in Stirling on Friday voted to change the committee constitution slightly.

Formerly 13 of the 15 committee directors came from the dairy oriented nine southern townships, and two from the north end of the county.

At the meeting it was decided that membership should be made up of 14 directors from the south and only one from the north. Ronald Graham of Tyendinaga is the additional member from the south, while Gordon Card remains as the northern representative.

The members also decided to recommend to the next annual meeting that provision be made for directors to serve on a rotational basis. Directors would be elected for a three year term with five directors elected each year.

Lorne Hurd, general manager of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, reviewed developments in the No. 1. milk marketing pool and discussed problems in other divisions of the dairy industry.

A question box on all aspects of the dairy industry concluded the meeting.

Air Cadet Training Includes Survival Mission

TRENTON — For the cadets of 704 squadron at CFB Trenton the old atlage of "getting away from it all" is carried out to the letter.

This past weekend the future servicemen left civilization behind on a survival training mission which took them to Lake Twait some 70 miles north of here. The 23 cadets were headed by Capt. James Bendham and four other officers.

"We left here by bus on Saturday morning and hiked a trail up to the Hunt club," explained Gary Davis, an adult supervisor and member of the Trenton Flying Club.

But this one and a half day excursion was not meant to be a picnic. The boys, ranging in age from 12 to 18 were put on rations and anything they wanted they had to get for themselves.

Their living quarters was a Hunt Club cottage and for the boys this sort of trip was like a dream come true.

"They really had a great time. They liked the idea of making out for themselves," explained Mr. Davis.

Frank Taylor, a conservation officer with the department of lands and forests, visited the group and spoke on water pollution along with lectures on the fish and game act and forest fire prevention.

The most exciting part of the trip for the boys was the ground to air survival exercise. Here they would have to make proper markings to attract a passing plane which would drop rescue supplies to their location.

However the winds were too strong and although the cadets performed their task with excellent marking the the rescue supplies could not be dropped.

But there will be a next time, probably in March, and the boys are looking forward to making the trip again.

Three Killed --Milford

PICTON (Staff) — Three Picton area men were killed Saturday night when a car in which they were driviing struck a tree head-on in Milford.

Dead are Robert Handley, 18, of RR 3, Picton, Wayne Laird, 19, of RR 2, Picton and Donald Glen Allison, 24, of RR 1, Milford.

The car was driven by Robert Handley.

Constable R. L. Boorman, investigating officer, said the accident occurred at 6.06 p.m. Saturday on County Road 9 in Milford.

Police said the car was proceeding north when the driver lost control and struck a tree on the left-hand side of the road, demolishing the car and killing its occupants.

All three persons were pronounced dead at the scene by county coroner C.R. Richmond.

It is not known as yet if an inquest will be held.

Union Protests Merger

Members of local 126 of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers have gone on record as protesting a proposed merger with international or American unions.

The union members made their decision at a meeting held recently here in Belleville.

Although recognizing the value of unification of Canadian unions, it was felt that the CBRT and GW should retain its Canadian identity.

A letter from the local outlining this stand is to be drafted and sent to the national president of the union, W J. Smith.

Several members of local 126 will be delegates to a Belleville and Trenton District Labor Council weekend institute which will be held at Belleville on March 8 and 9.

Four courses, collective bargaining, local union administration, problems of organizing and shop steward training, will be offered at the meeting.

Loyalist Students Receive Results

Only 33 students at Loyalist College failed to achieve satisfactory results in examinations held in mid-January to the extent that they will not be completing the second semester of the program in which they are enrolled, administration officials announced today.

The enrolment at the college at the end of the semester was 320. This includes students in all full-time day programs who will be proceeding in the first and second years of their courses following results of first term examinations.

"In each instance where a student has a low academic average in his first semester, the staff does everything possible in assessing the student's degree of success in meeting the requirements of his studies to give the student the opportunity of completing his first year," President J. K. Bradford said.

"Results of these individual assessments and counselling sessions with students considered together with the student's record of attendance, as well as marks achieved on the mid-term tests, indicate clearly that a small number of students are in courses unsuited to them. This occurs despite the use by the college of the best admission procedures available."

Trenton Police Sign Agreement

TRENTON — The Trenton Police Association signed a new one year labor contract Saturday with the local board of police commissioners calling for a two-stage $800 increase for the members of the police department.

The new contract provides for a $500 increase effective Jan. 1 1969 and a further $300 increase on July 1, 1969.

Chairman of the police commission, Mayor James MacDonald, declined to comment on the wage settlement and will not until town council has been notified.

A first class constable now receives $6.800 but with this new agreement the salary jumps to $7,600.

Robert Thompson Guest Speaker

Robert Thompson, recently back from a trip to Vietnam will be the guest speaker at the Canadian Club meeting Tuesday in Sir Winston Churchill public school at eight p.m.

Mr. Thompson was born in 1914 and was raised at Innesfail, Alberta.

He was educated at Innesfail, Alberta Calgary Normal School, Garbutt's Business College in Calgary, Bob Jones University in Greenville, the University of British Columbia and the Palmer Chiropractic College in Davenport, Iowa.

He also served in the armed forces by organizing and commanding No. 7 Cadet Squadron at 37 SFTS, RAF Penhold where he served for three years.

Mr. Thompson led a nine-member team to Ethiopia in 1943 where he organized the Imperial Ethiopian Air Force Training School. For several years he was principal of the Emperor Haile Selassie Secondary School.

He has travelled in numerous countries such as India, Pakistan, the Middle East, Europe and various African countries on special assignments.

Mr. Thompson was responsible for the organization of the boy scout movement in Ethiopia, serving for three years as national deputy commissioner.

He is also well known for his humanitarian efforts with the tribal peoples of the east African area under the auspices of the Sudan Interior Mission, with which he served in 1952 to 1958.

Mr. Thompson has been involved in Canadian political life since 1935 when he became youth leader in Alberta for the Social Credit party. He was elected national leader of that party in 1961 and has been elected as a member of parliament in 1962, 1963 and 1965. Last year he joined the Federal Conservative Party and was elected in his riding.

He has published several articles in periodicals and magazines and is the author of two books.

The Learning Situation

H. G. Hedges, Toronto, and Mrs. Catherine Michalski, Kingston, led a day-long discussion of the Hall-Dennis report on Ontario education at Sir John A. Macdonald Public School Saturday. About 100 teachers representing all schools in Hastings County heard the two educators outline the philosophy behind the report and its practical applications in the classroom.

Elementary, Secondary Teachers Discuss Implications of the Hall-Dennis Report

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A selected group of Hastings County teachers Saturday took the third step of a four-step plan to study the Hall-Dennis report on aims and objectives in Ontario education.

"For the first time you are taking your destiny in your own hands," Miss Phyllis Beatty, Belleville, told about 100 teachers representing elementary and secondary schools throughout the county.

She was chairman of the day-long sessions, sponsored by the Ontario Teachers' Federation, devoted to study of the report and its practical application in the classroom. Key note speaker was H. G. Hedges, research consultant with the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education and one of the 24 members of the Hall-Dennis commission.

Mrs. Catherine Michalski, a program consultant with the regional office of the department of education in Kingston discussed the reports' application in the classroom and teachers from Centennial Secondary School participated with the speakers in panel discussions during the afternoon.

The teachers' federation has sponsored provincial and regional conferences to discuss the report and later in the spring will conduct a conference for all county teachers to review the Hall-Dennis recommendations.

Mr. Hedges' speech outlined the educational philosophy behind the Hall-Dennis commission findings and the questions the committee members asked themselves in seeking to formulate aims and objectives in teaching.

"We asked ourselves whether education should meet the needs of society or of the individual," the speaker related. "We concluded that the best society is one in which the needs of individuals are met."

"Let's not turn out pupils to be little replicas of me, the teacher. Let's forget the idea of the model student and let every student be the model on which we build."

The commission asked if schools should adjust to society or be flexibile enough to change society.

"Schools should order change in society," Mr. Hedges said. "We should teach our students how to bring about change. Isn't that what we object to in our protesting university students, the means they use to bring about change?"

Teaching should focus on the present, and face the modern question of sexual ethics, drugs, and double standards, the Hall-Dennis report implies.

"A credibility gap exists in schools, where we say one thing to our pupils and practise another,", Mr. Hedges claimed.

As the commission studied the question of punishment in the schools, it discovered "Ontario is one of the most punishing societies on earth."

"We love to put people away," Mr. Hedges told his listeners. "Why, we're not sure. As a lesson to someone else? For revenge? Why, in our schools, do we make so many rules to be broken? To punish our students into conformity with the standards we have set up?"

"Should schools support and develop a class structure?" he asked. "Of course not, we answer. But in our schools slow learners are locked off and leadership is concentrated in the five-year arts and science course stream."

"In a school of my acquaintance, the four-year course students are contemptuously referred to as 'greasers' by the five-year students," Mr. Hedges related. "In turn the four-year students call the five-year group 'serfs' meaning slaves to the establishment, great conformists."

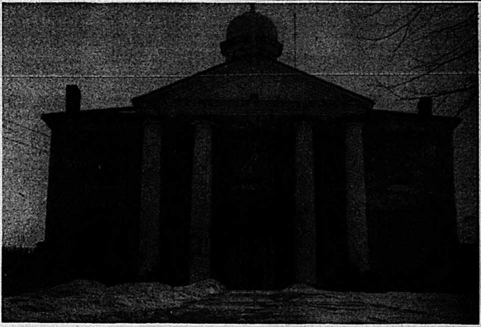
Finally, the commission asked whether learning should be a process of indoctrination or free inquiry.

"We have made progress," Mr. Hedges affirmed. "Instead of telling our pupils how to interpret a poem, we tell them they may interpret it any way they like, as long as they put our ideas down on the exam paper."

"We should teach our children to doubt and dissent and protest," he said. "Within one generation, the value of a school will be judged by how many dissenters it has produced."

The ultimate question teachers must ask themselves, according to Mr. Hedges, is; what is a learner?

"He's not a vessel to be filled," the speaker concluded. "He's a fire waiting to be kindled. We must fan the spark that is there."



Picton's County Court House

Oldest Court House in Picton

PICTON (Staff) — Pictonians may not realize it, but they have claim to the oldest court house still in use in the province. Started in 1832 the court held its first session in 1834, although additions including the gaol were made as late as 1861.

The stone for Greek Revival style buildings was quarried in Kingston by convicts. The cost of the original building was $12,000.

John A. Macdonald, Canada's first Prime Minister, practised law in the court during the short period he practised law in Picton.

Negotiations have been concluded between the Ontario government and Prince Edward County whereby the government will gradually buy the old building.

Since January of 1968 the province has paid for the upkeep of the courthouse and gaol.

Although no deed has yet changed hands in the transaction, agreement has been reached and over the next 10 years the county will be receiving $100,000 to $175,000 in payment for the building.

As the province takes it over it is not known whether any changes will be made in its purpose.

Conflicting reports from county and town officials mention both the possibility of the courthouse remaining the same, as well as a plan to move the gaol to Napanee.

At present, a governor living in the building and seven employees are required to operate the prison.

Drug Problem in City Called 'Serious Emergency'

By DONALD MacKENZIE
Staff Reporter

Two arrests for possession of drugs in Belleville over the weekend has brought into focus what local police authorities as well as one researcher term a "serious emergency."

Royal Canadian Mounted Police arrested a juvenile (under 16 years old) outside the city on Friday afternoon and Saturday night city police arrested a 16 year old West Moira St. youth for illegal possession of hashish. The youth was arrested at a Centennial High School dance.

An RCMP spokesman in Belleville said that there seems to have been an increase in drug activity in the area over the past three weeks.

"It was quiet for a while but it's starting to pick up right now — it looks as if it might be going to bust wide open."

The two weekend arrests brings the 1969 drug arrest total to three. During 1968 there were five charges laid by officials and three convictions registered.

RCMP officials are now investigating at least 75 names of city people who they suspect of having possession of narcotics for either personal use or sale.

In Kingston a researcher for the addiction studies division at the Ontario Hospital feels that not only is the situation serious but that "it is highly organized and spreading."

Michael Mahoney, who has written articles and appeared on television discussing drugs, said this morning that "the feedback we are getting seems to indicate a highly organized ring operating through schools and youth groups.

"They start on younger persons, get them pyschologically dependant on the drugs, and then use them as agents for the sale of narcotics.

"Take Belleville for instance, it is right on the mainline from Toronto to Montreal . . . an ideal place for a dropoff market for the sale of drugs."

"In Kingston we have a problem because we're close to penal institutes, the United States border and a college community."

RCMP officers in Belleville agree with Mr. Mahoney that the organized 'mainline' theory most probably has merit.

"We have heard rumors," said a spokesman, "that drugs in the area are organized and Belleville is definitely an ideal location to stop off and sell."

"It's definitely getting much worse," continued the officer.

"Just take a look at the record for the past three weeks. I really hate to think what it's going to be like during the summer."

Police officials in the area indicate they are tightening their guard on the lookout for drugs. Special crime prevention committees have been formed through United Community Services and the Belleville Ministerial Association to educate youths to the dangers of drug usage, according to police chief Douglas Crosbie.

Mr. Mahoney mentioned that many of the drugs — marijuana and hashish — were being adulterated with stronger narcotics "so that users are much more inclined to get hooked."

This again was backed up by RCMP who said they have been told by users that some marijuana and hashish sold in the area has been cut with opium.

Opium is the base for heroin . . . the most addictive and destructive drug known.

Homeowners Group Expects Decision

TRENTON — Seventeen homeowners in Pine Acres sub-division who asked for a 25 per cent reduction in their assessments due to the detrimental effect of a stock-car raceway nearby will be getting their answer within the next three days, according to Read Budge, who headed a recent court of revision.

Mr. Budge listened to the complaints registered by the 17 Murray Township residents and although he indicated that he has made a decision he would not tell exactly what it was.

According to Mr. Budge he feels that giving an answer before the residents have received their letters would be unfair to them.

He would make no further comment on the matter, but said that he expects the report to be in the mail by tomorrow.

"I kept it for a few days to see if there were any last minute changes I wanted to make."

But he said there weren't any and the report has gone out to be typed and then mailed

Seven Die In Blaze

HALIFAX (CP) —A mother and her seven children died early today when fire destroyed their single-storey frame home in suburban Spryfield.

Dead are Mrs. William G. Drysdale, 29, and children William, Jr., Richard, Gary, Perry, John, Ella Mae and Donna. The children ranged in age from infancy to nine years.

Group Meets Tonight

"The Community and the School" — that's the title of the address Douglas W. Balmer will be giving at the annual meeting of the Canadian Mental Health Association tonight at Education Hall at Belleville General Hospital. It begins at 7.30 p m.

As principal at the Duke of York School in Toronto Mr. Balmer has made his work known as an excellent example of what can be done to make the focus of a school relate closely and meaningfully to the community which is the environment of the pupils.

Mr. Balmer has an intense interest in the effect of the community on mental health of children and will be majoring on this in his address.

He has had much experience dealing with the problems of inner-city children and his varied experience and training in the field of education as well as his concerns regarding mental health will make his address one of interest to all who attend," said Bert Messecar, public relations official for the association.

City at Crossroads

Belleville is standing at another economic crossroads as the Ontario Municipal Board continues its hearing into the North Front Street shopping plaza issue.

While there is strong support for the project there are other interests in the city, both commercial and private, which are opposed to it.

In the light of such differences it is wise that the issues are made the subject of arbitration, as is the case here.

One of the principal questions is whether the plaza project is premature, in the light of another major promotion the city is preparing to undertake — downtown re-development. Another is, will it have an adverse effect on the city's core and main shopping area of Front Street?

Many factors and interests are involved, but in terms of the greatest good for the greatest number, and in terms of the kind of progress being made in other communities of the same size in Ontario, a shopping plaza in the North Front Street area would not appear to be out of place.

By 1981 Belleville is expected to have a population of almost 52,000, and a trading area populace of 116,000. Clearly, such a population cannot be supported by Belleville's present confines or by existing facilities.

Ideally, by 1981, Belleville should have not only a new plaza, not to mention more homes, stores, and improved road and bridge communications . . . it should also have its redevelopment plan well under way, if not actually completed.

Belleville can no more continue to live under contemporary conditions than it can expect to make progress by preserving the status quo. Construction of a new plaza, as well as downtown revitalization, are the kind of economic tonics Belleville needs.

Once commenced, other benefits will follow. Not least there will be greatly enhanced opportunities for young people, who now leave the city in droves to seek their fortune elsewhere. And who can blame them? If we want to move with the times, let us create the necessary conditions. These will not be accomplished by simply standing still and blocking any effort to widen the community's economic base.

Taken for Granted

Modern man takes most things for granted. Certainly we take our material benefits for granted, all the goods and services that make life much smoother than in years gone by.

Only when we are deprived of such services do we realize just how essential they are. Take the gas pipeline explosion in Belleville some weeks ago. With gas cut off well into the night, and the temperature outside typically wintry, many householders spent chilly hours until service was restored.

Another instance was the vast blackout that occurred throughout New York and the rest of the eastern United States a few years ago.

Most of the time, though, these utilities work without a hitch. Take communications for example, and the presence in Vancouver recently of Transport Minister Hellyer. Visiting the West coast for a meeting of the Canadian housebuilders' convention, Mr. Hellyer dismissed reports that he had resigned his portfolio. "There's nothing to it — it's ridiculous," he said.

The report had come a short time earlier at question time in the House of Commons in Ottawa, when a conservative member asked the prime minister whether he had received Mr. Hellyer's resignation. Mr. Hellyer, out on the coast, apperently was slightly more ahead of things with his denial than was Mr. Trudeau who, playing it safe, said he would check with his office after the question period.

The miracle of course is that through communications, Mr. Hellyer in Vancouver learned almost instantaneously of his rumored resignation, and was able to deny it, almost as soon as it was brought up in the House

Togetherness

A newspaper for women only. That's "Carousel," a twice-a-week tabloid-size production which has been circulating in the United States since November. Publisher Lucy Ames claims Carousel is the only one in the world directed totally to the needs and interests of women. In her opening editorial she said the tabloid would "bring all the scattered members of the feminine family back on the togetherness trail, linking city and suburb, and putting our readers into immediate touch with what is happening in the women's world." Something else that makes this publication unique . . . and business manager Paul Ames, the publisher's husband, expressed it: "There is no crime, sex or dirty politics."

A Choice for Young Canadians

Bilingualism Out—And Marriage Counselling In?

Editor,

The Intelligencer.

The occasion of the imminent implementation of some portion of the conclusions of the Bi-Bi Commission (which certainly must be good because they cost enough), in the matter of the pending Federal statute concerning enforcement of bilingualism throughout Canada impels me once more into print.

As one who grew up in Ottawa, numbering among my good friends many French-speaking people, and who took first class honors in the French language in high school and further was exposed to some at University, I am an excellent example of Ontario's educational efforts at French. On one occasion in Marseilles at a restaurant, having indicated in my best Ontario French my gustatorial requirements to the proprietor, and being accompanied by another officer at the time, he promptly came back with two girls!

In other words, it is hopeless to try to teach any of us French unless we live in daily contact with the language.

Hence it appears to me that the occasion of the introduction of this Federal statute represents a prime opportunity for people of Ontario who have no desire to insult their good French friends, to also demand some fairness in the matter of the education of their children in areas where French is not heard from year to year, e.g. the glorious County of Hastings.

No doubt somewhere in their millions of pages of testimony the Bi-Bi Commission has statistics of the number of nervous breakdowns of both students and teachers in Hastings County resulting from their heroic efforts to please their French Canadian compatriots by endeavoring to understand and learn their language in high school, knowing as they do full well that failure would mean they would never go to University and would be doomed forever to going immediately after high school into private enterprise (and thereby saving three to five wasted years when they could be making money).

In any event, through the smoke, haze and mist of the bilingualism discussions as reported in the daily newspapers over the years, there would appear to emerge a principle that Canada is to be once more subdivided, this time on the basis of the number of French words and English words (including swear words) heard on the streets of all communities by accurate account by the Bi-Bi Commission.

Where more people swear in French than in English, then we will have bilingualism, and where we are so handicapped as to be able to swear in only one language then we are to be designated as an English-speaking area.

Who can doubt that this is the doom of the Hastings and Quinte area?

Presuming therefore — and if we are wrong there is going to be a revolution — that this is going to be an English speaking area — should we not examine the results which logically flow from this status and take the necessary steps legislative and otherwise?

Some of these which occur to the writer (no doubt many more will occur to your readers) are as follows:

1. Immediate reduction in hypertension of businessmen resulting from lack of confusion from forms from the Federal Government which are one line in English and one line in French (so far as I know):
2. Vast savings of money in not having to put up duplicate signs in French on Federal buildings;
3. Giving our high school students some reasonable chance of avoiding the risk of a nervous breakdown by making French only an optional subject;
4. In place of French, putting in some equally useful subject such as "marriage.'

The best that any Quinte area student can hope for from a French course is that he can check the English against the French versions of federal forms he has to fill out several times a week, and occasionally to check the advertising on the cornflakes boxes.

Although this is a pleasant diversion, there are some who consider that the time so painfully devoted to acquiring these valuable skills can be better devoted to a subject in which 90 per cent of the children are necessarily going to become involved and a subject for which they have no formal official education.

Education for marriage at present is sponsored by Hugh Hefner, Hollywood and a few of the boys at the back of the pool hall.

Some sober and responsible citizens feel that interesting as this type of education is, there are some other and more valuable and broader aspects to marriage which might be brought to the attention of the adolescent mind such as the following:

(a) Marriage financing — most youngsters buy the ring on credit, buy the furniture on credit and finance a new car and anywhere between eight (and sometimes even three months) the wife can no longer get through the doors of her place of employment and their income is cut in half and their friendly finance man takes a hand in their marriage;

(b) Obviously a couple should have some money in the bank and should know what a budget is and should know how much it costs to live and to save, and the cost of financing as against cash purchasing, etc., etc., and the cost of having one child, two children, etc., etc., and some idea also of the cost of educating children at University etc.;

(c) Sex — (All Mr. Ross's views on this have been deleted by the editor) — however it is apparent from Mr. Ross's letter that 90 per cent of the people who marry are nincompoops in this department and learn only painfully and sometimes very expensively and that their failures in this area, according to actual accounts (not by the Bi-Bi Commission) — account for 50 per cent of the marriage breakdowns;

(d) Marriage compatibility— The Hollywood course in marriage — ably backed up by television advertising — indicates that the real and sole basis of marriage is flipping around the country in the moonlight in a new hotrod.

It is difficult for the young to actually envisage the sheer horror of even a picnic on a hot day with six kids fighting in the back seat, one of whom needs changing, while dad worries about the finance payment on the car and mother is waiting for father to blow up!

I could go on further with a completely detailed course on marriage but it would be too discouraging and would seriously affect the birth rate in Canada.

However, your humble correspondent respectfully submits that a course entitled "How To Be Happy Though Married" (and seriously this is what it should be entitled because a sense of humor is the first prerequisite to marriage) — would serve a lot better purpose than trying to stuff French into a bunch of kids in Hastings County — and this is our best and probably last opportunity to strike a blow by way of counter offensive through our provincial legislature while this federal statute is being discussed at Ottawa.

Any child of wealthy parents, or even of modest means, can go to Quebec in the summertime and live with a French family and learn French the right way or take it up in later years.

Before writing this I very carefully took signed statements from all of my French-speaking friends. They assured me that my suggestions are eminently correct, and with typical French politesse they reluctantly indicated to me the vast relief they would anticipate if they did not have to expose their nerves to the sound of the massacre of their beloved language as it is pronounced by anyone who goes to school in this area.

I am all for teaching a great many useless subjects solely to discipline the mind, but the teaching of French in Hastings County should almost be the subject of stern measures by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals!

Mr. Trudeau's Escape Hatch Baffles the Opposition

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — Has Prime Minister Trudeau, by contending he is encouraging debate on controversial topics, discovered the greatest political escape hatch since the invention of "no comment?"

Perhaps this wasn't the intention, but the possibilities are clearly without limit.

The classic example is the continuing public debate between two cabinet ministers who in different parts of the country have been voicing diametrially opposed views on Canada's membership in NATO.

Postmaster-General Eric Kierans has been saying Canada should get out of the alliance, while Defence Miniser Cadieux has been saying she should stay in—both in most emphatic terms.

Had this seeming absence of cabinet solidarity occurred under former prime ministers Pearson and Diefenbaker there would have been a chorus of calls for ministerial resignations, and the daily Commons question period would likely have been an uproar.

But in this case, there was little reaction, when Mr. Trudeau said: "Both ministers are, as we said much earlier in this Parliament, asking the Canadian people to reflect on these matters."

In other words, the subject was merely being opened for debate.

On the grounds that he is opening a subject for debate, there is presumably nothing to prevent Mr. Trudeau from saying, for instance, "We should abolish the Monarchy."

If there was no heated reaction he could let his statement stand; if there was an unholy roar of disapproval, he could easily say he was opening the subject for debate.

Former prime ministers must marvel at the ease with which Mr. Trudeau can smooth ruffled feathers with his explanation that he is opening debates.

When Mr. Pearson, during the 1965 election campaign, hopped into hot water by saying failure to elect a majority government would mean another general election, he and his aides spent weeks qualifying the statement.

There are still many Liberal politicians who feel the statement was construed as a threat and that it may have cost them that elusive majority.

Just think how incidental the incident would have been had Mr. Pearson been able to say, "I was just opening debate on the virtues of stable government."

Perhaps it won't be long before the most common question facing Mr. Trudeau at news conferences will be: "Is this a debate-opening remark, or a firm statement of policy."

And when this happens, we might be back where we started. "No comment."

Parents and Children

Brantford Expositor

A group of parents was told Saturday that this is an age of change in which there is open rebellion from children, and a breakkdown in communication between parents and offspring that is a problem everywhere.

These points and many others were made during a workshop on "communicating to the teenager" at the "Faith at Work" Conference held at the Holiday Inn.

The conference attracted more than 300 delegates, nearly half of them were teenagers. It was sponsored by the Brant FAW conference committee with the support of the Brantford Ministerial Association.

Eric Bergenstein, a Fonthill electrical engineer, and his wife Sybil, led the workshop dealing with teen-agers. They are the parents of five children, four of whom are teenagers.

Mrs. Bergenstein questioned whether today's children are "anymore rebellious than we were?"

"Maybe it is just that they speak out today, and don't keep it in and to themselves as we did when we were their age," she said. And I don't know that it's an unhealthy situation, so much as is how we react as parents against this rebellion."

She said that parents "too often feed their own egoes" by mistakenly trying to mold their childrn in their own image, when children, in fact, must develop their own individual characters and personalities.

"The parent must learn to relax and enjoy the child for what he is — not for what we'd like him to be, or think he should be, she said.

Lost Art of Penmanship

Hamilton Spectator

No wonder there are reports from all over the continent of doctors' prescriptions being forged. The way many doctors write, anyone or anything could easily duplicate their awful scrawls.

One thing medical schools do not teach is penmanship. They should. Young doctors should be told over and over again (and made to write it out on the blackboard 500 times if necessary) that good doctors must write clearly. None of this Bradford looking like Mfuuud.

Nova Scotia

Can Act Now on Top Problems, Language, Regional Disparities

OTTAWA (CP) — The two most important and most divisive Canadian problems do not have to wait for agreement on a new constitution, Premier G. I. Smith of Nova Scotia told the federal-provincial constitutional conference today.

The two were language rights and regional disparities.

"In the field of language and culture," he said, "in Nova Scotia we have already taken some significant steps."

The provincial legislature had recognized both French and English as official languages in debate. Provided the federal government gave financial help, provision would be made for school instruction in French where a sufficient number of French-speaking people want it.

School boards were authorized to have selected courses or courses of selected grades taught in French where interest in it is expressed. Improved facilities would be provided for teaching French as a second language.

The provincial government would establish a central translation service to handle letters in French and would provide French-language instruction for civil servants who want it.

"Our position is that there should be provided in Nova Scotia for its French-speaking people the same rights and opportunities as are afforded to the English-speaking minority in the province of Quebec."

Premier Smith put in another plea that Ottawa pick up the bill for a bilingual and bicultural Canada. It is a national problem, he said, and the provinces are already overburdened with zooming education costs.

He asked for "the most meaningful consultation" between the federal and provincial governments before bilingual districts are designated. What might be a minor matter for Ottawa involving only a half-dozen public servants could involve a large number of provincial civil servants.

"The fact is," he said, "that at the present time in most of the provinces public servants with competency in both languages are not available."

Turning to regional disparities in economic development and public services, Premier Smith said this problem should be dealt with as urgently as the matter of language rights and culture.

Nova Scotia did not seek subsidization for unproductive economic development. It sought help in developing a stable economy of greater growth. It believed this could be done without slowing down growth in other regions.

There must be a strong central government in Canada but the provinces must be given fiscal powers sufficient to handle such burdensome responsibilities as welfare, health, education and highways, which were only minor concerns in 1876.

PEI:

'Propositions' Not Enough

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island suggested today that the federal-provincial constitutional conference is not likely to be very productive because it has no definite agreed recommendations to deal with.

He referred to the scores of "propositions" for constitutional changes submitted to the conference's continuing committee of officials by provincial and federal governments. There were so many and they were so conflicting that he had not had time to study them in detail.

"Once the continuing committee makes recommendations," he said, "I shall devote the time required to consider specific constitutional reforms."

Jumbo Jet Trip 'Dream'

EVERETT, Wash. (AP) — The huge Boeing 747 jet airliner designed to carry up to 490 passengers flew for the first time Sunday and but for a single flaw its pilot called the test trip "absolutely ideal."

"It's a pilot's dream. . . . It flies like an arrow," said pilot Jack Waddell, 45, as he stepped from the cockpit of the $20,000,000, 355-ton prototype of the new fleet of superjets.

The flaw—an improperly aligned wing flap—forced the jet to return to Paine Field here after one hour 15 minutes of a scheduled 2½-hour flight. The trouble was discovered 34 minutes into the flight.

The faulty flap—termed later by Waddell as a "minor discrepancy"—was discovered by Flight Engineer Jess Wallick at about the same time Waddell radioed feeling "a bump" during tests of the wing control system.

Waddell said he hopes the second flight can be held within a day or two.

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Service station attendant Glen Keye was having a routine day Saturday until he lifted the trunk of a small foreign car to fill the tank and found himself looking at a snarling wolf.

After slamming the hood down he yelled to the car driver, Robert Campbell of Walkerton: "There's a wolf in your tank."

Mr. Campbell explained he struck the wolf as it crossed the highway and thinking the animal was dead, tossed it into his trunk.

Canadians Want More Income Than They Can Actually Earn

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadians are demanding higher levels of income than they can really earn, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today.

"Our greatest man-made problem in Canada today is inflation," he said in an address at the opening of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association annual convention.

"Prices and wages are rising faster than productivity. Canadians generally are demanding levels of income that they cannot really earn. Result . . . the steady debasement of the Canadian dollar. Our financial house is being undermined by exaggerated claims on the part of all of us—all of us as consumers, in management and as labor."

One way to halt inflation was to reduce the protection which Canadian labor and industry enjoy against foreign competition.

Mr. Davis noted that under the Kennedy round of tariff cuts, the U.S. duty on Canadian lumber was eliminated and the duty on other wood products considerably reduced.

Mr. Davis said freer trade will work in the direction of specialization.

Language Rights Unity Key

federal services would be available in both official languages. Action on the bill has been delayed pending the outcome of the current conference.

Mr. Trudeau noted that several provinces have adopted measures to extend language rights since last February's federal-provincial conference. The all-important matter of education comes under provincial jurisdiction.

"Now that we have taken the first steps in this direction, we cannot afford to hesitate or fall back," Mr. Trudeau said. "Language rights are too important to too many Canadians to be left without adequate protection in our law.

"We must place them beyond question and beyond attack by guaranteeing them to all Canadians in our revised constitution."

The prime minister said he knows that constitutional reform and language rights aren't the only problems demanding the government's attention.

The country had many economic and social problems crying for solution, and it had been suggested that the conference should deal with them and set constitutional issues aside for the present. But the time had passed for such stop-gap action. The underlying problems of Canadian nationhood had to be examined.

"Canadian unity, and federal-provincial co-operation, have been called in question too often for us to think that another temporary expedient will do. We must discuss the fundamental problems — the constitution, which defines the framework of Canadian unity and sets the rules of federal-provincial co-operation."

Mr. Trudeau made a strong plea on behalf of the bill of rights that he wants to insert in a revamped Canadian constitution. There was no question of the federal government encroaching upon provincial jurisdiction, "since it is not a matter of transferring legislative powers from one government to another.'"

"It is only necessary that we be in agreement to restrict the power of all governments, so that they will no longer be free to prevent the exercise of individual rights which we would all agree to guarantee."

On the question of regional economic disparity, which some of the provinces are anxious to discuss, Mr. Trudeau said he, too, wants "to find more equitable ways of distributing opportunities throughout Canada, and we welcome a full discussion of the best constitutional means of achieving this goal."

Waves Shatter Oil Slick

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — As hundreds of men began cleaning slimy oil from 30 miles of Southern California beaches Sunday, a vast oil slick floating off shore was being broken up by wind and waves.

Indications were that existing light wind would not push the slick out of the Santa Barbara Channel. United States Coast Guard officials said the wind was spreading the oil and breaking it into patches.

City councilmen from 14 Los Angeles-area beach cities met Sunday in emergency session, mapping strategy against what is left of about 231,000 gallons of oil that leaked for 12 days from an offshore well until it was capped Saturday. They voted to ask the state and federal governments to send troops if the oil reaches Los Angeles, and to ask for compensation for preparations already made.

CORNWALL (CP) — Part-time inventor Henry Lalonde, 29, of St. Andrew's West, Ont., says he has invented a device that can remove the oil slick plaguing California beaches.

Mr. Lalonde said Saturday he has sent a telegram to the state's governor, Ronald Reagan, offering to fly to California and supervise construction of similar devices.

Robarts Lists 9 Points

—Adoption of the best kind of "functional federalism" for the present and the future.

—Rejection of "political one-upmanship" in inter-governmental relations.

—Development of a firm and equal partnership between governments.

—Protection of the rights of Canada's two official languages.

—Recognition of the wealth of Canada's many cultures.

—The achievement of a "vital and delicate balance" between national and regional interests.

—Discovery of the means to assess the separate problems of the component parts of the country.

—Preservation of the key distinction between centralism and federalism

The Ontario premier took pains to help dissipate any air of crisis that might have blown up around the conference.

Mr. Robarts agreed with Mr. Trudeau's pre-conference assessment that this meeting is "only an exchange of views," not a "confrontation."

"We needn't allow ourselves to be stampeded into thinking that we are in a great period of crisis, because we will find our way through our difficulties, as we have in the past."

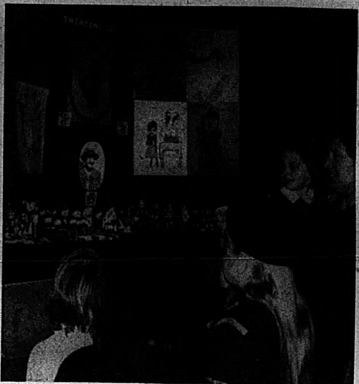
Mrs. J. Brennan welcomed nearly a thousand guests to the annual Guide and Brownie tea held on Saturday at St. Michael's auditorium. Helping to escort the visitors to the tables were Mrs. J. C. Miles and Mrs. E. Donohoe, right.



Prize winning display made by Brownie Pack 17 was proudly viewed by Mrs. T. Ralph, Brown Owl of the Pack, with small daughter, and some of the Brownies who dressed the dolls in Guide uniforms of other countries for the exhibit.

Annual Guide and Brownie Tea Draws Capacity Crowd

A capacity crowd attended the annual Girl Guide and Brownie tea held Saturday afternoon in St. Michael's Academy auditorium.

The tea convened this year by Mrs. J. P. Brennan assisted by Mrs. F. M. Farrell, and Division Social Convener Mrs. T. A. Collyer, was changed from the usual Wednesday afternoon in order that mothers who work during the week might attend, and this proved most successful.

This is the only money making project (other than cookie sales) for the Belleville Division and the proceeds from this event go to assist in camping, training of leaders, assisting girls in long distance trips and helping to buy uniforms for new Guide leaders, and held in February each year as this is the birthday month of the founders Lord and Lady Baden Powell. Mr. J. McGillivery assistant to Monsignor J. P. Sullivan officially opened the event.

A display of Guide work in the form of large posters was the highlight attraction of this year's tea. These were made by the various packs and companies and competition for prizes was keen. Posters depicted camping, badge work, international aspects of Guiding and other interesting phases of the work.

Receiving guests at the door of the hall which was in keepping with the Guide colors of blue and gold were Mrs. T. R. Colden, Belleville Division Commissioner assisted by Mrs. D. Stewart, Mrs. M. Chartrand, Mrs. F. Donohoe, Mrs. J. Miles and Mrs. N. F. Crone. Taking tickets here was treasurer Mrs. W. R. C. Munroe.

The tea room divided from the other section of the hall by a huge white trellis was most attractive in its decor, carrying out the blue and gold color scheme with the tea table centred with an artistic driftwood centrepiece bearing blue and white flowers. Hostesses for the tea room were Mrs. J. Miles, District Commissioner for East District; Mrs. F. Donohoe, District Commissioner Central; Mrs. D. Stewart, District Commissioner North East; Mrs. N. F. Crone District Commissioner North West; and Mrs. M. Chartrand, South.

Pouring tea at various intervals throughout the afternoon were Mrs. J. Thicke, Mrs. J. Whalen, CWL President; Mrs. A. Welch and Mrs. J. Weiberdink, representing the Boy Scouts; Mrs. J. Kuntze, Mrs. M. Haig, Mrs. R. Arnott, Mrs. L. McBrien, Mrs. D. Leslie, Mrs. G. Salisbury, Mrs. A. Bannon and Mrs. B. Waters.

The bake table laden with a bountiful supply of goodies was a hive of activity and conveners were from the various districts and included Mrs. R. N. Pringle and Mrs. G. Rice for the North East district; Mrs. T. Nagode, South East district; Mrs. B. Waters and Mrs. Don Fish Central Belleville West, and for North West district, Mrs. Blute.

Tending to various kitchen duties were Mrs. Pope and Mrs. J. Farrell.

Judges for the poster and display contest for Brownies and Guides were Mrs. M. Haig, Mrs. K. Harnden, and Mrs. R. Arnott and winner of the posters was Brownies Pack 9, with honorable mention going to Pack 12 Brownies and to Guides Company 3. For the display, Brownies Pack 17 was the winner and Guides Company 12.

Kingston Diocesan Committee Meets at Nicholson College

MARMORA — A meeting of the Kingston Diocesan committee of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace was held Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 5 in the library of Nicholson Catholic College, Belleville, with chairman, Mrs. Herbert Brown, presiding.

Members of the committee present for this meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown, Belleville; Mrs. Fergus O'Connor, Kingston; Mr. Frank Domenico, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Munroe, Foxboro, and Mrs. Breen O'Connor, Marmora.

Tom Johnston of Montreal was present to bring the committee up to date on the accomplishments of the CCODP and also to explain the Share-Lent 1969 program to be undertaken in all parishes.

This second annual "Share-Lent" campaign against poverty in the world will cover the period from Ash Wednesday to the Fourth Sunday of Lent (March 16). During this period an intensive program of education will be carried out, and throughout the campaign an attempt will be made to make the faithful more conscious of the problems of hunger and of their responsibility both as individuals and as a community towards the poor of the world.

To launch its campaign and to encourage the faithful to enter more fully into the spirit of "Share-Lent", Development and Peace suggest that each parish in the country organize an "Evening for the Poor of the World", on Ash Wednesday if possible.

Ray Gosling of Oxfam in Toronto also attended this meeting and spoke to the members of the "Miles for Millions" program. In his remarks he stated, "Thirteen organizations are working together to persuade Canadians in every city and town to hold walks this year.

The Diocesan committee decided to proceed immediately with plans for the proposed "poverty dinners" in the various parishes. These will be followed by a series of slides shown by Mr. Munroe, and a short talk on the CCODP program.

Baptist Church Congregational Meet

The annual meeting and congregational dinner of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was held recently in the Sunday School auditorium. A turkey dinner was served under the supervision of the Dorcas Society.

Rev. Gordon Woodcock, chairman, opened the meeting with a devotional period. The names of those members who had passed away during the year were read in quiet tribute.

A "Pictorial Review" covering the activities held in the church in 1968 was shown by Mr. T. Stovell and a panel discussing the aspects of Christian Education Work comprised of Mr. R. Gallupe, Miss Mary Wilson, Mr. Grant Woodcock and Mr. T. Stovell.

Reports were presented in the form of a question and answer session by the congregation.

The church treasurer, R. L. Orr, presented the financial statement for 1968 which indicated a most successful year, showing an oversubscription to both the general and missionary budgets. The total envelope offerings amounted to $24,834.74 including $5,522.27 missionary givings.

The budget for 1969 was presented by the chairman of the stewardship and finance committee, E. A. Orr who challenged more members to contribute regularly through the envelope system. Mr. Orr thanked the members for their splendid response in exceeding the 1968 budget.

An extensive renovation program, outlined by W. Hales, chairman of the renovation committee, was approved by the members

The following officers were elected for the year 1969: deacons, A. Berry, W. Hales, R. Turner, J. Blackburn M. Lush, G. Parker, R. Burr, R. Gallupe, T. Stovell, W. Dempsey, Dr. E. Naylor, M. The appreciation of the church members was expressed by the chairman of deacons, W. Hales, to Mr. Woodcock for his devoted leadership during the past year.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "I don't see why you want to go away to school when you have a perfectly good college right here in town. You could live more comfortably at home. After all, you're all we have, and you'll be homesick, too."

Father: "I'm glad you decided on State College. I'm sure you'll like it there. Have you sent in your request for a dormitory room? I've heard the ones in West Hall are bigger."

It's natural for the young to want independence, and by college age, parents should be ready to let them go. A boy may mature and grow in a way that he cannot in the shelter of his home, and he should not be made to feel guilty for doing so.

Communications Management
February 20
Effective communication is a basic necessity in management. This seminar of 10 sessions includes practice in both methods and use of management communication techniques.

Effective Supervision
February 18
Industrial supervision, its role in increasing productivity through attitudes and employment of technology, as they are encountered by supervisors and foremen provides the main purpose of this course. Other features are identification of the supervisor's function, improving motivation of staff and reduction of costs through loss of waste and material.

Human Relations
February 19
Dealing with case methods involving a cross section of personnel relationships as they are encountered in everyday industrial and commercial management is the basis of this seminar. The maximum achievement of results through everyone associated with an enterprise working as a team is the basic theme.

Involvement Necessary in Starting Youth Project

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am trying to form a youth group (ages six to 15) and I need some advice. The community in which I live is rather small and it is extremely hard to get people interested in these things.

However, I have managed to get several of the youth interested. I hope to divide them as follows: (1) six to eight years, (2) nine to 12 years, and (3) 13 to 15 years. As you can see, it will involve a tremendous amount of work. But it will be worth it, if we can get the young people in this area doing something which would not only be fun, but also stimulating profitable experience.

Now, I would like to know how to get this organized. How do I get the young people interested and how do I keep them interested? What projects could we do? Who would help? — Eager To Get Started.

Dear Eager: Is this your own bright idea or is there a crying need for what you are dreaming up? You can't just superimpose an organization on people; community workers have discovered this to their sorrow, more than once.

To get something going, you first talk it over; find out what the need is from the folk who are likely to know. Then you work, not as single person, but as a committee, or concerned group, until something is rolling.

Involvement is the thing — involvement right from the beginning, of the people who want the project. Otherwise, your dream becomes a nightmare and falls flat on its face.

• • •

Dear Doris: Is it proper for a 12-year-old boy to stay outside playing after dark, up to 9 or 10 o'clock?

I am looking forward to your vision because we are not able to come to an agreement. — Baffled.

Dear Baffled: Not if you go by me. It's one thing to let a 12-year-old attend Boy Scouts by himself, or do a necessary errand after dark, or visit a friend.

But to play outside after dark, or stand around on street corners — no. And the rule you make about it ought to be heartily endorsed by any other adult who considers himself responsible for the boy's well-being.

• • •

Confidential to Outdoor Girl: If you can see yourself marching down a church aisle in a white leatherette pant suit and carrying daffodils, why stop short of a tam to match? And why on earth did you break down and let the bridesmaids go traditional to the extent of wearing net veils with their mint-green paisley culottes?

There are a few far-out fashions featuring pant suits for brides, but the material is far more feminine than leatherette — like lace, or satin, or Swiss embroidery. And the headgear, usually a helmet or bonnet, is in the same material.

Unless the groom turns and runs when he sees you, the wedding will be legal whatever you wear. But it is a rare fellow who doesn't want his bride to look feminine, and dressed up.

THE LATEST IN PANT OUTFITS — We may be living in the year of the pants — the year in which New York designers bring concerted pressure to bear to push pants for fashionable ladies. This suit by Originala features a sleeveless coat with white top and pants. (CP Photo)

Longer Jacket Makes Pant Suit Acceptable

NEW YORK (CP) — The spring of 1969 may well become as famous a fashion date as 1947, the year Christian Dior dropped the hemline and the whole feminine world fell into line. This time it's the year of the pants.

Practically all New York designers are bringing concerted pressure to bear in this line. Some have reservations and decree pants-suits for at-home or informal parties but not for street wear. But many feature them for outdoors wear as well. Consequently we can expect to see more and more women wearing pants.

Actually, the pants explosion is due largely to the fact that designers have introduced the one thing that makes pants acceptable to the majority of women. This is woman's worst enemy — her hips.

the longer jacket, tunic or short coat, which cover hips.

Another reason for feminine weakening in favor of pants is the wide choice of styles. Fashion expert Eleanor Lambert pinpointed them for the fashion press at the spring collections. With pants you can wear a tunic, a jumper or a shirt-tail style, all three of which could be worn solo as a mini-dress or with a skirt for occasions when pants are out of social place. Then there are pants with a long vest, worn with a blouse, and combined with a short coat, taking over from last season's jacketed suit.

The pants themselves are always long, covering the heel of your shoes. They may be straight for street wear, slim and flaring for at home or casual wear and extremely full or even pleated for evening, to give the effect of a skirt.

So here is a breakdown of these styles.

Tunic-Pants: This is probably the most popular style. The belted tunic generally can be worn solo as a mini-dress or with a skirt for conservative occasions. Jacques Tiffeau, who introduced pants some 11 years ago, showed a three-piece outfit of a grey side-zippered tunic-coat over grey-black-and-yellow print tunic and pants. Donald Brooks, too, likes the ensemble look, especially for travelling and includes a wrapped tunic with knife-pressed trousers topped by a matching coat.

Jumper pants: The jumper itself is, of course, sleeveless but usually favors a contrast blouse. Geoffrey Beene turns to the patriotic red, white and blue for his version. A red jumper with its own jacket is worn with a white silk blouse, to top navy bell-bottoms. Then there's Anne Klein's neat black-and-white checked wool jumper with big pockets and a scooped neckline to show the white ascot shirt. It tops matching pants.

Shirt-tail-pants: This is not as popular as the other styles, but has its place in casual or resort wear. Klein even dresses up a suit of navy pants and white over-shirt with stock, with pearls-and-chain belt.

Open-vest-pants: Here is a style verging on the new sleeveless coat that is featured in many collections. Miss Sun Valley likes this elongated open-vest style in navy, lilac or surf blue linen, worn with a Cossack blouse in arnel knit in contrast color. The pants are fit-and-flare navy linen.

Coat-pants: This should be most popular in Canada for early spring, since the often almost-knee-length coat can be worn separately. Berger Swartz favors this style and Louis Schrier does the jacket-coat with a mannish look. Adele Simpson thinks of the travelling woman in need of a co-ordinating wardrobe and comes up with a four-part ensemble in black fibra silk, to include coat, pants and skirt plus a black-and-white print tunic dress which could also be worn with the pants for another outfit.

Originala is showing the perfect coat-pants costume in a green sleeveless coat, reaching just below the knee-cap, with contrast in the white turtleneck and long sleeved top and white pants.

Several top designers agree that pants are not for street wear, but if you want to be spring 1969 personified, it's the pants costume. If you want to be frankly way-out, you might like something as dramatic as Oscar de la Renta's stark black suit with a Spanish shawl tied around the hips.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Recipes for Gourmet Menu

By MARY MOORE

During this week and stretching on into next I will give you the full menu of what I consider to be a different gourmet meal. Anyway my guests praised it and I enjoyed it and had the elusive precious feeling of satisfaction when they said their final "goodbyes" on my front steps at four degrees above zero.

MUSHROOM GRAVY

The menu was:

Glazed Shrimp-Stuffed Avocado Halves
Veal Cordon Bleu
French Endive with Drawn Butter Sauce
Baked Bananas
Baby Canned Carrots
Chocolate Souffle with Cream
Demi Tasse Coffee
Party Mints

Think you can cope with it? If so I will go through each step here and in the near future so keep clipping until I have run the course.

First, the — shrimp and top them with olives. To store to chill arrange like a wheel on a dinner plate. Cover with saran and chill thoroughly. When mealtime arrives and you are on the verge of announcing "dinner is served" carry plateful of prepared avocadoes to dinner table and place one on each of six bread and butter or tea plates previously put in place at each table setting. This is a beautiful, delicious, conversation and recipe-requesting first course. I hope my gourmet readers clip and make and serve it.

NOTE: To make space for all of the items in this gourmet meal I am skipping the cooking lesson this week. So tomorrow watch for the recipe for Veal Cordon Bleu.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Meat Balls with Onion Gravy; Fluffy Rice; Spinach; Banana Cake; Tea.

GLAXED SHRIMP - STUFFED AVOCADO HALVES

(serves 6)

3 medium-ripe avocadoes
½ teaspoon plain gelatine
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
one 8-oz. can cleaned medium shrimp (4½ oz. drained weight)
¼ cup genuine mayonnaise (not salad dressing)
2 tablespoons finely chopped olives
6 whole olives (for garnish)

Early in the afternoon of the day of your dinner party soak the gelatine in the lemon juice in a cup then stand it in boiling water stirring to dissolve. Remove from heat and cool to room temperature than add mayonnaise and olives before it sets.

Meanwhile wash avocadoes and cut in halves lengthwise and remove stones carefully. Spoon a little of the mayonnaise mixture on the cut edges and with your finger tips spread it neatly around edge to prevent darkening. Drain shrimp and fill hollows with them, reserving six for garnishing top. Spoon remaining mayonnaise mixture over shrimp, top with reserved six

'Dead Battery' Not Always to Blame

DEA RANN LANDERS: May I ask the woman who complained about being married to a "dead battery" for 20 years if she believes batteries go dead all of a sudden or does someone turn off the switch?"

ANN LANDERS

How many married women are so "ladylike" that they wouldn't dream of letting their husbands know they are not only interested but eager? How many wives believe it is vulgar to be an active participant? And the sorriest ones of all are the passive numbers who are afraid to demonstrate any degree of expertise for fear their husbands will think they've been practicing.

Any woman who describes her husband as a dead battery must accept some responsibility for the loss of current. Please tell the girls there are two poles to every battery and both must function or the power goes off. — TOPEKA.

DEAR TOPEKA: You speak the truth, Lady - - - , and I assume you are a lady and not a gent. That bit about the expertise was the tipoff. I hope your letter helps to charge a few thousand batteries around the country.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We are a group of high school students who respect your opinion and want to know if we are wrong.

A member of our class died last week and we all felt very sad about it. A group of us went to the pricipal's office and asked to be excused from school an hour early to attend the funeral. The principal told us it was up to the Board of Education to grant such permission and that he had no such authority.

We called the Board of Education and spoke with the Superintendent of Schools. He told us the decision rests with the head of the administration of the school — in other words, the principal.

That same week several students were dismissed early to see a play downtown. It's a pretty rotten world when students can't leave school to attend funeral services for a friend, but can be excused to see a play.

What do you think of this, Ann Landers? — DISGRUNTLED STUDENTS.

DEAR STUDENTS: I'm shocked and suspicious. Your letter comes from Buffalo. When I visited Buffalo a few years ago I was impressed with not only the students but the faculty and administration of the high schools I visited. You do not say whether you went back to the principal and reported your conversation with the superintendent, nor do you say whether or not you finally attended the services.

Send me the name of your school and the principal. It will add credibility to your story.

Bank of Montreal Offers Additional Shares

MONTREAL — Offer of rights to subscribe to 3,796,875 additional shares of Bank of Montreal capital stock at $12 a share, on the basis of one new share for each 8 shares now held, was announced recently by G. Arnold Hart, chairman and chief executive officer.

It is the first B of M rights offer since 1959. From then until the last fiscal year - end (Oct. 31, 1968), the bank's assets had more than doubled from $3.2 billion to $6.8 billion.

Mr. Hart said the offer is being made to enlarge the capital base, in line with the continuing growth in the bank's business.

Full details of the offer are being sent today by the bank to shareholders and warrants covering the right to subscribe for the new shares will be mailed about Feb. 28 by The Royal Trust Company, acting as subscription agent or the bank. The offer will be closed on April 8, when unused warrants become void.

Football Bosses to Pool TV Beefs

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Football League, assailed in the Senate for its television blackout policies, begins a week of annual meetings here today with the problem of cable TV high on its closely guarded agenda.

Today and Tuesday, the general managers of the nine CFL teams meet to discuss matters referred to them by league executives during the last year.

They will also work out the 1969 pre-season schedule and hope to reach agreement on the 1969 regular season schedule. Some clubs have been complaining that lack of earlier agreement has held up the printing of tickets.

Wednesday, the CFL meetings break up into Eastern and Western conference meetings and here the sale of home television agreements—the property of the confrences separately—will be decided.

The 1968 contract, which brought nearly $500,000 to the Eastern Conference and more than $300,000 to the West, expired on Grey Cup day.

The regular annual meeting of the CFL is scheduled to begin Thursday with various reports, including that of the rules committee, breaking off during the afternoon for the annual Canadian college draft. The CFL annual meeting is expected to continue through Friday morning.

One of the items expected to be cleaned up is a report by Commissioner Jake Gaudaur on player awards.

The uproar on television blackout policies—the CFL blacks out all home games for a 75-mile radius of the park concerned—came on the eve of the CFL meetings.

Senator Keith Davey, former league commissioner, advocated an end to "the ludicrous and antiquated system of blackouts."

Any loss in gate receipts, he said, could be made up by "expensive television sponsors' revenue."

Gaudaur replied that "there is no doubt whatsoever that an elimination of the television blackout of home games would kill the CFL."

Senator Davey hit a nerve when he pointed out that cable TV, which picks up a feed outside the blackout area and sends the program back into the blackout area by cable, is circumventing the blackout.

"That makes as much sense as banks undertaking to allow robbers to take their money so they wouldn't have to resort to stealing it," Gaudaur said.

DAYTONA BEACT, Fla. (AP) — Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., fought a gusty wind and narrowly missed a collision with the wall Sunday as he won $2,000 and the pole position for the world's richest stock car race, the Daytona 500 Feb. 23. Baker's fast lap of 188.901 miles an hour was a shade off the 189.22 mark set by Carl Yarborough in a Mercury last year.

BALTIMORE (CP-AP)—Bob Finlay of Toronto won the mile run at the All-Eastern indoor games here Saturday night in the slow time of 4:05.3, defeating Sam Bair of Kent State. Abby Hoffman, also of Toronto, took the women's 600-yard run in 1:23.2.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Olympic pole vault champion Bob Seagren of the University of Southern California boosted his own world indoor record by a quarter of an inch Saturday night when he cleared 17 feet six inches at the 10th annual Times indoor games. Seagren, who has an outdoor record of 17-9 pending approval, cleared 17-6, bettering the record of 17-5¾ he established at Albuquerque on Jan. 25.

OSHAWA (CP) — Gaston Pelletier of Toronto set an unofficial Canadian speed record for snowmobiles Sunday when he was clocked at 66 m.p.h. More than 400 vehicles took part in the test on an oval track. Pelletier's speed was checked by the radar unit of the city police department.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — National Hockey League referee Vern Buffey was taken to hospital Sunday night for x-rays and observation after he was accidentally bodychecked during the Montreal-St. Louis game. The game was delayed about half an hour until Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the NHL who was viewing the game, took Buffey's place on the ice. Buffey was hit by Ted Harris of the Canadiens, who was chasing St. Louis' Red Berenson, and threw a check just as Berenson sidestepped him.

Big Line's Performance Keeps Detroit in Fourth

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Centre Alex Delvecchio, left winger Frank Mahovlich and right winger Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings appear en route to setting a National Hockey League record for the most goals in one season by a line.

Mahovlich scored three goals Sunday and Delvecchio and Howe added one each as the Red Wings blanked Los Angeles Kings 5-0. The five goals lifted the line's total to 84 this season, tops in the league.

The NHL record is 105 by Montreal Canadiens' Maurice Richard, Toe Blake and Elmer Lach in the 1944-45 season. With 21 games remaining, the Detroit threesome stands an excellent chance of breaking that record.

In other games Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-3, Montreal and St. Louis Blues tied 4-4, Philadelphia Flyers and New York Rangers played to a 3-3 deadlock, Minnesota North Stars took Pittsburgh Penguins 3-1 and Oakland Seals held Boston Bruins to a 3-3 tie.

Saurday, New York blanked St. Louis 2-0, Montreal walloped Minnesota 6-3, Boston edged Philadelphia 6-5, Los Angeles downed Pittsburgh 4-2, Detroit defeated Chicago 3-1 and Oakland took Toronto 4-1.

The three goals for Mahovlich Sunday increased his output to 36—just 12 short of his season-high of 48 set with Toronto during the 1960-61 campaign. Howe has 29 and Delvecchio 19.

Roy Edwards, handling only 19 Los Angeles shots, was credited with his third shutout of the season in goal for Detroit and his second in four games.

The victory moved the fourth-place Red Wings five points ahead of Toronto and seven ahead of Chicago in the scramble for the final playoff position in the Eastern Division.

A three-goal outburst in the last 10 minutes helped New York gain a tie before 5,723 Madison Square Garden patrons and stay one point ahead of Detroit.

Bob Nevin's goal with 42 seconds remaining gave the Rangers a tie after they had trailed 3-0 with less than 10 minutes left.

Walt Tkaczuk scored for New York at 10:39 and Phil Goyette connected at 15:25. New York manager-coach Emile Francis yanked goaltender Don Simmons for an extra attacker and the move paid off with Nevin's goal.

FRANK MAHOVLICH
Takes Over Goal Lead

Simmons started the game for New York because regular goaltender Ed Giacomin and two other players could not reach the arena because of a severe snowstorm which also reduced the size of the crowd.

Philadelphia goals were scored by Jean-Guy Gendron, Don Blackburn and Andre Lacroix.

The start of the game was delayed two hours as it took the Flyers nine hours to travel from Philadelphia to New York by train because of the heavy snow.

Toronto ended a six-game winless streak and broke a tie for fifth-place with the slumping Black Hawks. Dave Keon, Larry Mickey, Paul Henderson, Tim Horton and Bill Sutherland scored for the Leafs.

Bobby Hull, Paul Shmyr and J. P. LeBlanc were Hawk goal scorers.

Third-period goals by Ken Hodge and Derek Sanderson enabled the Bruins to tie Oakland.

The Seals got goals from Earl Ingarfield, Mike Laughton and Gerry Ehman. Boston scorers were Derek Sanderson, Ken Hodge, his 31st, and Wayne Cashman.

A total of 7,704 at Boston battled their way through a snowstorm, to see the game.

Montreal got goals from Bobby Rousseau, Jean Beliveau, Serge Savard and Dick Duff while St. Louis goals went to Tim Ecclestone, Gary Sabourin and Red Berenson.

Referee Vern Buffey was injured early in the first period when he and Montreal defenceman Ted Harris collided. Buffey was taken to hospital for observation and was replaced by cotty Morrison, the NHL's referee-in-chief who was at the game.

Picking up Minnesota goals Sunday were Bill Goldsworthy, Lou Nanne and Danny O'Shea. Bob Woytowich tallied for Pittsburgh.

Goals by Nick Libbet, Gary Bergman and Mahovlich carried Detroit to a victory before 16,666 Chicago fans Saturday. Bobby Hull had the Hawks' goal.

Don Marshall and Rod Gilbert scored on power plays and Ed Giacomin gained a shutout for New York Saturday. The victory, the Rangers seventh in a row at home, was watched by 17,250.

The Canadiens spotted the North Stars two quick goals Saturday, then roared back with six straight before 17,784 Minnesota fans.

Centre Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins picked up five assists during the weekend to maintain his wide margin as leader in individual National Hockey League scoring.

The five points gave Esposito 87 on 34 goals and 53 assists and put him 14 points ahead of runner-up Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings.

Howe, who collected a goal and three assists in two weekend games, has 73 points on 29 goals and 44 assists.

Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks, with two goals during the weeknd, is third with 71 points on 34 goals and 37 assists.

Orr Sidelined Another 10 Days

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins announced Sunday night that Bobby Orr, the National Hockey League's top defenceman, will be sidelined another 10 days because of a left knee injury.

General manager Milt Schmidt said that Orr told him in a telephone conversation that he had been examined Sunday by Dr. John Palmer, an orthopedic surgeon in Toronto.

Dr. Palmer, who operated on Orr's left knee last June, said that Orr is suffering only from an irritation of the knee lining.

The doctor said Orr may resume skating in five days but must remain out of contact for 10 days.

Orr injured his knee in a game at Los Angeles, Jan. 30.

Toronto Team Gets Lone Title for Canada at Skate Meet

OAKLAND, Calif. (CP-AP) — Canada emerged from the North American figure skating championships with one first placing, two seconds and two thirds but the United States wound up with three championships—both singles and the pairs.

Bruce Lennie and Donna Taylor of Toronto, comparative newcomers as a team, placed themselves high up on the list of contenders for the world title next month when they won the pairs dance title Saturday night and prevented an American sweep.

Lennie and Miss Taylor will be up against the same American pair they beat out for the championship, Judy Schwomeyer and James Sladky, students at Syracuse University, in the world finals Colorado Springs Feb. 25-March 21, not to mention the highly-ranked Russian and British dance teams.

An unpopular decision—at least with the crowd—came Saturday night when another Toronto skater, Jay Humphry, lost the men's title to Tim Wood, a 21-year-old law student from Cleveland.

Wood, not showing the effects of a 100-degree temperature from a head cold, received first-place votes from all seven judges in free skating to take the title.

The crowd clearly favored Humphry and John Misha Petkevich of Great Falls, Mont., who was third.

The other two events in the three-day competition went to the U.S.—a narrow victory by a 1.4-point in the ladies singles by Janet Lynn over Karen Magnussen of Vancouver and Cindy and Ronald Kauffman's victory in pairs.

Lennie, 23, and Miss Taylor, 17, fell four points short of the American champions but they received the dance title because they got more over-all first-place votes from the judges.

They had entered the final day trailing the Americans who hed performed flawlessly in the compulsory and original dance events.

Their victory prevented what had loomed as the first U.S. sweep of the competiton since 1951. Canada swept the board by winning all four titles in 1963.

Although Lennie and Miss Taylor had been skating together for only 2½ years, their flawless performance in matching black outfits trimmed with pink received long ovations from a crowd of 8,500.

They finished with 247 points compared with 251 for the American couple. Two other Toronto dance teams, Mary Church and Tom Falls and Hazel Pike and Philip Boskill, were fourth and sixth respectively.

Wood, silver medallist in the 1968 Olympics, entered the men's finals with a margin of 70 points over Humphry, the Canadian men's senior champion, a lead he had built up in Friday's compulsory figures.

He maintained the lead, finishing with 2,304.7 points to Humphry's 2,220.6.

David McGillivray of Toronto was fifth and Toller Cranston, also of Toronto, sixth.

In the Friday night ladies singles event, Miss Lynn entered the contest trailing Miss Magnussen, but she pulled ahead in the free skating to win by the slim margin. She got four first-place votes to three for Miss Magnussen.

Linda Carbonetto, 19, of Toronto, who defeated Miss Magnussen Jan. 27 for the Canadian title, finished third in the vent.

The closest Canadians in the pairs championship were Mary Petrie and Robert McAvoy of Toronto who finished third.

Canadian champion Rick Stephens and Anna Forder of Port Perry, Ont., finished fifth and Sandra and Val Bezic of Toronto finished sixth.

The Canadian skaters have left for Squaw Valley, Calif., to practice for the world championship.

LOCAL HOPES SWEPT AWAY — Bob MacInnes' Canadian Forces Base, Trenton rink carried Quinte area hopes as far as the seventh round of the Ontario Curling playdowns in London Friday night, before the foursome was ousted by Toronto skip Joe Gorowka's favored foursome. Gorowka, himself was later eliminated from the Consols, with Ken Buchan's London quartet emerging as upset winners.

London Rink Survives Suspense

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Shakespeare could not have written a better script than the five-hour drama that took place late Saturday night and early Sunday morning in the final game of the Ontario curling championship.

There was suspense, drama, comic relief, pathos and tragedy as a London rink skipped by Ken Buchan won the title in a game that went two extra ends —14—before a last-shot miss by skip Bill Creber of Toronto gave him a 4-3 victory.

The drama got under way at 8 p.m. Saturday when Buchan led his rink that had Gary Weisz playing third, Mitch Cjaza second and Ross Guest lead onto the ice for his third game against Creber in 24 hours.

The London rink had beaten Creber 6-4 Friday night and lost 7-5 to the Toronto crew in a game that started at 9 a.m. Saturday. Buchan then reached the final by defeating the 1966 champions skipped by Joe Gurowka of Toronto 5-2 in a game that went until amost 7 p.m.

Then, the London rink went out against Creber after an hour's rest after spending more than 12 of the previous 24 hours on the ice while they deliberated and played through 36 ends.

Suspense started with the opening stone and both skips went to straight knockout on the keen-true ice of the Ivanhoe Curling Club and blanked the first end.

There was a moment of hushed silence at the completion of six ends as an officla measured the difference between two stones that appeared as a No. 2 for Buchan but left him only No. 1 to tie the game 1-1.

The suspense continued through the next three ends, with Creber blanking each one intentionally in order to retain last shot before Buchan hid his final shot behind a guard on the 10th end to take a 2-1 lead.

The Toronto rink came back with two stones on the 11th end that gave it a 3-2 lead without last shot coming home on the 12th and final end and added suspense while the official measured to decide the No. 1 stone at the completion.

The London rink was closest by a minute fraction of an inch to tie the game and send it into an extra end without last shot.

Then, tragedy struck with the Toronto rink in control of the situation and in a perfect position to get the necessary single when Creber came up to throw his first rock.

Suddenly, he gripped his right arm and began massaging it. Minutes later he left the ice suffering from a nerve spasm that had deadened the entire arm and hand.

More suspense followed as a physician attempted to massage the life back into the arm and the gallery waited for an official decision on who was to deliver the skip's rocks if the treatment failed.

"I'm going to call my wife in Ottawa and tell her to catch the early morning flight to see the end of this game," one spectator moaned. It was already well pest midnight.

Creber returned to the ice after a 30-minute stop in play and got set to deliver his first stone.

"I hope he takes another spasm when he lets it go," said a 10-year-old spectator.

Creber missed the shot, a long guard that the London rink had placed earlier in the end.

Buchan then drew behind the guard for shot rock on the four foot behind the tee line, but leaving Creber a chance to come around the guard and win the game.

Creber's final shot came around the guard and knocked the London stone out of the house, but also rolled out to blank the end unintentionally and make a second extra-end necessary.

Buchan, again without last shot, hid his final rock of the 14th end on the four foot behind the tee line and behind four guards. It left Creber a chance to follow his path and freeze to the shot rock for No. 1.

But Creber's stone was heavy and sailed past, giving the London rink the victory. Buchan's players threw their brooms high in the air and hugged each other as Creber's rock failed. At least one member of the Toronto rink sat down on the ice in front of the circle and cried, the tears making steamy rivulets down his cheeks.

"It was the greatest game ever played in," said Buchan as he stood on the podium to receive the British Consuls Trophy that gave his rink a trip to the Canadian championship in Oshawa March 3-7.

"I was beaten by a better rink," said Creber. His shoulders were slumped and he was holding the arm that had gone numb again.

"Maybe . . . maybe someday I'll win it."

Kingston's Split With Hornets Keeps Mo-Hawk Playoff Door Ajar

(CP-STAFF) — A split by Kingston's Aces in weekend OHA Senior A action left the playoff door open for Belleville Mo-Hawks, and set the stage for a dramatic home-and-home series this Tuesday and Friday between the eastern-Ontario arch-rivals.

Things looked glum for the Mo-Hawks Friday night when the Aces put down Galt 5-4 in Kingston while Belleville were losing to Orillia 6-4. But the Hornets turned the tables on the Aces at home Saturday night, winning 5-4 to move within a point of clinching first place in the eight-team senior group.

Trailing the Aces by two points in the battle for the sixth and last playoff berth, the Mo-Hawks journey to Kingston tomorrow night, and entertain the Aces in Belleville Friday.

A goal by Bob Ertel with fewer than three minutes remaining in the third period Saturday gave Galt the winning margin and placed the Aces in danger of losing their grip on the sixth and final playoff position.

In two Sunday games, Barrie Flyers kept their slim first-place hopes alive with a 3-2 overtime win over the third-place Terriers at Orillia and Oakville Oaks claimed fourth place with a 5-4 home ice win over Collingwood Kings.

Bill Hway, Pete Brennan, Howie Dietrich and Ron Hergott also scored Saturday for the Hornets. Bob Brown, Syl Apps Jr., Bob Rawson and Charlie Convery replied for the Aces.

At Orillia, two goals by Bob Forhan clinched at least second place for the Flyers.

Dave Luciuk sent Barrie ahead in the first period before Gary Milroy and Moe Galand scored for Orillia.

Referee Blair Graham of Toronto called a total of 73 minutes in penalties, including 39 minutes at one time after a second period brawl.

At Oakville, before 1,290 fans, a long shot by Oaks defenceman Brian Pryce broke a 4-4 third-period tie with Collingwood and eliminated the Kings last chance of passing the Oaks into fourth place.

Pete Bettiol led Oakville with two goals. Bob Pole and Jim (Obie) O'Brien added single scores. Fern St. Onge, Dave Fitler, Clare Alexander and Ron Vermette replied for the Kings.

Chuvalo Handler Suspended For Shouting

TORONTO (CP) — Irv Ungerman, manager of Canadian boxing champion George Chuvalo, has been suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission for his actions during Chuvalo's 12-round losing fight against Buster Mathis last Monday at Madison Square Garden.

Ungerman said Saturday he received a letter from the commission notifying him of his suspension. The commission charges Ungerman was shouting instructions to his fighter from ringside and continuing to do so after repeated warnings from deputy commissioner Pasquale Mele.

"I wasn't shouting instructions to George," said Ungerman.

"I was hollering at the referee to watch Mathis's butting."

Ungerman has been ordered to appear before the commission in New York to show cause why his manager's and second's licences should not be revoked.

Meanwhile, Ungerman said he would not advise Chuvalo, 32, to quit or continue fighting.

"This is a decision he has to make on his own, or with his family."

Ref Assesses 373 Minutes In Oshawa-Jr. Habs Fracas

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Junior Canadiens, regarded by many as the team to beat in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, are having trouble living up to that reputation.

The Habs split two weekend games to lose a chance to take over sole possession of first place which they share with St. Catharines Black Hawks.

Sunday they lost to seventh-place Toronto Marlboros 4-3 before 8,868 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens. The defeat took away the glory of the Habs' 9-3 trouncing Saturday of Oshawa Generals, a game climaxed by a second-period brawl that halted play for 47 minutes.

In other action Sunday, St. Catharines trimmed London Knights 6-2, Ottawa 67s clipped Niagara Falls Flyers 6-2, Hamilton Red Wings downed Kitchener Rangers 9-5 and Peterborough Petes and Oshawa battled for a 4-4 draw.

A crowd of 3,482, larges to watch a game Oshawa in three seasons, s referee Warren Wagner of Ottawa assess 373 minutes in penalties, including 25 majors and 15 misconducts.

Canadiens lost Mark Tardiff with a shoulder separation suffered in the second period scrap.

Rejean Houle, Gilbert Perrault and Jocelyn Guevremont each scored twice for Montreal. Richard Lemieux, Art Quoquochi and Tardiff each notched single goals.

Oshawa's Tom Foxscroft scored twice and set up John Clayton for the other goal.

At Toronto, the Canadiens outshot the Marlboros 40-33. Charlie Shaw, Gerd Davies, Frank Hamill and Mike Murphy scored for Toronto. Serge Lajeunesse, Jean-Pierre Bordeleau and Guy Charron tallied Montreal's goals.

At St. Catharines, Bob Sheehan poaced the Black Hawks with two goals and an assist. Wayne Ego, Dave Burrow, Dennis Giannini and Doug Rombough were the other Hawks scorers. John Gould and Darryl Sittler replied for London.

A goal by Fred O'Donnell at 1:15 of the third period gave the Generals their comeback tie at Peterborough. Dave Pulkkinen scored twice for Oshawa and Peter Vipond added the other.

Paul Perras, Dave Roy, Ron Plumb and Rick MacLeish replied for Peterborough.

At Ottawa, the 67s won their first game in two years against the Flyers. Coach Paul Emms of the Flyers was ejected from the game at 9:29 of the third period for throwing his hat at referee Gaston Bordeleau to protest penalties being given to his team.

Scoring for Ottawa were Pete Lafraomboise, Doug Keeler, Pierre Jarry, Gordie McCromick, Pete Gaw and Bill Clement.

Don Tannahill and Dan Makey scored for the Flyers, outshot 38-26.

At Hamilton, left winger Tom Williams scored four goals to power the Red Wings to their rout before 3,300 fans.

Buster Harvey and Cal Russell each scored twice for Hamilton while Gord Brooks got the other Red Wing goal.

Dave Cressman, Bob Whitlock, Gary Crosby, Ted Scharf and Bob Hurlburt scored for Kitchener.

DO YOU REALLY NEED SNOW TIRES?

Well, with a high degree of driving skill and lots of luck you may get through a bad Winter without them and not get stuck — if you drive on main routes only, of course.

Even main routes won't help much though, if you're stuck behind a stalled driver on a hill or if you're forced to slow down on an incline when you need speed to get you through.

Safety under today's driving conditions heavily favors snow tires. They're an investment that pays off in more driver control under bad weather conditions all the way up to just plain peace of mind in the knowledge that a sudden snow fall is not likely to leave you stranded.

How effective are snow tires? An average of 50 per cent better on snow and 36 per cent on ice under average conditions, according to studies of government highway authorities.

Metal studded snow tires, where their use is permitted, have remedied the weakness of snow tires on ice. They are measured to be 200 per cent more effective on starting and 60 per cent more effective in stopping on ice tests.

Recap snow tires heat up faster than standard treads and sustained heat can separate the tread from the tire carcass, so for this reason, only new snow tires are recommended by consumer testing agencies.

Snow tires have wide ranges of quality. Your best bet is to buy them from a dealer you have confidence in.

LEMME AT IT! — Despite the determination of Laura Drake and fellow members of the Garrison Badminton Club, the hosts to the Central Ontario bird championships didn't fare too well in Saturday's competition.

Unseeded Oshawa Pair Best in Bird Tourney

STAFF — A pair of unseeded girls from Oshawa hit the birdie just right Saturday and upset the field to capture the Ladies' Doubles championship as the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club played host to its annual Central Ontario closed "B" doubles tournament at the Belleville Armories.

The girls, Dale Perrin and Barbara Copp, defeated top seeded Ruth Barker and Kay Freeman of Trenton, 15-9, 15-6, to win the championship final in straight sets.

The victory for the Oshawa girls, who were seeded fourth in their club, was one of two major upsets in the day-long tournament, which saw the host Garrison Club fail to place a team in the finals.

Gary Card and Bob Boyle, two unseeded players from Napanee, upset second seeded Gene Refausse and Mike Church of host Garrison Club in the men's doubles, and carried top seeded Ralph Jennings and Marsh Slessor of Bowmanville to three sets before losing in the championship final.

The Bowmanville veterans dropped the first set 13-15, but recovered to win the next two 15-5, 15-12 to capture the title. Jennings who won the "B" title here in 1965 had just dropped back to the "B" class after three years of "A" flight competition.

Jenning became the only double winner, when he teamed with Doreen Holding to capture the mixed doubles title in straight sets, defeating Peterborough's Jim and Barb Pritchard 15-2, 15-8.

Morrisons Succumb to Quick Goals

STAFF — Peterborough Don Byes scored two goals in rapid succession three times last night, and held the Belleville Morrisons to a single goal in period, en route to a 10-3 home ice win and a share of first place with the Oshawa Crushmen.

The Don Byes tallied a pair of goals just 15 seconds apart at 7.26 and 7.41 of the middle stanza, and then struck again for another pair at 11.58 and 12.07 to take a 4-2 lead after two periods.

Peterborough's other pair of quickies came at 15.07 and 15.30 and stretched their margin to 7-3 during the rugged contest which saw Belleville take 11 of the 21 penalties handed out, including eight of twelve in the middle stanza.

Peter Sullivan sparked the Don Byes' second period surge with a hat trick, including a pair of goals in the span of nine seconds.

Joe Watters and Doug Murray each fired a pair of goals for the winners, while Phil Grady, Terry Holligan and Terry Cavanagh netted a goal apiece.

Storms tallied an unassisted goal at 6.10 of the opening period to give Belleville a 1-0 lead which stood up until Peterborough's second period surge.

Dalton Lambert scored Belleville's second goal on a penalty shot at 10.41 of the middle period, while Ted Waite combined with Al Jones and Ray Summers to score the Morrison's third period goal.

The cellar-dwelling Morrisons won't see action again in the six team Eastern Ontario Junior "B" hockey league until next weekend, when they travel to Oshawa Saturday, and return to Belleville Sunday for a game with the third place Kingston Frontenacs.

King George Girls Sweep Volleyball Championship Saturday

STAFF — Senior girl volleyballers from King George School overstayed their welcome as far as host Harmony School lasses were concerned.

The King George team won all five games to coast to a title win in Saturday's first Harmony Public School Senior Girls' Volleyball Tournament.

The Harmony hostesses emerged from the six-team double elimination tourney as "B" champions, losing their first game to King George and suffering another loss to the meet winners in the grand championship game.

Organized by Mrs. Diane Genereaux — Harmony girls Physical teacher — the day-long meet attracted entries from Trenton's Breadner School, Frankford, Queen Alexandra, and Sir Mackenzie Bowell, with over 80 girls participating.

A tournament trophy went to the King George girls, along with individual crests and pieces of jewelry.

Their win over Sir Mackenzie Bowell girls was particularly enjoyable for the King George team, in the wake of last month's four-division sweep of the city-wide volleyball tourney by S.M.B. teams.

Juveniles, Novices Win

Coates Scores Winner In Overtime Thriller

An overtime goal by Mark Coates gave the defending Ontario champion Belleville Kinsmen bantams a 7-6 win over Trenton Sunday in the first game of a best two out of three series in the opening round of the Ontario playdowns.

Coates' goal clinched Belleville's 23rd win of the season and started the locals down the playoff trail.

The Kinsmen scoring was split among six players, with Brian Cousins notching a pair of goals, and Russ Herrington, John Mulvihill, Danny Lupenette and Andy Ricketts all scoring singletons to set the stage for Coates' overtime winner.

Steve Keech was the big gun for Trenton, firing four goals, including a third period hat trick, and the tying goal late in the game. Doug Stutsky and L. Slimmon notched the other Trenton markers.

Western Tire juveniles also started the playoffs on the right foot Sunday, defeating Trenton 5-3 in the first game of a best two out of three series in the opening round of the Ontario playdowns.

The juveniles used a single goal in the opening period and a pair of goals in each of the final two periods to overcome the Trenton club, who tallied a goal in the second period and two more in the final period.

Reid Mallory fired a pair of goals to lead the Western Tire attack, while Cal Wilson and Bob Mulvihill scored a goal and two assists each, and Grant Hopkins added a single goal for the winners.

Wannamaker with a pair of goals and DeMille with a singleton replied for the Trenton juveniles, who split two regular season games with the Western Tire squad.

The weekend's other game saw the Food City novices complete a clean sweep of weekend games by Belleville teams, when they defeated Napanee 5-3.

Tony Meagher contributed two goals to the Food City attack, while Peter Coates, Roger Suddard and Brent Walmsley added singletons.

Tim Dorey and Dale Elliott replied for Napanee.

Cobourg West Wins Blue and Gold Crown

STAFF — A car accident on the trip to Napanee's second annual Blue and Gold junior basketball tournament shook up the squad from Pembroke Collegiate, Saturday, but the Pembroke boys rebounded from a first round loss to eventual chapion Cobourg West, and recovered to capture the consolation final of the eight team tournament.

One of the two cars carrying the Pembroke team rolled over on Hwy. 41, 30 miles north of Napanee, causing $1200 damage, but fortunately the players were only shaken up.

After their late arrival and first round loss to Cobourg West, Pembroke entered the consolation round and defeated Athens 47-22, and Cloyne 54-38 to win the consolation title.

The strong junior squad from Cobourg West captured the championship final by defeating Moira Secondary School of Belleville 51-44.

Cobourg West employed a 2-1-2 zone on defence and used a multiple offence to exploit the outside shooting of Allen and Krywionk, who topped the Cobourg scorers with 16 points each.

Moira used a combination defence and left 6'4" centre Paul Hayes in front of the basket to control the defensive back boards, but despite Hayes' 25 points, most of them from in close, the junior Trojans could not overcome the well-balanced Cobourg squad, who have lost only one game all year.

Cobourg West reached the championship finals with a 60-36 first round win over Pembroke, and a 54-28 trouncing of defending Central Ontario champion BCI, while Moira earned the right to oppose Cobourg West in the finals by defeating Napanee 45-20 in the opening round and downing Quinte 46-27 in the championship semi-finals.

The closest game of the day occurred in the consolation semi-final, when Cloyne nipped the host Napanee squad 24-23 in a scrambly defensive struggle.

Tournament convener Lorne Verabioff said "We had a lot better competition among the winners this year, and a very good class of play in the championship final." "We hope to make this an annual tournament to provide area teams with strong outside competition," he added.

THE ROYAL AND ANCIENT GAME

of golf, so called because it was played by the English royal family in the 16th century, was probably invented in Scotland. The best golf courses in the world are still there where the Scots call them links.

Maybe the king in your family no longer uses his old clubs because he received new ones for Christmas. Sell those perfectly good woods and irons with a Intelligencer Ad . . . just by dialing 962-9171 today!

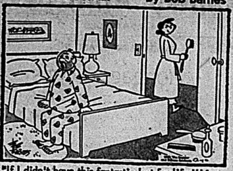
THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes



"If I didn't have this fantastic lust for life I'd just go back to sleep."

Women to Support Proposed Memorial At CFB Trenton

TRENTON — Over 5,000 women from across the world have announced their intentions to actively support the newly proposed $3 million memorial to be built at Trenton.

"The Women of The RCAF" is their official title, and all have served at one time or another in the RCAF.

"Their members have given their enthusiastic support to make the memorial a reality," said Major Norman Cairns. He is publicity chairman for the project.

These women will be setting up their own organization and conducting their own campaign to raise funds. They will be working along with the Royal Canadian Air Force Association and the Air Cadet League of Canada, who are co-sponsors of the project.

The group is in its 28th year of operation and have representatives stretching from Canada to Bermudá and to Scotland. Their entrance into the fund drive puts the campaign on a world-wide scale.

Many of the Canadian Forces personnel have received their notice of the appeal, and donations are now being received at the RCAF memorial fund headquarters in Trenton.

Major Cairns emphasized that the fund raising campaign will not take the form of door to door canvassing. Instead donations will be accepted at various fund headquarters across the country.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices were fractionally up in moderately active mid-morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The industrial index gained .14 to 192.38, less than a point below its record Friday morning. Mines and western oils were mixed.

The market as a whole has been hovering round its all-time high more than a week.

Erie Diversified advanced 3⅛ to 22, Dylex Diversified 2½ to 31½, Shully's Industries 2¼ to 20¾ and B.C. Sugar 1½ to 53½.

On the downside, Great-West Life fell 1 to 134, Great West Saddlery ¾ to 20 and Atco ¾ to 22¼.

Among the most active industrials, Magna Electronics gained ¾ to 18½ and Hardee Farms 25 cents to $2.55. Manoir Industries lost 15 cents to $4.00.

Simpsons was up 1 to 37¼. The company last week proposed a 2-for-1 stock split and a dividend increase.

Trading was delayed in Canadian Pacific Investments warrants to match orders. The warrants closed Friday at $7.85, up 45 cents on the wek.

Canadian Pacific Investments preferred stock was up ⅝ to 33⅜.

Among western oils and mines, Great Plains Development gained ¾ to 34¾, Northgate ½ to 18⅛ and First Orenada 11 cents to 56 cents.

Sherritt Gordon fell ¼ to 10⅞ and Placer ½ to 37½.

The New York and American stock exchanges were closed for the day by heavy snowfall in Manhattan.

On index, western oils lost .63 to 249.07 and base metals .26 to 120.35. Golds gained .48 to 241.95. Volume by 11 a.m. was 1,230,000 shares compared with 1,262,000 at the same time Friday.

MacMillans Acquitted

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto mining promoters George and Viola MacMillan today were acquitted of charges of defrauding the public through trading in the stock of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd., a company they controlled in 1964.

Judge Harry Deyman, handing down his decision in county court, said he could not find that the market activity in Windfall stock, which rose to $1.01 from 56 cents in a single day in July, 1964, was caused by the action of the MacMillans.

"Such activity was just as likely to be caused by the earlier discovery by Texas Gulf Sulphur Co., that same year, which caused activity among a number of companies with holdings in the area," Judge Deyman said.

He also said that he did not agree with the Crown's contention that the public was defrauded through the MacMillans' promotion of Windfall stock and their delay in making results of a drill core assay public.

Obituary

FREDERICK McQUARRIE

(RR 2, Madoc)

A former resident of Toronto, but living in the Madoc area for the past seven months, Mr. Frederick McQuarrie, RR 2, Madoc, died suddenly at Tweed Saturday while attending the winter skating carnival. Mr. McQuarrie was watching the skating show when he slumped in his seat from a heart attack. He was in his 70th year.

Born in Greenock, Scotland, he was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Angus McQuarrie and retired in May of last year after 44 years as a rates clerk with Hendrie Company Ltd. of Toronto.

He was a veteran of World War I and was severely wounded in France during action with the First Seaforth Highlanders. He was a past chief of St. Andrews' Camp No. 3 Sons of Scotland, Toronto and was a member of St. Peters Presbyterian Church, Madoc.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mary Neilson Robertson, a sister Annie, and five brothers, Angus, Archie, William, George and John, all of Greenock, Scotland. A nephew lives at St. Catharines, Ont.

The funeral will be held this evening with service at the MacKenzie Funeral Home, Madoc at 8 p.m. Interment will be at Glendale Memorial Gardens, Toronto, Tuesday afternoon.

PETER A. MELCHIOR

The funeral of Peter A. Melchior was held Saturday morning from the O'Brien Funeral Home to Holy Rosary Church where Requiem Mass was conducted by Rev. R. Sweeney. Rev. C. Gazley and Rt. Rev. J. A. Carley were present in the sanctuary.

Rev. James Mullen said prayers at the graveside in St. James' Cemetery.

The bearers were Leonard Farrell, Thomas Morrison, William Meagher, Robert Sebelli, Harold Buck and Phil Richards.

MRS. ROBERT A. WOODS

(Campbellford - Madoc)

The funeral of Mrs. Eliza Victoria Woods was held on Sunday afternoon, Feb. 9 with service conducted in the MacKenzie Funeral Home at Madoc by Rev. V. Tozer.
m

Bearers were Robert McCoy, Perc. Holland, Clarence Farrow, John Allore, Robert McCaffrey and William Curtis.

Interment took place in White Lake Cemetery.

BEAUTICIANS FOR COWS

MATSQUI, B.C. (CP) — Harry Boomars and his father run a manicure service for cattle. They travel the Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island trimming hooves. "It's like cutting toenails," Boomars said. "We clean out the abscesses to prevent the hoof from breaking off."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Heart Patient's Arm Pains Are Unlikely to Be Arthritis

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am 67 years old, and suffering from angina pectoris which resulted from a severe thrombosis during October, 1966. I also have a dropiscal condition. I have sufficeintely recovered so that I can do necessary house work, but I still suffer from an arthritic pain which starts near the top of my left shoulder blade and extends under my left arm to the top of my left chest. The doctor calls it an arthritic ache. Nitroglycerine tablets under the tongue relieve this pain. I also take digitalis for the fluid retention. I am not improving at all. My doctor won't give me any information. Can you? — Mrs. P.

Comment: Many patients who have had an attack of coronary thrombosis apparently have no after-effects. I have even known some who have suffered from angina before their attack who no longer had anginal pains after their recovery from the thrombosis.

However, there are some who show evidence of heart failure. Either as congestive failure with shortness of breath swelling of the feet and legs, cough and other symptoms of heart weakness. Or, with anginal attacks. They can't walk a block or two without having chest pains which require nitroglycerine and rest for a few minutes, to dissipate the pain.

You seem to belong to the latter categoy as well as the former. You have both congestive failure and anginal attacks.

I can't say just what is causing the "arthritic pains" in your left shoulder and chest. The fact that they are relieved by nitroglycerine makes me suspicious they are due to the heart and not to arthritis. However, they may be due to a combination of both.

Have you had X-rays of your spine? Recent electrocardiograms? If there is any doubt, consultation with a cardiologist (heart specialist) always makes good sense. He will be able to give you the specific information you want. Besides relieving your mind, such consultation may even bring more physical comfort.

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have been to three different doctors and am still getting no relief from my pains. There seems to be no question about my diagnosis. I have an ulcer of the duodenum and also suffer from arthritis.

All I take is something for the arthritis (not cortisone) and a special diet for the ulcer. I have asked all the doctors to put me on cortisone because I've heard it is much better for arthritis. But all refused. They said it would be dangerous to do so because I have an ulcer. Are they being stubborn or do they all happen to be correct? Mr. O.

Comment: Not stubborn. Just practising good medicine. They know, what is commonly accepted by the medical profession, that the corticosteroids can aggravate an ulcer: cause bleeding and other complications.

Therefore, I'd suggest that you go along with their advice. As much as we would all like dramatic results, often conservative treatment such as diet and other simpler measures is better.

Tweed was the scene of winter festivities and games on the weekend as visitors to the area and Tweed residents themselves gathered to watch and participate in those activities that make a winter carnival exciting. Activities included parachuting, snowmobiling and other sports.

Nixon Would Modify Rules Governing Interest Conflict

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said Saturday municipal politicians involved in conflict of interest should not be ejected from office if they declare their interest and refrain from voting on matters affecting their private interests.

He also would permit municipal employees to run for municipal councils, boards and commissions.

And he favors legislation requiring by-elections to fill mid-term vacancies on municipal councils and boards, rather than allowing council and board members to elect replacements.

He made his comments in an interview following a day-long Ontario Liberal caucus met with municipal politicians, farmers, students and labor representatives.

Asked if his suggestions on conflict might not open the door to deals among businessmen-councillors, Mr. Nixon said:

"Not any more than the same thing could happen among MPPs and MPs."

He told the meeting his party agrees that a declaration is all that is required to protect the public.

The conference was lightly-attended in the morning but swelled to an audience of about 50 for the afternoon sessions on farm and municipal problems.

Municipal politicians from western Ontario complained of land speculators, regional government plans, inability of small towns to attract industry, the municipal tax-rebate scheme, the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the Ontario Municipal Board.

Mayor J. F. Hutchinson of Woodstock suggested the government establish a central agency of lawyers and personnel experts to help small municipalities bargain with municipal unions.

"There's no way we can compete against this CUPE (Canadian Union of Public Employees) machine. We're going to make all the mistakes of amateurs dealing with professionals."

Vernon Singer, Liberal MPP for Downsview, suggested the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association should hire the talent sought by Mayor Hutchinson so that it would be available to all municipalities dealing with unions.

Mayor Hutchinson also complained about a block of land at Woodstock purchased from a farmer by a speculator several years ago for $900 an acre.

"It hasn't produced a single thing in 10 years but it's now up to $10,000 an acre and it will be even higher before anything is built on it. That profit should go to the farmer or the people who have to have houses there," he said.

Mr. Nixon said the federal government's Hellyer report on housing recommended a way to stop inflation of land prices, by having municipalities buy the land, provide services and sell it to builders.

Urban Transportation Conference Being Held

TORONTO (CP) — More than 1,000 participants were expected today for the opening sessions of the first Canadian Urban Transportation Conference.

They include provincial highways ministers, mayors of most major cities, MPs, labor leaders, university professors, planning consultants and executives of railways, trucking firms, automobile and oil companies.

"This is the first time we have had all three levels of government sitting down together to attend to this problem," said executive director John Steel, former city commissioner in Regina and Calgary.

The open conference, product of a year and a half of planning, is sponsored by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities with the support of provincial and municipal governments and businesses.

Underlying it is a fear that Canada's cities are becoming a worse tangle than they need to be. In an introduction to the preliminary study papers, Mr. Steel called it "concern that the vast and sophisticated technological and scientific gains are not being adequately related to the present and future shape of our cities."

The three-day conference will alternate lectures with discussions on transportation under three headings—planning, financing and policies.

Why Druids Are Scarce

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

After a column of mine about Jesus appeared in the paper around Christmas, a woman called and asked me what religion I professed. I told her I was a Reform Evangelical Druid. She didn't seem to know what that was.

We Druids — small in number but ardent in faith — have a most peculiar theology, but it seems to work for us. Most of the time.

We don't think it's important if you "believe" in God — as long as God believes in you.

And there is only one way to make Him believe in you— to be as selfish as possible at all times. This means to want whatever is best for you, and you alone, in every situation.

If you are truly, deeply, unremittingly and wholly selfish, you are saved. We don't know what you are saved for, but that is none of our business. That is God's business, and we don't interfere in it.

Now, the art of being selfish seems to most people to be the easiest thing in the world, but that delusion is just a trap of Satan. Pure unadulterated selfishness is about the hardest thing in the world to accomplish, and it often takes a lifetime of unceasing effort.

In order to be genuinely selfish, you have to want what is best for the self, and to do what is best for the self. This implies knowing what is best for the self — and this is what makes Druidism so hard.

To be a Druid in good standing (even a non-Reform un-Evangelical one), you first of all have to understand the nature of man. You have to know that he was designed for something, just as an acorn is designed to be an oak tree.

If you properly understand the nature of man, even in part, then you know that the basic need, and the basic aim, of your true self is to become as human as it is possible to be. The only way your self can ever be satisfied is by turning its potentiality for humanhood into act.

Next, you have to understand what it means to become as human as possible: how the reason and the will and the appetites work together, how man can live and control his humanhood without falling into the error of angelism on the one hand or bestiality on the other.

When you have mastered this knowledge, — which involves retraining the emotions as much as the mind — then you are ready to become the most selfish person in the world, doing only those things which are of benefit to your true self. This is why we are such a small sect.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For February 11

Your birthday today: The ground - work laid last year comes into profitable use. Lessons mastered become working tools. People become more co-operative. Today's natives tend to be critical thinkers, tireless workers. They are sometimes so wrapped-up in their ideas that they neglect cultivation of social graces, friendships, family.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Proceed with yesterday's program. Turn on your charm. Pay no attention to any apparent faults in the manners of other people — remain gracious.

Truckers Will Pick Up Car

By RAY STAPLEY

A reader writes:

"The V8 engine on my four-year-old car recently broke down when I was about 700 miles from home. Apparently a connecting rod had failed and the only cure was to remove and overhaul the ngine. It took three days to complete the job and my bill was $352 plus another $45 for my hotel.

"About a week after returning home the engine developed a loud knock and my local mechanic tells me the main bearings are loose and gave me a rough quote of $150 for repairs. I phoned the man who did the original repairs and while he was courteous, he would assume no liability unless the car was returned to him, which of course is not practical. Have I any recourse in a case like this?"

Unless it can be definitely proven that the out-of-town mechanic was negligent I think it would be a waste of time trying to collect from him. If possible, it is best to avoid authorizing major repairs when stranded hundreds of miles away from home. Even with the most reputable repair shop things can go wrong and seldom would it be practical to return for warranty. It's hardly fair to expect the out-of-town garageman to accept the word of another repair shop hundreds of miles away, especially if he knew all was well at the time you left his shop.

Several transport companies who deliver new cars to various parts of the country are willing to pick up stranded vehicles on the return trip. A friend of mine recently used this mode of transportation to haul his car in from the country and his cost for the 500 mile trip was $95. If a car is wrecked and will not roll on its wheels, there would be an extra charge to lift and remove the vehicle from the transport trailer. Few motorists are aware of this service, and the cost of a tow truck for a long haul would be prohibitive.

By making use of this service the family can return by bus or train, and the car is returned to where you have a choice of garages, and can take advantage of the usual warranties available. Also, especially where a large family is involved, large hotel -bills can be avoided.

However, to avoid all this aggravation it is well to remember that a thorough checkover before leaving on a long trip minimizes the chances of sudden failure.

A reader writes:

"My car is four years old and from the time I purchased it, it has been a never ending battle to keep one step ahead of the rust problem. It was undercoated by my dealer during the first year and again in the third year. While there is no rust on the fender wells or underbody, the lips of the fenders and the lower section of the rocker panels and door panels are rusting. Also, small spots like freckles are appearing on the outside of the front doors. For the third time I have sand-papered the rusty areas and repainted them. Is there something more I should be doing to minimize this corrosion action in these rust prone areas?"

While everything helps, I have little faith in ordinary undercoating as a permanent approach to minimizing rust action. In order to adequately protect a vehicle from the ravishes of moisture, salt and industrial fall-out, the body must be internally rustproofed. The inside of the car's metal panels must be sprayed with a special compound that remains pliable to 40 degrees below zero and withstands temperatures up to 275 degrees F. To accomplish this it is necessary to drill small holes in inconspicious areas under the hood, trunk lid, doors, rocker panels and all vulnerable metal sections. Long spray tubes are placed in these holes to reach hard-to-get-at areas. Upon completion plastic plugs permanently seal these holes. Where necessary, headlight and taillight assemblies are removed to gain access to hidden pockets.

When the job is completed, every conceivable body panel and air pocket is enveloped in a protective coat of mineral base material, including the undercarriage, steel brake lines and exposed areas of the parking brake mechanism. A five year warranty is extended on new vehicles, but a used car must first be examined to establish whether or not the rust has advanced to such a point that the process would not be 100 per cent effective. Your nearest rustproofing agent can be located under "Rust Proofing" in the yellow pages.

Regarding the rusting on the lips of the fenders, keep in mind that sand and stones are constantly blasting away at these areas and eventually the paint will chip away. It helps to sandpaper and paint these sections when there is evidence of rust forming. The external finish can be protected from the effects of industrial fall-out by applying a coat of good wax.

Truitt Is Held As Hijacker

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — Alben W. Truitt, 35, grandson of the late United States vice-president Alben Barkley, was jailed here Sunday in lieu of $100,000 bail on federal charges of air piracy and kidnapping, the Federal Bureau of Investigation said.

Truitt was taken into custody Saturday by FBI agents at the U.S.-Canadian border in nearby Champlain, N.Y.

Canadian immigration authorities and the RCMP turned Truitt over to the FBI after the U.S.-accused hijacker withdrew an appeal to an order that he be deported from Canada.

The Canadian immigration department denied Truitt's application for landed-immigrant status Jan. 29 and ordered him out of the country.

Truitt is charged with forcing the pilot of a chartered Cessna 177 to take him to Cuba from Key West, Fla.

A preliminary hearing Sunday morning before U.S. Commissioner Joseph W. Kelley was continued until today and Truitt was ordered held in Clinton County jail.

The alleged hijacking occurred Oct. 23 last.

U.S. 'Deserters' Are Refused Entry

TORONTO (CP) — Deserters from the United States armed forces are being refused landed-immigrant status by Canadian immigration officers, John King, editor of the Glendon College newspaper Pro Tem, said Sunday.

Mr. King said five college students on assignment for Pro Tem were turned back at separate Canadian border-crossing points Saturday when they posed as U.S. Air Force deserters seeking landed-immigrant status in Canada.

The editor said in an interview that each of the students carried reproduced credentials of an air force deserter and displayed them in a futile attempt to gain entry into Canada as landed immigrants.

The Ontario checkpoints were at Queenston, Niagara Falls and Windsor and Fort Erie.

The students had earlier travelled to the U.S. in separate cars. They were later admitted to Canada after revealing that they were Canadians.

Huge Fireball Seen in South

CHIHAUHUA CITY, Mexico (AP) — A huge fireball, believed to have been a meteor or a polar-orbiting satellite, was sighted early Saturday over a large section of the southwestern United States and northern Mexico.

Witnesses said the blazing light, streaming a tail of fire like a streaking comet, lighted the early morning hours.

Residents at Santa Barbara, El Oro and Allende ran screaming into the streets.

The El Paso Times said the fireball was first seen as a small light and became larger and larger as it moved from north to south.

The Times received calls from as far away as Sierra Blanca, Tex., and St. John, Ariz., about 200 miles or more apart.

Although witnesses in northern Mexico said the fireball apparently struck the earth near the village of Parral, about 140 miles southeast of Chihuahua, Dr. Ronald Schorn, an astronomer, said it might have burned up before hitting anything solid.

World Steel Output Climbs

LUXEMBOURG, (AP) — World steel production last year passed the 500,000,000-ton mark for the first time, European Economic Community statistics show.

Output is estimated at 510,000,000 tons which would be 26,000,000 tons or 5.4 per cent above 1967 output, with China's production unknown.

The United States remained in the lead with 121,000,000 tons, up 2.5 per cent in 1967, and 23.7 per cent of world output. The Soviet Union produced 106,200,000 tons, 3.9 per cent above 1967, placing it second in world production with more than 20 per cent.

Belleville Plaza Opposition Calls Town-planning Expert

By HARRY MULHALL

Staff Reporter

The Ontario Municipal Board hearing deciding the outcome of the northend plaza dispute is in its final phases. But there is no predictable deadline for the inquiry's conclusion.

Today, Robert Macaulay, lawyer for opponents of the $3,000,000 shopping centre project called a key witness for the opposition — Toronto town-planning consultant and one-time assistant city engineer in Belleville John Miller.

Sources on Mr. Macaulay's team said the expert was the last witness originally scheduled to testify against the controversial shopping centre scheme.

Mr. Miller, secretary for E. G. Faludi and Associates, opened his testimony by producing a graph of Belleville's population growth — dating from 1901 — which normally is about an annual one-and-one-half per cent, he testified.

Population projections are part of the statistical complex of the case for a new plaza now before the board.

Mr. Miller's presentation is part of a challenge of data analysis earlier presented to the hearing by the plaza developers, Cambridge Leaseholds.

After Mr. Miller is finished testifying for the opposition — Oshawa Wholesale and the east-end Belleville Shopping Plaza Merchants' Association — he will face cross-examination by lawyers presenting the case for permissive rezoning of the north Front Street site.

The duration of his testimony and the possibility it may require other witnesses, likely will govern the remaining length of the OMB inquiry.

The consultant's call to the stand followed a succession of downtown business men and the recall of assistant city planner Frank Stokmans as the hearing entered its sixth day at city hall.

Mr. Stokmans, one of the first witnesses called by the city when the hearing on its rezoning bid opened last Tuesday, today was subpoenaed by Mr. Macaulay.

The planners appearance on the stand touched off an interchange of remarks between lawyers for both sides as he testified on statistics of downtown business floor areas.

Robarts Denounces Medicare as Fraud

Cash Relief Asked

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier John Robarts today called the national medical care insurance program "one of the greatest political frauds ever perpetrated on the country" and demanded federal compensation for its cost to Ontario.

He termed the medical insurance plan introduced by Ottawa "a Machiavellian scheme."

Ontario, a non-participant, is being taxed by $225,000,000 "for a plan out of which we are getting nothing."

He demanded "fiscal equivalent"—payment of cash by Ottawa to the provincial treasury equal to the benefit the province would get if it joined the national plan.

Mr. Robarts' strong language capped the opening few minutes of the federal-provincial constitutional conference's discussion of taxing and spending powers.

Prime Minister Trudeau suggested the debate be kept on the subject of how the constitution should distribute tax and spend-

Canada Takes First Step To Recognize Red China

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has taken the first step towards its goal of exchanging diplomatic relations with Communist China, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Monday.

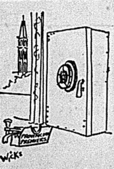
"Our embassy in Stockholm has been instructed to get in touch with the embassy of the People's Republic in order to convey the Canadian proposal that talks concerning relations between the two countries be held at a mutual convenient time and place in the near future," Mr. Sharp told the Commons.

Outside the House, the external affairs minister told reporters that the United States "and our other friends" were told in advance of the statement so "they would not be taken by surprise."

Mr. Sharp labelled his Commons statement a progress report. It was made to clear up rumors about the pending talks.

The minister's announcement brought a speedy protest from Hsueh Yu-chi, the Nationalist Chinese ambassador. It was the ambassador's second such protest in less than a week. The first was made Feb. 5.

Opposition spokesmen in the Commons welcomed Mr. Sharp's announcement, saying it was unrealistic for China's 700,000,000 people to be outside the ordinary diplomatic relations among nations.



Airlines Consider Hijacking Action

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A plan to put special security forces on board every airliner flying the eastern zone of the United States and the Caribbean to halt hijackings will be presented to a meeting of members of the International Air Transport Association March 4-5.

"All airlines operating in the eastern zone will send representatives to the meeting," Amando Pesqueira, spokesman for Aeronaves de Mexico, said Monday.

Armed Forces Centre Bombed

MONTREAL (CP) — A dynamite bomb exploded Monday night outside a Canadian Armed Forces building in north-end Montreal, the second blast to rock the building in six years.

Police said Ernest Cassivi, 55, a maintenance man working inside the building on Bates Road at the time of the explosion, suffered cuts to one ankle and was treated in hospital.

Situation Is Same --Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson today shot down any possibility of the federal government offering the provinces immediate financial relief at the second day of the constitutional conference.

Today's meeting was called to order at 10:08 a.m. EST by Prime Minister Trudeau.

Entering the meeting, Mr. Benson said in an interview that nothing has changed since last December's federal-provincial finance ministers conference.

At the December meeting, Mr. Benson told the provinces that if they wanted more money to meet their responsibilities they must raise it themselves.

Asked whether the picture has changed since then in the light of provincial premiers' demands for interim help while working out constitutional change, Mr. Benson replied: "I think not."

Strike Hits Big Plant, Hydro Seeks U.S. Power

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro, the province's publicly-owned electric power commission, announced today it will buy power from the United States in an effort to offset a strike at one of its main generating plants.

But the commission warned in a statement that "severe weather conditions in the northeastern U.S. will severely restrict availability of such power."
